"Meditation can be a part of your life within or without a religious context," she says. "However, it can certainly strengthen and deepen one's connection to the divine. With regular practice, meditators find that they begin to develop a relationship with a higher wisdom and they begin to trust in that wisdom."

It is this connection in particular that sparked the interest of the Second Congregational Church of Cohasset.

The Reverend Gary Ritts says, "Meditation changed my life. Many years ago, while in seminary, I took a course that included meditation. It was the one thing that truly put me in touch with God's presence all around and within my life. I employ those techniques throughout each and every day. Many in our parish and beyond recognize the benefits of meditation, but simply have no background in how to practice it. We wanted to have a venue within our church in which to offer this valuable instruction.

To this end, the church has invited Dr. Schrager to give a one-night workshop on meditation. The "How to Meditate" Event is open to all and will take place in Bates Hall at the Second Congregational Church on Wednesday, Oct. 10 at 7 pm. Dr. Schrager will offer practical tips on getting started as well as maintaining a regular meditation practice. She will lead the group in several different meditation techniques and will close with a Q&A session.

The church expects this to be a popular event and requests that you rsvp to Susi Coley at scc@2ndcc.org in order to ensure your spot in the program.

HAPPENINGS

RE workshop

On Monday, Oct. 1, at 5:30 pm, the Cohasset Elder Affairs will be presenting a one-hour Real Estate workshop for those considering the sale of a home. Janice L. Crowley, owner and Melissa J. Browne, realtor, CPM, of Coastal Countryside Properties will be discussing various aspects related to home selling, home purchase and downsizing. Making the decision to move us never without complication and Janice and Melissa will help alleviate the burden for you. Reservations are required and you may call 781-383-9112 to reserve your space.

Walkie-talkies

Also, being announced from the Cohasset Elder Affairs is the formation of a weekly senior walking group. Led by Beth Ahearn, a retired physical education teacher and coach for Weymouth, Cohasset, Hull and Plymouth, walks will start at 1 mile and may increase in length, depending on interest! Meet at the Town Hall Parking Lot on Thursday mornings at 9 am. Sneakers, comfy walking clothes and friends all work well for a very productive walk.

CASP CORNER

Registration deadline is drawing near – Oct. 1 – for priority seating (choice of who one is with on the nine-day trip). Open to ninth-graders and above.

Parents and other interested adults: Cohasset Appalachia Service Project (CASP) always needs extra advisors to help with preparations for and leadership on the actual trip to Appalachia. Skills required are not what one might expect: Patience and the ability to enjoy being and working with teenagers. Construction skills are way down the list – helpful, but not at all critical.

The "CASP 2013 Handbook" is available in the main office at Cohasset High School and also at the church offices of First Parish, St. Stephens and 2nd Congregational.

Completed forms and registration fee should be dropped off (mail slot in front/right door) or mailed to 2nd Congregational Church, 43 Highland Ave., next to Town Hall.

The Pumpkin Patch opens next Saturday, Oct. 6, at 10 a.m. This very special "tradition," now in its 10th year, is set up at the North Main Street entrance to Wheelwright Park. There will be over 3,000 pumpkins in the field, arranged in a special, "secret" pattern designed by long-time CASP volunteer, Phil Lehr. Once the lines are drawn (sometime early next week), the delivery truck will arrive on Wednesday afternoon, Oct. 3. Volunteers, of all ages, will then be instructed in the placement of the pumpkins to fill in the special Halloween-theme image. Oftentimes families and other curious folk will stop by to help place the pumpkins – the more the merrier. The process takes about 2 hours and will start (hopefully) around 3 p.m. – watch for the 18-wheeler in the adjacent field.

Cohasset Cabaret offers 'Razzle Dazzle & More!!!'

Doug Trudeau will be directing the show again this year. Doug wowed the audiences last year when he wrote and directed "That's Entertainment." Doug is the founder and director of the Scituate based "Showstoppers." He is also known for forming the group "Forever Plaid" and they have performed from New England to Florida. You can expect a great show again this year on Nov. 2 and 3.

"Razzle Dazzle & More!!!" will be an up tempo musical revue that will provide a nice variety of numbers from Broadway and movie musicals. The show will be comprised of solo and group numbers, comedy, dancing and perhaps you may even see some tap dancing. You can look for some of your favorite performers from prior years and some new faces.

You can try your luck at the raffle and silent auction table, which will have some great items from local artists and merchants. Audience members are encouraged to bring their own snacks "Cabaret Style." There will be a cash bar serving wine, beer and soft drinks. Cohasset Cabaret is sponsored by The Friends of Cohasset Elder Affairs and will benefit the Friends and St. Anthony's Youth Ministry.

Tickets are on sale now and the cost is $25. You can purchase tickets at St. Anthony's Parish Hall office and the CEA office at the South Shore Community Center or call 781-413-7540 for further information.

Cohasset cupcakes head to the Emmys

Desserts in a jar are making their mark

By Erin Dale

Cohasset's Wicked Good Cupcakes is celebrating its one-year anniversary with a very special honor. The bakery has been asked to supply 800 of its popular "Wicked Good to Go" cupcakes in jars to Monday's 33rd Annual News and Documentary Emmy Awards in New York City. The cupcakes will be part of the "swag bags" handed out at the event.

Call it irony or perhaps serendipity, but the Oct. 1 awards ceremony falls on the anniversary of the day Wicked Good Cupcakes opened its doors one year ago.

It's the icing on top of a whirlwind first year. In December, two short months after the business opened, Wicked Good Cupcakes attracted national attention when one of its cupcakes to go was confiscated by a TSA agent at the Las Vegas International Airport. The flavor was red velvet, and the bakery responded to the kerfuffle by changing the flavor's name from "National Velvet" to "National Security Velvet." It remains the shop's most popular flavor, according to owner Tracey Noonan.

Noonan said that she and the Wicked Good crew are excited about bringing their cupcakes to the Emmys next week.

"We were just contacted by the company, called Off the Wall productions, responsible for putting the swag bags together, asked if we wanted to be included, and we said yes," she said.

This request will make for quite the productive day in the shop this Friday as she and her team, including co-owner daughter Danielle Desroches, work to assemble the treats and send them off.

"We were just contacted by the company, called Off the Wall productions, responsible for putting the swag bags together, asked if we wanted to be included, and we said yes."
Tracey Noonan, Wicked Good Cupcakes

"We'll be crazy-busy," said Noonan. "We try to do everything as close to delivery day as possible and bake the same day we ship. Our jars are good for seven to ten days and will be fresh for Monday night."

The cupcakes will first be shipped to Bedford, New Hampshire on Saturday, where Off the Wall will add them to the swag bags. Then Cohasset's own cupcakes will be presented to Emmy attendees in NYC.

Then Wicked Good Cupcakes will gear up for another big event later in the month. Noonan said that they were asked to provide the main dessert for the upcoming "Funny Women, Serious Business" luncheon, hosted by Rosie's Place at Boston's Hynes Convention Center on Oct. 30.

This will call for more work than even the Emmys: "We're going to provide 1,450 jars for that event," said Noonan.

While Wicked Good also offers gourmet cupcakes with flavors like "Mocha Madness" and "Maple French Toast and Bacon," it's the jarred version that's really taken off.

"The jars account for 60 percent of our business," said Noonan. "We have a ton of corporate clients using us for that reason."

Building off the popularity of the cupcakes-to-go, Wicked Good will soon be putting brownies in jars, too. Like the cupcake counterparts, brownies-to-go will feature frostings and fillings swirled together in a decorative jar.

"They're just delicious," Noonan said of the new brownies. "I love coming to work every day and getting to taste something new."

Something else that's pretty sweet about the job? The love Wicked Good Cupcakes has gotten from its clients and customers over the past year.

"We're very fortunate to have great support from the town and the South Shore," said Noonan. "We're really blessed. People are rooting for us to do well, and that means a lot to us."

For more information on Wicked Good Cupcakes, visit www.wickedgoodcupcakes.com, call 781-923-1369, or stop by 132 Chief Justice Cushing Highway (Route 3A), Cohasset.

ELECTION2012

highest percentage of nonwhites in the district, the Third Plymouth District is not significantly racially diverse. "It never has been," Bradley said.

But Bradley said the 160-member House of Representatives has changed over his time there. As examples, he described the Black and Latino Caucus as a "significant group" and noted there are two Asian-American representatives, Donald H. Wong, R-Saugus, and Tackey Chan, D-Quincy. He also pointed out that a Haitian American, Representative Linda Dorcena Forry, D-Dorchester, took former Speaker Tom Finneran's seat in 2005.

Bradley said he feels diverse districts are sending representatives that match the breakdown of those districts.

Bradley said he seeks the counsel from representatives in districts more affected by particular legislation when appropriate. He provided examples of whether IDs should be presented when voting or welfare concerns because those representatives may be hearing more about those matters from their constituents than he is.

"The one thing I have learned in my 12 years is that I don't know everything," Bradley said.

He said the number of women in the House has increased over this tenure but more pronounced is the change in background of those elected. He said there are nurses, small business owners and even a former judge in the mix, just to name a few.

"The biggest change I've seen is in what people did before they came to the House," said Bradley.

He said contrary to what some believe, the legislature is not dominated by practicing lawyers. However, he believes his legal background helps him when drafting legislation and dealing with the House rules.

Bradley, who was elected in 2000, succeeded the retiring Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray, R-Cohasset, who represented the district for 24 years. Murray, who passed away in 2006, always joked she was a "Republi-crat" representing both Republicans and Democrats alike.

Plymouth & Norfolk District (Senate)

State Sen. Robert Hedlund, R-Weymouth, said he evaluates all proposed legislation on its merits.

"We should not see things along racial lines," said Hedlund, whose district includes Weymouth, Hull, Hingham, Cohasset, Marshfield, Duxbury, Norwell and Scituate. "We should be trying to strive for what Martin Luther King spoke about, and that is to achieve a color-blind society."

Genevieve Davis, D-Norwell.

Bob Hedlund, R-Weymouth.

Garrett Bradley, D-Hingham.

The Plymouth & Norfolk District is approximately 93.11 percent white, 1.54 percent African-American, 2.12 percent Asian and 1.69 percent Hispanic, according to the Massachusetts Joint Committee on Redistricting.

Hedlund jokingly said there is a lack of diverse political parties on Beacon Hill.

"Republicans are outnumbered in the Senate 36-4," Hedlund said. "I'm only one of two small business owners that sit in the Senate."

Hedlund's Democratic opponent in this year's election, Genevieve Davis of Norwell, said she would consider how any proposed legislation would impact people of all ethnic groups, gender and political parties if she is elected Nov. 6.

"What we need are broad-minded politicians," Davis said. "Everyone is equal."

Davis said her professional experience of working for non-profit groups with various ethnicities, wealthy people and homeless individuals would be invaluable in representing their needs.

"I think everyone needs a voice and the right to be heard," Davis said. "My hope is the legislature would hear all voices."

Davis said she believes Hedlund is improperly targeting the illegal immigrant population with his support to end the X-Registration law. The law previously allowed applicants to receive an X registration number from Registry of Motor Vehicles officials if they did not submit a driver's license at the time of registering their car.

Lawmakers approved a statute proposed by Hedlund in July that requires any person who registers a car in Massachusetts to offer proof of residency at the Registry of Motor Vehicles with a driver's license, Social Security number or other type of proof.

Davis said the new law imposes an extra duty on the Registry of Motor Vehicles "It is targeting illegal immigrants and the Department of Homeland Security should be handling that," Davis said.

Hedlund said he received much support from Democratic lawmakers in addition to Republicans who overrode Gov. Deval Patrick's veto of the stricter car registration law in July.

"She is taking an extreme position on illegal immigration," he said. "She should talk with the families of victims who were killed in motor vehicle accidents by illegal immigrants who used X-Registration loopholes. I can put her in touch with some families on the South Shore who have been victims of that loophole." Davis said Hedlund is unfairly targeting illegal immigrants by not supporting in-state tuition rates for the college students who are in this population.

"The Supreme Court has given them the right to an education, but Senator Hedlund was against this population getting instate tuition," Davis said.

Hedlund said he absolutely opposes in-state tuition rates for illegal immigrants, "as do most of the Democrats in the Senate and House. Every member of her own party has run away from that one," he said. "If she is taking a pro-illegal immigration position, she is out of touch with the entire district. The majority of the Democrats in the legislature disagree with her."

"We have lacked that access," Curry said.

Rep. Byron Rushing, D-Boston, an African-American and House assistant majority leader, said he sees the consequences of underrepresentation when Beacon Hill deals with race, discrimination or poverty.

"If you represent those populations, and you come from those populations, you tend to have more knowledge about those problems, and you also have more empathy for those problems," Rushing said.

Disparities also have been apparent in the culture of the State House. Women lawmakers tend to favor building consensus over taking credit, said Rep. Cory Atkins, D-Concord, co-chairwoman of the Women's Legislative Caucus.

"The alpha male, chest-thumping thing just doesn't seem relevant to a lot of females," she said.

Both women and minorities have faced barriers in winning office.

Legislative voting districts long diluted minority voting power, African-American leaders said. Women faced a tough time breaking into a world that for years was a good ol' boy network, said Sen. Karen Spilka, D-Ashland, co-chairwoman of the women's caucus.

Watanabe said it also takes time for recent immigrants to become citizens and begin to vote, much less win elected office.

Some of these obstacles have begun to break down. House districts where minorities make up a majority of voters doubled under redistricting last year, from 10 to 20.

"For a generation of us, that door is starting to open wider," Curry said.

Women also have made headway, said Spilka, pointing to Senate President Therese Murray as one of several role models for women now on Beacon Hill. Spilka herself is assistant majority whip.

Compared to the male-dominated 1960s and '70s on Beacon Hill, "the shenanigans that used to go on with the drinking and the partying and the extramarital stuff, that doesn't go on as much," Atkins said.

But both women and minority leaders said they must work to encourage more candidates from their backgrounds to run for office.

"I think we help the pipeline," Spilka said. "We encourage women to run for town boards, whether it be library trustee or school committee or board of selectmen." Rushing said candidates have to be willing to step up in new majority-minority districts.

"You have to run to win," he said, adding it often takes candidates more than one try.

Still, the power of incumbency and the Democratic Party's domination of both chambers means turnover and opportunities for newcomers can be rare, Watanabe said. Change in the Legislature is "painfully, glacially slow," he said.

There is no guarantee a more diverse Legislature would be wiser, but "it might be attuned to a broader range of views and experiences," he said.

"I think it's important for people to feel that government is reflective of who they are and their populations," Spilka said. "We can raise issues, but I think for people to feel a real part of it, to have it a little more reflective of the population, is important."

Mariner election policy detailed

Politics allows candidates to submit position statements on issues of relevance in the race. Statements should focus on the candidate's position and not addressing the opponent's position.

Between now and the Nov. 6 general election – on a space available basis – the Cohasset Mariner will publish a weekly Candidates' Corner and Politics column based on submissions from the candidates themselves or their campaign staff.

Candidates' Corner is available for announcements such as dates for coffees and meet-and-greets, as well as fundraisers. Announcements for Candidates' Corner will be limited to no more than 150 words per week from candidates. Submissions are subject to editing and will run on a space available basis. There is no guarantee of when and where the Candidates' Corner column runs.

Politics allows candidates to submit position statements on issues of relevance in the race. Statements should focus on the candidate's position and not addressing the opponent's position. Word limit for the Politics column is 250. Submissions are subject to editing and will run on a space available basis. There is no guarantee of when and where the Politics column runs. Submissions for the Politics column will not be accepted the week before the election.

Candidates may send submissions via email to editor, Mary Ford at: mford@wickedlocal.com; or by dropping off their responses at the Cohasset Mariner office, 73 South St., Hingham. Deadline for submissions is noon Wednesday for that week's publication.

The Mariner will not accept letters to the editor from candidates or letters endorsing or attacking particular candidates. The Mariner will publish letters about campaign issues from citizens not seeking election. Letters are subject to editing and may be refused for publication at the editor's discretion.

For questions about campaign advertising, call Claudia Oliver at 781-837-4519.

SOUTH SHORE

Pundits survey political landscape

By Mary Jane Hanron
mjhanron@wickedlcoal.com

As voters prepare to go to the polls this November, political pundits and those who study trends in the region believe issues rather than demographics will motivate voters. In a time when micro-targeting and "get out the vote" (GOTV) efforts focus on certain characteristics of the electorate, local observers believe at least at the state and local level that character, positions on legislative topics, record and reflection of core values are what will drive voting decisions.

Despite instances in which voters are categorized by race, gender, religion or age, the consensus of political analysts is that voters seek representation that reflects values, beliefs and support of issues they hold rather than common physical or social characteristics.

South Shore Democratic Caucus Chairman Kevin McCarthy said representatives in the area follow the principles of good government and adhere to what is best for their constituents, which is generally in line with decisions that will also have a positive impact statewide.

"Our local representatives are very good listeners with a keen interest in understanding voters' concerns," McCarthy said. "When there is an issue of particular significance, many hold forums and open meetings to give the public an opportunity to express themselves. Whether voters are of the same gender, race or religion is irrelevant. Most people have the same concerns about the economy, local finances and aid, schools, safety, taxes and transportation. These all affect voters across the board and that is how elected officials view them."

McCarthy also noted that most representatives on the South Shore hold regular office hours in their districts open to anyone wishing to speak with them. "They are happy to listen and address individual concerns, so if there is a voter with a unique perspective on an issue, there is a way to seek support and assistance."

As leader of the South Shore Democratic Caucus, Cohasset resident McCarthy oversees the activities of town committees in Weymouth, Duxbury Hingham, Cohasset, Scituate, Marshfield, Hull and Norwell. According to McCarthy the Caucus serves as an advocate for Democratic values and principles, while supporting democratic candidates and issues. White males dominate the regional representation but McCarthy believes those elected are representative of the beliefs of their constituents.

According to local political analyst John Creed, who appears regularly on WATD during election season, the presence of women and minorities in politics is a reflection of communities as a whole.

"Women involved with politics has actually been on the rise," he said. "There is a woman now (Genevieve Davis) running against (Senator) Bob Hedlund. Rhonda Nyman is very successful and popular in her district (Hanover, Norwell and Rockland). And Senator (Therese) Murray has been in the Senate for 20 years."

Agreeing with other analysts, Creed said he does not believe female voters would support a female candidate based solely on her gender.

"I think it's important for all voters, men and women, that a candidate stand for what they believe in," he said. "I don't think the fact that someone might be a man or might be a woman would make a difference."

Republican State Committee Chairwoman Janet Fogarty of Scituate concurred. "People really don't vote that way anymore," she said. "I think anyone who votes solely on race or gender is rare. Both a black president and black governor have been elected. There have been many women running for high political office nationally and at the state level. We're far beyond that now – people simply don't look at color or gender."

Janet Fogarty of Scituate, Republican State Commiteewoman.

Kevin McCarthy of Cohasset, South Shore Democratic Caucus Chairman.

Fogarty represents Plymouth and Norfolk counties on the state committee.

Minority candidates and representatives would be more apt to be found in larger towns and cities, where they are a larger part of the community, Creed said.

"When you look at local town government, boards and committees, I think there is a larger representation of minorities there than there might be in the Legislature or in the Senate. And that is important because they are close to the community and aware of the community needs."

Creed's observations echoed McCarthy's sentiments.

"People like to walk into the local coffee shop and see their state representatives. They know they are one of them facing the same problems as every one else," said McCarthy. "This holds true with state senators but especially with state representatives; voters know them and see them in the neighborhoods and the community. It's much more important to voters to believe a candidate is a good citizen who cares about the community than what their race or religion is. Sometimes even party isn't a factor. People are much more likely to cross political party lines to vote for someone they know to be a good person at the local level."

Fogarty said she believes there are changes taking place in Massachusetts's voting trends but they are based on increased knowledge and awareness possessed by voters.

"Massachusetts has traditionally been a one-party state but in recent years that is gradually changing," she said. "Independents still have the greatest impact but there is an overwhelming sense that voters have had enough. They want to support their local representatives and often do but then the elected candidate goes to Beacon Hill and doesn't listen to the constituents or represent their views. Too many politicians vote with the leadership to further their political careers or agendas. A vote with the leadership can get them a committee appointment or a government job for a family member or friend. This corruption has come to light in the last few years with multiple speakers being involved in corrupt action and the many scandals and crimes that have been exposed in state government. If nothing else it is a cry for term limits. Because of the state of finances, the job market and economic difficulties, people are waking up to this. They are seeing it and they have had enough. When they make decisions about voting, thoughts about race, religion or gender don't even come into the picture. It is who will represent them with integrity and get the job done."

Fogarty said the increase in local contested races in the area over the last few election cycles is evidence of this change in voter attitudes.

"For a long time people were comfortable with the status quo and that's understandable," she said. "People lead very busy lives and it is difficult to follow up on the votes local representatives take. They should be reflecting the values of constituents but they often don't. People in this area tend to hold more conservative and traditional values than those of the elected officials. With the revelations of what has been happening on Beacon Hill many voters are putting more time and thought into their choices. They will be making some bold decisions in November."

Though expecting a robust election turnout, McCarthy emphasized he did not believe regional candidates campaigned by reaching out to constituents based on personal distinctions but rather common beliefs and principles.

"Some of the most effective candidates go right to the people," he said. "They will bypass political town committees or organized events and visit town meetings or local boards. That is how they connect with the voters and for the most part in this area citizens welcome it. They like to know the person they vote for is one of them."

Ruth Thompson contributed to this report.

OUR VIEW

Baby boomers

Baby boomers are part of the demographic of the "baby boom" of 79 million new arrivals born between 1946 and 1964 in the United States.

By their unprecedented numbers over the course of their lives, baby boomers have dominated the scene, dictated fashion and culture, and created the largest consumer group and voting block ever known. Most cities and towns had to build several new schools to accommodate the population surge in the 1950s and 1960s.

The oldest of the group – those born in 1946 – have now reached the ripe old age of 66. Their demographic counterparts will be adding to the rolls of senior citizens for the next 18 years. Many will live into their 90s and beyond.

While seniors today make up about 25 percent of the local population – in the years ahead, that percentage is going to increase. In an effort to get a handle on what to expect and how to accommodate the growing needs of an aging population, the Town of Cohasset working in conjunction with UMass Boston is about to launch a town-wide community survey. Cohasset residents 18 and older will be receiving a postcard inviting them to participate in the survey.

We would like to add our voice to that of the town and Cohasset Elder Affairs in asking those residents 18 and older to fill out the survey.

In addition to helping Cohasset continue to be a great place for all ages, the results will help Elder Affairs plan for the needs of Cohasset's older adults both in the short- and long-term that include plans for a new Senior Center.

This is serious stuff. Our town, state and nation are rapidly becoming part of a changing demographic when older people are going to represent a much larger part of the population. We need to be prepared.

John Lennon once said "never trust anyone over 30." Lennon, who was born in 1940, was just ahead of the baby-boom generation, but was one if its icons. If he were alive today, he would be turning 72 next month.

His fellow Beatle, Paul McCartney, is 70. McCartney wrote in the Beatles song, "When I'm 64." On one of the internet Beatles blogs, a blogger wrote that he was 19 when the song came out and now he is 64. "If you think about it, 64 is like being a teenager in your Senior years," he wrote.

Correction

Due to a production error part of the last paragraph of Chris Ford's commentary was cut off in last week's Mariner. Here is the last paragraph in its entirety. The entire commentary is also posted online.

"We look forward to working with the Commission to fully examine any outstanding concerns that they may have. Like the Town, we are not eager to spend unnecessary funds in a legal action if we can resolve this matter by working together, in a civil manner, towards a common solution. – Chris Ford, 31 S. For the record

In regard to the e-mail discussions at the Sept. 18 Board of Selectmen's meeting, I should have made perfectly clear to set the record straight that I did not send any or participate in nasty e-mails. Actually, I do not even have Mr. DeCaprio's email address.

Key to minimizing VSO turnover

The Cohasset Mariner Sept. 21, 2012, lead article reported another "temporary" arrangement for covering the Veterans' Agents important position and responsibilities. The key to minimizing turnover is to pay what the position is worth. The job requires extensive knowledge and experience and the incumbent must be a self-starter because no one else in Town Government knows the intricacies of the job and privacy rules are critical. To regionalize or not to regionalize is not the issue.

However, to offer only $200/week ($10,400/annum) is the issue. I believe Hingham; population 22,394, VSO personnel costs approximate $100,000. Cohasset's population, 7,525, is roughly one-third of Hingham's. When I retired after three years as Cohasset's unpaid VSO, I recommended that the position be part-time (20 hours/week) with an annual salary of $30,000. I stand by my recommendation.

CMI appreciates support

Cohasset Maritime Institute was pleased to host the Minot's Light Roundabout open water rowing race Saturday, Sept. 15, for the first time at Sandy Beach, and we could not have managed such a successful event without the help of many volunteers, local organizations and town officials.

We would like to thank Cohasset Selectmen and Cohasset Police for their support of the event and use of the Sandy Beach parking lot. Thank you to Harbormaster Lori Gibbons and our chase boat crew of Peter Pearce, Mark and Bett Baker, Tim Feeney, John and Diane Herth, Al Swartwood, Rick Swanborg, Phil and Bernadette Faulkner, and Jen and Rob Willms for keeping the racecourse safe. Thanks to Rob Lawrence Annette Sawchuk and the Sandy Beach Association for offering the use of Sandy Beach as a spectacular venue for the race. Thanks to the Farmer's Market Association, South Shore Community Center, Cohasset Yacht Club, Cohasset Rotary, the Hull Lifesaving Museum and Wayne Sawchuk for their support. Thanks to Mary Sease and her crew for serving a wonderful barbeque, and to the Rusty Skippers for adding a musical sparkle and entertainment. Thanks to Lynne Layman for photographing the event.

On behalf of the board of Cohasset Maritime Institute, we appreciate the support of the town and are looking forward to this event for next year.

Not playing by the rules

PETER DECAPRIO

So, how did a vacant lot that didn't meet the sewer department's requirements leapfrog every lot on the vacant lot list and actually get a sewer permit?

In last week's Mariner, Chris Ford decried the treatment received during con-com hearings on his proposed project. Mr. Ford would have you believe he is merely following "prescribed process." If Mr. Ford is following the "prescribed process," then those of us playing by the rules are fools. Actually, as a long-time resident and former town official Mr. Ford, in my view, is using his connections to circumvent the process and cut corners.

The vacant lot at issue was purchased in the early 1990s by Mr. Ford's brother, who lives in California. The lot has been vacant since 1975 when it was created as part of a subdivision. It has been carried on the town's tax rolls every year as "unbuildable." At 29,000 square feet, it is less than the minimum size required for development according to Cohasset's ZBA rules. Nevertheless, in September of 2008, Chris Ford applied for a sewer permit for the lot, and this is where the fun starts.

The North Cohasset sewer district was completed in 2000. Priority for connections was given to existing homes. In order to insure sufficient capacity, our sewer commission sensibly established a "vacant lot" policy. Many developments in North Cohasset have been denied sewer permits because of the priority afforded to existing homes. Here is the policy:

"...homes that existed in the North Cohasset Sewer District that received a betterment charge from the Town for sewer construction costs are automatically eligible for tie-in... Because the District was defined by pre-existing homes on or near Straits Pond that could fit within the 80,000 gpd limitation, no development of build-able lots within the District can currently be accommodated... As of May 2005 the Sewer Commission may grant a sewer tie in for buildable lots as long as the lot meets the following criteria. The lot must be within 400' of Straits Pond and have a Title 5 Septic Design already approved by the Board of Health."

The Fords' sewer application is almost entirely blank. On Page 1, they list their lot as "vacant." On the part of the application, which asks for details on the existing home, such as water meter readings, Mr. Ford states that the house has four bedrooms and a garbage grinder, even though the lot is vacant, no home ever existed, nor were any house plans ever presented.

Excerpts of the sewer commission minutes from Sept. 28, 2008, when the Ford's sewer application was considered, state: "This property meets all the criteria to satisfy the ACEC (Area of Critical Environmental Concern) guidelines. Neil Murphy Associates had designed an on site septic system that meets all normal engineering requirements. The lot meets all zoning requirements and setbacks. The purpose of coming before the Board of Sewer Commissioners is to secure a connection, as a home cannot be built without this. Ted Ford is ready to commence the process of building."

Except that the property doesn't meet all the ACEC criteria as a Title V septic system has never been approved. Neither Mr. Murphy nor anyone else has ever designed a septic plan. The lot does not meet all zoning requirements because it is too small to conform. In my view, either the sewer commission is complicit in this and was papering over a

GROWING ON THE FARM

Garden season not over yet

JON BELBER

These early days of Autumn, with plenty of sunshine and often cool nights, are terrific for sowing some Fall crops. Spinach is one of many cool season seeds, along with salad mix, radish, cilantro, kale, chard and tatsoi, that respond and grow well as the days turn crisp and the light slowly dims. These plants have a chance to grow and get established before the winter temperatures settle in. The farm beds still have primarily warm soil from the summer and are ripe for seed germination. Many gardeners can extend the season and think about some fresh greens and root cops to harvest for the Thanksgiving table and a late November treat.

It is also exciting to dig anew in the soil, as perhaps the garden has escaped us a bit. Prevalent and persistent weeds, grassy edges encroaching and tired, spent summer plants and vines are dominating many a garden plot and farm row. This overwhelming scene, along with our own human fatigue, that never seemed possible with the first seeds and burst of spring energy, can make a gardener feel like hanging it all up until next year. But wait!

Upon closer inspection, there may even be a forgotten potato, a hidden beet and certainly a few green and magic purple beans behind their heart shaped leaves. There is a reason many people pause to celebrate the New Year in September. (This is also time to pause, reflect and look back on our work and any possible garden sins as well).

So why not pull some weeds, dig in the soil, add some compost and plant some seeds. Well before it's time to plant the garlic, daffodils and tulips in mid to late October, it is great to think about what possible radish might appear 28 days from now.

This past week, we have hosted our aptly named Baby Spinach program at the farm for children ages 3 to 5. We set to dig and pull some weeds, pick and slice a cucumber (no salt needed), place seeds in the ground, take a woods walk, make compost with the aid of available horse manure and local apple cores and practice some fine motor control skills in cutting some fresh flowers for a bouquet. These happy preschoolers may not be future farmers, but they too are trying something new and maybe storing some fun outdoor memories for later in life. They come to a weedy garden and do not see a mess or think about the lost squash or the blighted tomatoes. Instead, they, like us, seek to turn and till, soak up the sun and see what happens with good ol' soil, sun and water: a nice recipe for us all.

Preliminary FY 2012 financials

As Cohasset's Finance Department works to close the books on fiscal year 2012, they have issued some preliminary financials. The numbers should be finalized by the end of October, according to Town Manager Michael Milanoski.

According to Finance Director Mary Gallagher's preliminary report, the town expended 99.37 percent of its nearly $35 million total budget, leaving just over $200,000 as the available balance.

In FY '13, 16.83 percent of the $34.5 million budget has been expended thus far, leaving an available balance of over $29 million for the remainder of the current fiscal year.

Fall Town Meeting: Dec. 10

Acting Town Manager Michael Milanoski and the Board of Selectmen selected Monday, December 10 as the date for Special Town Meeting.

HISTORICAL HAPPENINGS

One of finest pieces of persuasion ever written

MARY KENNEDY

The signing of the U.S. Constitution. COURTESY

Slowly, painfully, Benjamin Franklin, who had seemed to be snoozing during many of the heated verbal exchanges, rose to his feet.

Benjamin Franklin at the Constitutional Convention. One of the most powerful speeches in the English language.

After eight long years, the battles were over. Those thirteen British colonies which King George III had declared traitors in 1775 had won the American Revolution. Although both France and Spain recognized United States independence by 1780, England did not formally concede defeat until March 1782. (Coincidentally, during that same year, the use of the scarlet letter "A," sewn on the clothes of an adulteress, was abandoned in New England).

May 25, 1787: The Constitutional Convention opened in Philadelphia, with George Washington presiding. Its purpose? To create a stronger union, one to stand equal with the great nations of Europe. Among the delegates arriving from thirteen states stretching from Maine to Georgia was Benjamin Franklin, the oldest at 81 years, frail and suffering from a number of disabilities, including gout.

Throughout that long summer – the hottest most could remember – discussions and debates continued nonstop as men from diverse backgrounds who had agreed to unite, fought to get their sectional interests approved. States' rights vs. strong central government. The larger states arguing for congressional representation based on population. The smaller demanding one-state, one-vote. (Compromise was reached with the approval of the Senate and House of Representatives). And always the thorny problem of slavery. Abolish or approve.

On September 17, the last day of the Convention, the delegates were deadlocked. Some refused to sign the Constitution unless it abolished slavery. Those from slave-holding states threatened to walk out, never to return. It appeared that the Constitution would not be accepted. The thirteen original colonies would not be truly united as one strong country, the United States of America. The world – especially England, France, and Spain – was watching. And waiting, perhaps, to pounce.

Slowly, painfully, Benjamin Franklin, who had seemed to be snoozing during many of the heated verbal exchanges, rose to his feet. Too weak to deliver his words, he handed his papers to James Wilson, a delegate from Pennsylvania.

Sir, I am not sure I shall never approve it; for having lived long, I have experienced many instances of being obliged, by better information or fuller consideration, to change my opinions even on important subjects, which I once thought right, but found to be otherwise. It is therefore that, the older I grow, the more apt I am to doubt my own judgment of others.

Franklin's speech ranks as one of the finest pieces of persuasion ever written or delivered. Never does he accuse any one member or one faction of wrongdoing; always he includes himself among those who are convinced of their own "infallibility." Even though there are valid objections to this Constitution, he urges, let us "make manifest our unanimity" and sign "this Instrument" so that we can then get on with making sure it is "well-administered." Accepting the Constitution will "astonish our enemies" who are waiting for us to separate, and meet later "for the purpose of cutting one another's throats." He accepts the Constitution "because I expect no better, and because I am not sure that it is not the best." (Note the power of the double negative)!

The Constitution was signed that day, then sent out to the thirteen states to be ratified. On March 2, 1788, the Massachusetts vote was 187 in favor to 168 against (politicians at odds even then).

Outside the Convention Hall, one woman asked, "Well, Doctor, what have we got – a Republic or a Monarchy?" Benjamin Franklin answered, "A Republic, if you can keep it."

Mary Kennedy lives in Cohasset, teaches at Suffolk University, and travels whenever she can.

FOR THE RECORD

Winning coverage takes a team effort

GREGORY MATHIS

In addition to cooperation from coaches, parents are another great resource for providing recaps to help fill in the gaps.

Now that the fall school sports season has kicked off and is in full swing, I thought it might be a good time to revisit our game plan for covering local sports.

For those who know anything about us, local sports coverage is something we take great pride in.

We know there's more to local sports than what goes on with varsity teams at public high schools. There are many private high schools in our coverage area with terrific sports programs. There are also several colleges that wouldn't mind a little coverage in the local press.

In addition to varsity high school programs, most schools have junior varsity and freshman programs. If you get beyond school sports, there is a plethora of youth sports and adult recreational activities that could and should find their way into our sports coverage.

There is a couple of factors contributing to what we cover and how we cover it, especially in print: space and time.

Our sports editors oversee several papers and are responsible for covering several towns each. They generally write several stories per week themselves and have a few stories written by freelance sports reporters. So there are basically 8-10 stories per week generated by staff or freelancers spread out over three to five towns and newspapers.

And you know if you follow high school sports, each high school has six or seven sports going on in any one season. That's anywhere from 24 to 28 teams in any given season for our sports editors to cover. So the math would indicate there might only be coverage for less than half the teams in a given week.

We try to rotate our coverage as much as possible so we don't miss a team two weeks in a row or more, but sometimes that does happen because of circumstances. Sometimes it's a matter of a coach being unavailable to talk about the team since it's impossible to get to every game.

We not only rely on coaches for quotes and game stats, but also to provide us with written recaps of their teams, sometimes in lieu of staff or freelance reports. We've had a lot of success with that type of coach cooperation in many of the towns we cover.

In addition to cooperation from coaches, parents are another great resource for providing recaps to help fill in the gaps. This, too, has been effective in making sure teams and athletes get a deserved mention from time to time, especially at the youth sports level.

You can always contact your local sports editor directly if you have questions about submitting articles or photographs. You also can use the sports submission feature on our Wicked Local websites. Click on "Submit Your News" in the navigation bar at the top of the website and scroll down to the bottom. You'll see a link titled, "Submit your sports news." Click on that and follow the instructions, and when you click submit, the information will go directly to the sports editor for your community.

We know you count on us for local sports coverage. But we're counting on those involved with community sports programs to help us make it as comprehensive as possible.

DOG CLINIC DEBATED

May require bylaw change

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

Cohasset veterinarian Dr. Fawn Stevenson, who runs the Crazy Paws veterinary hospital in the James Brook Crossing shopping center off Pleasant Street, is trying to open a walk-in clinic for dogs at 240 King St. (Route 3A) across from Stop & Shop next to Smith Appliance. With recent incidents involving dogs getting hit by cars, having an office for ailing or injured pets – no appointments necessary – seems like a timely initiative.

However, Stevenson has had some trouble getting her proposed project off the ground. The vet has attended a number of hearings with the Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA) with her attorney, Richard Henderson. While the hearing remains opened and ZBA chair Woody Chittick said that he is not yet allowed to comment, Stevenson said in a phone call that she got the sense the ZBA would approve her project.

"They seemed comfortable" with it, Stevenson said.

However, a town bylaw has caused a holdup that could lead to the withdrawal of Stevenson's application and require a Town Meeting vote to change the language of the law.

According to the vet, a few people opposing the clinic are "getting hung up on language in the bylaw. The original zoning bylaw talks about the buffer required for agricultural businesses such as farms, Christmas tree farms and veterinary hospitals."

However, Stevenson explained, "Old-time veterinarians used to have barns and livestock... That old bylaw is not applicable. This is more of a doctor's office."

In the old town bylaw, veterinary hospitals are listed in the "agricultural" category, according to town Building Inspector Bob Egan, along with stables and kennels. The bylaw says that such structures have to be 200 feet away from the lot line. Stevenson is hoping the town will agree to change the wording in the bylaw so that the buffer zone only applies to agricultural vets, not to vets treating domestic pets.

Two abutters to the proposed King Street site are upholding the buffer zone in this bylaw, Stevenson explained. However, she argued that her clinic will not look or feel like an animal hospital, nor will it have kennels.

The vet said that she does not put dogs in cages. "I'm against putting healthy dogs in cages... At my place, dogs come in with their owners."

Walk into Crazy Paws, which has been operating for six years, and one can see that barnyard animals are simply not the clientele. The clinic feels less like an animal hospital and more like a pet spa. Stevenson said that she has a similar vision for the walk-in clinic.

"We'll have a fireplace in the waiting room and have it built to look like a home," the vet explained. "The front's going to be landscaped with meditation gardens. From the outside, it's going to look like a New England home... It'll still be a very small structure, something that's a little more homey and inviting."

Stevenson further said that her neighboring businesses in James Brook Crossing have no complaints about working next to a veterinary clinic, which is located right next door to the Windsor Tea House. In fact, Stevenson said that the tea shop's owner, Judy McColgan, has vouched for Crazy Paws.

According to Stevenson, McColgan, who serves food right next door, has said that she would hardly know Crazy Paws is there, and was among 100 signatures on a petition "attesting to the fact that it's completely quiet and clean and doesn't smell like anything." McColgan could not be reached for comment.

Stevenson said that her new neighbors wouldn't be negatively impacted, either.

"I think it's just people not knowing," the vet said of the opposition to the project, adding that she thinks "an abutter doesn't want any business there, just wants town to have it as a buffer zone. She bought a house next to commercial area and is complaining that I'm going to be loud, but it's far from a quiet spot."

In fact, the vet is concerned about the impact noise from 3A traffic could have on her business.

"I hope to keep the clinic buffered against the noise... have it be tranquil inside," she said. "I used to work in a large 24-hour hospital and hated it; it's too impersonal and fast. I wanted a small, cozy place where I could spend time and get to know my clients and patients."

The next ZBA hearing on the proposed clinic is on Monday, October 1. The proposed location at 240 King St. is zoned highway business and abuts a residential district.

Egan predicts that the matter will end up on a warrant article for the Dec. 10 Special Town Meeting.

"Town meeting would have to change the bylaw to differentiate between a veterinary hospital for horses and cows versus a veterinary clinic for household animals," Egan explained, adding that nowadays, with the prevalence of "doggie spas" and different types of care for animals, the old bylaws could use an update, and some clarification.

"Sometimes, you don't know something is broken until you look into it," he said.

the Selectmen; and the selectmen and town managers have, over the years, threatened to revoke the Inn's liquor and entertainment licenses if the Inn should not cooperate with officials. Most recently, owner Gerd Ordelheide said he had hired someone to "install a noise measurement system."

Whether this will be enough to appease nearby residents has yet to be seen. However, Jim Sandell of the architectural firm Carr, Lynch and Sandell, Inc., speaking on behalf of the Inn, has brought forward an ambitious project for the Planning Board's review.

The proposition is to build two three-story condominium units that would each house 20 apartments, along with 40 corresponding parking spaces.

Each building would have six 755 square-foot one bedroom units and one 540 square-foot studio on the first and second floors, and six 590 square-foot one-bedrooms on the third floor. Each unit would contain kitchenettes.

Standing at 34.3 feet and 3/4 inches, the buildings' total height would be just shy of the 35-foot limit per the town's bylaw. Neighbors, particularly the Karp and the Dippold families (see sidebar), are concerned about the buildings towering over the village and their residences.

Representatives from the Inn and the town's Economic Development Committee (EDC) think this addition would be good for town business. The idea is to rent rooms to wedding guests who often have to seek places to stay outside town when there is not enough room at the Inn. These units would be more affordable than the rooms at the Inn, Sandell said at the July 25 Planning Board meeting.

Another plan for the units is to have them function as quarterly timeshare condos. People would rent the condos for three months at a time, then turn them back over so they would be available for guests during the wedding season.

Peter Brown, a member of the EDC, said during the July 25 meeting that he just came to listen. While he said he was conscious of the abutters' concerns, he felt that the Inn provides a substantial amount of economic health to the village and if the Inn were gone, other businesses would be hurt. Adding new units would only add to the town's economic vitality, Brown said.

When parking issues were brought up, Planning Board chair Stuart Ivimey asked Sandell if Ordelheide would be willing to build town parking spaces on undeveloped town land. Sandell said at the time that the Inn owner has been willing to do this for several years at his own expense.

Plans that were received in the Planning Board office on Sept. 19 show a section for 42 new town parking spaces on vacant town land near the development site along James Lane.

Planning Board Administrator Jo-Ann Pilczak said that the matter is not on next Wednesday's meeting agenda. Ordelheide could not be reached for comment. Look for updates in future issues of the Mariner.

Neighbors weigh in

Jean Healy-Dippold, 93 South Main St., issued the following statement on behalf of herself and Michael and Rowena Karp, 91 South Main:

"We care very deeply about maintaining the unique beauty and historic charm that makes Cohasset Village such a wonderful place to visit and live in. To that end, we have several questions surrounding the Red Lion's latest plans and how they might impact not only our properties, but also the character and charm of the Village.

"We question the impact from a noise, light, and safety standpoint that these complexes may have on our properties, particularly if the buffers continue to be inadequate. We appreciate that beyond meeting the technical specifications in the Cohasset by-laws, the Planning Board must require the applicant to meet the general special permit and village bylaws. Related to those requirements, we have several questions, including:

"How tall will these complexes be, particularly in relation to the historic Cohasset Carillon at St. Stephen's Church and considering the complexes will be built on the existing hill overlooking the town? Will the Red Lion be required to show different visuals of the complexes from the differing residential neighborhoods, church and other sites so that the community can get a size of the scale they are proposing?

"What are the Red Lion's plans to buy the town-owned acre abutting the Red Lion and village parking lot, and what will become of Cohasset's Recreation Center, if it remains at all?

"How does the town selling that land support the community's vision and plans for the Village, including the concept of a 'second Main Street'?

"How will these complexes affect the traffic conditions and parking in the Village?

"How will the look and scale of these complexes affect the historic nature of the Village, including residences, such as the Karps, which was home to some of the members of the Boston Tea Party, and other historic treasures?

"What will these complexes be used as — timeshares that function as a hotel, apartments, and/or retail?

"We don't know a lot of these answers and the Red Lion or its representatives have yet to reach out to us. We know that this development has the potential to impact several aspects of what makes our small coastal village unique in America, so we will follow this process closely and encourage others to do the same."

Volume 38- Report No. 38 September 21, 2012

Y = Yes; N = No, NV = No Vote (President rarely votes) * Not every item is voted on by both House and Senate

THE HOUSE AND SENATE: There were no roll call votes in the House or Senate last week.

This week, Beacon Hill Roll Call examines the percentage of times local senators in 2012 voted with the Senate Democratic leadership on key roll call votes.

Beacon Hill Roll Call uses 135 key votes from the 2012 Senate session as the basis for this report. This includes all roll calls that were not on local issues.

The six senators, all Democrats, who voted with the leadership 100 percent of the time are Sens. Frederick Berry (D-Peabody); Stephen Brewer (D-Barre); Harriette Chandler (D-Worcester); Jennifer Flanagan (D-Leominster); Anthony Petruccelli (D-East Boston); and Karen Spilka (D-Ashland).

The senator who voted the lowest percentage of times with the Democratic leadership is Sen. Bob Hedlund (R-Weymouth). He supported the leadership 72.1 percent of the time.

The next three who voted the least with the leadership are not surprisingly the Senate's other three Republicans: Sens. Bruce Tarr (R-Gloucester), 73.3 percent; Michael Knapik (R-Westfield), 74.0 percent; and Richard Ross (R-Wrentham), 74.8 percent.

The two Democrats who voted with the leadership the lowest percentage of times are Sens. James Timilty (D-Walpole), 80.9 percent and Barry Finegold (D-Andover), 84.3 percent.

The other 33 Democrats all voted with the leadership more than 90 percent of the time.

Here is how local senators fared in their support of the Democratic leadership on 135 key roll calls.

The percentage next to the senator's name represents the percentage of times the senator supported the Democratic leadership.

The number in parentheses represents the number of times the senator opposed the Democratic leadership.

Some senators voted on all 135 roll call votes. Others missed one or more of the 135 votes. The percentage for each senator is calculated based on the number of roll calls on which he or she voted and does not count the roll calls for which he or she was absent.

READ PROFICIENTLY BY THIRD GRADE (H 4243) - The House and Senate approved and sent to Gov. Deval Patrick a bill creating an Early Literacy Expert Panel to advise the state's education department on strategies to have all students in the state reading proficiently by the end of third grade.

Supporters said 39 percent of the state's third grade students read below their grade level. They argued that studies show 74 percent of students who have a difficult time with reading in third grade often continue to struggle throughout high school and are four times as likely to drop out before graduation.

MALE BREAST CANCER (H 4019) - With October just around the corner, Gov. Patrick signed into law a measure designating the third week in October of each year as Male Breast Cancer Awareness Week to raise awareness of the occurrence of breast cancer in men and to encourage regular screenings.

Various committees sealed the fate of several bills by recommending they go to a study committee. With few exceptions, all measures shipped off to a study committee are never actually studied and are essentially defeated. Here are some of the bills given the thumbs down and headed for a study committee:

BAN SHADOWS (H 1169) - Prohibits the construction of any new building that would cast a new shadow on Boston's Charles River Esplanade, Christopher Columbus Park, Commonwealth Avenue Mall, Copley Square Park, Magazine Beach Park or the Back Bay Fens. Supporters say some new construction would cast shadows on many Boston parks and interfere with enjoyment by people of scarce open space while benefiting a few wealthy property owners and developers. Opponents say the proposal is another example of government interference on issues that are often silly.

INSURANCE RECORDS FROM HOLOCAUST (S 416) - Requires all insurance companies to provide the state with their records on all policies that were issued and in effect in Europe between 1920 and 1945. Supporters say many victims of the Nazi regime and their families were never paid insurance claims for various policies they owned because the owners were killed and the families did not have proof of the policy. They note in many cases only the insurance companies still have records of these policies and they should be forced to release the records and either prove payment was already made or be required to pay now.

ELECT THE INSURANCE COMMISSIONER (H 1208) - Provides that the state's insurance commissioner be elected rather than appointed by the governor. One of the commissioner's duties is to set auto insurance rates following a series of public hearings. Massachusetts is the only state in the nation that gives the commissioner this power; while other states set their rates by law or by a competitive free market.

CREATE STATE-RUN BANK OF MASSACHUSETTS (H 1192) - Creates a state-run Bank of Massachusetts. Currently, North Dakota is the only state in the nation with a state-owned bank. Supporters say the North Dakota bank has worked well. They argue a Massachusetts state bank would be a partner, not a rival, of local banks. Opponents say this creates another unnecessary government bureaucracy that will unfairly compete with local private banks. They argue this will hurt these banks by being the only bank in which the state deposits its tax and other revenue.

BANKS MUST CASH STATE AND MUNICIPAL CHECKS (H3601) - Requires all banks and credit unions to cash checks issued by the state, cities and towns even if the customer does not have an account at that institution.

BANKS MUST PAY LATE FEES (H 3126) - Requires a bank to pay the late fees if it neglects to conduct an electronic transfer for a customer who is later charged a late fee by the intended recipient of the transfer.

CAP INTEREST RATE ON CREDIT CARDS (H 271) - Caps the maximum annual percentage rate on credit cards at 18 percent.

'SUNDAY AUTHORTALKS'

Spooner kicks off season

By Marylou Lawrence
Special to the Mariner

Robert B. Parker has said that John Spooner "is one of the best writers in America," and the Boston Globe calls him a "national treasure" and "a Boston institution." As the first speaker in the 2012-13 "Sunday AuthorTalks" series, Spooner will discuss his most recent book, "No One Ever Told Me That," at 4 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 7, at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library.

Spooner's book is a compilation of letters in which he advises his grandchildren—indeed, readers of all ages—about financial investing and living. Although his advice revolves around making money, this collection of wisdom and wit is so much more than that.

Given that the driving force behind the stock market is fear and greed, Spooner counsels that understanding the complexities of emotion, rather than math, is key to success in the financial world. He cautions his readers to be wary of investment frenzy, to always "look as though you know where you are going," and drops a few poignant morsels about dealing with adversity and affirming the value of humor and relationship. Writing in a style that is both personal and wry, Spooner cares that his readers get his ideas. His keeps his chapters short and concepts concise.

Although Spooner is a nationally recognized investment advisor, writing was all he ever wanted to do. He says, "Hemingway and Fitzgerald were my gods in college. I was going to sit in the cafes of Paris with a legal pad and write longhand." Instead, his father forced him to join the family firm as a stockbroker; consequently, Spooner has learned to walk in two worlds. Now, he is a managing director at Morgan Stanley Smith Barney—by day he manages nearly one billion dollars with his management team and by night he writes. He says that it is this creative process that fuels his life.

His best-selling non-fiction includes "Confessions of a Stock Broker," "Smart People," and "Sex and Money." He has written two novels, "Class" and "The Foursome," and writes frequently for several journals, including The Atlantic, Playboy, and Esquire. He lectures widely and appears regularly on a number of radio and TV programs, such as FOX news and NPR, where he talks about the philosophy of investing.

When "No One Ever Told Me That" was published, it immediately went to #1 on the Globe's bestselling list and #2 on Amazon's bestselling business book list. It was also a Washington Post Book Club selection.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Discussion on FEMA flood zone revisions

The Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) issued updated flood zone maps on July 17, 2012. Some Cohasset residents have received letters from their mortgage/home equity loan holders advising them that they must take out flood insurance. Flood insurance premiums are very costly and designation of a property as located in a flood zone may reduce its resale value. While it is prudent to protect property from flood losses, some of the map revisions may be suspect. In some instances, it is the mortgage holder (bank or insurance company), not FEMA, who is making the flood zone determination and is advising its customer that they must take out flood insurance.

The subject will be discussed at a Cohasset Conservation Committee meeting scheduled for 7:30 p.m., on Thursday, Oct. 4, 2012.

preordained decision, or it was deliberately misled by Mr. Ford.

This curious circumstance begets another: once Mr. Ford received his permit, he connected a stub to the system, even though no house existed to connect, without securing any of the required construction permits. Further, his unauthorized construction activity was within the 100-foot buffer and in violation of our wetlands bylaw. When asked by the Conservation Commission to explain this, Mr. Ford replied that the stub "already existed." Mr. Ford complained in his Mariner piece that he was referred to as a liar. Well, what exactly is it called when you make deliberately false statements to public regulatory bodies in open meetings? No construction plans for the North Cohasset sewer district ever showed a stub for 559 Jerusalem.

In a supplemental letter in their sewer application, the Fords write: "Neil Murphy has advised. . . that a Title V system can be designed but at considerable expense." If the sewer commission's rules require Title V design, why should Mr. Ford be allowed to sidestep the expense? What makes him different? But, in my view, Mr. Ford is being deliberately disingenuous as an approved Title V on his site is impossible. I think he is looking for an easy way out and the sewer commission is giving him one by ignoring its own rules and regulations. It's not just sewer. Mr. Ford's attorney sent a letter to the town's building inspector demanding the lot be declared buildable, a highly unusual (and illegal) request, without precedent.

So, how did a vacant lot that didn't meet the sewer department's requirements leapfrog every lot on the vacant lot list and actually get a sewer permit? Simple. According to Mr. Ford, it's not a vacant lot. He managed to convince the sewer commission that the Black Rock hotel, which was torn down in the late 1960s, touched a portion of his property, and that was enough. Preposterous as that may seem, it is easy to convince commissions to suspend reality when you have friends in high places. In the spring of 2008, a new sewer commissioner was elected. He and Mr. Ford own adjacent commercial properties in downtown Cohasset. Public records indicate that they have frequently appeared together in front of various town boards, arguing for and supporting common interests. The Fords' vacant lot has been owned since 1991, yet the Ford's sewer permit was only requested in September of 2008, immediately after that new commissioner assumed his role. Reasonable people may draw their own conclusions.

Any town resident can appeal any con-com decision in Superior Court if one wishes. The Fords decided that was too much trouble (and expense). Instead, to avoid spending money in Superior Court, they threatened con-com with a second lawsuit over con-com's voting procedures, in the hopes that con-com would buckle. They bolstered their threat by touting the costs to the town of defending such a suit. Their preference, of course, was to not force the town into an unnecessary expenditure. After all, they said, hasn't the town spent enough on lawyers? They seem to forget who is suing whom, and who is threatening whom.

This is not, as Mr. Ford describes it, a "dispute among neighbors." It's about the integrity of a process and the deliberate perversion of facts. Our bylaws exist for a reason. They are not decorations or a la carte menu options. They apply to everyone equally, no matter how long you've lived here.

Week 3: Boys still right on bubble

Skippers knocking on door

By Ryan Wood
rwood@wickedlocal.com

We're now three weeks down, more than a quarter of the season gone for most teams. No big changes at the top this week. In fact, the top five on the girls' side remains unchanged. But for the boys, there's a lot of movement, including one team that jumped up two spots, another that fell two positions, and one new team in the top six. Here are the rankings for week three, reflecting games played through Sunday, Sept. 23.

Of course, the Cohasset boys should be right in the mix for next week's standings after beating Monomoy, a combined Harwich/Chatham team, 1-0 on Monday.

That victory improved Cohasset to 6-1 (6-0 South Shore League). The Skippers' only loss is a 1-0 setback to Scituate.

In the Monomoy win, senior forward Nick Brown scored on a second-half penalty kick, and sophomore goalkeeper Pat Federle posted his fourth shutout, and Cohasset's midfield and defense were outstanding.

Skippers lose Border War

Cohasset can't keep up with powerful Scituate squad

By Jay N. Miller
The Patriot Ledger

Scituate High's multi-pronged offense, tight defense, and dominant line play led the Sailors to a 35-14 nonleague victory Friday night over Cohasset.

Scituate (2-1) manhandled the Skippers in the first half, built a big lead, and then just ground out yardage in the second half.

The story of the first half was the efficiency and versatility of Scituate's offense. The Sailors got touchdowns from three different quarterbacks.

Meanwhile, Scituate's defense effectively kept Cohasset (1-2) under wraps. The Skippers had trouble with pass protection and special teams, and Scituate senior Dante Sacchitella blocked two punts in the first half.

The Sailors used four different running backs to march 58 yards in four plays on their first possession. Their first touchdown came when senior quarterback Mike Stewart ran 22 yards up the middle on a draw play. Francis Donovan's extra point gave Scituate a 7-0 lead just 91 seconds into the game.

Sacchitella's first blocked punt was recovered by Scituate at Cohasset's 37-yard line. Nine plays later, Dawayne Kirton (16 carries for 76 yards) scored on a 5-yard run to make it 14-0.

Cohasset capitalized on a turnover early in the second quarter, when Conor Dooley recovered a fumble at the Sailors' 30. Moments later, Skippers quarterback Chris Haggerty tossed a 28-yard scoring pass to tight end Christian Davis, pulling Cohasset within 14-6.

Red Wings flying high

South Coastal Hockey League roundup

By Mark Ducharme
The Hanover Mariner

The defending South Coastal Hockey League Classics Div. champion Red Wings have quietly got off to a good start this season.

The Wings are undefeated after four games as they got two goals and an assists by Pat Burke in the first period to hang on for a 4-2 win over the Bruins.

Mike Evensen of Scituate and Tom Pipenbrink scored a goal each and Kevin Brophy had two assists for the Red Wings.

John Zimmer of Marshfield and Abington's Dan Sloan scored the goals for the Bruins.

Tony Rota scored a pair of goals and Jim Polito of Abington added a goal to lead the Black Hawks to a 3-2 win over the Maple Leafs in a Classics Div. matchup. Pat Mulkern of Pembroke had two assists for the Hawks.

Rockland's Marty DeCourcey and Paul Maier of Marshfield scored a goal each and Dave Denton also of Marshfield had two assists for the Maple Leafs.

Jim O'Toole of Rockland scored three goals, Joe O'Connell and Bob Sideropoulos added a goal apiece as the Rangers won their first game of the season by a 5-2 score over the Canadiens in a Classics Div. game.

Sideropoulos and Marshfield's Tom Smith had three assists each for the Rangers.

Michael Fay scored two goals for the Canadiens.

Tom Williams and Peter Tamborella of Pembroke scored a goal and assisted on another each as the on the next drive. He was replaced by junior Noma Okundaye, whose first play was a 43-yard gain on a draw to the Skippers' 1. Two plays later, he dove in for a TD, giving the Sailors a 21-6 lead with 2:28 left in the first half.

Sacchitella's second blocked punt gave the Sailors possession at their 31. Sophomore quarterback Christian Brady was at the helm this time, and hit Okundaye for a 31-yard touchdown as time expired in the first half and the Sailors ahead, 28-6.

Scituate used most of the third quarter with a 10-play drive, although Cohasset kept the hosts off the board. The Sailors marched again to open the fourth quarter, though, and a 7-play drive ended with Kirton going 11 yards for a touchdown that made it 35-6.

Cohasset answered with its best drive of the night, mostly through the air. QB Chris Haggerty (8 of 14, 150 yards) connected with Rocco Laugelle for 13 yards, then with brother Shane Haggerty for 30 yards. Chris Haggerty eventually dove in from a yard out.

For the points-after, Chris Haggerty passed to Christian Davis to make it 35-14 with five minutes left.

It doesn't get easier for Cohasset tonight.

The Skippers will travel to Abington to face the 3-0 Green Wave, who rallied from a 15-0 deficit against the Hockomock League's Canton to score 29 unanswered points in a 29-15 win.

Abington is led by senior quarterback Brandon Cawley, who hit on 9 of 14 passes for 145 yards in the Canton win. Wide receiver Vinny Picardi caught 4 passes for 60 yards.

Babila Fonkem scored both Green Wave touchdowns in the second half on runs of 6 and 7 yards to seal the win.

Matt Kilmain added a 47-yard touchdown run for the Green Wave, and after making a few adjustments, the Abington defense dominated after falling behind early.

Kickoff is scheduled for 7 p.m.

third week in a row.

2. Marshfield - The Rams are knock, knock, knockin' on Weymouth's door. After a phenomenal performance against Duxbury - a 3-0 win that saw two goals scored in less than 20 minutes - the Rams vault up two spots to No. 2. Before handing Duxbury its first loss of the season last week, the Rams blanked Plymouth South, 3-0.

3. Hingham - The Harbormen slip one spot this week, mainly due to Marshfield's continuing surge. And, it also had a little to do with a 1-1 draw against Hanover, which is quickly proving it is no slouch this fall.

4. Braintree - After hitting a minor bump in the road last week, a 2-1 loss to first-place Needham, the Wamps topped Framingham, 2-0, to return to form and put themselves in a good position nearing the halfway point of the season.

5. Duxbury - It was a Jeckyl and Hyde kind of week for the Dragons. After wiping out North Quincy, 4-0, the Dragons saw their five-game unbeaten streak to start the season snapped by their rivals, the Marshfield Rams.

6. Hanover - The Indians return to the top six after getting relegated to the bubble last week. They certainly deserved a bump up in the rankings after drawing, 1-1, with a strong Patriot League side, Hingham.

On the bubble: Cohasset, Scituate, Silver Lake, Holbrook

Last week: 1. Weymouth, 2. Hingham, 3. Duxbury, 4. Marshfield, 5. Braintree, 6. Cohasset

Girls

1. Plymouth North - The Eagles punished two more teams last week to remain untarnished on the season. They hammered Sacred Heart, 6-1, and handed Atlantic Coast League rivals Falmouth a 3-1 defeat, to remain at No. 1 for the second week in a row.

2. Marshfield - It was a relatively quiet week for the Rams, who retain the No. 2 ranking from a week ago. The Rams played one game last week, beating Plymouth South, 2-1.

3. Duxbury - Similar to Marshfield, Duxbury had an uneventful week compared to other teams. The Dragons played once and tied North Quincy, 0-0, to remain in the No. 3 slot for another week.

4. Carver - If any of the top three teams slip at all this season, the Crusaders may find themselves taking their spot. After a 7-0 win over Middleboro and a 4-0 victory over Rockland, they improved to 5-0-1 on the season.

5. Scituate - The Sailors notched two more wins last week, a 2-1 non-league victory over Abington and a 3-1 win over Patriot League foes Silver Lake, to hold down their position in the top six.

6. Norwell - After sitting on the bubble a week ago, the Clippers return to the top six following two big victories, a 3-1 win over Abington and a 2-0 triumph over Notre Dame Academy.

On the bubble: Hingham, Hanover, Plymouth South

Last week: 1. Plymouth North, 2. Marshfield, 3. Duxbury, 4. Carver, 5. Scituate, 6. Braintree

The Inside the 6 - Soccer Power Rankings are decided based on a number of criteria: record, strength of schedule, performance against teams in and out of their divisions, goals scored, and goals conceded. The public schools in our coverage area include: Abington, Braintree, Carver, Cohasset, Duxbury, Hanover, Hingham, Holbrook, Marshfield, Norwell, Pembroke, Plymouth North, Plymouth South, Rockland, Scituate, Silver Lake, and Weymouth. YOUTH HOCKEY

South Shore Seahawks roundup

Squirt C Blue

The South Shore Seahawks Squirt C Blue team took on a very solid Braintree squad and came up short, losing 11-0. The score didn't reflect what happened on the ice. Sean Flanagan, who has never put the pads on, filled in for Owen Callahan in goal. Sean had to quickly learn the position as the onslaught of Braintree shots came right after the puck dropped. After being dominated in the first period at both ends of the ice, the Squirt C team got a lot more opportunities to attack. Better positional play and a more confident net minder gave the Seahawks a chance to move the puck around. Mark Hudgins, Jason Leroy, and Jeff Adams all were very aggressive carrying the puck out of the defensive zone and the entire team played with a lot of intensity and effort. No one gave up despite the score and the coach noted that the players are starting to connect with each other.

Squirt C White

The Squirt C White teams came into the weekend with 1-1-0 record, and were looking to put some points on the board to climb in the standings in this young season. But on this day, it was not to be. The Seahawks were met by a very good WHK team that had balance in all phases of the game including a very hot goaltender. Led by left wing Alex Christenson, the Seahawks tried to claw their way back into the game after going down 5-0 through the second period. Alex scored a beautiful unassisted goal as he fired a shot from the slot to get the Seahawks only score of the game. The Seahawks defense, anchored by Seth McGowan in net, played very spirited as they continuously cleared the puck out of the zone and up to the wingers. At one point, winger Colin Gibbons accepted a pass from defenseman Brendan Dalicandro for a break-away, but the WHK goalie made a spectacular save to stop the shot. The Seahawks took the defeat in stride and are prepping for the next game!

Squirt B Blue

After a back and forth battle the Squirt B Blue fell to Falmouth, 3-2. Goals by J.T. Cerrutti and Matthew Flynn couldn't match the two power play goals and a nice passing play for the other by the squad from the Cape. The Seahawks never game up and almost tied the game late in the 3rd period by pulling the goalie for an extra man on the ice. Coach Flynn noted that everyone went hard for the part and played determined, smart hockey. He was encouraged by the grit and expect the team to carry that into the next game.

Pee Wee B

The South Shore Seahawks Pee Wee B team opened up the season with a hard fought 1-0 victory over a very aggressive Canton team. The Pee Wee B team has been working hard in practice on their skating and passing and it really showed in this first game. The goaltending played a big part in the game with Charlie Dole turning away every shot. Dole saved his best for last as Canton had a break-away with 8 seconds left but the net minder came up with a save to help seal the victory. The lone goal came off the stick of Jack Dynan who hammered home a rebound off a point shot from Will Railton. All forward lines skated hard with the line of Cooper Berglund, Eddie Fettuccia, and Drew Hurley skating like they were in mid season form. Other forwards that showed some great passing and strong back checking were Patrick Kelly, Matt Kirslis, Tim Mathisen, Jerry McLarnon, Neil Reilly. The defense was perfect in not allowing a goal and was anchored by Cole Schiller, Aurora Devereaux, Andrew Slekis, and Patrick Dromey. The Pee Wee B team looks to keep the perfect season going next weekend vs. Cape Cod Canal.

Girls U10

The Seahawks Girls U10 team kicked off the season with a strong effort against Hingham but came up short in the loss. The highlight for the "SheHawks" was the play of goaltender Julieanne Flynn who turned aside numerous breakaways in a display of acrobatics. Strong defensive play came from veterans Emma Campbell, Emma Breen and Elizabeth Falvey. Forwards Makena Monahan, Ellie West, Caroline Lally, Mary Stevenson and Sarah Irish never stopped the offensive push against a strong Hingham net minder. Three players broke the ice in their first hockey game and battled for the full 60 minutes. Tessa Burgess, Molly Thompson and Hannah Gilmore can't wait for more action when the girls face off next against Cape Cod Canal.

Stingers won their fourth straight Legends Div. game by a 4-2 score over the Whalers.

Alan Smith of Marhsfield and Pembroke's Ken Wingate added a goal apiece for the Stingers.

Rob Dennis and Jim Toner of Hanover scored the goals for the Whalers.

James Ward of Norwell, Ray Degaust and Pembroke's Jim Holmes each scored a goal in the span of 93 seconds in the first period as the Toros rolled to a 4-2 Legends Div. win over the Crusaders. Peter Cleary of Pembroke scored for the Toros 12 seconds into the third period to give them a 4-1 lead.

Duxbury's Brian Murphy and Mike Simon were the goal scorers for the Crusaders.

Todd Roach scored two goals and assisted on another to spark a four goal second period in the Saints 5-1 Legends Div. win over the Sharks.

Jim Callahan, Hanover's Tom Shaughnessy and Jonathan Graham each had a goal and an assist for the Sharks while Harry Denley scored for the Sharks in the first period.

CHS freshmen take part in COASTSWEEP

The Cohasset High School freshman class removed 2,701 pieces of marine debris, a.k.a. "trash," during a beach hike from Brant Rock to Humarock on Sept. 20. Data collected by the students has been submitted to COASTSWEEP, the statewide beach cleanup program sponsored by the Commonwealth's Office of Coastal Zone Management and the Urban Harbors Institute at UMass-Boston. Offered as part of the high school's advisory program, the students and teachers participated – if only for a day – in an international conservation campaign organized by The Ocean Conservancy in Washington, D.C. The Ocean Conservancy collects beach trash data from global participants and uses it to promote solutions to reduce future marine debris problems.

Dogs on parade at Farmers Market

It had been a while, but the popular Dog Parade returned to the Cohasset Farmers Market on Thursday, Sept. 20.

To participate, dog owners simply dressed up their dog in the costume of their choice and joined one of the most festive parades! Judging the event was by Terry Haskins of The Dog Butler, who is a certified professional trainer specializing in in-home customized dog training. Prizes were awarded.

The Cohasset Farmers Market is known for its fresh produce, home-made baked goods and other food treats, but there are also more than 15 artisans selling hand-made items such as jewelry, baby items, clothing, art, plants, soaps and more. Music by local musicians is featured as well.

The Market is open from 2 to 6 p.m., on Thursdays, through Oct. 18 on Cohasset Common.

Seniors can meet with college reps

WHITNEY MALONE

To sign-up or see which colleges will be visiting, check the Naviance website or see Ms. Creighton in the Guidance office.

Hi everyone! I can't believe that next week is already October. There was not too much going on this week, except that the guidance office has been busier than usual as we seniors are scrambling to schedule college meetings with our guidance counselors.

Also, seniors can sign-up to meet with visiting college representatives during the next couple of weeks. Attending these college visits are helpful if you are interested in learning more about a certain school and don't have time to visit the actual campus (or if you want an excuse to get out of class for 20 minutes). There will be representatives from Colgate University, Colby College, URI, USC, and Franklin Pierce visiting next week! To sign-up or see which colleges will be visiting, check the Naviance website or see Ms. Creighton in the Guidance office.

Just a reminder to everyone that first term progress reports come out next week! (Can you believe it's that time already?) Fortunately, next week is Columbus Day Weekend, which means a four-day break from school for students!

That's it for this week in Life at CHS. Have a wonderful weekend everyone!

Whitney Malone is a senior at Cohasset High; her column runs weekly during the school year.

GIMME SHELTER

Milo is a sweet little lad

This adorable little guy, Milo, also called Mo for short, is one of our sweetest little boys. COURTESY PHOTO

Oh my, it has been a very busy September for kittens here at Hull Seaside Animal Rescue! This adorable little guy, Milo, also called Mo for short, is one of our sweetest little boys. Milo is available but surely won't last very long. He is such a mellow little guy and as gentle as can be. At four months old, he is ready to meet his forever family and start living the good life!

Along with his siblings and other residents, Milo had his necessary procedure this week and is up to date on all his shots and vaccinations. After a few days of rest, he is happy to be out and about with his roommates. It is such a joy to see these great kittens all set and ready to move from their temporary home with us, to a wonderful new forever home with a full time family. This cute little kitten is very popular and has such a great group of people who love him here. We know that Milo loves to play with all the toys in his room, and he has fun exploring in the leopard tunnel. How can you resist? That little pink nose, those beautiful green eyes, and oh so soft black and white kitten fur. He's just a perfect little package. So many of our kittens are getting ready to leave in the next few weeks, and it would be fabulous for Milo to be in the group!

Here at the shelter, we are so grateful to all of our adoptive families. You make it possible for sweet babies like Milo to have a chance at living life to the fullest with the attention and love that all these innocent little ones deserve. They really do help to make a house a home. Can you open your heart and home to Milo? He's ready and waiting.

Come visit Milo at Hull Seaside Animal Rescue, located at 50 L St. Open Hours are Monday evening from 6:30-7:30 and Saturday from 2-3 p.m. Our office number is 781-925-3121. You may also contact Judy, Adoption Coordinator, at 781-534-4902 for an appointment. To see more of our wonderful kittens and cats who are waiting for loving homes please visit www.HSAR.org and click on Available Pets.

One of our biggest fundraisers is underway with the 2013 Kittendale's calendar ready for order! If you are looking for a great, fun gift for family and friends, and would like to help our kittens and cats, visit www.kittendales.com to order online, or contact the shelter to pick them up there during open hours. We are a non-profit no kill shelter and every dollar goes toward the expenses to keep HSAR operating. Veterinary care, food, bedding, rent, and utilities are paid with the help of so many wonderful people who donate and participate in our events and fundraisers.

All of us here want to give a big thank you to our supporters who continue to take the time to drop off bottles and cans, help with projects on behalf of the shelter, check our wish list and donate needed items, and of course to our volunteers who work tirelessly each day to keep our wonderful little residents safe and secure. We can't do it without you and all that you share with us is appreciated more than ever as we try to provide the best care possible to our animals.

Farmers Market has lots to offer

Cohasset Farmers Market is known for its fresh produce, home-made baked goods and other food treats, but there are also more than 15 artisans selling hand-made items such as jewelry, baby items, clothing, art, plants, soaps and more as well. Why not do some early Christmas shopping at the Market this year? How about a hand-crocheted shawl, a baby outfit, pressed flowers in a wooden frame or an unusual plant? And don't forget to bring little ones down for a pony ride. Music by local musicians will be featured as well.

The Market is open from 2 to 6 p.m., on Thursdays, through Oct. 18, on Cohasset Common.

Fluency Factory founder is guest speaker

The Cohasset SEPAC and PSO will be hosting "Building Fluent Skills" on Tuesday, Oct. 2nd at the Paul Pratt Library in Cohasset at 7p.m.

Richard McManus of the Fluency Factory will speak about challenges, successes and discoveries that have stemmed from 10 years of working with South Shore children of all ages and skill levels. The lecture will focus on the critical importance of foundation building in every area of academic area. There will be practical worksheets and substantial give and take with the audience as McManus describes the outcomes of work with students. Among the topics that will be addressed are the critical elements of effective reading programs, the surprisingly powerful effect of phonemic awareness on reading comprehension, behavior management and the critical nature of automaticity to confidence and school success. He will briefly describe the challenges of founding an approved special education private program.

The lecture will focus on the critical importance of foundation building in every area of academic area.

McManus is an Applied Behavior Analyst who founded the Fluency Factory, a tutoring and test prep center in Hingham, 10 years ago, and added an Approved 766 school, Beal Street Academy, six years ago. He continues to consult to schools and other private programs on Precision Teaching, curriculum design, and positive behavioral techniques, and is recognized for his contributions to vocational instruction for individuals with severe learning issues. His core belief is that regardless of labels, students have more in common than they have differences, and that confidence and effort are essential to success and happiness for the students in our schools.

The presentation is free and open to all. Light refreshments will be served. For information on Cohasset SEPAC and other South Shore presentations, visit www.CohassetSEPAC.org.

Social Dance

Boston Assemblies Social Dance program invites Cohasset students entering the fifth grade to Glastonbury Abby to enjoy learning a lively mix of traditional and contemporary dances as well as etiquette instruction in essential social skills.

The program provides an opportunity for fifth graders to interact socially in the kindest, nicest way. Standing as a sign of respect, offering an arm, escorting and seating a partner are seldom used behaviors but very important when the appropriate occasion presents itself. Learning and practicing social etiquette instills confidence, sensitivity, grace, and poise in social situations, now and in the future.

The session consists of eight classes starting in November from 5:30 - 6:30 pm at Glastonbury Abby:

November 6 and 13
December 4 and 11
January 8 and 15
February 5 and 12
Snow date: March 5

Look for an invitation in the mail or contact Renate Devin for additional details: rdevin@bostonschoolofetiquette.com.

SALOME'S STARS FOR RELEASE WEEK OF OCT. 8, 2012

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Although you love being the focus of attention, it's a good idea to take a few steps back right now to just watch the action. What you see can help with an upcoming decision.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) "Caution" continues to be your watchword this week, as a former colleague tries to reconnect old links. There are still some dark places that need to be illuminated.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Making a good first impression is important. Revealing your often hidden sense of humor can help you get through some of the more awkward situations.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Taking that Cancer Crab image too seriously? Lighten up. Instead of complaining about your problems, start resolving them. A friend would be happy to help.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) A widening distance between you and that special person needs to be handled with honesty and sensitivity. Don't let jealousy create an even greater gap between you two.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Congratulations. Your handling of a delicate family matter rates kudos. But no resting on your laurels just yet. You still have to resolve that on-the-job problem.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You might surprise everyone by being unusually impulsive this week. But even level-headed Libras need to do the unexpected now and then.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A period of turmoil gives way to a calmer, more settled environment. Use this quieter time to patch up neglected personal and/or professional relationships.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A new relationship could create resentment among family and friends who feel left out of your life. Show them you care by making more time for them.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Concentrate on completing all your unfinished tasks before deadline. You'll then be able to use this freed-up time to research new career opportunities.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You're right to try to help colleagues resolve their heated differences. But keep your objectivity and avoid showing any favoritism 'twixt the two sides.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Your personal life continues to show positive changes. Enjoy this happy turn of events, by all means. But be careful not to neglect your workplace obligations.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Blessing of the Animals is this Sunday

You are invited to the Blessing of the Animals, this Sunday, Sept. 30th at 5pm on Cohasset Common. Join the clergy of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church as we give thanks to God for all of the animals that fill our lives with joy. And bring your pets to receive a special blessing. Last year, we had dogs, cats, rats, fish — even a sheep and an alpaca! They attended along with their humans and everyone joined in a wonderful outdoor celebration of God's diverse creation. "It's such a great community event," said the Rev. Margot Critchfield, the rector of St. Stephen's. "It brings together people and animals from all walks of life. And kids love it, too."

We celebrate the Blessing of the Animals on a Sunday close to the feast day of St. Francis of Assisi (Oct. 4th), who was a great friend of all animals. Francis lived during the late middle ages; he rejected the decadence and riches of his family, and took a vow of poverty. Unlike most monks, Francis's and his followers lived in the world (rather than sequestered from it), preaching about how Jesus cared for the poor and for the people no one really ever noticed. Francis found the joy of God in every piece of creation: in the animals and birds and trees and in each human face. He was made a saint two years after he died. Today, he is most well known for his peace, his dedication, his love for all, and especially for his love of animals.

This Sunday, join St. Stephen's in following Francis's example, and bring all of your furry, feathery, and scaly friends to the Common so that we can give thanks to God for their companionship and for the joy they bring to our lives.

Second Congregational Church, 43 Highland Ave: If you live on the South Shore and you're looking for a church home we encourage you to join us on Sunday mornings. We are an open, welcoming congregation.

10 am Sunday service in our main sanctuary. Our Sunday School program for children 3 years through Middle School age is open to anyone in the community.

For more information visit us on our website at scc@2ndcc.org or call the church office at 781-383-0345

St. Stephen's Episcopal Church: Blessing of the Animals Sunday!

St. Stephen's Episcopal Church is an inclusive, Christ-centered community committed to exploring the intersection of our faith and our lives. We invite you to join us on Sunday mornings and through a variety of special programs during the week. All are welcome to worship God with us at St. Stephen's!

This Sunday, Sept. 30th, St. Stephen's invites you to bring your pets to our Blessing of the Animals at 5pm on the Cohasset Common. All sizes, shapes, and species are welcome. This Sunday we will also be worshiping at our 8am and 10am services using the uniquely Anglican tradition of Morning Prayer, followed by Holy Communion. If you've never experienced Morning Prayer, it's a real treat, so we heartily invite you to come.

Our "Discovering Jesus" education program ramps into high gear this week with two new offerings: a parenting class taught by Dr. John Seel begins this Sunday, Sept. 30th at 11:45am. And a small group offering about Ignatian Spirituality, led by the Rev. Margot Critchfield begins Wednesday, Oct. 3rd at 7pm.

AA meets four times a week at St. Stephen's: Sundays at 7 p.m., there is a Closed Big Book Study. Tuesdays there is a Women's step meeting at 6:30p.m. and a closed discussion meeting at 8 p.m. Fridays at 6:30 p.m. there is a Beginner's meeting. All meetings take place in the Watermelon Room at the church office.Please call the church office at (781) 383-1083 or visit ststephenscohasset.org for more information

Vedanta Centre, 130 Beechwood St., 781-383-0940. Denomination: Vedanta, an Indian philosophy which honors all world religions. Clergy: Rev. Dr. Susan Schrager. Sunday morning, 11 a.m. Refreshments and fellowship after the service. Thursday Meditation and Study Class from 7 to 8 p.m.

Valerie Lipsett

COHASSET – Valerie A. Lipsett of Cohasset passed away on August 15, 2012. A memorial service and celebration of Val's life will be held on Saturday, September 29, 2012, beginning at 1 PM at the First Parish Church, 23 North Main Street in Cohasset.

Val became active as a community leader in Cohasset, helping to organize the South Shore Chapter of the League of Women Voters. While raising her two children, Brian and Koren, she became deeply involved with the Unitarian Universalist First Parish under Roscoe Trueblood, writing the curriculum for the Sunday school program. As an active member of the Cohasset Historical Society, she was Treasurer, Recording Secretary, photographer, graphic designer, and chaired several committees right up until her death.

Val was a writer, publishing poetry, opinion, and fiction throughout her life. She was an enthusiastic genealogist, researching and documenting significant historical data for her family and many others. She was also a painter, potter and woodcarver. She will be missed. Please consider honoring her with a memorial contribution to the Cohasset Historical Society, a non-profit organization, PO Box 627, Cohasset, MA 02025. Please offer an act of kindness for a stranger in her memory.

Fall festival in the Village

No 'Cohasset Day' this year

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

If you have ever attended Cohasset Day, a family-friendly event sponsored by the town's Chamber of Commerce and Economic Development Committee (EDC), you probably wondered, as September came and went, what happened to the event this year. The Cohasset Village celebration has taken place every September for the past four, up until now.

Amie Theriault, president of the Chamber and owner of Santi Holistic Healing, said that while there will be no Cohasset Day this fall, village merchants have planned something in its place. The Chamber, meanwhile, is focusing on the upcoming holiday village stroll in December.

"We'll still be doing the holiday stroll like we normally do, and some other things," said Theriault.

Cohasset Day was an initiative of the EDC in conjunction with the Chamber, but both groups are in the process of reorganizing their memberships. According to EDC member Ted Carr, there was a collective decision to hold off on Cohasset Day this year.

"It's a very worthwhile event, and the economic development committee absolutely supports it. But at the time, when the chamber and EDC are in transition with new leadership coming in, we made a determination."

OPEB update

Officials talk tackling liability

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

Cohasset is a town with 31.47 square miles to its name, an approximately $36 million annual budget for the current fiscal year, and over $32 million in unfunded OPEB liability.

What does that mean?

OPEB (other post employment benefits) is the set of benefits offered to a retiree other than their pension, consisting mainly of health insurance and including medical, dental, Medicare Part B premiums and prescription medications. The OPEB liability is what the town owes for its share of the retirees' health insurance costs, plus their dependents, from the time they retire up until they die.

The unfunded liability that the government owes its employees is an issue being discussed on the municipal, state, and national levels.

Cohasset officials have long talked about how to tackle this issue, but over the past week OPEB has been a notable discussion topic at the Advisory Committee and Board of Selectmen meetings. Both boards shared their concerns on how the town can begin to get out from under this huge unfunded liability.

While communities around New England (including Central Falls, R.I.) and the nation (Harrisburg, Penn. and Stockton, Calif.) have gone bankrupt from their OPEB liabilities, Cohasset officials are trying to make

SUSAN G. KOMEN FOR THE CURE

Mass. group is on the front line

By Jody Feinberg
WickedLocal.com

Thousands of Massachusetts women this year will receive breast cancer education, screening and/or treatment because of the commitment of Susan G. Komen for the Cure Massachusetts to fight breast cancer.

"We've done amazing stuff because of the dedication of volunteers, donors and staff," said executive director Ronni Cohen-Boyar. "We are focused on a cure, but in the meantime we're getting people in for screening and treatment."

With the money it raises, the Massachusetts affiliate, started in 2001, provides grants to a variety of medical and service non-profit organizations which help women, particularly those who face financial and cultural barriers to care. It awarded $900,000 in grants to its Massachusetts partners this year, and over $4.5 million in the past five years. On Oct. 20, about 7,000 women are expected to participate in its major fundraiser, the Komen Massachusetts Race for the Cure.

Why we're PINK today

The Cohasset Mariner and wickedlocal-cohasset.com, along with more than 100 other GateHouse Media New England newspapers and WickedLocal.com websites, is turning pink this month, as part of our fourth annual Paint It All Pink effort. This year we're painting it all pink in support of Susan G. Komen for the Cure Massachusetts and its efforts to increase knowledge and awareness of the disease during October, which is Breast Cancer Awareness Month.

Over the course of the month you will find stories about the challenges faced by families who have a loved one with breast cancer; the latest treatments at area hospitals; ways you can help; what support services are offered in our region to families living with breast cancer; personal stories of women from local communities who have battled the disease; and details about the work of Susan G. Komen Massachusetts.

Pink is the "official" color for breast cancer awareness, and many of the advertisers in this special edition are flying their colors in support of the cause.

Last year, GateHouse Media New England donated $28,000 to Komen, Massachusetts, and again this year GHMNE will donate 10 cents from every pink newspaper sold in stores to Susan G. Komen for the Cure Massachusetts. In addition, $5 from any new or renewed EZpay subscription during October will be donated, along with ten cents from every 'PINK' newspaper sold on newsstands. GHMNE will also donate 10 percent of the gross ad cost of special pink advertising packages to Komen MA.

"We are proud to be continuing our efforts for the fourth year," said Rick Daniels, GHMNE president and CEO. "We heard from our supporters that our efforts really made an impact in the proactive awareness to fight against this disease. That is a testament to why we have undertaken this program," stated Daniels.

Watch for additional reporting on breast cancer throughout October and go to wickedlocal.com/pink to find links to dozens of other stories and videos from across southeastern Massachusetts.

Mariner drop box at Tedeschi's

The Cohasset Mariner has a "drop box" and pickup location at Tedeschi's in the village. The drop box is on the counter in the front window around the corner to the right (by the candy display) after you enter the front door.

The Mariner picks up at 8 a.m. on Mondays and Tuesdays. The drop box can be used to drop off glossy photographs, letters, flyers or other editorial copy.

Paint collection day scheduled

Paint collection days will take place at the Recycling Transfer Facility on the last Saturday of the month through October, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Residents are encouraged to dry out latex paint using cat litter, sand or paint hardener, which can then be thrown out with regular trash. Empty cans may then be thrown into the tin can container.

POLICE BEAT

Parking lot accident results in court date

By Mary Ford
mford@wickedlocal.com

Summonsed

A 75-year-old Sparta, N.J., woman reported to police on Wednesday (Sept. 26) around 11 a.m. that her 2012 Honda CRV with New Jersey plates was hit by a gray SUV that was backing out of a parking space in Shaw's Plaza. She described the driver of the SUV, which turned out to be a 2004 Lexus, as being about 70 with gray hair, police said. Police were able to retrieve a partial plate from the surveillance video and locate the driver of the Lexus, a 66-year-old Hanover man, who admitted to being in the parking lot but thought the incident was a "close call" not realizing he had hit the Honda. The Hanover man is being summonsed to court for leaving the scene of an accident after causing property damage.

Minor MVC

Police said at 6:52 a.m. on Monday (Sept. 24) there was a rear-end collision by JJ's Dairy Hut on Chief Justice Cushing Highway (Route 3A).

Police said a 2006 Nissan Murano, operated by a 20-year-old Norwell woman, was headed north on Route 3A in traffic when the Nissan was rear-ended by a 2006 Toyota Camry, operated by a 63-year-old Quincy woman. Neither car was towed and there were no reported injuries.

Burglary

A 43-year-old Avalon Drive woman reported to police last Monday (Sept. 24) that when she returned from a business trip she found her apartment door open and several items missing including an Apple iPod, Apple iPad and several Apple accessories, as well as a Bose Wave Radio. Detectives are investigating. The apartment door did not appear to have been forced open, police said.

Harassment

A 48-year-old Avalon Drive woman who is going through a difficult divorce reported to police last Monday (Sept. 24) that her estranged husband was sending her harassing text messages and she wanted him to stop. An officer contacted the woman's husband and advised him if he continued he would be charged with harassment. Police said he admitted to sending the messages and agreed to stop.

Scam attempt

A local grandparent did not fall victim to the infamous "grandparent scam" last week but called police instead. She reported receiving a call from someone stating she was her granddaughter who needed $5,000 sent to get her out of Peru. Police said the caller had read about the scam that is affecting seniors nationwide and notified police.

Knifepoint

A 22-year-old Cohasset man reported to police last Tuesday (Sept. 25) that he had been robbed at knifepoint of his Xbox video game console by a former friend, age 20 and also from Cohasset, whom he had lent the Xbox to. He reported to police that the 20-year-old pulled a knife on him when he tried to leave his former friend's home with his Xbox. He put the console down and went to police. Officers went to the Church Street house where the alleged incident occurred and found discrepancies in the 22-year-old's story from witnesses who reported there was no knife. The incident is still under investigation.

Tools taken

Police met with the homeowner of a house that is under construction on upper King Street who reported that several tools and other items were missing including a box of heavy-duty trash bags, a pole saw, a 42-gallon landscaping barrel, work light and other miscellaneous tools. Police said they canvassed the house and the area. The incident, which was reported on Wednesday (Sept. 26) and is believed to have occurred sometime after the homeowner left on the 25th and returned the following day, is under investigation.

Credit card

An Avalon Drive resident reported to police last Thursday (Sept. 27) that her credit card had been used without authority. She wanted the matter logged so she could purse the matter with the credit card company, police said.

Arrest

A 46-year-old Mashpee man was arrested last Thursday and charged with operating with a revoked license and operating with an unsecured load following a traffic stop. Police said an officer on patrol on Elm Street near the police station saw the six-wheel dump truck with a load of dirt that was flying out and stopped the truck near the town common. The operator produced the registration but had no license with him, police said. A computer check revealed his license had been revoked. He was taken into custody and the truck was turned over to the company foreman, police said.

Deer hit

A 46-year-old Cohasset woman in a 2011 Volvo S80 sedan hit a deer near Stop and Shop at around 5:50 a.m. on Friday (Sept. 28). The deer that died of its injuries was located near Red Fox Lane and was picked up by a passerby for its meat, police said. The woman was not injured and her Volvo did not have to be towed, police said.

Summonsed

A 37-year-old E. Weymouth man is being summonsed to Quincy District Court following a traffic stop on Friday (Sept. 28) at around 9:50 a.m. for running the red light on Route 3A (Chief Justice Cushing Highway) at Pond Street, police said. An officer on patrol was on Pond Street when he observed the blue Jeep that was headed south go through the red light. He pulled the 2006 Jeep Liberty over and ID'ed the operator who had a Brazilian passport but no Massachusetts license although he had been in the country for nine years. He was charged with unlicensed operation and failure to stop for a red light. His car was towed and he was given a ride to his place of employment in Cohasset.

Scam

A 36-year-old Avalon Drive woman reported to police last week that she had been the victim of an apparent scam. She advertised Star Wars items for sale on Craig's List and sold them for $987.50 to a man who paid with a fraudulent "money gram," police said.

Accident

Police responded to a two-car accident on Chief Justice Cushing Highway (Route 3A) and Beechwood Street at 9:09 a.m. on Saturday (Sept. 29). Police said a 2010 Hyundai Accent, operated by a 39-year-old Hull woman and a 2004 Dodge Durango SUV, operated by a 34-year-old Cohasset man, were involved. The Hyundai was traveling south on Route 3A and ran the red light hitting the Dodge that and was traveling across the intersection from Beechwood Street, police said. Both vehicles were towed; there were no reported injuries. The operator of the Hyundai was cited for a red light violation. The fire department used Speedy Dry to clean up the oil leak caused by the accident.

Collision

Police responded to a two-car accident on Chief Justice Cushing Highway (Route 3A) near Ridge Top Road on Saturday (Sept. 28) around 12:47 p.m. Police said there was a long line of traffic at the Pond Street light when a 2010 Honda Civic, operated by a 28-year-old Scituate woman, who was headed south and looked away for a few seconds, rear-ended a 2005 Honda CRV, operated by a 50-year-old Holbrook man. Both vehicles were towed and there were no reported injuries, police said.

Logged

An Atlantic Avenue resident wanted it logged that she had a problem with a man, who had arrived at her home last Monday (Sept. 24) to provide her with an estimate for work at her house. While there he apparently ended up yelling at one of her children.

Bus stop

A school bus driver notified police that on multiple occasions in the morning at the bus stop near Howe and Jerusalem roads, a vehicle is passing her bus when it is supposed to stop. The driver requested patrols during the morning rush hour. Police are beefing up patrols in the area.

Parole

Cohasset police arrested a 48-year-old Cohasset man last Tuesday (Sept. 25) on a probation violation warrant for violating the terms and conditions of his parole, police said.

NEWS UPDATE

Drowning still under investigation

Cohasset police said detectives continue to work with the Norfolk County District Attorney's Office in the investigation of the apparent drowning last Thursday (Sept. 27) of a 23-year-old Scituate man in the Aaron River Reservoir.

Police said Charles Haskell of Scituate and a friend Shane Cummings, 20, of Cohasset fell into the water after their canoe capsized.

Cummings managed to swim to shore and call 911 at about 10:20 p.m. Thursday night. Neighbors also responded to his pleas for help; several joined the search in their own kayaks, according to published reports.

Cohasset police requested assistance from the Massachusetts State Police Air Wing and the Scituate Fire Department's dive team.

After a three-hour search, divers found Haskell at approximately 1:30 a.m. Friday, in 10 feet of water about 30 yards from shore.

Cohasset police said they are waiting for toxicology results from the Chief Medical Examiner to see if drugs or alcohol played a role in Haskell's death.

Deputy Police Chief William Quigley said described the incident as a "recipe for disaster." It was very dark that night on the reservoir and the canoe did not have proper safety equipment or lights. He said the two men were using a one-by-four-foot piece of wood as a paddle.

Quigley also said that this appears to be the first drowning in the 136-acre reservoir since it was created in 1978. The reservoir, which is about 12 feet deep at its deepest point, is located at the end of Beechwood Street and lies within Wompatuck State Park in the southwestern corner of Cohasset near the Hingham town line.

NEW HIRE

Joyce joins town staff

New Director of Project Management and Planning

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

Cohasset's newest town employee has been working in Town Hall for a little over three weeks, and is already tackling a long list of projects.

The town's new Director of Project Management and Planning, Brian Joyce, started in his position three weeks ago on September 10. From the sound of it, Joyce, a civil engineer and five-year Cohasset resident, has hit the ground running.

So far, Joyce has toured every town facility and is prioritizing which projects to undertake first, from dam safety upgrades at Bound Brook and Aaron River to the public safety building security upgrades and potential Town Hall renovations (see sidebar).

The Director of Project Management and Planning said he is addressing the "high priority, public safety" issues first while also developing a five-year capital improvement plan. These include "upgrading Bound Brook Dam and bringing it into compliance with the office of dam safety; addressing the Aaron River Dam; operational issues in town with the water and sewer departments and certain complaints in different areas of town with odor and things of that nature," said Joyce. "I'll try to identify all our needs at least five years out so we can plan accordingly, see what funding we have and prioritize that way."

"He's doing great and jumped right on board," said Acting Town Manager Michael Milanoski, adding that he's given Joyce a list of over 16 projects since day one. "He's doing really well, and I'm very happy with him."

Milanoski introduced Joyce to the Board of Selectmen during their Tuesday, October 2 meeting, and said that Joyce was quite the find for Cohasset — and he happened to be right in town.

"We went through an exhaustive search effort to find Brian," the acting town manager said, explaining that Joyce was interviewed by a committee who then recommended him to Milanoski.

Joyce, who hails from Dorchester, moved to town in 2007 and resides with his wife, Tanya, and three daughters: Mason, 6, Julia, 4, and Ava, 3. He holds a B.S. in Civil Engineering from UMass Amherst and water and sewer operator certifications, including the highest grade licenses: grade six for wastewater and grade four for water collections, treatment and distribution. Joyce also plans to sit for his Professional Engineer (P.E.) exam in the spring.

The new director of project management and planning earns $86,000 annually.

Prior to starting work in Cohasset, Joyce spent 15 years working for MWRA (Mass. Water Resources Authority) in Boston, so he is no stranger to government work.

"I'm familiar working with town and state government," Joyce said in a phone call. "It's a lot of the same issues here, but on a smaller scale."

While working in town has an obvious benefit for Joyce and his family, including "cutting down on the commute," there's a "win-win" for Cohasset in having a director who is already familiar with the town, its various issues and capital projects.

"There's definitely value in that," said Joyce. "I'm trying to make the town better while living here and raising my children here."

"It has worked out very well for him and us," Milanoski said in a phone call. "Combine him with all of the professional talent in town, and we've got a core of professional people who want to solve problems and move forward in an efficient and effective manner."

Other new hires

The town manager said during a previous interview, "If you look at the new hires, we've been able to attract a real top quality team."

New Town Hall hires this year include Chief Technology Officer Rob Bonnell, who was hired in May; Treasurer Collector Jane Lepardo, who came to Cohasset in July; Board of Health Administrator Felix Zemel, who started in August; and, most recently, Joyce.

Getting in these new hires throughout the summer months has required "lots of training and getting new people up to speed," said Milanoski. However, he believes it was necessary to fill these positions in order to move Cohasset forward.

"We've been fortunate to get new topnotch employees adding to the work everyone else has [been doing] in town," Milanoski said. "By bringing in the talent base we have, we're in a position to fundamentally change how we operate. With having additional professional people in here, we're able to be more transparent and efficient with how we provide services to the community."

Joyce's task list

Acting Town Manager Michael Milanoski has given Brian Joyce, the town's new Director of Project Management and Planning, the following list of projects to prioritize:

- Aaron River Dam
- Bound Brook Dam
- Develop five-year capital improvement plan (CIP)
- Public safety building upgrades
- Sewer smell/design
- Water department SCADA (Supervisory Control and Data Acquisition) system
- Dredging, Seaport Advisory Committee
- Jacobs Meadow
- Route 3A-Sohier Street
- Transfer station, profit center
- Treat's Pond flooding analysis
- Landfill monitoring (with Board of Health administrator)
- Solar array project (with Alternative Energy Committee and School Committee)
- Town Hall office layout reconfiguration
- Old Town Hall renovations (potentially applying for Community Preservation funds)
- Townwide GIS/CAD/permit tracking

strides to keep that from happening here.

May's Annual Town Meeting voted to set up an OPEB trust fund to start chipping away at the unfunded liability. The town voted to appropriate $20,000 to the fund, as well as reallocate $144,000 from an older trust fund, so that Cohasset has $164,000 total saved in what Acting Town Manager Michael Milanoski has called an "irrevocable" fund.

These monies "can only be used for OPEB," the town manager said.

However, the $20,000 added to the fund for fiscal year 2013 has been described as a "drop in the bucket" by officials. Milanoski noted during last week's Advisory meeting, "The $20,000 drop evaporated before it even hit the bottom of the bucket."

Advisory Committee chair Peter Pescatore said that there are a lot of financial pressures on the town, and that Cohasset "has no way to pay this in the long-term. This town has a finite income, but wants the culture of the town to stay the way it is."

With revenues from new growth, such as the Avalon apartments, slowing down, said Pescatore, there is "no realistic way... to get out from under this.

"We can only raise taxes so much before you drive people in the lower income bracket out of town," the Advisory chair continued. "You start to become such a high tax area, people don't want to move in."

Putting money into the trust fund isn't the only way to address the issue, explained Milanoski.

While admitting that the community must "put a significant amount of money into this," the acting town manager explained that reform is needed on both the state and town level "to reduce down our liability. Part of that includes adding additional funding into the [OPEB] program and figuring out what the sources of additional revenue are going to be."

While it's up to the state to review the benefits it offers its retired employees, Milanoski said that ultimately, the issue is not the state's problem alone.

"It's mostly a town issue," he told the selectmen. "We have to solve our own problem. The state's not going to bail us out."

The state has created an OPEB commission, consisting of a few senators, state representatives, town managers, union representatives and more, to study the issue and make recommendations. The commission is expected to publish a report in late November, according to Milanoski.

What communities can do on the municipal level is review the healthcare plans they currently offer town employees. Cohasset has "the Cadillac plan" for Blue Cross Blue Shield, according to Pescatore.

Employees who currently work for the town pay 11 percent of their individual healthcare plans with the town picking up the remainder; if they opt for a family plan, employees pay for 39 percent of that, according to the town manager.

Once town employees retire, the town splits healthcare costs with them 50-50 after Medicare or Medicaid. Cohasset teachers, meanwhile, pay for15 percent of their benefits post-retirement.

The cost of the OPEB liability (over $32 million) is nearly equal to the town's annual budget (around $36 million), Milanoski pointed out. Another way of looking at things: paying off the unfunded liability would cost each town employee around $130,000; or if each individual (including children) in the town of Cohasset were to write a check, they would need to cough up $4,500.

While the situation "isn't all doom and gloom, and things will not crash and burn tomorrow," said Milanoski, "they will crash and burn at some point."

With Town Meeting's approval of setting up the OPEB trust fund, at least Cohasset is on its way to dealing with the issue.

"For the last six months we've been expressing to the community the liability the community currently owes right now, and it has now come to the point where we can no longer avoid doing anything significant to avoid solving the problem," said Milanoski. "With the bonding agencies changing the way they're going to address this... we must make appropriate steps to make sure we put us on a financially stable foothold as we move on to future budgets. It's not going to be solved in six months, but a plan has to be developed and implemented in the future."

Spring Town Meeting also voted to approve financial management policies that were already implemented by Milanoski and the selectmen in late February. These policies listed the unfunded OPEB liability, along with feeding money into the town's stabilization fund, as a top priority. The goal is to achieve and maintain a stabilization balance of five percent of the town's operating budget.

While these policies were reviewed and approved by the selectmen, Capital Budget and Advisory committees, Milanoski noted that they were most importantly approved by Town Meeting, Cohasset's legislative body.

With the need to set money aside for stabilization, the unfunded OPEB liability, and crucial capital projects, how can the townspeople decide? Therein lies the rub, he explained.

"That's the issue — we have to make it work within our existing framework," Milanoski said. "That's what our policies say; within our projected revenue, make this work. The level of service we can afford within our known projected revenues has to account for OPEB, stabilization, debt service, new capital projects and maintaining all the public services people expect in town."

OPEB by the numbers

- $1.26 trillion = Total national liability
- $30 billion = Total Mass. municipal liability
- $16.2 billion = Total Mass. state liability
- $32,380,795 = Cohasset's unfunded liability as of FY10
- $164,000 = Amount in Cohasset's OPEB trust fund
- $130,000 = Amount it would cost each town employee to pay off OPEB liability
- $4,500 = Amount it would cost each individual townsperson to pay off OPEB liability
- 11 percent = Amount current Cohasset town employees pay toward their healthcare plans
- 31 percent = Amount current Cohasset town employees pay toward family healthcare plans
- 50 percent = Amount town of Cohasset pays toward employee healthcare after retirement
- 15 percent = Amount Cohasset teachers pay toward their insurance after retirement

VETERANS

Cohasset summit planned

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

During the summit, volunteers will have information and resources available to answer veterans' questions. Attendees will receive bags with printed materials; snacks will also be provided.

Colonel Edward Graham of the town's Veterans of Foreign Wars (VFW) and Sons of the American Legion, along with Elder Affairs director Coral Grande, came before the Board of Selectmen Tuesday to announce an upcoming veterans' summit in Cohasset.

Graham explained that years ago, the town entered into a covenant for veterans, and a volunteer group of vets was started to support the town's Veterans' Service Officer (VSO). That position is currently in transition; the town's interim VSO, Cohasset police Sergeant Garrett Hunt, who has served since December, joined the Air Force reserve unit and will no longer work as VSO part-time.

Acting Town Manager Michael Milanoski recently made arrangements with the town of Hingham's full-time VSO, Keith Jermyn, to regionalize veterans' services for the time being. Jermyn and one of his assistants will work part-time out of the Cohasset VSO office in the Stop & Shop plaza.

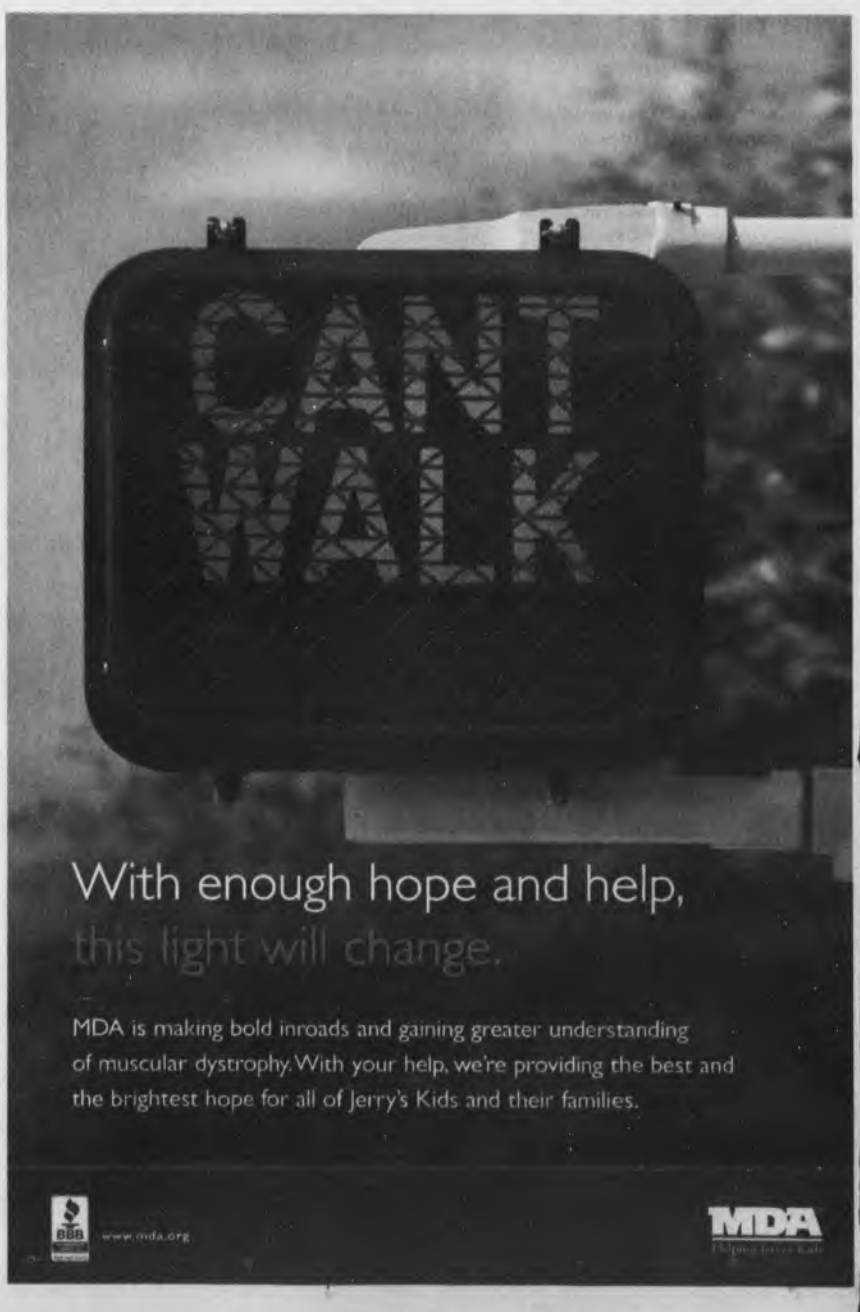
Graham seems pleased with this arrangement, saying during Tuesday's meeting that he's "heard nothing but good things" about Jermyn. "I think he's going to be a contribution to our town."

It's something that's needed in a town with nearly 550 veterans, according to Graham, many of whom are unaware of the benefits they are eligible for, and the application process.

"There are benefits that can help them, but they have to apply for them," said Grande. "We're trying to make it as easy as possible for them to come forward and as accessible as possible for them to get whatever benefits they're entitled to."

This is what the veterans' summit, to be held on Saturday, November 10, is all about. Graham said that a similar event was held at St. Anthony's a few years ago, when Joe McElroy was VSO, and around 35 veterans showed up.

For this year's event, Graham is also working with Coleman Nee, the state's Secretary of Veterans' Affairs who is also a Cohasset resident. He and Grande are also reaching out to the police and fire departments. An invitation has also been extended to state Sen. Robert Hedlund (R-Weymouth) and Rep. Garrett Bradley (D-Hingham).



The decision to hold the event the day before Veterans' Day, Nov. 11, was an easy one, said Graham. "We thought it was an appropriate time to have such an activity."

During the summit, volunteers will have information and resources available to answer veterans' questions. Attendees will receive bags with printed materials; snacks will also be provided.

While the summit is geared toward Cohasset's veterans, Grande said, "We won't turn anybody away." Veterans will be pointed toward resources and veterans' service offices in their towns.

It's all in keeping with the town's covenant for veterans, explained Grande. "We take the covenant very seriously. The question for the selectmen at the time was that it can't become another piece of paper — it has to be a working document. We took that to heart."

The veterans' summit will take place in the Town Hall auditorium on Sat., Nov. 10 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Check back in the Mariner for more details.

FESTIVAL

evaluating the various events that take place in town. He hopes to hold the first meeting soon.

As the committee assesses events, Carr said that Cohasset Day is a priority.

"It's a quality event that brings everybody to town and is well-attended, but it takes a tremendous amount of time and is a community effort. We want to get it back on track and have it in conjunction with other events we're asked to do, like road races and the triathlon."

Carr added that he hopes the EDC will be back up to full membership "within 30 days," as he and member Peter Brown are in the process of recruiting new members. He hopes the EDC will appear before the Board of Selectmen soon to make their official appointments.

While the Chamber has opted out of Cohasset Day and the Village merchants have taken matters into their own hands, the good news is that there will still be a fun fall event that celebrates the community of Cohasset Village, just as there has been in years past.

Merchants along Ripley Road, Depot Court, and South Main Street are coming together to create a special Fall Festival. While Cohasset Days past seemingly functioned as a farewell to summer, featuring the beloved "fine foods galore" restaurant sampling, classic car show, bike parade, fashion show and kids' games on the common — this year's event has much more of a fall flavor.

Maria Monaco, who co-owns outdoor sporting goods store Outside In with her daughter Tracy Cameron, is spearheading the effort to bring traditional autumn activities – pumpkin carving and decorating, hayrides, donut and scarecrow contests, and a Halloween costume contest for dogs – to downtown Cohasset.

"I think it will benefit the town to create a different type of fall celebrating this year and, hopefully, years to come," Monaco said in an email.

The Fall Festival will take place on Saturday, Oct. 27 from 2 to 6 p.m.— just in time to get into the Halloween spirit.

The Board of Selectmen approved closing off South Main between Elm and Brook streets during the hours of the event. The public parking lot will also be utilized for children's chalk drawings. The pumpkin carving contest and judging will take place near the post office.

Other planned activities include face painting, a spooky treasure hunt, storytelling, kids' games, wine and beer tasting for adults, and a guitar player performing children's music. Participating restaurants will supply food and beverages.

"There are a lot of fun activities for kids and adults," said Cameron. "Pretty much everyone downtown is involved for the most part, and everyone's excited about it."

Check back in the Mariner for an event schedule and further details.

BRIEFLY

Town Hall payroll change

Treasurer collector Jane Lepardo plans to change the way Town Hall payroll is done, she told the Board of Selectmen Tuesday. Soon, town employees will be paid biweekly rather than weekly.

Lepardo said that employees will be notified 90 days before the change occurs. This change will allow the assistant treasurer collector to assist Lepardo with employee benefits, insurance, retirement and work's comp issues, Lepardo explained.

"It's advantageous to the town for efficiency reasons," said Lepardo.

Cradles to Crayons drop box

Cohasset's Graham Waste & Storage Services, located at 215 Chief Justice Cushing Highway (Route 3A), has teamed up with Boston charity Cradles to Crayons to collect items for needy children throughout the state.

Bring donations to the new drop location behind the Cohasset Family Health Center in the back parking lot (223 CJC Highway). There is a lock on the storage unit; for the code to get in, visit: cradlestocrayons.org/boston/donate-goods/drop-off-locations

Items that are needed include:

- Winter clothing and coats, kids' sizes 0-20 and adult small, medium and large
- Winter shoes and boots, infant child sizes 0-13 and youth/adult sizes 1-10
- Socks and underwear (new only)
- Hats, gloves, scarves and mittens

FISH volunteers

Cohasset F.I.S.H. is currently in need of a few more volunteer drivers. This organization provides rides to medical appointments for those in Cohasset without other options. Each volunteer is scheduled to drive (if needed) one weekday per month using their own vehicle. Our corps of drivers has declined over the summer months as a result of relocations, disabilities, or simple aging issues — thus the need for more volunteers.

If you are available and might be interested in serving Cohasset residents in this easy manner, please contact Dick Avery at 383-6043 or leave a message with the F.I.S.H. answering service (781) 545-7073.

Pitching in for Team Rachel

JENNIFER PIEPENBRINK

Long weekend

Hey there Cohasset...how are you all doing on the start of this long Columbus Day Weekend? I hope and wish that everyone has some time to slow down a bit and enjoy wherever you are, let those who you are with know how much they mean to you and make the most of those small moments of time. When the weekend is over, the moments big and small, are memories for you to hold onto for a lifetime...make them count.

Team Rachel

Wow, this is a piece that needs a tissue to get through and makes you want to help in finding a cure for a disease that many don't even know about. Rachel is the daughter of Kate von Tungeln (nee Muir), granddaughter of Dr. & Mrs. Andrew Muir of Jerusalem Road. Kate graduated from CHS. Rachel is now blind and Team Rachel is raising money for research into Batten's, a neurological disease with currently no treatment or cure. Worldwide there are approximately 450 affected children. Team Rachel is holding its 2nd Annual 4 mile run/ 2-mile walk to benefit Battens Disease Research on Oct. 28th.

Batten is a genetic disease, which affects healthy children with seizures, blindness, paralysis, dementia and death. Batten disease is 100 percent fatal in all affected children. Sweet Rachel is a 12-year-old girl who is a 6th grader at Memorial Middle School in Hull. She is the older sister of three healthy siblings and, although she was born completely healthy, she is now blind, has dementia, and is losing the ability to walk, talk and eat.

Please visit www.teamrachel.com for more information on how you can help. All money will be donated to the MASS General Center for Human Genetic Research. Any donations made are tax deductible as Kate has registered Team Rachel under 501C3.

Brown bag

The Cohasset Elder Affairs announces the first Brown Bag Lunch And Movie Day. Come join in the fun on Monday, Oct. 15 at 12 pm for the movie, "The Kings Speech." Brown Bag Lunch and Movie Day will happen once a month, on the second or third Monday of the month. Make sure to bring your own lunch. Cohasset Elders Affairs will provide popcorn and soft drinks. Transportation will be provided. Call 781-383-9112 if you need a ride.

Faithful Fun

Here is a great piece of Faithful Fun news...Calling all parents, grandparents and caregivers with young children. Come on down to St. Anthony's Parish Center starting on Friday, Oct. 12th from 9:30-11 a.m. for fellowship and community and continuing each Friday to follow. This is a planned playdate and is a time to share your faith and have some fun together and everyone is welcome. Please feel free to call Susan Donahue at Susan.m.donohue@comcast.net with any questions.

That is the news for this week Cohasset. Happy Columbus Day weekend, everyone!

Please send in all your news, photos and celebration info to me no later than Tuesdays by 5 pm.

Just an FYI. We receive dean's list and honors notices from many colleges and private schools, but not all. If your son or daughter has earned recognition, please share that news directly with us!

We also LOVE new baby announcements with photos if possible. Need birth date, weight, length, names of siblings, parents and grandparents. Emailed photos are fine but glossies can be dropped off at Tedeschi's in the village in our Mariner drop box.

Pumpkins are here!

On Wednesday ASP 2013 volunteers, along with family and friends gathered in the field at the entrance to Wheelwright Park (North Main Street), to fill in this year's special design; created on his computer, then outlined on the grass by Phil Lehr. Unloading over 3000 pumpkins from the 18-wheeler took just over 2 hours. As the outlined areas were filled in, guesses were offered as to what exactly this thing was supposed to be. Eventually, as the answer was whispered about, everyone was able to recognize the special image.

Opening tomorrow (Saturday, 10 a.m. opening), with a promised favorable forecast, the shape will be a secret no longer!

UPDATE: the list of 2013 volunteers so far. As of the "preferential" deadline of Oct. 1st registrations to be given first choice in their group ("center") assignments had reached 42. There are still openings, but the later the registration, the less choice there will be in the center placement. Center assignments will be announced at the October 14th "Stock Letter-writing Workshop." All volunteers are asked to bring to that meeting (8 p.m. at Second Congregational Church) a list of 10 to 20 names and addresses of friends and family who might be interested in buying "stock" in our 2013 trip.

For further information, please visit our website: www.CohassetASP.org. CASP 2013 Handbooks may be picked up in the Cohasset High School office or by calling 781-383-0345 to arrange a pick-up time.

COHASSET CABARET 2012

'Razzle Dazzle & More!!!'

Save the date: November 2 & 3 at St. Anthony's Parish Hall.

This group of 14 performers will razzle-dazzle you with their great voices and vivacious personalities.

You enjoyed them last year and once again we will present the fabulous Broadway Kidz. This is a group of young people ages 10 - 14 that enjoy theater music and have been rehearsing non-stop to perform some of their favorite Broadway hits. This group of 14 performers will razzle-dazzle you with their great voices and vivacious personalities. Come and see them perform two Showstopping numbers. Both numbers will feature the singing and dancing talents of the group. Members of Broadway Kidz come from South Shore towns.

Back again directing this year's cabaret is Douglas Trudeau. Doug is known to South Shore audiences as the founder and director of the Scituate based Showstoppers organization. Razzle Dazzle & More!!! will feature the Cohasset talents of Lilly Sestito and her brother Tony Carbone along with Barbara Baumgarten and Mike Nakashima. Tony will sing with his quartet "Super 8."

"Razzle Dazzle & More!!!" will be an up tempo musical revue that will provide a nice variety of numbers from Broadway and movie musicals. The show will be comprised of solo and group numbers, comedy, and of course toe tapping dancing.

You can try your luck at the raffle and silent auction table, which will have some great items from local artists and merchants. Audience members are encouraged to bring their own snacks "Cabaret Style". There will be a cash bar serving wine, beer and soft drinks. Cohasset Cabaret is sponsored by The Friends of Cohasset Elder Affairs and will benefit the Friends and St. Anthony's Youth Ministry.

Tickets are on sale now and the cost is $25. You can purchase tickets at St. Anthony's Parish Hall office and the CEA office at the South Shore Community Center or call 781-413-7540 for further information.

FAMILY FUN

Ripley Road movie night

The merchants of Ripley Road are coming together to offer a family-friendly movie night, next Friday, October 12 starting at 6:30 p.m. The film will be shown in Constitution Park, near the Post Office.

Attendees are encouraged to bring their own chairs or blankets.

In the event of rain, the movie will be shown in the Arts Center. The film will begin at 7 p.m.

COHASSET CLASS OF 2016

Supporting Hingham NephCure

The CHS class of 2016 has supported the Hingham NephCure from its inception. Join them again at the 4th Annual NephCure Walk on Sunday, Oct. 14, at Wompatuck State Park in Hingham.

Come support the Broderick Family and many others affected by kidney disease by walking in beautiful Wompatuck State Park.

There will be refreshments, raffles, and music by Fake Walls' band members, Owen Bernsee and Adam Game, featuring special guest, Mary Lengyl.

To join Team Broderick visit https://www.kintera.org/faf/donorReg/donorPledge.asp?ievent=1026074&supId=366538969.

Deer Hill pupils walk to school

On Wednesday, October 3, the Deer Hill School community participated in International Walk to School Day.

This event took place all over the state in support of healthy lifestyles for kids. Students, staff, and parents met at the Paul Pratt Library at the corner of Sohier Street and Ripley Road at 8:00 am and walked together down Sohier Street to the Deer Hill School in time for school opening at 8:30.

Walkers were joined by members of the Cohasset Police Department. The walk was part of an overall initiative sponsored by Massachusetts Department of Transportation "Safe Routes to School" program.

Jay Nothnagle is Hall of Fame athlete

Jay Nothnagle of Cohasset has been inducted into the Special Olympics Massachusetts 2012 Hall of Fame. Every two years the organization chooses three athletes from among its 13,000 participants to be honored in this way. The winners are selected based on level of participation, leadership, service to the program, and commitment to Special Olympics. Jay has earned Gold Medals in 14 of SOMA's 27 sports, including three Special Olympics World Games: in Powerlifting in 1995, in Sailing in 1999, and in Sailing in Dublin, Ireland in 2003. He has also been the highest fundraiser in the state for the Polar Plunge in each of the last five years.

This year's Induction Ceremony took place on September 27 at the Yawkey Sports Training Center in Marlboro, the new headquarters of Special Olympics MA, where 10,000 coaches and volunteers are trained every three years. Jay's backlit portrait is installed on the Wall of the Hall of Fame opposite the entrance to the Yawkey Sports Training Center.

Jay has been a model athlete, teammate, and in many ways, the face of Special Olympics Massachusetts for the past three decades. He has trained, competed, and earned gold medals in 14 of SOMA's 27 sports.

As the captain of his own local program, the Scituate Mariners, Jay leads a team of 85+ athletes. Jay's leadership ability and growth during his SOMA career has set a high standard that helps his teammates grow as people, too. Jay leads his team quietly by example and offers his teammates encouragement in his trademark soft-spoken voice.

Outside of SOMA Jay has earned 33 badges as an Eagle Scout, volunteered on the Appalachia Service Project for 14 years and worked at Stop & Shop for 20 years.

COMMUNITY GARDEN CLUB

What is this? To find out be sure to read the new column by the Community Garden Club of Cohasset.
COURTESY PHOTO

'Community' is what we are all about

JAN TODD

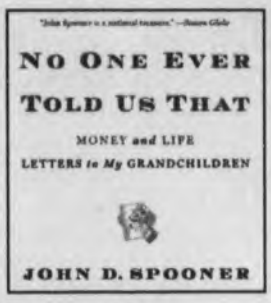
The Cohasset Mariner suggested that the Community Garden Club of Cohasset prepare a column from time to time to share with you our thoughts, our garden work, and the various and varied community activities in which we are engaged.

In 1959 Polly Logan established the Club. By its second year, there were 217 members. The Club continues to be involved in many of the activities with which it began: programs for youth, conservation, and "hands on" projects for senior citizens. The Club also continues to promote interest in design and horticulture. Our members work in public spaces. In the early years Cohasset's Community Center benefited from our designs, plants and labor. The Club also helped to design and install the Lightkeepers Residence gardens and has continued to maintain them, as well as the gardens of the Cohasset Historical Society and Constitution Park.

As we move into early autumn, you may be interested in what we are doing: purchasing bulbs to plant this autumn to enjoy next spring; potting zonal geraniums to over-winter in a sunny spot in the house or in a cool protected area of the house where they will live without very much water or attention until they return to the garden; removing spent plants which may have been overlooked earlier in the year; cutting the best looking of the hydrangeas and drying them for use during the winter; and digging up late season weeds. If you tidy the dead bits now, you will be helping yourself in a couple of month's time when you will put your garden to rest for the winter.

Were you able to identify "Cohassetopoly"? (If you would like to see the game, you will find a copy at the Cohasset Historical Society.) The game was designed and sold by the Club as a fundraiser about 15 years ago.

In order to provide $3,000 in scholarships each year to Cohasset's High School graduates and to support our other activities, the Club's fundraisers have run the gamut from publishing books, to running the Christmas House Tour, to May's Plant Sale, just to name a few of our efforts. Working together, whether in the dirt, on a project, or fund raising has always been stimulating, entertaining and a pleasure. We no longer wear hats and white gloves to events as members did in 1959. Colonel Logan's sherry is a memory. Yet over the years there has always been a lot of fun. That continues to be true.



AUTHOR-TALKS

John Spooner at library Sunday

Join others at Paul Pratt Memorial Library at 4 p.m., on Sunday, Oct. 7, to hear investment advisor, philosopher and writer John D. Spooner discuss his latest book, "No One Ever Told Me That." A wine and cheese reception with the author will follow the event.

To ensure a spot, reserve a seat. Visit the library online at cohassetlibrary.org or call the library at 383-1348, ext. 1, or pick up a ticket at the library's circulation desk.

Sunday AuthorTalks is sponsored by Dean and Hamilton Realtors and the Cook Estate; wines for the post-talk are donated by Bruce Sinclaire, owner of A Taste for Wine and Spirits.

BREAST CANCER AWARENESS MONTH

MORE ONLINE at www.wickedlocal.com/pink

When you hear you have cancer

1. THE DIAGNOSIS

The biopsy has been done, and you anxiously await the meeting that will give you the results. Bring a relative or friend with you to take notes and offer support. About 85 percent of women are diagnosed with Stage 0 or Stage 1 cancer.

You will have a lot of information to absorb and emotions to handle. If you have questions after the appointment, call the nurse navigator or other medical contact you receive.

2. WHAT KIND OF TREATMENT

Cancer treatment usually is multi-pronged, involving multiple medical specialists. You may first see a breast surgical oncologist, who refers you to a medical oncologist and a radiation oncologist. Or, you may meet all the specialists at once in a multi-disciplinary clinic.

In either case, the doctors will explain their treatment recommendations. Read the information handed out, and consult only web sites the specialists recommend. Discuss with people closest to you. If you want a second opinion, seek referrals.

3. WHERE TO GET TREATMENT

A number of hospitals outside Boston have satellite centers staffed by physicians from the major Boston cancer programs. Consider the pros and cons of local or Boston care by weighing travel distance, time, duration of procedures, your lifestyle, personal preferences.

4. COPING WITH EMOTIONS

You will experience a range of emotions, such as fear, sadness, anger and shock.

Consider a face-to-face or online support group, or talk informally to women who have volunteered to share their experiences with new patients.

Meet with a mental health provider or social worker who specializes in issues related to cancer. Allow yourself to cry, but think positively.

5. HANDLING DAILY LIFE

Your treatment may leave you temporarily unable to carry out your normal responsibilities, such as caring for children, handling meals and laundry, cleaning for the house.

Find out what you can expect in terms of surgical recovery and the side effects of chemotherapy and radiation. Determine whether you will need someone to drive you to appointments. Take advantage of referrals from social workers and offers of help from relatives and friends. Consider support from non-profits such as The Ellie Fund and online volunteer coordinating programs, such as Lots of Helping Hands.

6. SELF-IMAGE

Your body may change dramatically during and after treatment. There are a number of personal care options following hair loss and breast surgery.

The Cancer Care Boutique at South Shore Hospital has trained staff to help with turbans, wigs, post-surgical garment fittings, swim wear and more.

NURSE NAVIGATORS

A guiding light after cancer diagnosis

By Jody Feinberg
WickedLocal.com

Pam Mackey had a gut feeling that the lump in her breast was cancer, but she told herself it was just a cyst. But then it grew.

"I was scared to do anything about it, but I told myself to just do it," she said. "If it was something, didn't I want to take care of it sooner rather than later?"

Still, she was hopeful. When she met with a medical oncologist and surgeon at Jordan Hospital Breast Center to get the biopsy results, they dashed her illusion when they told her she had Stage II breast cancer.

"Of course, I got upset and I cried," said Mackey, 45, of Marshfield, who is a nurse at Quincy Medical Center. "It was overwhelming."

Mackey was unlucky to get cancer, but lucky to benefit from a model for cancer care based on navigators, oncology nurses who guide patients through the life-changing trauma of diagnosis and the complexity of treatment. As teacher, advocate, and coordinator, they reduce feelings of confusion and powerlessness.

"The nurse navigator keeps patients well-informed and very clear about their care plan," said Suniti Nimbkar, medical director of the Breast Care Center at South Shore Hospital.

Increasingly common in the past five years, navigators now are part of the care offered at the Breast Center at Jordan Hospital, South Shore Hospital Breast Care Center, North Shore Medical Center, Signature Health Care/Brockton Hospital, and Lowell Hospital, among other regional providers, as well as the major medical centers in Boston.

After her biopsy revealed HER2 positive cancer, Mackey was spared the additional burden and stress of trying to find specialists and schedule appointments, because the team of specialists had already evaluated her cancer and developed a plan.

As the doctors explained their plan to Mackey, nurse navigator Cat Melendy took notes and stayed to go over the recommendations with Mackey, whose boyfriend accompanied her.

"When women hear they have breast cancer, they hear half of what they're told and half of what they hear is incorrect," Melendy said. "So I go over everything and answer questions."

The team encouraged Mackey to get a second opinion if she wanted, but she was comfortable with them.

Nurse navigators also assist with anything that will help a woman cope and thrive. That may mean connecting her with a nutritionist, therapist and social worker, as well as people who help with transportation, meals or housekeeping or financial and insurance issues.

"There's a special relationship when you have been with a woman from the beginning and have witnessed her raw emotion," Melendy said. "I tell women I am here, and they can come to me as often as they want."

Like many women, Melendy considers herself a strong person, yet breast cancer made her emotionally vulnerable. The navigator shored her up when she needed it.

"I felt helpless when things went wrong, but then felt better knowing she was there," Mackey said.

Mackey finished her 14 months of treatment last month and is hopeful that the cancer will not return.

KOMEN

Cohen-Boyar, who received treatment for breast cancer in 2007 and 2010, emphasized the importance of screening. Ninety-eight percent of people diagnosed when cancer still is confined to the breast are alive five years later, she said.

"We need to get people in for screening to catch breast cancer early," she said. "When you catch it early, you have the greatest treatment options."

In Southeastern Massachusetts, for example, Komen has granted money to Mass Community Health Services in Brockton, which uses it for education and outreach to women in the Haitian community.

Advocacy and research also are important, she said. The Massachusetts affiliate gives twenty-five percent of its funds to the national organization. Those funds are dedicated to research projects, many of which are conducted by scientists and doctors in Massachusetts.

On the 30th anniversary of the creation of Susan G. Komen for the Cure, by Nancy Brinker in memory of her sister, Cohen-Boyar said the organization has had an enormous impact.

"Thirty years ago, no one talked about breast cancer," Cohen-Boyar said. "Now, it's part of the everyday conversation."

SUSAN G. KOMEN FOR THE CURE

Mass. affiliate supports funding for Planned Parenthood

By Jody Feinberg
WickedLocal.com

When Susan G. Komen for the Cure announced last March it would no longer fund breast cancer screening at Planned Parenthood affiliates, the public outrage was so strong that the organization reversed its decision and its key leadership subsequently resigned.

At the time, Ronni Cohen-Boyar, executive director of the Massachusetts affiliate, called the president of Planned Parenthood to express her support.

"I said I personally support Planned Parenthood and professionally we will not abide by it," Cohen-Boyar said.

In fact, the Massachusetts affiliate has never granted money to Planned Parenthood, which has never applied for funds. Nonetheless, the Massachusetts affiliate, like others around the country, has experienced a 10-20 percent drop in income. Cohen-Boyar hopes the Komen Massachusetts Race for the Cure will reverse the decline.

"It's hard for people to separate what national did from the affiliates," Cohen-Boyar said. "We are hopeful that Massachusetts residents understand what we do locally and that they will continue to support us."

DOCTOR'S NOTES

Cancer screening guidelines for women

By Dr. Jeff Hersh

There was an increase in breast cancer diagnoses in the 1990s due to improved screening; in fact, most of this increase was for early stage disease.

A decline in breast cancer cases after 2003 was due to the decline in hormone usage for post-menopausal women because of the Women's Health Initiative results reported in 2002.

However, breast cancer remains a major health issue, with more than 200,000 American women diagnosed and 40,000 dying from this disease each year.

Risk factors for developing breast cancer include advanced age, genetic factors and estrogen exposure. Overall, mammography is still the most useful tool to screen for this disease.

The U.S. Preventive Services Task Force no longer recommends routine screening mammography for non-high risk women in their 40s (but the American Academy of Family Physicians still recommends mammography starting at age 40).

Note that screening with a Clinical Breast Exam (a thorough breast exam performed by a health care provider) is still recommended.

Although the total number of women ages 40 to 50 saved by screening mammography is less than screening the same number of women older than 50, this does not mean that earlier mammography does not save lives. In fact, a meta-analysis (a review of many studies combined together) found that screening women ages 39 to 48 decreases the risk of death from breast cancer by 15 percent.

Other studies have shown that mammograms for women in their 40s detect tumors at an earlier stage than if only CBE is done. There is a downside to screening mammography; the number of unnecessary biopsies is higher because of occasional false-positive mammograms (suspicious test result although there is no cancer).

Women of Hispanic, Asian and Pacific Island ancestry are more likely to be diagnosed with breast cancer in their 40s than Caucasians.

There are other screening tests that may be considered for breast cancer:

• Digital mammography offers a screening advantage for women younger than 50 and for those with dense breasts.

• Women at very high risk of breast cancer benefit from screening with MRI in tandem with mammography. This is not true for all women; the American Cancer Society specifically recommends against MRI screening for women with a lifetime risk of breast cancer estimated to be less than 15 percent.

• CBE is beneficial, even though some studies have noted that mammography detects 90 percent of screening-detected breast cancer whereas CBE only 50 percent.

• Ultrasound has been shown to be useful to further evaluate suspected breast cancer noted from CBE or mammograms, and is also useful to help guide biopsies.

OUR VIEW

Grandparent scam back in area

The last time we wrote about the infamous "grandparent scam" that preys on senior citizens nationwide was about a year ago following a local incident.

The scam, which has been around for several years, has resurfaced again locally. Two weeks ago in Hingham, a 75-year-old grandmother almost became a victim of the scam. Another grandparent scam attempt was reported over the past week in Cohasset. Both scammers wanted money wired to them and claimed to be a grandchild calling for help from Peru.

The Hingham grandmother went to the Hingham Police Station on Wednesday, Sept. 19 to report that the scam. She said the caller pretending to be her granddaughter did not sound exactly like her granddaughter's voice but the caller explained that away by saying the connection was not clear.

The scammer claimed to have been arrested after being pulled over and police finding drugs on her friend. She said she needed money for a lawyer and to fly home. The "lawyer" then came to the phone asking for nearly $2000 to be wired through Western Union.

This smart grandmother called her daughter and then her granddaughter to verify she was in the United States before wiring any money. In Cohasset, the caller, who notified police and did not fall for the scam, said the caller claiming to be her granddaughter wanted $5,000.

The story is always similar: a caller pretending to be a grandson or granddaughter is in trouble and needs money. They usually play on the sympathy of their potential victim asking the grandparent not to tell their parents they are in trouble.

It is believed that scammers are most likely calling random numbers until they happen to reach a senior citizen. The scammers' basic tactic is to pose as a grandchild and let the unsuspecting grandparent fill in the blanks.

However, in the Hingham case the scammer had the correct family name and nickname of the grandmother, information that was likely obtained through social media sites on the Internet.

If someone is scammed or thinks there is an attempted scam – they should notify the police right away. Please spread the word to your parents or grandparents so they do not become a victim.

The Cohasset Mariner is building a Readers Advisory Network of e-mail addresses so we can more frequently involve our readers in the content of the newspaper.

Readers, who join the network, may be asked for reactions to stories, ideas for stories or follow-ups, for a digital "person on the street" interview, or for a community commentary.

If you are interested in becoming a member of the network, email Mary Ford at mford@wickedlocal.com. She will answer any questions that you may have. The Mariner promises to remove you immediately from the Readers Advisory Network if you request that we do.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Support is key to successful lunch program

At many senior centers, the clientele who take part in the congregate meal program sit down to meals provided by institutional vendors. In Cohasset though, folks who drop in for lunch on Tuesday, Wednesday or Thursday are treated to delicious meals prepared by local restaurants as well as talented home cooks who bring their skills to the center.

Recent lunch menus contained a healthy and delicious pasta primavera, a homey soup with bread and salad, broccoli and chicken Alfredo, marinated grilled chicken with rice, shrimp scampi. Delicious desserts round off the meal. All seniors are invited to attend lunch at 12 on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, (Wednesday programs start at 11, lunch follows). Call 781-383-9112 for reservations.

In addition, we'd like to thank the following businesses and individuals whose talents and contributions have resulted in such a successful program: St. Steven's Church, French Memories, Cohasset Pizza House, 5 South Main, Red Lion Inn, J.J's Junction, Golden Living, Anna Abbruzzese, Mike Abbruzzese, Marilyn LeBlanc, John Campbell, Linda Campbell, Lucia Flibotte, Ann Helbock, Greg Helbock, Christopher Hindley, Paul Kierce, Rose Kierce, Joanna Quinlan, Mary Kay Richardson, Dolores Roy and Lilly Sestito.

Without the individuals listed above, we couldn't deliver such delightful offerings to Cohasset seniors.

COMMENTARY

Everyone knows we need a senior center

ROBERT C. ERNST SR.

This is not a minor issue, neither fiscally nor in the diminished quality of life for the seniors that it has affected.

I hope that the silence that you might have noticed in Cohasset government circles is mute evidence that our civic leaders have, at long last, realized that they have badly underserved their senior constituents and are now preparing to come to grips with a problem whose resolution is long over due This is not a minor issue, neither fiscally nor in the diminished quality of life for the seniors that it has affected.

Fiscally, as is evident from the report of the Town's auditors and in the stacks of annual Cohasset Town Reports sagging the shelves of the Town Clerk's office which testify to millions in taxes paid by its citizens there is no evidence of any facility devoted to the use of its senior citizens; the sum total thereof is zero.

Evidence of any enhanced quality of life as is enjoyed by seniors in Hingham, Duxbury, and especially Marshfield, etc., despite the valiant efforts of the Social Services League, of many dedicated volunteers and individuals, is also absent.

For reasons that are not clear our civic leaders have allowed themselves to be dissuaded of seniors needs despite their requests, as regularly expressed in these pages, the very hard work and generous pledge of the Social Service League, the work of volunteers and the abundant evidence of towns right next door – apparently none of this has received the courtesy of civic attention. But that was then, this is now.

There was a blurb in last week's Mariner that the "survey had been delayed" – yet again. (Such a survey was authorized by a Town Manager 10 months ago.) We don't need a survey – everyone knows we need a senior center.

Perhaps I should have started out by saying "I am a stranger here myself." I have thoroughly enjoyed my life here and moved to Massachusetts only six years ago – on the other hand I have been a citizen of the U.S. for more than a third of the time that the country has been in existence. Nevertheless I am not familiar with the process by which this problem is civically corrected.

Certainly Cohasset would I believe, more than gratefully, accept the generous help of the SSL. But I think that Cohasset has made a serious blunder and that we are going to have to pay for it.

The funds for a senior center have, in my opinion, already been paid in the form of senior real estate taxes but that such funds have been, mistakenly perhaps, applied elsewhere. My belief is that the citizens may have to pay for this error through their individual donations and a special tax with the revenue dedicated to the construction, equipment and initial operation of its long overdue senior center.

In the subject case I think that a signal error was the failure of civic leaders to give the seniors a voice and the opportunity to be heard. I have attended well over a hundred senior events but in only one case was the featured speaker prepared to and interested in engaging the audience in a discussion. This complacency is a failure that has, in my opinion, been a formula for disaster.

Robert C. Ernst Sr. lives at 60 Elm St.

Absentee ballots available for the state election

Absentee ballots for the State Election on Nov. 6, will be available starting Tuesday, Oct. 9 at the Town Clerk's office. Absentee voting may be done during normal office hours until noontime on Monday, Nov. 5, at which time the office will be closed to prepare for the election. If you will be in town on Election Day and you are able to come to the polls you should vote in person. You may vote absentee for the following reasons only:

1. Absence from the town during the hours the polls is open.
2. Physical disability.
3. Religious beliefs, which prevent voting at the polls on Election Day.

The applicant must request an absentee ballot. Applications are available in the Town Clerk's office or a written, signed request can be sent by mail, or hand delivered by the voter or any other person. The application should include the legal voting address of the voter, where the ballot is to be mailed, and the signature of the applicant.

A family member of a person qualified to vote by absentee ballot may apply on behalf of such voter. The applicant shall state his or her relationship to the absentee voter; sign the application under the pains and penalties of perjury and mail or hand deliver the application to the clerk's office. Absentee ballots must be mailed to the voter. Returned ballots should be mailed or can be delivered by an immediate member of the family to the Town Clerk's office by Nov. 6, 2012 to be counted.

Wednesday Oct. 17, is the last day to register to vote in the State Election scheduled for Nov. 6. The town clerk's office is on the first floor of town hall. It will be open 8:30 a.m. to 8 p.m. for voter registration. You will need to include your Massachusetts driver's license number or the last four digits of you social security number on the voter registration form.

Frequently asked questions about proposed Senior Center

The following is from the Social Service League.

What is a Senior Center?

• A Senior Center is, by definition a central building/campus that provides contiguous space for multiple enrichment activities for adults 60+.

• The centers are one-stop health, fitness, social, recreational and life-long learning resource centers. Their over-arching goal is to promote the keys to successful aging.

Don't we already have a Senior Center?

• No. Cohasset's seniors do not have access to dedicated space in any one location in town.

• Seniors' programs are by necessity held in a myriad of off-site locations, which limit opportunities for program synergies and networking possibilities.

• The Council on Elder Affairs currently operates in less than 2,000 square feet of rented space in the South Shore Community Center. Much of this space is shared with the Community Center.

Why spend the money for a Senior Center in this economy?

• The Senior Center will be funded entirely through a private/public partnership. The Social Service League has donated $1M to the project and is currently engaged in a capital campaign to garner the remaining $1.5M needed to complete Phase I.

• Upon its completion, the Social Service League will gift the building to the Town of Cohasset.

Why do we need a Senior Center?

• With the aging of the baby-boomer generation, seniors are the fastest growing segment of our population: Adults 60+ currently comprise 25 percent of Cohasset's population; in 2020, they will comprise 33 percent of our population. As a result, demand for age-appropriate services will rise dramatically.

• By housing all Elder Affairs services under one roof, our seniors will be able to participate in the following day-long activities without having to drive to three different venues: Education and arts, Social Daycare, meals and nutrition, health and wellness, transportation services, public benefits counseling, volunteering and civic engagement and employment assistance.

• A modern Senior Center would enable our seniors to live independently and continue to stay in Cohasset – minimizing the impact their departure would have on our tax base.

How does the whole community benefit from having a Senior Center?

• Communities benefit from caring for their seniors the same way they benefit from having top-notch school systems and well-funded public services.

• Caters to all age groups by providing opportunities for multi-generational activities.

• Provides additional meeting/function rooms for various municipal, business and community groups.

• Provides an economic benefit to the town by retaining residents; seniors contribute over 40 percent of Cohasset's tax revenue.

• Provides needed respite for daily care-givers, who are often family members.

Why is the Social Service League involved with this project, and what is its role?

• The charter of the 100-year-old Social Service League has always been to provide needed support to Cohasset's entire population – youth, families and seniors.

• The Social Service League identified a large void in the town's ability to deliver quality senior services without a Senior Center. State of the art senior centers have been built over the past several years in many Massachusetts communities. The SSL benchmarked Cohasset's services for seniors against the services delivered by these other centers, and found we are woefully lacking.

• The SSL pledged a $1M donation to jumpstart this project. It actively participates in the Senior Center Planning Group. The SSL is taking the lead on a capital campaign to raise the remaining funds. SSL will provide guidance and project oversight to ensure its quality and timely completion.

What sort of community feedback have you solicited?

• Cohasset's Senior Center Planning Group and Selectmen feel that it is important to reach out to the community for input. The SSL has presented the Senior Center concept to, and received, critical feedback from most of the boards and organizations in town.

• The Town of Cohasset will soon distribute a survey to garner community feedback on prospective programs once the building is completed.

Why a two-phased approach?

• In response to two primary concerns raised as a result of our community meetings – the scope and scale of the initial project proposed – a decision was made to divide the project into two phases.

• The first phase will address the immediate needs of our current senior population. It will include a large multi-purpose room for meals and functions, an activity room, a lounge/activity room for socializing and congregating, an inviting gathering space in the lobby, and office space to support Elder Affairs, the Veteran's Agent and the town nurse.

• The second phase will provide additional program, office and Social Daycare space to meet the needs of this growing population.

What is Social Daycare and why is it important?

Social or Adult Daycare provides a much-needed respite for family members from the physical demands and stress of providing around-the-clock care to a frail, older loved one.

Social Daycare provides the following benefits to its participants:

• A safe, secure environment in which to spend the day.

• Enriching activities and socialization.

• Improvement in mental and physical health.

• Enhanced or maintained level of independence.

• Referral services to community-based health and social service agencies.

• Prevention or delay of nursing home placement.

What is the project timeline?

• Design and construction documents will be finalized this fall. The permitting process will begin and we anticipate breaking ground in spring 2013 with a grand opening projected for 2014.

What is the cost of the project?

• The total projected costs are approximately $4M for both phases. Phase 1 is approximately $2.5M and Phase 2 is approximately $1.5M. The Social Service League has contributed $1M toward Phase 1 leaving a balance of $1.5M to be raised from individuals, businesses and foundations.

How can I help?

• An investment of time or money to help Cohasset's seniors is an investment in our community.

• If you are considering making a gift, please contact Marita Carpenter, SSL Board Chair, to learn more about recognition – including naming – opportunities. marita.carpenter@gmail.com or 781-383-0771

• The League will be hosting fundraising events at various venues. To stay informed of these events and the Campaign and construction progress, check out our Facebook page at www.facebook.com/SSLCohasset.

SENIOR SCENE

Plenty to keep us busy

LOUISE SMULLEN

John Galluzzo had determined to take a 30-minute walk each day for a year, every day in a different town in the state.

One can never be sure of the weather when making a date ahead. Because of the morning's rain, the end-of-summer picnic had to move indoors. However, that did not dampen the festivities. About 40 guests gathered at St. Anthony's parish hall to enjoy a meal and entertainment. A prize was awarded to Lanier Grassie for making the closest guess of the weight of a huge pumpkin.

The highlight of the day was the entertainment. A group of ladies of the elder generation sang and danced through many numbers. They call themselves the Red Devil Dancers. For their last number they handed out maracas to the audience so we could accompany them. The Dixie Duo provided the music – Paul Gookin, on the banjo and Sister Theresa on the piano.

On September 11 a demonstration was given on searching your ancestry using Ancestry.com. This was conducted by Karen Oronte, President of the Friends of Cohasset Elder Affairs. One of the attendees volunteered to have her ancestry researched. To someone like me, who grew up with a no dial phone, a typewriter, and no TV, it was amazing. Seniors who would like their ancestry traced may contact the Senior Center at 781-383-9112 for an appointment. This is a complimentary service.

At one of the seminars, there was a discussion of the November 6th ballot question concerning the legalization of doctor-prescribed suicide. There were two presenters. The first was Jim Gross of Death with Dignity. He explained the process and its benefits. The second presenter was Patricia Stewart, Atty. with the Massachusetts Alliance Against Doctor-prescribed Suicide. She spoke of problems, which could arise if this were to be put into effect. A period of questions and answers followed.

We were pleased one day by a visit from John Galluzzo of the Massachusetts Audubon Society. He had determined to take a 30-minute walk each day for a year, every day in a different town in the state. With the exception of a few days when he was ill, John completed his mission. He gave an illustrated talk about his daily walks in the South Shore.

Another day we were visited by Jennifer Logan of South Shore Hospital. She put us through a number of chair exercises. Strength-training, stretching, and cardiovascular exercises were addressed.

Are there any game-players out there? Just a reminder of drop-in scrabble at 1 p.m. on Thursday afternoons. Not Scrabble? If you like some other board or card game, suggestions are welcome. Last week I enjoyed playing a game of Contract Rummy. Even though I didn't win, it was fun, and you know, good exercise for those brain cells!

Political coverage and pink pages

GREGORY MATHIS

With our newspaper pages turning pink this week, a big part of our coverage over the years has been the inspiring and compelling stories readers have shared in their own words. Please consider sharing your story.

As we settle into fall, the beginning of October brings us pink pages and the countdown to an important election.

There's no doubt much is at stake in the Nov. 6 General Election.

Obama and Romney are slugging it out on the national stage, Scott Brown continues to duke it out with Elizabeth Warren for the privilege of representing Massachusetts in the U.S. Senate, and Congressmen and women are getting ready to reshuffle the decks after losing a Congressional seat following the most recent U.S. Census.

But for us the focus is on races closer to home, meaning the state representative and senate contests.

With the election now just a month away, candidates have the opportunity to address issues and inform the public about their campaigns through various political columns, which may differ in name depending on what town you live in, but will include basically the same type of information.

Candidates will have the option to announce dates for coffees and meet and greets, as well as fundraisers. They will also be able to submit position statements on issues of relevance in the race, with the statements focusing on the candidate's position and not attacking an opponent's position.

Both opportunities come with word limits set by individual editors, so if you're running for office and would like more specifics, please contact the local editor listed in the newspaper or on the website. We'll also be asking candidates a question of the week in some key races.

During election season we don't accept letters to the editor from candidates or letters attacking particular candidates. We'll gladly publish letters from citizens not seeking election concerning political issues, but keep the discussion civil. Our goal is to give residents a forum for expressing their opinion and encouraging community conversation, but we don't want to turn the pages of our newspaper or our website into a free-for-all with negative attacks and twisted facts. We're getting plenty of that from the national and state campaigns.

In addition to the countdown to the election, October brings us Breast Cancer Awareness Month. As I've mentioned in past columns, this is a cause GateHouse Media has assisted in the last four years. For the second year in a row, GateHouse Media will be partnering with the Massachusetts chapter of the Susan G. Komen for the Cure Foundation. The first two years of the campaign supported the American Cancer Society.

Over the last three years, working with the American Cancer Society and now the local Komen foundation, the Paint it all Pink has donated close to $80,000 to the breast cancer cause and will likely top the $100K mark in year four.

With our newspaper pages turning pink this week, a big part of our coverage over the years has been the inspiring and compelling stories readers have shared in their own words. Please consider sharing your story. You can send an email to me directly or look for the reader callout in your community newspaper, as well as on your Wicked Local website, with details on where to send your information.

Area selectmen are Hedlund co-chairs

State Sen. Robert Hedlund announced that two thirds of the Hingham Selectmen agreed to serve as campaign co-chairs. Of the three selectmen, Irma Lanter and Bruce Rabuffo will help assist in key campaign operations to ensure victory in the upcoming general election.

The Committee to Elect Senator Robert Hedlund has announced the support of five Hull Selectmen. Along with their support of the Senator, the Hull Selectmen have agreed to host a pre-election event from 6:30 to 9 p.m., on Oct. 23, at Mezzo Mare in Hull.

Hedlund is currently in his ninth term as state Senator for the Plymouth and Norfolk district, which includes the towns of Duxbury, Hingham, Hull, Marshfield, Norwell and Scituate in Plymouth County, as well as the towns of Cohasset and Weymouth in Norfolk County.

Davis wins endorsement

The Massachusetts Chapter of the National Organization for Women Political Action Committee announced its endorsement of Genevieve Davis, who is running for election to the state Senate in the Plymouth and Norfolk district.

The Mass. NOW PAC endorses candidates who are committed to NOW's mission and priority issue areas, including reproductive freedom, racial justice, constitutional rights, economic justice, LGBT Rights and ending violence against women.

"I am so very pleased to have the endorsement of Mass. NOW," Davis said. "As a 63-year-old woman, I have seen and supported so many advances for women, from reproductive rights to more equality in the workplace. In addition to this, I have worked my whole life in the financial management of nonprofits, businesses run predominantly by women serving the needs of individuals, families and communities. What I have lived and what I stand for are the principles held by Mass. NOW."

Cohasset students explore the harbor with Sea Perch

By Mary McGoldrick

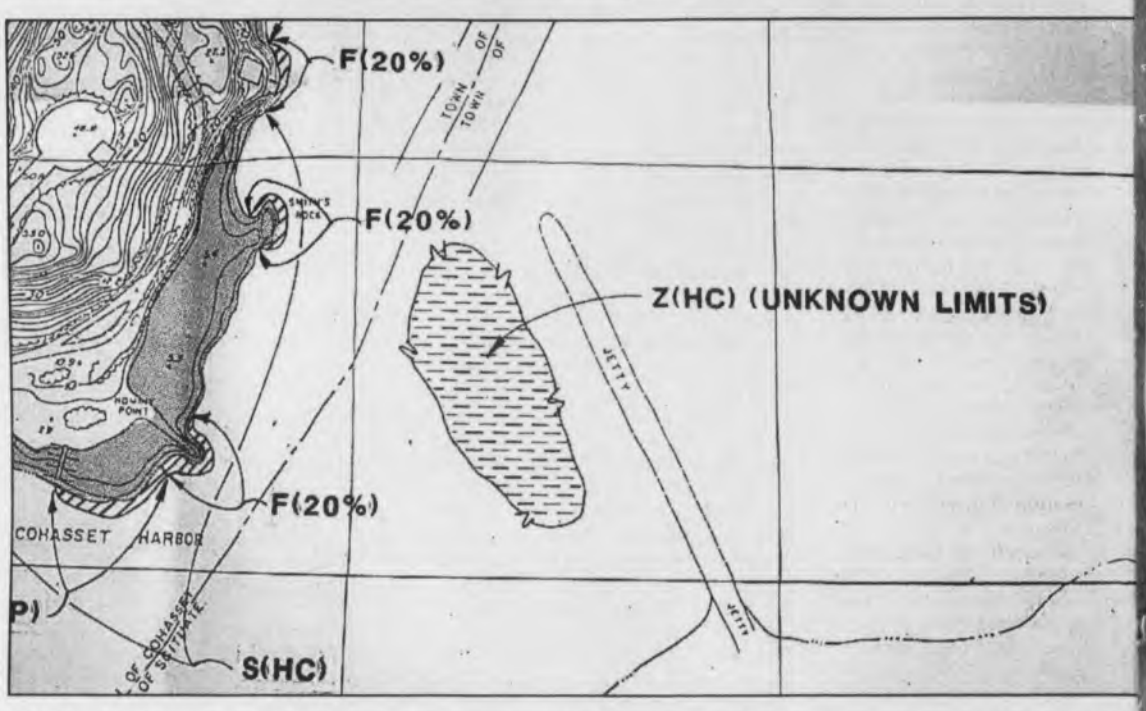
The Sea Perch project, funded by a grant from the Cohasset Education Foundation, allowed students to build the ROV from a commercial kit comprised of low-cost, easily accessible parts.

This summer 16 Cohasset High School students built and deployed Remotely Operated Vehicles (ROV's) as part of the school's Summer Institute program housed at CSCR, the Center for Student Coastal Research. The ROV's, called Sea Perch, were used to explore and document eelgrass beds in Cohasset Harbor, the harbor channel, and around Whitehead. Recalled CHS senior Jack Thomae, "I had a blast. I did things I had never done before. It was a great feeling building it and seeing the motors turn on, and then using them to explore the eelgrass."

The Sea Perch project, funded by a grant from the Cohasset Education Foundation, allowed students to build the ROV from a commercial kit comprised of low-cost, easily accessible parts. The curriculum teaches basic engineering and science concepts with a marine engineering theme, but the student application of building the ROV to investigating critical marine habitat in Cohasset harbor made Cohasset's Sea Perch project truly unique. US Army Corps of Engineers personnel underscored that point by informing the Sea Perch team via email that "your findings and data collection may be very helpful in determinations made by the Corps of Engineers as we prepare to dredge the Cohasset Federal Navigation Project in the coming years."

Eelgrass beds play a critical role in marine ecosystems, contributing to water quality and species diversity. According to the Massachusetts Department of Fish, Game, and Wildlife, "Eelgrass meadows form the foundation for primary production and are very important to the coastal marine ecosystem. Loss of eelgrass habitat has been extensive in Massachusetts."

Armed with this knowledge and with a 1994 engineer's map of known eelgrass beds in Cohasset Harbor, the 16 students set out to complete the 3 phase Sea Perch project assembly phase, test phase, and habitat observation and exploration phase. "Student progress exceeded my expectations," observed Jason McCabe, CHS English teacher and one of the project leaders. "It was a joy to see them build the kits from scratch, troubleshoot their individual and collective problems, and then use their own hand-built research tool to collaboratively investigate a real-world issue."



Once the Sea Perches were fully assembled, students took them into Cohasset Harbor at low tide to gain experience and become proficient in maneuvering and operating the units. After tackling the issue of why certain units were more buoyant and therefore more mobile than others, the students collectively decided which Sea Perch ROV's were the most reliable. These were the three ROV's to which students attached GoPro cameras for phase three deployment and video documentation of eelgrass.

The first stage of the investigation phase brought students out to the inner side of the Bassing Beach jetty. Students worked in teams on shore and in the water in kayaks, a canoe, and a dory. Each team had a dedicated ROV driven by a student while others kept watch of the tether and recorded observations. Distances from the jetty to channel markers and buoys were established for reference points. Students quickly discovered that the greatest obstacle for underwater navigation was the lack of real-time video. In essence, the students were "driving blind." To compensate, snorkel teams were assigned to each unit, which enabled student teams to produce very useful video footage inside the jetty, on the channel edge at Whale Meadow, and around the rocks at Whitehead.

Student results show very mixed reviews for harbor health. Whale Meadow and Whitehead reveal fairly healthy patches of eelgrass, but it's a different story inside the jetty. From the navigational can marking the channel at the tip of the jetty to the mooring field, there's nothing but sand, silt, and very scarce patches of some wisps of vegetation other than eelgrass. Sea Perch video footage reveals a nearly barren harbor bottom, devoid of any healthy habitat.

Students reported these results to EPA and Army Corps officials who confirmed the "die-off" inside the jetty. Unknown to the Sea Perch team, an outbreak of wasting disease in the summer of 1995 infected dozens of acres of eelgrass beds throughout the south shore. Students discovered healthy patches of eelgrass, however, growing along the northern side of the channel from Whitehead to the navigational dolphin #12.

"It was a great experience," said sophomore Hollis Hunnewell, "I'm looking forward to coming back next year to improve upon what we accomplished this summer. There's so much more ground to cover. There's got to be a way to rig these Sea Perch with wireless technology and video monitors. That's our next challenge — building the bigger and better Sea Perch!"

1994 Map of "densely vegetated" eelgrass bed; confirmed by students that this habitat has unfortunately died and is now a barren substrate (bottom).

Volume 38 - Report No. 39 September 28, 2012

	*	100 % (0)

THE HOUSE AND SENATE: There were no roll call votes in the House or Senate last week.

This week, Beacon Hill Roll Call examines the percentage of times in 2012 that local representatives voted with Democratic House Speaker Robert DeLeo on key roll call votes.

Beacon Hill Roll Call uses 137 key votes from the 2012 House session as the basis for this report. These do not include quorum calls or roll calls that were on local issues.

Forty-two Democratic representatives voted with Speaker DeLeo 100 percent of the time.

Here's how local representatives fared in their support of Speaker DeLeo on 137 key roll calls.

The percentage next to the representative's name represents the percentage of times the representative supported DeLeo. The number in parentheses represents the number of times the representative opposed DeLeo.

Some representatives voted on all 137 roll call votes. Others missed one or more of the votes. The percentage for each representative is based on the number of roll calls on which he or she voted and does not count the roll calls for which he or she was absent.

ALSO UP ON BEACON HILL

ALL-TERRAIN VEHICLES (S 2381) - The House and Senate approved and sent to Gov. Deval Patrick a bill that would allow the Director of the Massachusetts Environmental Police to exempt out-of-state residents participating in all-terrain vehicle (ATV) races from the 2010 law that a person under 18 must complete a safety course in order to operate a recreational vehicle. The bill also allows the director to exempt out-of-state race participants from the requirement that they register the ATV. The proposal is being pushed by the New England Trail Riders Association (NETRA), which says it rectifies many of the "onerous restrictions" in the 2010 law and allows NETRA to continue to provide events in the state without a lot of the unnecessary restrictions that have discouraged out-of-state participants and resulted in communities and private industry losing tourist dollars.

THIRD GRADE READING (H 4243) - Gov. Patrick signed into law a bill creating an Early Literacy Expert Panel to advise the state's education department on strategies to have all students in the state reading proficiently by the end of third grade. Supporters said 39 percent of the state's third grade students read below their grade level. They argued studies show that one in six children who struggle with reading in the third grade never finish high school .

OFF TO A STUDY COMMITTEE - Various committees recommended that dozens of bills be shipped off to a "study committee" where measures are never actually studied and are essentially defeated. Here are some of the bills meeting that fate:

COLLEGE TAX DEDUCTION (H 1681) - This would provide an income tax deduction for contributions made to college savings plans. Under the proposal, a single person would be entitled to a deduction of up to $5,200 and a married couple up to $10,000.

INDIVIDUAL TAXPAYERS AND ABORTION (H 1683) - This gives each taxpayer the option to indicate on his or her income tax return that he or she does not want his or her income tax liability to be used to pay for abortion services defined as "performing abortion, referring for abortion, or counseling for abortion." The portion of the tax liability not being used to pay for these services would be deposited into a special account rather than into the state's General Fund. The special account's revenue would be used to inform people of the state's baby safe havens law that allows a parent to leave their baby under the age of seven days at a police or fire station or hospital emergency room without facing criminal prosecution.

REQUIRE TRAINING OF LOCAL OFFICEHOLDERS (S 1160) - This would require members of local boards of health, conservation commissions, planning boards and zoning boards of appeals to attend a state-funded annual program of education and training in the field on which the board or commission focuses.

LATEX GLOVES (S 1132) - This addresses one of the concerns of people with latex allergies by prohibiting any employee who handles food from using latex gloves.

COMMENTARY

Seeking resolution in unbiased environment

CHRIS FORD

Editor's note: Mr. Ford provided the Mariner with a copy of this letter to the Conservation Commission.

It is our belief that the members of the Commission have been intimidated by this hostile atmosphere and are personally concerned about the consequences of supporting our application.

October 3, 2012
To: Jack Creighton, Chairman
Cohasset Conservation Commission
Subject: Withdrawal from re-opened hearing on 559 Jerusalem Rd.

My brother Ted Ford and his wife Khemphet, owners of 559 Jerusalem Road have asked me, as the applicant on their behalf, to withdraw our request for reconsideration of our application before the Conservation Commission. This letter formalizes that request.

We have already endured five months of hearings and $30,000 in professional fees as we apply for a building permit for a property that should be absolutely routine. It should be noted that 25 of the 27 residential properties on the Cohasset side of Straits Pond directly abut the pond. Our property does not abut the pond. In the course of six hearings before this Committee we have paid for a full range of field studies by registered engineers, wetland scientists, biologists and arborists to assess possible adverse effects on the buffer zone and the results of these efforts make it clear that there are no abnormal effects. The independent environmental consultant hired by the Town, Mr. Paul Shea, with more than 30 years of experience in the industry, stated on numerous times during your deliberation of this project that this project complied with the requirements to be issued a stormwater permit and an order of conditions. The Commission, by its action of denying us, has made it clear that statements from well-respected industry professionals that are fact based will not be given their proper consideration and that unfounded claims and accusations made by an abutter will influence your vote.

Peter DeCaprio, an abutter to our property, has stated that he will do all within his power to deny us the right to build on this property. The original five hearings that were held were dominated by issues that Mr. DeCaprio raised, issues totally outside of the purview of the Conservation Commission. These "red herring" issues: "the legality of the lot", "the validity of the sewer connection", "whether or not the property was for sale" are issues that are either irrelevant (sale issue), or have already been decided by other boards or designated officials (ie. Sewer commission and zoning officer). In the deliberations before the vote of denial a commissioner took the position that the amount of time spent on these non-conservation issues had sidetracked the board and prevented them from focusing adequately on the task at hand. We did not cause these issues to be raised. We did not sidetrack the Board. Mr. DeCaprio sidetracked the Board and the commissioners allowed this to happen and it is clear to us that it was the confusion generated by these issues, issues which did not belong within the conservation permitting process, that brought about the vote to deny and not the validity or non-validity of the professional findings that were presented to them.

It is our belief that the Conservation Commission recognized that such was the case and that is why they agreed to re-open these hearings after the Department of Environmental Protection offered to withhold their decision on our appeal. In their letter the DEP stated that they were taking this action "in the hope that the Commission's concerns can be adequately addressed and the previously issued Order of Conditions can be amended as an approval." We agreed to this reopening. At the close of the public hearing Agent Paul Shea had stated "that the new revised plans are an improvement over the original plans that were submitted but even the original plans met the criteria for this project to be approved by the Cohasset Conservation Commission." Notwithstanding the conservation agent's expert opinion, the commission denied the notice of intent based on lack of information. At the on-site inspection with the DEP, long after the denial decision was filed, the commissioners suggested that they needed more information regarding: 1. Shadows and their impact on the environment; 2. Height of the house; 3. Need for a detailed construction schedule. We believe that these issues are pretextural in that: 1. the question of height of the house, as long as it complies with zoning, is not a conservation issue; 2. that a detailed construction schedule has always been completed after a vote of approval by the Commission at a pre-construction conference with the contractor and the commission; and 3. that "shadow and darkness", natural processes which are associated with every property and about which, according to our engineers, there is no scientific evidence that normal shadows have any adverse effect on a resource area. Notwithstanding, we forwarded to the commission, for its information, a drawing of the proposed house with elevation and height measurements, a shadow study and our proposed construction schedule.

Unfortunately, it now seems that Mr. DeCaprio is intent on raising the same "red herring" issues that he raised throughout the original hearings and is planning on raising new issues as well. His recent six column "commentary" in the Cohasset Mariner is evidence of this.

It is our belief that the members of the Commission have been intimidated by this hostile atmosphere and are personally concerned about the consequences of supporting our application.

Mr. DeCaprio was allowed to create a hostile atmosphere, which we believe would be allowed to continue at a re-hearing effectively preventing a fair decision being made. We feel that we are left with no choice but to continue our effort in the unbiased environment of the Superior Court and the Department of Environmental Protection, not because we want to take on an effort costly to us and the Town of Cohasset but because we have no choice in order to have a just and fair resolution of this matter.

Respectfully,
Chris Ford, Applicant
On behalf of owners Ted and Khemphet Ford
cc. M. Milanowski, Board of Selectmen
Greg DeCeasare, DEP

Real Estate tax exemptions offered

The Cohasset Board of Assessors Office is accepting applications for fiscal year 2013 real estate tax exemptions. The qualification date is July 1, 2012 for all statutory exemptions. The following exemptions are available:

• PERSONS OVER 70 YEARS OF AGE: $2,000 off
Clause 41C – if annual income is less that $18,000 (single person) or $23,000 (married couple), and the value of your assets, excluding your home, is less than $33,000 (single person) or $35,000 (married couple) and must own and occupy for previous 10 years.

• SURVIVING SPOUSE (no age requirement): $350 off
Clause 17D – also minors of deceased parents and persons over 70 years of age. There is no limit on income, but the value of your assets, excluding your home, must not exceed $40,000 and must own and occupy for previous five years.

• DISABLED VETERAN: $800 off
Clause 22 – At least 10 percent disabled as determined by the Veterans Administration. Purple Heart Award recipients qualify, as well as Congressional Medal of Honor, Distinguished Service Cross, Air Force Cross, Navy Cross. Other exemptions are available for more seriously disabled veterans and paraplegic veterans. Veteran must have been a Mass resident 6 months prior to enlisting OR live in Massachusetts for five consecutive years.

• BLIND PERSON: $875 off
Clause 37 – Must be registered with Massachusetts Commission for the Blind.

• TAX DEFERRAL: ALL OR PART OF THE TAX
Clause 41A - Applicant must be 65 years of age as of July 1, 2012 with income less than $51,000 and must have resided in Massachusetts for the preceding 10 years. All or part of the tax may be deferred. (Effective 2007 the interest rate has been reduced to 4 percent)

Exemption forms are available at the Assessors' Office in the Town Hall (Floor 2B). For additional information, please contact the Assessors' Office at (781) 383-4114.

ZBA UPDATE

Dog clinic application withdrawn

An application before the Zoning Board of Appeals to open a walk-in dog clinic at 240 King Street was withdrawn Monday night.

The applicant's attorney requested to withdraw the application without prejudice, and the board voted to grant that request.

Since the project requires a bylaw change in order to meet the town's 200-foot buffer zone requirement for a veterinary property, the applicant, Dr. Fawn Stevenson, and her attorney Richard Henderson could opt to prepare an article for Special Town Meeting, which is Monday, Dec. 10.

The town's bylaw does not distinguish between veterinary hospitals with stables or kennels that treat livestock, versus small veterinary offices for domestic pets.

Stevenson runs the Crazy Paws veterinary hospital in Cohasset's James Brook Crossing off Pleasant Street.

Skippers tied for league lead

By William Wassersug
wwassersug@wickedlocal.com

Despite a 2-1 loss to East Bridgewater on Tuesday, the Cohasset boys soccer team is still very much in the picture when it comes to their chances in the South Shore League.

After the first time through the league schedule, the Skippers, who broke into our Inside the Six rankings for the first time this season.

"It was a tough one last night," Willis said. "Now we're tied with them for first place."

The loss felt tougher than it may have been because of the team's lack of action in recent weeks. Cohasset has only played three games in the past three weeks.

"The league schedule is funny like that," Willis said. "And we lost one to the weather. Now we play 10 games in the next 25 days. It will be quite a bit."

With that loss, Cohasset, East Bridgewater and Mashpee are tied at the top.

Willis said whoever wins the league will deserve it.

"Whoever wins the league will earn it," he said. "Cohasset, East Bridgewater or Mashpee won't just win the league. They'll all make some noise in the tournament."

Cohasset was led early by Nick Tangherlini, who scored six goals in his first four games before his pace slowed.

On the other side of the ball, the defense has been led by Joe Buckley and goalie Pat Federle.

"When the two of them have played together we've only allowed two goals," Willis said, adding that two goals scored by Hull happened in the late part of a runaway victory. The two goals East Bridgewater scored were the most we've allowed all year.

"East Bridgewater is explosive. We knew if we were Ready to roll

Loaded tough October schedule looms

By William Wassersug
wwassersug@wickedlocal.com

After eight games, the Cohasset field hockey team has battled to a 6-2 record, but things haven't come easily.

In fact, nothing has, but that has more to do with the schedule and weather than anything more.

With a spread-out early-season schedule and some rainouts, including Wednesday's scheduled game with Carver, Cohasset hasn't had many games.

Heading into today's scheduled game with West Bridgewater, Cohasset has a 6-2 record. The losses were to Scituate at the beginning of the season and a 1-0 setback to Harwich.

"In the week of Sept. 17 through 30 we only played two games," Cohasset coach Laura Giuliano said. "It isn't a lot of fun after a while. You're practicing every day."

Giuliano said practices have gone well, but it will be nice to get back into game days.

If the weather cooperates, games will come quickly.

"We have 10 games to play in October," Giuliano said. "It was all down time."

When they get back on the field, Giuliano expects her players to do well.

"They do a really good job playing together," she said. "They're a committed group of athletes. They're always trying to find ways to get better. It's a nice aspect about them.

"They want to find where their strengths are, and they're good about showing it."

This season, Giuliano has a young group with a few youngsters who have been making a mark. She has 18 freshman on the roster, including the junior varsity.

With 18 freshmen, the extra practice time has helped.

"We have had some extra time to teach," she said. "We have had time to bring them along."

A couple of players who have come along quickly are freshmen Ally Leahy and Molly Cunning.

"Molly Cunning is a midfielder," Giuliani said. "She doesn't start, but when she's in she plays well. She's got good skills. Ally Leahy is phenomenal at forward. She's a great playmaker."

Other contributors are sophomore Katy Gilman, a top scorer and fellow forward, junior Christine Tedeschi. Kathryn Dunn has anchored the defense.

Cohasset plays at home Monday at noon.

Youth sports, we want to hear from you

Parents, coaches, friends and families, as much as I have tried to deny it, fall is here, and that of course means the return of football, soccer and field hockey.

As I always mention, I only deny the introduction of fall because to me, that means winter and rapidly cooling temperatures are too close at hand for my comfort.

This fall has been especially confusing for me because there seems to have been no baseball for way too long.

Call me a fair-weather fan, but I have pretty much tuned out when it comes to the Red Sox this season.

I still keep an eye on what they're up to, and applaud the

FOOTBALL

Chasing a victory

Better tackling and technique could help

By William Wassersug
wwassersug@wickedlocal.com

It has not been a great football team – yet, but the Cohasset football team has played a pretty tough group of teams, but in the early going of the season, the results have been mixed.

Cohasset won its opener in valiant fashion, winning in overtime.

Since then it hasn't been a lot of wins.

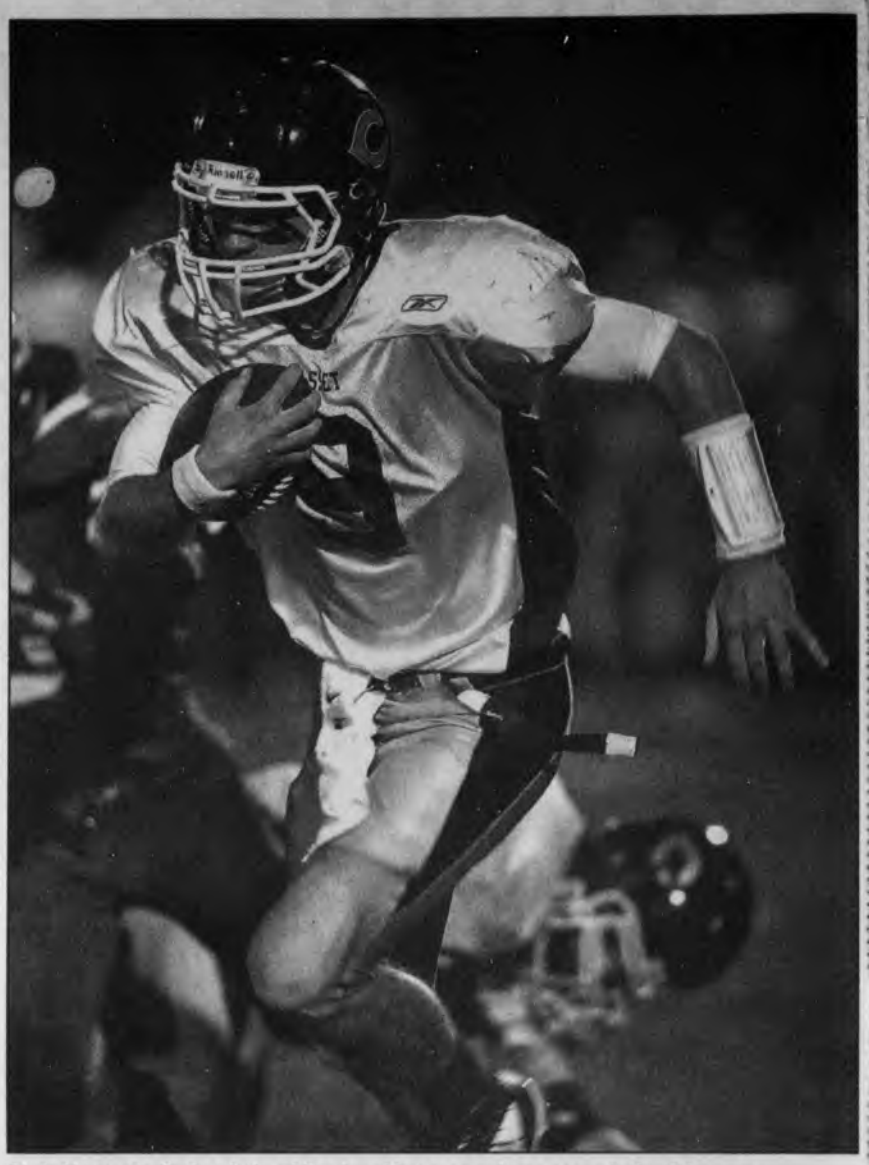
"We'd like to get a win," Cohasset coach Peter Afanasiw said. "Other than that, it has been good. The kids work hard. They come to practice. We'be just been snakebit the past couple of weeks. The remedy to that is to keep working. I've seen no indication of a let-up."

Cohasset faces Carver next.

"We're pretty healthy," Afanasiw said. "Aside from one injury that hits our linebacker depth, we're in good shape. We're looking for solid performances, especially the defense. This season it seems like we'd have one good series, then give up a big play. We'd have a good quarter, than have a bad one. We have to be more consistent."

In Friday's 20-10 loss at Abington, Cohasset played well early, buts had troubles as the field got slippery later in the game.

"Timmy and Ryan Gillis ran well," Afanasiw said. "They both ran real hard and didn't avoid contact. They both did a great job."



Another player who has done well is Shane Haggerty.

"Shane has been one of our bright spots," Afanasiw said. "He's been somebody other teams have noticed. He's a receiver that we try to get the ball to. We also use him to get the ball in motion occasionally to give Tim Gillis a rest."

As for Carver, Afanasiw said they bring a much improved team to the field this year.

"They're 2-2 and have a trio of solid running backs. They're a well coached team. We should be able to load up the run on them, but that means we still have to stop them. We have to be physical and make tackles.

ADVENTURE RACE

Cohasset's Flannagan wins Ironman Division

The winners and results of the 2012 UniBank Blackstone River Valley Greenway Challenge "Adventure Race — Like No Other," held Saturday, September 29, 2012, have been announced.

The race was the largest in its 12-year history — with 457 athletes and 87 teams running, paddling, and biking in a variety of competitive and fun divisions on a seven-leg, 44.5 mile course through the Blackstone River Valley National Heritage Corridor in Rhode Island and Massachusetts. The mission of the race is to raise the public's awareness of the history, natural beauty, and environmental significance of the Corridor.

Congratulations to Cohasset's Josh Flannagan for winning the Ironman (One male athlete with a support person). Flannagan returned to defend his 2011 Ironman title and claimed the 2012 title in 4:05;44, also third overall time, with support person Justin Dreary. Second place silver medals went to Ironman John McCarthy from Ludlow, MA and Crystal Popko completing in 4:33:31 and the Bronze medal went to Cumberland, RI's Ironman David Fagnant & Tim Finocchio finishing in 4:34:51.

Stingers remain unbeaten

By Mark Ducharme
Correspondent

There is only one undefeated team left in the South Coastal Hockey League after five weeks, and that is the Stingers of the Legends Division.

Ken Wingate of Pembroke scored two goals and assisted on another as the Stingers held off the Saints, 4-2. Norwell's Joe Murray and John Scag both had a goal and assist each for the Stingers.

Jim Callahan had a goal and an assist, Jim McNeill scored a goal, and Marshfield's Bill Langrill had two assists for the Saints.

Brian Murphy of Duxbury scored the tying goal with 3:37 left and then scored the only goal of the shootout to give the Crusaders their first win of the season, 3-2, over the Sharks in a Legends Division contest. Jim Donovan of Marshfield had a goal and assists for the Crusaders. Jay Faherty and Hanover's Mike Murphy scored the goals for the Sharks.

Dan Nason stopped 21 shots, while Skip Tufts of Scituate had a goal and assist in the Whalers' 4-0 Legends Division win over the Toros.

Scituate's Steve Concannon, Norwell's Mike Verrochi, and Jim Toner of Hanover added a goal each for the Whalers.

John Dunn broke a 1-1 tie with 7:47 left as the Blackhawks dealt the Red Wings their first loss of the season, 2-1, in a Classics Division duel. Dan Murray also scored for Blackhawks, while Mike Evansen scored for the Red Wings.

Mike Martin scored two goals, John Zimmer of Marshfield had two assists, and Pembroke's Jim Stone recorded the shutout in the Bruins 2-0 win over the Canadiens.

Bob Sideropoulos scored three second-period goals and set up another in the third period in the Rangers' 5-1 Classics Division win over the Maple Leafs.

Tom Smith of Marshfield, and Jeff Uva also scored for the Rangers. Marshfield's Steve Mudge scored with one minute left in the game for the Maple Leafs.

INSIDE THE 6 SOCCER POWER RANKINGS

Week 4: Cohasset debuts at No. 6

By Ryan Wood
rwood@wickedlocal.com

Cohasset jumps into our Inside the 6 Power Rankings this week. PHOTO/KEITH MACDONALD

The fourth week of high school soccer produced some quality matches in the region. We had a major shakeup on the girls' side as Scituate knocked off No. 1 Plymouth North and was rewarded for a strong effort last week. For the boys, the Wildcats cannot be stopped and remained unbeaten through 10 matches. These rankings reflect games played from Monday, Sept. 24 through Sunday, Sept. 30:

Boys

1. Weymouth – What a week for the Wildcats. Heck, what a season for the Wildcats. Three wins last week sent the team's record to 8-0-2 overall, and one of those wins was a 2-1 triumph over St. John's Prep. This came after victories over Norwood, 3-0, and Bay State rivals Braintree, 2-1.

2. Marshfield – The Rams made it five in a row with a 1-0 win over Plymouth North to close out Week 4. This came after a 5-1 thrashing of Dennis-Yarmouth. The Rams enter the week at 6-2 with two massive Atlantic Coast League games that will really test the team – Sandwich and Nauset – two top contenders in the ACL title race.

3. Hingham – The Harbormen keep cruising, and a huge 0-0 draw against Patriot League rivals Duxbury gave them a vital point in the race for the PL title.

4. Braintree – Another strong week for the Wamps despite losing to their Bay State Carey foes, Weymouth. Then again, the Wildcats are one of the top teams in the state and currently unbeaten. Regardless, the week was not a total loss as the Wamps beat Dedham, 4-1.

5. Hanover – The Indians climb up one notch Inside the 6. A more than productive week saw the Indians outmatch their opponents (Middleboro and Whitman-Hanson) by a combined score of 10-1 to improve to 7-1-1.

6. Cohasset – With Duxbury slipping out of the top 6, and Hanover moving up a notch, this only meant one thing – a new team enters the rankings. And after yet another South Shore League victory, 1-0 over Monomoy, the Skippers remain unbeaten in the South Shore League at 6-0.

On the bubble: Duxbury, Scituate, Pembroke

Last week: 1. Weymouth, 2. Marshfield, 3. Hingham, 4. Braintree, 5. Duxbury, 6. Hanover

Girls

1. Marshfield – The statement game of the season came Friday as the Rams outwitted Plymouth North, the previous No. 1, in a battle for first place in the Atlantic Coast League. The unbeaten Rams (6-0) slid past North, 1-0, a couple days after walloping Dennis-Yarmouth, 10-1, to take over as the No. 1 team on the girls' side.

2. Duxbury – Two more wins for the Dragons vault their record to 6-1-1 and lifts the team one spot higher than a week ago. Last week, the Dragons blanked Pembroke, 4-0, before easily handling rivals Hingham, 4-1.

3. Scituate – This was the week of all weeks for Scituate girls soccer. The Sailors ended Plymouth North's winning streak, which began on day 1 of the season. They then topped North Quincy, 2-0, to improve to 8-1 and earn their highest-ever Inside the 6 ranking.

4. Carver – Another team that can't seem to stop winning is this young Crusaders squad. Carver remains idle at No. 4 this week. The team beat Monomoy, 5-0, to close out the week unbeaten and in first place (tied with Norwell) for the lead in the South Shore league.

5. Norwell – Nipping right on Carver's heels, the Clippers ran their unbeaten streak to seven after drawing, 1-1, with East Bridgewater and moved up one spot this week. This team has really come into top form as the midseason point quickly approaches.

6. Plymouth North – A five-place slide in the rankings was the result of a couple factors: first, a pair of losses (1-0 to both Scituate and Marshfield), and second, untarnished performances from the other five teams in the rankings. Getting back on track this week will certainly vault the Eagles back up the chart.

On the bubble: Hingham, Hanover, Plymouth South

Last week: 1. Plymouth North, 2. Marshfield, 3. Duxbury, 4. Carver, 5. Scituate, 6. Norwell

The Inside the 6 - Soccer Power Rankings are decided based on a number of criteria: record, strength of schedule, performance against teams in and out of their divisions, goals scored, and goals conceded. The public schools in our coverage area include: Abington, Braintree, Carver, Cohasset, Duxbury, Hanover, Hingham, Holbrook, Marshfield, Norwell, Pembroke, Plymouth North, Plymouth South, Rockland, Scituate, Silver Lake, and Weymouth. Check out your town's Wicked Local website to see the rankings and to comment on them, and feel free to email Ryan Wood at rwood@wickedlocal.com.

big Nick Punto trade, but for the most part, I look at the Sox season with a sense of sadness and hope for the future, mostly because I was just watching a sci-fi show on DVD that was cancelled seven years ago, and Kevin Sorbo's Captain Dylan Hunt of the Andromeda Ascendent, went from despair and complete destruction to saving the universe, or some universe over the course of an off-season where the writers seemed to have ended the show and then uncancelled it for a final season, while backed into a corner.

Just feels like the Sox.

It has the same feeling.

What should have been a year of redemption for a proud franchise turned into a sideshow.

The biggest moment was a trade that sent overpriced primadonna players to Lala Land for prospects.

Wow.

And now we have David Ortiz whining about getting no respect because he still doesn't have a long-term contract, and everybody waving goodbye to Bobby V.

I am so sick and tired of hearing about that respect nonsense, but we'll get back to that in a moment.

The real reason for writing this column has to do with you.

As fans and parents and readers, I always like to let you know that your input is always appreciated.

I know that high school sports have been in full gear for a while, but there is more happening, and that is where you come in.

As the sports editor of four towns, I have approximately 25 teams to cover on a weekly basis – and that's just high school varsity teams.

Beyond the high schools, there is youth football, youth soccer, fall baseball, semi-pro football, adult hockey leagues and more.

That is why every season I like to ask for your help.

Do you coach a youth football team (Sci-Coh coaches, are you listening?) How about soccer?

If you do, or your kids play, I'd like to hear about it.

The best way to do that is simple. Send me a photo or a short story about your team.

It doesn't have to be long. In fact, I prefer a tight 250-300 word roundup that tells the basics of the game or team.

Give me the score, let everyone know who had the goal or touchdown. Write about that amazing midfielder who controlled the pace, or the center who made every snap perfect.

It isn't hard.

Give me lots of names. Who played well, who tried really hard.

That's really all there is to it.

If you're sending us football, you don't have to recap every play. We don't need to know who the captains were or if they won the coin-toss. It doesn't have to be play-by-play.

Keep it simple, but be sure that at the Mariner, we love getting the kids in the paper.

Don't stop there though. With so many teams to cover, you may notice some sports in the paper more than others.

If you haven't seen your sport for a bit, or would like even more coverage, feel free to send in a few scores and notes about your favorite team or player. The same rules apply. Keep it simple. We'll do the rest.

Do you know a former local star who's playing college ball now?

Send it in. Let me know who's doing what.

As for photos, I do have a few requests. If you'd like to send a photo, please send it as a .jpg attachment.

Don't resize it. We can handle that end, but please check to make sure the resolution is at least 1mb.

Anything smaller than that is too small for print, and won't reproduce.

Take a look and make sure it is in focus and not too dark.

Please use a camera if you're sending photos.

I know it's so easy to fire off a photo on that IPhone or Droid or IPad, but usually the quality doesn't translate well to print, especially when it comes to action.

I am always happy to use items you send.

I am actually now on both sides of sending information to the paper.

While I am the sports editor in Hanover, Scituate, Hingham and Cohasset, I also have an 11-year old daughter who is currently playing flag football in Marshfield.

Katy is one of a number of girls playing in the league and she has done a great job at center.

Did I mention I'm also the coach?

Yes, I am back on the sideline with the U14 (Hall of Fame Division) Falcons.

So far, so good. We're 2-0, and have found a new star in each game, and more in practice.

Being back on the sideline reminds me how much fun this really is, even if the kids really run the show and call the plays and my job is making sure everyone plays and has fun.

Not a bad deal there.

As for that whole David Ortiz whining about contracts, I have an idea. Offer him 13 million to stay next year if you want him, and if it truly is respect and not money, let him play two years for the same 13 million.

Better yet, let him go play somewhere else and give me the millions.

I can hurt my foot and watch for the season.

Really, I'd be really good at it.

Really.

going to win that we'd have to score more than one goal. The defense has been playing so well that they took a few early chances they won't be taking again. The two goals came on unbelievable shots. After that we tightened up. We had some chances in the second half. We just didn't finish."

Buckley scored Cohasset's goal out of the back.

"Joe played well," Willis said. "He's had some work to do to keep it going . He's done a great job anchoring the defense."

LIFE AT CHS

Last chance for senior SATs

WHITNEY MALONE

For those of you juniors and sophomores (and maybe even freshmen) also taking the SATs tomorrow, good for you for getting ahead of the game!

Hi Cohasset! Since today was a Professional day for all teachers, students are enjoying the day off from school. But even though we don't have classes, sports still continue! Girl's Field Hockey is playing West Bridgewater at home this afternoon, while the Football team will play at Carver tonight.

Tomorrow morning is the last chance for seniors to take SATs before most early action and early decision college applications are due in November. Remember that you can send your scores free of charge to up to four colleges within ten days of taking the test! For those of you juniors and sophomores (and maybe even freshmen) also taking the SATs tomorrow, good for you for getting ahead of the game!

Last Friday, recall auditions were posted for the school musical, showing in late November, and those casted began night rehearsals this week. While cast roles have been filled, it's not too late to be involved! If you're interested, see Mrs. Moriarty or Mr. Mahoney in the music department.

Just a reminder for all Peer Leaders that there is a workshop next Wednesday after school in Ms. Gordon's room (cookies will be provided as usual!).

Everyone is getting psyched for Spirit Week and Homecoming, coming up in the next couple of weeks. In the meantime, enjoy the Columbus Holiday Weekend!

Whitney Malone is a senior at Cohasset High; her column appears weekly during the school year.

GIMME SHELTER

Winter is coming and Bridget has a warm spirit that will fill your heart and home. COURTESY

Bridget is a real beauty

PAULA J. FATERSIK

Pretty, pretty, pretty! This young, vivacious kitten is six months old and honestly, Bridget is the sweetest little girl. Not just a pretty face, she has such a wonderful way of wiggling her way right into your heart instantly! It is easy to see why. Sit with her and get lost in her warm and beautiful eyes. They are so enchanting. Her soft, tiger and white multi-color fur makes her a special beauty. We love her welcoming, "here I am" look when entering the room she shares with other adoptable kittens and cats.

Bridget arrived in the shelter about two weeks ago, and wow, she has a lot of admirers here. Rescuers saved this kitten and bringing her to Hull Seaside was a lucky day for her, and for us. What fun it is to receive her attention and love. She certainly has a lot to give! Gentle and feminine, friendly and loving, that's Bridget.

This adorable feline wants to get close and she seeks you out. Bridget enjoys petting and is very likely to nuzzle with you very quickly. What a wonderful companion she will be to one lucky, cat loving family. Once Bridget settles into a new home, she will have the chance to play and run, sit in sunny windows and curl up with her new owners sharing her appreciative purrs. This is our wish for her.

If you have been thinking about inviting a new member into your family, Bridget may be the perfect kitten for you! Winter is coming and this little girl has a warm spirit that will fill your heart and home.

The entire team at HSAR thanks all of the wonderful adoptive families who continue to open their homes to wonderful kittens like Bridget, and the adult and senior cats who have waited patiently for forever homes. You are there for them all, and it is a generous and loving act to take care of these deserving animals.

Please come for a visit with Bridget at Hull Seaside Animal Rescue, located at 50 L St. Open Hours are Monday evening from 6:30-7:30 and Saturday from 2-3 p.m. Our office number is 781-925-3121. You may also contact Judy, Adoption Coordinator, at 781-534-4902 for an appointment. To see more of our wonderful kittens and cats who are waiting for loving homes please visit www.HSAR.org and click on Available Pets.

Just a friendly reminder to our supporters; our holiday fundraiser is underway with the 2013 Kittendale's calendar ready for order! If you are looking for a great, fun gift for family and friends, and would like to help our kittens and cats, visit www.kittendales.com to order online, or contact the shelter to pick them up there during Open Hours. We are a non-profit no kill shelter and every dollar goes toward the expenses to keep HSAR operating. Veterinary care, food, bedding, rent, and utilities are paid with the help of so many wonderful people who donate and participate in our events and fundraisers.

As always, a big thank you to all who continue to take the time to drop off bottles and cans, help with projects on behalf of the shelter, check our wish list and donate needed items, and of course to our dedicated volunteers who work tirelessly each day to keep our wonderful residents safe and secure.

We can't do it without you and all that you share with us is appreciated more than ever as we try to provide the best care possible to the animals in our care.

Horoscope

SALOME'S STARS FOR RELEASE WEEK OF OCT. 15, 2012

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You might feel compelled to get involved on the "right side" of a seemingly unfair fight. But appearances can be deceptive. Get the facts before going forth into the fray.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Bullying others into agreeing with your position could cause resentment. Instead, persuade them to join you by making your case on a logical point-by-point basis.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Resist pushing for a workplace decision you might feel is long overdue. Your impatience could backfire. Meanwhile, focus on that still-unsettled personal situation.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Your aspects favor doing something different. You might decide to redecorate your home, or take a trip somewhere you've never been, or even change your hairstyle.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You might want to take a break from your busy schedule to restore your energy levels. Use this less-hectic time to also reassess your plans and make needed changes.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) What you like to think of as determination might be seen by others as nothing more than stubbornness. Try to be more flexible if you hope to get things resolved.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Watch that you don't unwittingly reveal work-related information to the wrong person. Best to say nothing until you get official clearance to open up.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) With things settling down at work or at home, you can now take on a new challenge without fear of distraction. Be open to helpful suggestions from colleagues.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Your creativity can help resolve an emotional situation that might otherwise get out of hand. Continue to be your usual caring, sensitive self.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) You could impress a lot of influential people with the way you untangle a few knotty problems. Meanwhile, a colleague is set to share some welcome news.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Aspects favor recharging your social life and meeting new people. It's also a good time to renew friendships that might be stagnating due to neglect on both sides.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Congratulations. Your talent for working out a highly technical problem earns you well-deserved praise. The weekend could bring news about a friend or relative.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Friends of Holly Hill Farm

Group gathers for annual picnic

The Friends of Holly Hill Farm gathered for its 11th annual members' picnic on Sunday, Sept. 23rd at Holly Hill Farm. The warm, sunny autumn weather greeted more than 100 people who came to celebrate the education and community service programs, workshops and school partnerships that are supported in large part by its more than 500 members.

The educational organization, which has served the South Shore community and greater Boston for 10 years, was delighted to treat its members to music from their barn band Ragweed and delicious salads from Fresh Feast in Cohasset Village and Circe's Grotto in North Scituate. There were baguettes and freshly baked breads from My Little Bakery in Duxbury to accompany locally made salads and vanilla ice cream from Nona's of Hingham and Scituate for a la mode to homemade pear and apple crisps and tarts. Muffins from the Coffee Corner in Hingham Harbor were also featured. Some of the main dish offerings included mud oven flatbreads and Brown Boar Farm sausages from Vermont.

In addition to lunch and music, members enjoyed a guided walk to the Ice Pond while farm manager Fred Beddall gave hayrides around the farm in the tractor.

Holly Hill Farm and Friends director Cindy Prentice welcomed the guests and Chairman of the Board Ben Lacy remarked on the dedication and annual support of the members and looked for continued involvement in the years to come with this valuable, local resource. In the coming weeks and months, he encouraged members, friends and family to walk the trails and explore the more than 140 acres of Holly Hill Farm.

For more information about joining the Friends of Holly Hill Farm and to learn more about programs, visit the website, www.hollyhillfarm.org or call the office at (781) 383-6565.

The farm is located at 236 Jerusalem Road and is open to the public from sunrise to sunset.

Emma Needles, 17, is painting the face of 7-year-old Anna Deininger of Cohasset. Emma is Jean White's granddaughter.

Farm educator Sally Rossi-Ormon is at the oven cooking up delicious flatbreads for the picnic.

Ben Lacy, long-time Cohasset resident and Chairman of the Friends of Holly Hill Farm Board, chats with farm owner and resident Jean White.

Capturing the common

It took three years for the precise moment to arrive when David Alexander felt he had finally found the right time, season and lighting to capture the perfect image of Cohasset Common. STAFF PHOTO/ROBIN CHAN

Local painter unveils new work

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

The warm, golden rays of an early spring sunrise peek through the trees, newly bursting with green buds once again, are resplendent in the reflection of the pond, right in the middle of a quintessential New England town common.

It's just another morning in Cohasset, but a resident artist managed to capture the every day occurrence and turn it into something breathtaking.

This past spring, David Alexander took it upon himself to turn the Cohasset common into an oil painting that can only be described as iconic. Full of light, life and energy, on canvas or in digital form, "Cohasset Common" is as bright and realistic as a photograph.

Up close, one can see the little ridges and textures that prove this is, in fact, a painting and lend the work a three-dimensional quality. It's an image any Cohasseter, wherever he or she might end up, would want hanging as a centerpiece in their house, serving as a snapshot of daily life in the village and a reminder that one is never too far from home.

Alexander specializes in creating these types of pieces, taking images straight out of every day coastal life – boats bobbing in the harbor with cotton clouds above; waves from a summer squall splashing

559 Jerusalem Road controversy

Hearing continues as Ford withdraws application

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

A building project application for 559 Jerusalem Road was withdrawn by the applicant last week, but the Conservation Commission's public hearing on the issue will continue.

Con Com chair Jack Creighton explained in a phone call that the commission will go forward with the hearing since it is already open and issues need to be discussed publicly.

The applicant is Ted Ford, a California resident, but his brother, Chris, a Cohasset resident, has attended the Con Com hearings on his brother's behalf. The Fords were seeking a stormwater permit application to build a residential home on the site, which abuts Straits Pond.

After five hearings between January and May this year, the Con Com voted to deny the permit because they felt it lacked sufficient information on the environmental impact the project would have on Straits Pond. The board's decision was appealed to the Norfolk Superior Court and the Department of Environmental Protection (DEP). The applicants then served the commissioners with court summons, questioning whether or not the board's vote was proper, as not all of the members who voted

SOLAR

RFP process studied

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

Cohasset's Alternative Energy Committee is in the process of bringing solar panels to town, preparing to publish a Request for Proposals (RFP). May's Annual Town Meeting approved two articles that allow the lease of the Middle-High school roof and the town-owned landfill at 81-91 Cedar Street for the development of solar arrays.

As the committee listens to advice from special counsel and energy experts, they are solidifying the RFP process and deciding on what type of procurement process to use.

"The procurement process in Massachusetts is quite complex; there are different ways you can do the same thing."
Tanya Bodell, Alternative Energy Committee

AEC co-chair Tanya Bodell reported to the School Committee (SC) last week; two members of the SC, chair Jeanne Astino and Linda Snowdale, along with School Business Manager Dave DeGennaro, comprise a subcommittee that attends AEC meetings. Bodell told the committee that the AEC would hear a presentation from the state Department of Energy Resources (DOER) on the Mass. General Laws (M.G.L.), chapter 25A procurement process.

However, the AEC planned to use the M.G.L. chapter 30B procurement process for the town landfill, especially since that is the process outlined in the article Town Meeting already voted to approve. Bodell explained to the SC that the reasons to go with 25A would have to be compelling, and it could require the AEC to go back to Town Meeting with a new article.

DID YOU KNOW?

Fake drug tests have local impact

What
Former state lab chemist, Annie Dookhan, tested more than 60,000 drug samples involving 34,000 defendants during her nine years at the Hinton State Laboratory in Jamaica Plain, according to published reports. The scandal has thrown thousands of drug convictions into question.

Cohasset
Deputy Chief William Quigley said 25 Cohasset cases involving cocaine could be affected by the alleged mishandling. Ninety-five percent of the affected cases have been adjudicated and may have to go back to court.

Affected Cohasset cases include:
- 6 cases in 2011
- 1 case in 2010
- 6 cases in 2009
- 1 case in 2008
- 2 cases in 2007
- 9 cases in 2005

Quigley said when the cocaine was seized Cohasset detectives physically took the drug to the state laboratory in Jamaica Plain where the chemist (in these cases, Dookhan) signed for it.

Charges
According to a criminal complaint Dookhan told investigators she intentionally turned a negative sample into a positive sample in some cases. She is currently charged with two counts of obstruction of justice and one count of falsely pretending to hold a degree from a college or university. She could face further charges.

OCT. 15 DEADLINE

Cultural Council seeks funding proposals

Cohasset Cultural Council is part of a network of 329 Local Cultural Councils serving all 351 cities and towns in the Commonwealth.

Cohasset Cultural Council has set an Oct. 15 postmark deadline for organizations, schools and individuals to apply for grants that support cultural activities in the community.

According to council spokesperson Sarah Wood Torrey, these grants can support a variety of artistic projects and activities in Cohasset – including exhibits, festivals, field trips, short-term artist residencies or performances in schools, workshops and lectures.

Cohasset Cultural Council is part of a network of 329 Local Cultural Councils serving all 351 cities and towns in the Commonwealth. The LCC Program is the largest grassroots cultural funding network in the nation, supporting thousands of community-based projects in the arts, sciences and humanities every year. The state Legislature provides an annual appropriation to the Massachusetts Cultural Council, a state agency, which then allocates funds to each community.

This year, Cohasset Cultural Council will distribute about $3,870 in grants. Previously funded projects included South Shore Art Center's annual Festival on the Common, Cohasset Recreation Department's summer concert series and Cohasset Dramatic Club's musical theater productions.

For specific guidelines and complete information on the Cohasset Cultural Council, call Sarah Wood Torrey at 781-383-3493 or email CohassetCulture@gmail.com. Application forms and more information about the Local Cultural Council Program are available online at www.mass-culture.org/Cohasset. Application forms are also available at the Cohasset Town Hall and Paul Pratt Memorial Library. People can also follow Cohasset Cultural Council on Facebook at www.facebook.com/CohassetCulturalCouncil or on Twitter at @CohassetCulture.

Home alone, 9-year-old calls police

By Mary Ford
mford@wickedlocal.com

A 9-year-old boy, who was home alone and lives in the Avalon complex, called 9-1-1 around 4:30 p.m. last Wednesday (Oct. 3) after hearing some noises and becoming nervous. Upon arrival, police were met by the boy, who explained his mother and sister had gone to the Deer Hill School on an errand and were not back yet. His father was also not at home. Police brought the boy to the station where he hung out until the parents were located and arrived to pick him up. He was neat, clean and well cared for. However, as a matter of policy, police notified the state Department of Children and Families that will be following up.

Domestic

Twice last week police responded to a home on Jerusalem Road on reports of a domestic disturbance. On the first call, there was no physical contact between the husband and wife, who was advised she could obtain a restraining order against her husband. The following day, police responded to a 9-1-1 call at the same address about a domestic in progress. This time the husband had allegedly struck his wife in the face before taking off. Police put out a BOLO (Be on the lookout) for the Cohasset man, who later turned himself in to police. He was charged with domestic assault and battery. The woman who suffered a laceration to her head was treated at the scene, police said.

No trespass

The owner of a local business reported to police last week that a man had been harassing one of the employees, an 18-year-old teen. The Cohasset man, 62, had been coming into the business and giving the boy unwanted attention, asking him personal questions and putting his hand on his shoulder, police said. Police said the man was conducting himself in a way that made the teen feel uncomfortable. The business owner, who had witnessed the interaction, sought a no trespass order against the man who told police he would abide by it.

Picked up stuff

A Hull Street resident who had placed items outside his house reported to police last Monday (Oct. 1) that a motorist in a Mercury Grand Marquis stopped and took some of the items, valued at about $10. Police were able to determine that the car was registered to a Norwell man. However, the Hull Street resident did not want to push the issue. It was not clear that the items were for sale and the motorist may have thought they were there for the taking, police said.

Stop sign

At 2:41 p.m. on Monday (Oct. 1), police responded to an accident at Forest Avenue and Jerusalem Road. Police said a 2000 Volvo sedan, operated by an 18-year-old Hull man, was headed down Forest Avenue toward the water when it was struck by a 2004 Toyota four-door sedan, operated by a 54-year-old Hanover woman who was traveling on Jerusalem Road. Police said the Hanover woman thought there was a stop sign on Forest Avenue for the Volvo and did not yield. She was cited for failure to yield to an oncoming vehicle. The Volvo was towed and there were no reported injuries, police said.

Stop sign

At 1:37 p.m. on Tuesday (Oct. 2), there was a two-car accident at S. Main and Spring streets. Police said a 2004 Ford pickup truck, operated by a 66-year-old Scituate man, was traveling south on South Main (toward Scituate) when it entered the intersection and collided with a 2001 Volvo sedan, operated by a 21-year-old Cohasset man, who came out of Spring Street, and failed to yield. The Volvo was towed and the 21-year-old was cited for failure to yield, police said. There were no reported injuries.

Parking lot

At about 2:12 p.m. on Friday (Oct. 5), the fire department ladder truck scraped a parked 2011 Ford Focus, owned by a 42-year-old Weymouth woman, behind the police-fire station. Damage was minor, estimated as less than $1,000, police said.

'Rear-ended'

At 12:31 p.m. on Saturday (Oct. 6), police responded to a rear-end collision on Chief Justice Cushing Highway (Route 3A) by Pond Street. Police said a 1996 Dodge sedan, operated by a 65-year-old Hull man, was slowing down in traffic when it was "rear-ended" by a 2003 Pontiac coupe, operated by a 21-year-old Rockland man. The Pontiac, which had major front-end damage was towed. There were no reported injuries. The Rockland man was cited for following too closely.

Laptop stolen

A 58-year-old Cohasset man reported to police on Tuesday (Oct. 2) that his Lexus 300SL have been broken into while parked in his driveway on Stockbridge Street. The car was unlocked, police said. An Apple MacBook Pro laptop was taken. Police said earlier an uninvolved party found the smashed laptop on Elm Street and turned it into police. Police returned the laptop to the Stockbridge Road man.

Rape reported

A Cohasset woman went to police last Tuesday (Oct. 2) to report she had been raped several months ago by an acquaintance. Detectives are following up and police are not releasing any further information at this time.

Speeding

Police are conducting extra patrols in the Old Pasture Road area after receiving complaints from a Reservoir Road resident about a teenage boy in a small pickup truck speeding through the neighborhood around the end of the school day. The caller thinks the boy may have just obtained his license.

Raccoon

A Cohasset police officer had to put a sick raccoon down in a yard off Sohier Street last Wednesday around 6:15 p.m. The homeowner called to report the animal appeared sick. The officer reported the animal was suffering and disposed of it.

Domestic

A 49-year-old Cohasset man, who is in the middle of a divorce, called 9-1-1 at 7:11 p.m. on Thursday (Oct. 4) after he said his wife tried to run him down while swapping their daughter. He said his wife missed him but hit the flashlight he was holding. Officers went to the scene and put out a BOLO to area towns for the Mercedes she was driving. Scituate police stopped the vehicle on Route 123 but the woman gave police a different story.

Details of the incident could not be corroborated, police said. The couple was advised that they could seek recourse through the court and advised that when they make a swap with their daughter that they do so in a public place like the police station.

Doorbell

A caller reported a group of kids were ringing doorbells along Elm Street and then running away last Thursday (Oct. 4) around 9:16 p.m. An officer spoke to the kids and their parents on Elm Court.

Fraud

A 72-year-old Cohasset woman reported to police that her credit card was being used illegally on the internet with charges to Hollister and American Eagle, totaling about $1200. These were not her charges and she wanted the information documented and has notified her bank, police said.

Domestic

A 27-year-old Cohasset woman who was out of town called police about her estranged husband taking items from their apartment last Sunday (Oct. 7). Police arrived and found a 30-year-old Hingham man, who had a copy of the lease that was in his name, collecting some items. Peace was restored and it was agreed that nothing would be taken until the wife returned.

Syringes

An employee at Shaw's Plaza found four syringes in the parking lot on Sunday (Oct. 7) and called police. Police said the syringes were the type that could be used by diabetes patients. They were taken to the fire department for disposal.

COHASSET BUILDING PERMITS

The following building permits, which were issued last month at Town Hall, did not make it on last week's published list due to space limitations:

Burns, 16 Riverview Drive, finish basement - Owens Corning System, $340; Lipsett, 85 Elm St., two frame tents, Sept. 18-Oct. 1, $35; Bernier, 73 Lantern Lane, 14 windows, repair trim, sidewall as needed, $40; Buckley, 24 Old Coach Road, nine replacement windows - no structural, $130;

KYE

KYE is a funny, goofy young dog that we believe is a black lab-Great Dane mix. He is a smart boy and even knows some basic obedience commands.

Kye is an oversized puppy at heart so his attention span will need time to catch up. We believe he was not introduced to many things by his previous owner so he can be fearful of new things at first.

He adapts quickly but could use a patient owner willing to help him feel safe and learn new things are fun.

Kye is 9 months old and we believe he would be a good match for an adult home or a family with children 12 years or older (as he is going to be a larger dog and we do not know if he has any experience with young children).

A fenced yard would be great but is not required. Call (781) 544-4533 for more information or stop by the Scituate Animal Shelter during open hours to meet Kye.

The AEC heard from Mark Dakers, Eileen McHugh and Seth Pickering of the DOER during their Thursday, Oct. 11 meeting, and member Steve Wenner said that the presentation was compelling. Wenner said that the committee could take a step back to reevaluate things, but would likely seek advice from their special counsel, Mark Kalpin of the firm Wilmer Hale, before making any decisions.

In addition to learning more about 25A, which McHugh specializes in, the committee also listened to Dakers explain the post closure use permitting process for landfills. They also learned about other potential energy efficiency opportunities from Pickering, who is the DOER's Green Community Coordinator for the southeast region.

While the 30B process is typically the standard for a landfill project, there are reasons for the AEC to consider 25A. The procurement process is under the DOER's purview while 30B lies under the purview of the Inspector General. McHugh explained to the committee that 25A has been codified for renewable energy, while 30B could also require a chapter 149 filing.

The bottom line, said Bodell, is that "the procurement process in Massachusetts is quite complex; there are different ways you can do the same thing."

Using 25A in a single RFP for both the town landfill and school roof could simplify the process as well. Bodell explained that some towns have run into issues when using 30B for a public building's roof and have to also file under M.G.L. chapter 149 for Labor and Industries.

The DOER has adapted the 25A process to make easier to install solar panels on a school roof without requiring 149. There is also the possibility of getting grant money from the DOER.

Under 25A, the AEC could select one bidder to develop solar panels on multiple sites in town, "a one stop shop," said Bodell. However, the committee "may or may not want to do that; there may be developers who specialize in landfills which have specific needs, the membrane and post closure permitting process to have the alternative use. There are different requirements than for a school roof, especially one that requires construction."

The AEC voted Thursday to send Bodell and fellow co-chair John Herth to discuss the matter with Halpin and Acting Town Manager Michael Milanoski. They would review the Town Meeting articles and their implications, and look at the pros and cons of the 25A procurement process. If necessary, Bodell said the committee could draft a new article for the Dec. 10 Special Town Meeting and present it to the Board of Selectmen next Tuesday.

In general, the AEC is "looking into all of the options that maximize our probability of success and the potential cost savings to the town," said Bodell.

"Given the presentations and discussions we've had over the past month, members of the Alternative Energy Committee now know more about municipal procurement laws than we would have thought possible. We are now deciding how to apply the different procurement processes to maximize the probability of success to minimize energy costs to the town."

ABCs of the solar project

AEC = Alternative Energy Committee
DOER = Department of Energy Resources
M.G.L. = Mass. General Laws
RFP = Request for Proposals
RFQ = Request for Qualifications
SC = School Committee

Procurement process: MGL chapter 30B vs. 25A

30B

- Target: Procurement of a supply, service or dispositions of real property via easements or leases by a "governmental body." Exempts "energy contracts" for "energy or energy related services" [MGL c.30B, section 1 (b)(33)]
- Requirements: Exempt contracts must file a copy of the vendor contract/disclose process used with DOER and with Inspector General. Transaction records must be maintained by governmental body in accordance with MGL c.30B, section 3 (6 years)
- Process: Competitive RFP process for land lease; transaction filings for exempt PPA
- Postings: Advertise the process 1) in local newspaper at least once per week for two consecutive weeks before proposal opening date; the second ad must appear at least eight days before the opening of proposals; 2) in the Central Register at least 30 days before proposal opening date if property exceeds 2,500 square feet; 3) Make solicitation documents available

25A

- Target: Procurement of a program of services that includes energy audits; energy conservation measures, and energy conservation projects – defined by DOER to include on-site electrical generation equipment using new renewable generating resources
- Requirements: 1) DCAM Certification and Update Statement; 2) 100 percent Payment and Performance Bond; 3) Prevailing Wage; 4) Guarantee Onsite Generation; 5) Competitive Pricing; 6) Maximum 20 Year Term; 7) DOER Filing/Reporting Requirements
- Process: 1) Request for Proposals (RFP); 2) Request for Qualifications (RFQ) plus subsequent discovery
- Postings: 1) File with DOER at least one week before intended publish date; 2) Publish in the Central Register; 3) Make solicitation documents available; 4) Evaluate proposals, select contractor, negotiate contract; 5) File executed contract with DOER; 6) File annual performance report with DOER

Local trainer hopes Fit Girl App is an Appsolute success

By Linda Fechter
Special to the Mariner

Doug Bennett has been a personal trainer for more than 23 years. He owns the Body Studio — a fitness studio near Cohasset Harbor. For more than a decade Bennett has helped hundreds of women and men lose anywhere from 5 to 100 pounds plus. As a former division 1A wrestler for Clemson University with degrees in biology and nutrition, Bennett now hopes to bring his brand of fitness to the world, specifically women, via an iTune "app" called "Fit Girl."

Fit Girl was launched two months ago. Now a mainstream word, "app" is computer software that helps the consumer perform a specific task, in this case, a workout geared specifically towards women that can be downloaded and viewed on an Iphone or Ipad. Not everyone can afford or has access to a personal trainer and even those that do can not always find the time to work out at a gym, however, according to Bennett, this app, if done regularly can dramatically change ones fitness level and physique.

"I want to reach a larger audience, beyond the South Shore..beyond New England," explains Bennett. "I want to give women everywhere the tools they need to work out at home, or on vacation or a business trip, at a very small price."

Fit Girl has been a year in the making. Bennett first did a beta study — a test for a computer product prior to commercial release. Beta testing is the last stage of product testing, and normally can involve sending the product to beta test sites outside the company for real-world exposure or offering the product for a free trial download over the Internet.

Bennett asked 60 women to try Fit Girl and followed them every step of the way offering daily advice and encouragement via email (and phone). This on-line group provided him with encouraging feedback, which encouraged him about the potential success of the program. Bennett is very excited about the fact that the test group lost an average of 18 pounds over three months using Fit Girl's simple Body Thin Diet and exercise regimen both developed by Bennett, whose experience also includes being an assistant athletic trainer for Umass Amherst.

"I want to give women everywhere the tools they need to work out at home, or on vacation or a business trip, at a very small price."
Doug Bennett,
The Body Studio

As for what it takes to create an app for iTunes...it is not for the faint of heart. According to Bennett the process was extremely challenging and very costly, well into the tens of thousand of dollars. In an effort to keep costs down he even wrote some of the computer code himself, having studied internet marketing for the last five years. In addition to Bennett's own time there were several costs associated with producing this program such as the cost of hiring a video production company; creating and writing the computer code; and the fee for the personal trainers who are featured in the app — demonstrating the proper and safe way to do each of the exercises.

"I wanted to give women workouts that could help them transform their shape, whether they have to lose 25 pounds or 125," says Bennett. "The exercises focus on body concerns that affect the majority of women."

Bennett hopes that this app, which costs $1.99, will find its niche as an affordable and transportable training option. He stresses that old adage, for less than the price of a cup of coffee a woman can have all the benefits of a personal trainer or gym membership, as long as they put in the effort that's required.

If getting outside the local market was his goal, Bennett has already achieved success. Most of his downloads are coming from Australia where he has focused the majority of his marketing energy via the internet. Fit Girl first debuted over the summer on the website greatapps.com. It has reached # 4 in the list of the top iPad apps for health and fitness and has stayed in the top 100 since it launched. With more than 6,000 apps that promise health and wellness, the market is extremely competitive, however, Bennett is hopeful about the future success of this app. and has already begun working on another app and a Kindle book.

"I studied all the fitness apps out there and found there is a lack of programs with a workout sequence like this," says Bennett. "Many apps have celebrity names on them but there were not many that impressed me. I designed Fit Girl to truly be a blueprint for a woman's body, with laser focus on their biggest concerns. I believe it works."

over a lighthouse – and infusing them with a deeply nostalgic touch. It's obvious from a glimpse of his work that this is a man who loves his town, and loves presenting his vision of home to the rest of the world.

He is also someone who just really loves to paint. With a studio/office space in the upstairs of his Forest Notch home, the painter can work both on his business – Alexander is a clean energy broker, former boat builder and aspiring author – and on his art. In a hectic world with a troubled economy and other woes, Alexander, who lives in town with his wife, Cindy, and their daughter Kristin, 17 (the couple also has a son, Justin, 23), has managed to strike a work-life balance.

"I realized that you can do what you know how to do and do it well, but truly you are never fulfilled unless you can find a way to do what you love," said Alexander.

The local artist wasn't always a painter; over the years, Alexander has worked as a professional photographer, a boat builder and an art gallery owner. He is also an energy broker and wine expert; he spent 20 years conducting tastings and said that he will still do so if contacted.

Alexander studied at the Massachusetts College of Art under a who's who list of teachers, including Gus Kayafus and Lee Friedlander, among others. He also had conversations with famed photographer Anselm Adams, a family friend.

After years of dabbling in business, Alexander said that he realized it was time to follow his passions. "I made the decision to return to that which I loved: the creation of things beautiful," he said.

As an artist and Cohasset resident, Alexander said he was drawn to painting the common, saying that he wanted to capture "the whole of the common... embracing the space as we all truly see it and love it."

The painting has been a long time coming; Alexander said that, for years, folks asked him, "'Dave, when are you going to paint the common? You've got to paint the common!'" he said with a laugh. "Though I agreed, I can't just paint the common."

The print version of "Cohasset Common" is available in various sizes for those who wish to display a piece of history and home in their houses, or gift the image to loved ones who have moved away.

All of the proper elements had to be aligned in order for Alexander to pick up his paintbrush.

"I wanted this clear blue sky," he explained. "I wanted the clarity to articulate the structures within the trees themselves and not distract them — clouds would find themselves a distraction."

Although he had the idea to embark on this creative pursuit for a while, it took three years for the precise moment to arrive when Alexander felt he had finally found the right time, season and lighting to capture the perfect image.

The right moment came on an early morning this past spring. "I awoke realizing that day had arrived. I raced down to the common feeling satisfied that, finally, I had the view," Alexander recalled. "I whipped out my pencil and started to draw, crudely, at first, on sheets of computer paper I hastily grabbed as I flew out of the house."

Alexander made some rough initial sketches and took photographs "for accuracy and avoiding interpretations other than that which was really there."

While photos help create a realistic image, and Alexander has a professional photography background, the painter said that, in the end, "artistic license is necessary — no photograph can accomplish that which a painting can. In a painting, one looks to the view before and then accentuates and brings out the very soul of the space."

The sky is a bright shade of cerulean in the painting, the precise color Alexander saw on that spring morning. However, some features are a bit exaggerated in the piece, making it look like a snapshot of Cohasset from an earlier point in time.

"As you can see, some particulars seen on the common have been omitted as distraction, and other aspects are enhanced a bit for drama. Particularly, the raking, golden light of early morning bathing the tops of the trees as it falls away to the ground," Alexander explained.

The near-complete painting sits proudly on an easel in Alexander's study. It might look like it's a finished work of art, but the painter admitted that he is still working on it.

"People always ask me, when will it be finished? As Michaelangelo replied, 'When it is finished,'" Alexander said. In other words, "The paintings are never done. I'll be working on it until the day it's sold."

Yes, the original "Cohasset Common" is up for sale. It is also sold in print form, thanks to Bill Wetzel at Image Resolutions in Hanover, who is also on the board of directors for the South Shore Art Center. Alexander said that he relies on Wetzel to reproduce print replicas of his paintings that are indistinguishable from the original work, using a method called the gicleé process.

Alexander called Wetzel "the local master at reproducing these highly accurate reproductions identical to the original artwork," adding that "everybody who's anybody uses Bill Wetzel."

The print version of "Cohasset Common" is available in various sizes for those who wish to display a piece of history and home in their houses, or gift the image to loved ones who have moved away.

"I believe the painting of the common is an important work as so many are found to leave our beautiful town for another destination in their lives," Alexander said. "This way, they can recall the beauty of the place they loved."

Prints of the common and other images relating to Cohasset by David Alexander are available from Frank at Fleming's in the Cohasset village; or check out www.davidalexanderartist.com, email Alexander at minotlight@verizon.net, or call 781-383-0412.

COHASSET CABARET 2012

'Razzle Dazzle & More!!!'

Save the date: November 2 & 3 at St. Anthony's Parish Hall.

You enjoyed them last year and once again we will present the fabulous Broadway Kidz. This is a group of young people ages 10 - 14 that enjoy theater music and have been rehearsing non-stop to perform some of their favorite Broadway hits. This group of 14 performers will razzle-dazzle you with their great voices and vivacious personalities. Come and see them perform two Showstopping numbers. Both numbers will feature the singing and dancing talents of the group. Members of Broadway Kidz come from South Shore towns.

Back again directing this year's cabaret is Douglas Trudeau. Doug is known to South Shore audiences as the founder and director of the Scituate based Showstoppers organization. Razzle Dazzle & More!!! will feature the Cohasset talents of Lilly Sestito and her brother Tony Carbone along with Barbara Baumgarten and Mike Nakashima. Tony will sing with his quartet "Super 8."

"Razzle Dazzle & More!!!" will be an up tempo musical revue that will provide a nice variety of numbers from Broadway and movie musicals. The show will be comprised of solo and group numbers, comedy, and of course toe tapping dancing.

You can try your luck at the raffle and silent auction table, which will have some great items from local artists and merchants. Audience members are encouraged to bring their own snacks "Cabaret Style". There will be a cash bar serving wine, beer and soft drinks. Cohasset Cabaret is sponsored by The Friends of Cohasset Elder Affairs and will benefit the Friends and St. Anthony's Youth Ministry.

Tickets are on sale now and the cost is $25. You can purchase tickets at St. Anthony's Parish Hall office and the CEA office at the South Shore Community Center or call 781-413-7540 for further information.

Hi there Cohasset friends…I hope you are all doing well after a rather wet and coolish week. This weekend doesn't look bad weather-wise and I know that a number of Fall events are going on all over the place, a few right around here that I know of.

The ever-popular ASP Pumpkin Patch on North Main Street is as wonderful and awesome as ever. A great place to purchase those perfect pumpkins, grab some beautiful and seasonal photos of the family with the bright colors of Fall in the background of leaves, pumpkins and hay and help support the 2013 trip to Appalachia at the same time.

Also taking place tomorrow, Saturday from noon to dusk in North Scituate is a fun-filled Fall Fest for families and friends filled with so many wonderful activities for all. Face Painting, Jack-O-Lantern luminaria, Chowder contest, live music, hay rides and so much more. What a great event for all so grab friends, family and a bit of cash and come on down, you'll be glad you did.

Special couple

Here is a great message I received this week that I wanted to share with you: "We, the Cohasset bus drivers, would like to send a big congratulations to Ms. April Martin, bus #6. April and her fiancé, John Ring, took advantage of the long Columbus Day weekend by going to Las Vegas to get married! We are all so happy for them! Congratulations." April wanted to add to this by saying, "thank you so much to all the moms, dads and kids on bus #6 for making my nuptials so very special. I am truly blessed. Thanks again from the bottom of my heart. Love, Mrs. April, Bus 6." Such great news for a great couple, all the best to you both, congratulations.

On stage

Cohasset Dramatic Club's (CDC) will present Robert Harling's comedy "Steel Magnolias" from Nov. 9 – 18 at Town Hall. Steel Magnolias is directed by Theresa Chiasson and features an ensemble cast that includes Barbara Baumgarten, Cara Lee Chamberlain, Jessica Corey, Sara Daly, Lisa Pratt and Anne Thornton. The show is produced by Mark Bono and stage managed by Bill Stiles. Performances are Nov. 9, 10, 16, 17 at 7:30 p.m. and Sundays, Nov. 11 and 18 at 2 p.m. General Admission tickets are $20; group rates available upon request.

Tickets can be purchased online at www.brownpapertickets.com/event/279850, at Paperscapes, Cohasset Village, Buttonwood Books or via reservation at 617-922-0280. Tickets may also be purchased the day of the show, one hour prior to curtain, at the box office. Cohasset Dramatic Club is delighted to be partnering with Cohasset's Willow Salon, Spa and Shoppe and Humarock's Robert Paul Salon to offer fantastic "Day of Beauty" raffles to lucky audience members attending either of the Friday night performances. For more information go to www.cohassetdramaticclub.org or call 617-922-0280.

Women's issues

South Shore Art Center will present a panel discussion on women's issues Thursday, Oct. 18 at 6:30 pm. Held in the Bancroft Gallery amidst the Women 360 exhibition, the panelists include Moderator; Jeannette Travaline, South Coastal Bank; Andrea Rosenthal, artist, Women 360 curator; Rita Welch, pioneer senior care industry; and Patti Quigley, Executive Director, Razia's Ray of Hope. The exhibition and panel program are sponsored by South Shore Women's Health. There is no charge for the event but reservations are requested. Please call 781-383-2787 or email info@ssac.org.

Health news

On Saturday, October 20th, Balance Studio is hosting a live musical event and Yoga practice with GIRISH, a nationally known and celebrated musician. This very special 2-hour practice will be led by Stephanie Ford with musical accompaniment by GIRISH. Tickets are still available through Balance Studio by calling 339-337-3660 or going on line to: www.balancestudiocohasset.com $40 before Oct. 15 or $45 at the door.

Next, on Sunday, Oct. 21, A Gluten Free Living workshop will be held in which you can join Balance Studio's Shannon Lynch for a very informative nutritional session on Gluten intolerance. Find out the difference between Celiac disease and gluten intolerance. Could gluten be responsible for some of your symptoms: Fatigue, moods, rashes and poor digestion. Join from 2-3:15 at the Studio, 15 Depot Court. $35 admission per person or per immediate family. Call the studio to reserve your spot 339-337-3660 or go on line @ www.balancestudiocohasset.com

Friday playdate

Faithful Fun is a great, new Friday morning program being held at the St. Anthony's Parish Center for parents, grandparents and caregivers of young children. Come on down from 9:30-11 am on Fridays to this great planned playdate where you can share your faith, have great fun with both, your children as well as with the other adults who are there as well. Please email Susan Donohue at susan_m_donohue@comcast.net with any questions at all that you may have.

Legos wanted

Here is a special request that many parents out there may be able to help with while you are cleaning out your toy rooms and children's bedrooms. The Paul Pratt Memorial LIbrary's Children's Room is looking for Lego donations for a TBA "Literature & Lego" club. Donations can be dropped off in the Children's Room anytime. See Mrs. Moody for more information.

CEA events

On Monday, Oct.15 at 12 p.m. at 3 North Main St. Cohasset Elder Affairs kicks off the monthly Brown Bag Lunch and Movies series with the award winning movie, "The King's Speech." Bring your own lunch. CEA will provide drinks and popcorn. On Wednesday, Oct. 17 at 11 a.m. in conjunction with the Cohasset Historical Society, Cohasset Elder Affairs will present "Cohasset Then and Now," a PowerPoint presentation featuring vintage photos taken around our town, as well as current day images depicting how Cohasset has evolved to the present. Lunch will be served after the presentation. On Thursday, Oct. 18, Norfolk County Sheriff Bellotti and staff will sponsor a Triad cookout at Cohasset Lightkeepers. Enjoy hamburgers, hot dogs and an update from the sheriff's department on Triad and other senior safety programs. For transportation and reservations, call 781-383-9112.

Witches Ball

South Shore Art Center will hold its second "Witches' Ball" celebration on Saturday, Oct. 27 at 7:30 pm at the River Club in Scituate. The event features fabulous food, entertainment, fortune telling, and an auction of art, travel opportunities, jewelry, gifts, services and more! Donations to the auction are still being sought; call the Art Center if you are interested in contributing to the Witches' Auction. Guests are encouraged to dress creatively for the event — perhaps a favorite artist or painting, a witch or warlock, a politician or a construction worker — all are welcome! There will be prizes for best and most creative costumes. Live music by "The Gathering" band is sponsored by Panopticon Photo Imaging of Hingham.

Tickets for The Witches' Ball, at the River Club are $75 for Art Center members and $85 for non-members. Tickets must be purchased in advance. All proceeds support the exhibitions and education programs of South Shore Art Center. To purchase tickets, visit www.ssac.org or contact the Art Center at 781-383-2787.

That is the news for this week Cohasset. Send in all your news, photos and celebration info to me no later than Tuesdays by 5 pm.

Just an FYI. We receive dean's list and honors notices from many colleges and private schools, but not all. If your son or daughter has earned recognition, please share that news directly with us!

We also LOVE new baby announcements with photos if possible. Need birth date, weight, length, names of siblings, parents and grandparents. Emailed photos are fine but glossies can be dropped off at Tedeschi's in the village in our Mariner drop box.

Happy birthday Ethel Burnett!

Ethel Burnett, a longtime resident of Sunrise Senior Living of Cohasset, turned 103 years old two weeks ago. Ethel was born on Sept. 27, 1909 in Bridgeport, Conn. She earned her RN from Bellevue Hospital and worked as a pediatric charge nurse for many years.

Ethel married Newton Burnett, and they lived in New York for 45 years. Ethel has two daughters, four grandchildren and six great-grandchildren who visit her daily. When leaving the morning "Weighty Workout" exercise class at Sunrise of Cohasset, Ethel was asked about her secret for living so long. She replied with a laugh and stated, "I'm not interested in longevity but the birthdays keep coming!"

At Sunrise of Cohasset, all resident birthdays are honored with a personalized cake, balloons and recognition of each individual resident on their special day.

Photos by K.A. MacDonald

Ethel celebrates her milestone birthday with five of her seven great-grandchildren: From left, Benjamin, 4; Savana, 5; Alannah, 9; Johanna, 9; and Mitchell, 7. The other two great-grandchildren, including one who is just two weeks old, live in California.

Ethel Burnett blows out the candles on her birthday cake. She had three candles on her cake, as a staff member said Ethel had to start over at zero when she turned 100.

Ethel Burnett celebrates her 103rd birthday Sunday, September 30, 2012 at Sunrise Assisted Living in Cohasset.

OUR VIEW

CPA changes

Whether you are part of a group or organization that may seek funds, a town official or interested citizen – the meeting should be an informative one. Please save the date!

Cohasset is among 148 communities (42 percent of municipalities in Massachusetts) that have adopted the Community Preservation Act where they contribute to their own Community Preservation Fund with an annual property tax surcharge.

According to the Community Preservation Coalition — which helps municipalities understand, adopt and implement the CPA, and advocates for CPA at the state level — 14,900 acres of open space statewide have been preserved through the CPA since being passed in 2000. Those communities have also made more than 2,500 appropriations to protect historic resources, developed 5,080 units of affordable housing, and funded 730 outdoor recreation projects.

However, as more communities adopt the CPA and share in matching state funds, the amount that communities receive annually from the state has decreased.

In an effort to stabilize the declining statewide trust fund match – the state recently approved $25 million from the fiscal 2013 state budget surplus to be added to the CPA trust fund. This means the state distribution to CPA communities, like Cohasset, will be higher this fall.

In other news, recent legislation allows CPA communities to used CPA funds to rehabilitate recreational assets that were not created or purchased with CPA funds, as previously required.

This change could affect Cohasset should the Cohasset Sailing Club, for example, seek funds from the Cohasset Community Preservation Fund for its new clubhouse.

In Hingham, under the new CPA legislation, the Hingham School Committee is asking for Community Preservation Funds for the planned, new high school athletic complex.

The Cohasset Community Preservation Committee will hold an informational hearing at 7 p.m. on Monday (Oct. 22) at Town Hall to discuss the needs, possibilities and resources of the town regarding community preservation. Topics include use of the fund for acquisition, creation, preservation, rehabilitation or restoration of open space, historic resources, land for recreational use, or affordable housing.

Whether you are part of a group or organization that may seek funds, a town official or interested citizen – the meeting should be an informative one. Please save the date!

More on 559 Jerusalem Road

JACK CREIGHTON

In light of the letter from Chris Ford published in The Mariner on October 5th, 2012, I thought I might provide my fellow residents with an overview of the situation at 559 Jerusalem Road. I must stress that this is my view and is not the official position of the Cohasset Conservation Commission. The Commission may only take a position after public deliberations conducted at meetings properly advertised, in advance, and open to the public. In addition the Commission does not "try" issues in the press.

559 Jerusalem Road is a parcel left over from a part of ruins of the former Black Rock House and of portions of land owned by branches of the Ford family. It has historically been considered "unbuildable," and has been so taxed. It is within 100 feet of Straits Pond and so development requires assent of the Commission. In addition new construction on the property requires a storm water permit from the Commission.

Mr. Ford applied to the Commission for the required environmental permits to develop the vacant lot at 559 Jerusalem Road. After an extensive hearing spread over four separate nights Mr. Ford failed to convince the Commission of the merits of his position and the Commission denied his requests.

After the denial Mr. Ford and his attorney inquired whether the Commission would be agreeable to reconsider the matter to which the Commission subsequently agreed. Mr. Ford attempted to control and limit what issues would be considered but was clearly told that attempts to limit the scope of the environmental factors was improper and not acceptable to the Commission.

It is important to note that Straits Pond is a critical environmental area that has had a remarkable renewal after years of abuse. It is truly an environmental success story and a credit to Cohasset, Hull and to the Straits Pond Watershed Association. Any action of the Commission must protect Straits Pond and the Commission must also consider that their decision may also be creating precedent for future development around the pond. Mr. Ford was clearly told that many times after his request for a second chance.

The hearing reopening was approved and the required public notice given for an October 4th, 2012 Hearing. After business hours on October 3rd an email was received in which Mr. Ford sought to withdraw his request. However the Hearing, having been properly advertised and noticed, was opened as scheduled to allow the Commission to discuss in public what action to take. It is the Commission, not the applicant that determines procedures and agendas.

A number of interested citizens attended the hearing in order to render testimony including representatives of The Straits Pond Watershed Association, neighbors and an immediate neighbor Peter DeCaprio (with his attorney). Mr. Ford chose not to attend nor was he told by the Commission that the hearing would be canceled. When it became apparent that Mr. Ford would not be there I spoke with Mr. DeCaprio' s attorney to tell him, over his strong objection, I would not take testimony from the floor in the absence of Mr. Ford but would continue the hearing until October 18th to give Mr. Ford one more opportunity to present his case.

This has been a problematic application. The Commissioners have to devoted extensive time not just in the hearings but also in spending personal time reviewing and re-reviewing the testimony. I believe the Commissioners have shown remarkable diligence in responsibly addressing property owner concerns while fulfilling the Commission mandate of environmental protection. The Commission did, at the request of Chris Ford, give him another opportunity to demonstrate that his development could be done without jeopardy to environmental standards. He failed to make his case the first time and chose not to make it given a second opportunity. The Commission clearly has afforded him more than ample deference.

Let us remember that Straits Pond is a unique and precious asset. Development within the 100-foot mandated protective buffer, no matter how compelling it may be to a private interest, must not be allowed to jeopardize this environmental success story.

Although I serve as Chairman of The Cohasset Conservation Commission this letter represents my views and is not an official Commission letter. - Jack Creighton

Absentee ballots available for the state election

Absentee ballots for the State Election on Nov. 6, are available at the Town Clerk's office. Absentee voting may be done during normal office hours until noontime on Monday, Nov. 5, at which time the office will be closed to prepare for the election. If you will be in town on Election Day and you are able to come to the polls you should vote in person. You may vote absentee for the following reasons only:

1. Absence from the town during the hours the polls is open.
2. Physical disability.
3. Religious beliefs, which prevent voting at the polls on Election Day.

The applicant must request an absentee ballot. Applications are available in the Town Clerk's office or a written, signed request can be sent by mail, or hand delivered by the voter or any other person. The application should include the legal voting address of the voter, where the ballot is to be mailed, and the signature of the applicant.

A family member of a person qualified to vote by absentee ballot may apply on behalf of such voter. The applicant shall state his or her relationship to the absentee voter; sign the application under the pains and penalties of perjury and mail or hand deliver the application to the clerk's office. Absentee ballots must be mailed to the voter. Returned ballots should be mailed or can be delivered by an immediate member of the family to the Town Clerk's office by Nov. 6, 2012 to be counted.

Wednesday Oct. 17, is the last day to register to vote in the State Election scheduled for Nov. 6. The town clerk's office is on the first floor of town hall. It will be open 8:30 a.m. to 8 p.m. for voter registration. You will need to include your Massachusetts driver's license number or the last four digits of you social security number on the voter registration form.

DEADLINE IS OCT. 19

Details about community survey

If you are 18 years or older and are a Cohasset resident, you should have received a postcard inviting you to participate in a community survey. The survey will be available online for you to complete no later than Oct. 19. The information gathered from the survey will help Cohasset continue to be a wonderful place for people of all ages to live.

If you need help completing this valuable survey, come to the South Shore Community Center (Elder Affairs) — Saturday, Oct. 13, 10 a.m. to noon where UMass volunteers will offer assistance.

Public computers are available during normal work hours at the library and Cohasset Elder affairs for those who need access.

'Acting' Town Manager and the law in Cohasset

TOM GRUBER

Further since his current contract runs through June 30 of 2013, a period of about 15 months, this is hardly a temporary position. Plus, there is no active search underway for a permanent Town Manager, so the present Town Manager is by definition permanent.

What's really going on behind the scenes in Cohasset these days? There appears to be things happening in the government of our town that don't pass the litmus test very well. Let us explain. To do this we will need to backtrack a bit in time.

In Massachusetts, all powers granted to a town come only from the Commonwealth. A town has no powers other than those granted by the state. So, in 1997 when Cohasset voted to change to a Town Manager form of government at Town Meeting, the request for a Town Manager then went to the Massachusetts legislature so they could review and pass the appropriate enabling legislature. They then passed an Act in 1997, Chapter 34 - An Act Providing For A Town Manager In The Town Of Cohasset. All powers granted to Cohasset flow directly from this state law, not from any Town By-Law.

This act has two key provisions that bear mentioning. First, The last paragraph of this Act, Section 3 (I) reads:

"No person holding elective or appointive office in the town shall within one year of holding such office be eligible to be appointed to the position of town manager."

(Reference: (http://www.malegislature.gov/Laws/SessionLaws/Acts/1997/Chapter34)

The reasoning for this provision is clear. It prevents a close group of people from cycling people through their boards or committees to Town Manager and back, thus tightly controlling Town management, for prolonged periods of time with no public visibility or vetting.

Yet, at the time of his appointment the current Town Manager, was on two appointed boards/commissions (Associate Member of the Cohasset Conservation Commission and Chairman of the Cohasset Governance Committee). Some may say that the current Town Manager is only "Acting" and that the acting position may not have the same requirements as a permanent Town Manager. This is up for debate, based on interpretation of the Act of 1997.

It's true the Town Manager's contract starts out by mentioning the word "Acting", but then goes on to call the position "Town Manager" 13 times, without the "Acting" qualifier. Further since his current contract runs through June 30 of 2013, a period of about 15 months, this is hardly a temporary position. Plus, there is no active search underway for a permanent Town Manager, so the present Town Manager is by definition permanent. And, the Town Manager's letterhead and business cards refer to him as simply "Town Manager." Clearly, this would not have been done without the tacit knowledge and approval of the Board of Selectmen. So, it appears that we now have a Town Manager who is in violation of the Act of 1997 by virtue of his prior appointments.

A second provision of concern is that the Act of 1997 in Section 3 (J) states

"Said Board of Selectmen, by a majority vote may remove the Town Manager."

Yet, Article 5, paragraph 5.1 of the Town Manager's current contract is in conflict with the legislation and overreaches the law in that it requires a "super majority" vote to remove the Town Manager. (A majority would be a 3 of 5 vote, while a super majority is a 4 of 5 vote.) This is in violation of the Acts of 1997. How can the Board of Selectmen sign a contract that violates state law?

As a result, there seems to be something going on that is not legitimate, and it would be time for the taxpayers to insist that Town Counsel review these issues and that the results of that review be made public. The air just needs to be cleared.

GROWING ON THE FARM

Fun that is worth the wait

Farmers have a lot of work to do to remind people how farms matter and remember us to the importance of learning about from where our food comes and how it can be grown responsibly.

JON BELBER

At Holly Hill Farm, I can think of a few fields, where summer crops are through for the year, nothing will happen this fall and cover crop seeds are beginning to germinate. The farm is still harvesting and selling crisp beans, fresh lettuce and plenty of winter squash, among a wide variety of roots, onions and leafy greens, with more to come until the cold December days greet us. The interesting note about the Winter squash (think delicata, acorn, butternut and the currently popular pumpkin) is that these fleshy fruits, full of seeds, are great for cooking, baking and certainly carving. The farm devotes ample time and space to the growing of squash. Beginning in spring, the large, easy to hold seeds are nestled in rich soil and set to grow in their pots, until later transplant for their 100-plus days of growing. Pumpkins are a great challenge for many, as witnessed by the heroics of the Rhode Island grower who grew a one-ton pumpkin. Pumpkins though come in all sizes, shapes and purposes.

We do not have a whole patch devoted to pumpkins, where a Great Pumpkin might descend if patient. Instead, we grow a variety of these winter squash and our purpose is consistent with our mission to provide and sell certified organic produce. The pumpkins are part of the fall crop plan, established back in January, along with the best laid schemes of tomatoes, flowers and carrots. Like any crop, we hope the yield is high, the woodchuck visits are few and the soup and pie are tasty. Holly Hill is but one local choice for this thoughtfully grown and highly sought after seasonal treat.

I wish we had a pumpkin for every first grader from Scituate or each kindergartener from Norwell, when they come for a harvest field trip in the coming weeks. Rather they will probably pick marigold flowers to save seeds or select magic purple beans to taste and eat right on the spot. And Holly Hill certainly cannot compete or hold a candle with those who sell shipped-in pumpkins to raise money for a worthy cause or neighboring farms that have the ability to launch a ripe pumpkin high in the air, much to the delight of an excited crowd. Similarly, no field is devoted to a carefully designed, well-mowed corn maze. So we do not attract large crowds for these type of farm programs.

Agricultural entertainment and agri-tourism are not our schtick and thus we may lose out to kids and families that wish to have some fun on the farm. (This includes my own children, who wonder where is the fried dough and bouncy house at Holly Hill).

I like to have fun, too, and many kids who come to the farm claim to enjoy their experience, digging in the compost for worms, tasting a warm treat from our mud oven, feeding the animals who also live and work on the farm or pulling ripe beets and carrots. Farmers have a lot of work to do to remind people how farms matter and remember us to the importance of learning about from where our food comes and how it can be grown responsibly. It is a perennial often difficult task to perform. But Holly Hill Farm will continue to grow a wide variety of crops, some of which will succeed and some will fail and to work with and sometimes against, the land. But like waiting for the Great Pumpkin or sitting down to have a piece of pumpkin pie, patience and perseverance are important and making the fun well worth the wait.

AT GLASTONBURY ABBEY

US Rep. Barney Frank is keynote speaker

The Glastonbury Abbey Institute is pleased to announce the commencement of the 14th year of its lecture series, "Listening to Other Voices," with a keynote presentation by Congressman Barney Frank, on Thursday, Oct. 18th, at 7:15 p.m. in the Abbey Conference Center. The Benedictine Monks of Glastonbury Abbey offer this yearly lecture series as part of their ongoing commitment to inter-religious dialogue. For more information call: 781-749-2155

Congressman Frank's topic will be "Social Responsibility v. the Deficit: The Budget and the Common Good."

Frank is a well-known and provocative speaker. Elected to Congress in 1980, he has worked on issues involving social justice and economic redress for those most marginalized in society. He had focused on providing aid to local communities, and to building and preserving affordable rental housing for low-income people. As Chair of the Financial Services Committee, he worked first with the Bush administration to deal with the crisis of 2008, and then with the Obama administration to adopt a sweeping set of financial regulations that are aimed at preventing a recurrence of that crisis. He has been a leader in the fight against unfair discrimination of all sorts. In Massachusetts, he has been a strong advocate for the needs of the fishing industry in New Bedford, for the transportation needs of southeastern Massachusetts, and for important environmental projects. He will retire from Congress in January, 2013 after 31 years of public service.

Early arrival is strongly suggested. Seating is limited and on a first-come basis. No reservations are accepted.

FOR THE RECORD

Moving in social circles

As our Facebook audience continues to grow, we're delving into Twitter and reaching an entirely new audience.

GREGORY MATHIS

There's no denying newspaper circulation has been dropping at a steady pace over the last several years. We attribute some of that dip to the growing success we've seen with our Wicked Local websites since the newsroom took over that function about six years ago.

But we're not naïve enough to think that's the only reason for the decline. It's well documented that people are reading newspapers less, especially with so much content – free content – available through the Internet.

And truth be told, our audience growth in the web world has slowed a little since showing huge gains in the last couple of years.

So it's safe to say we're looking for new ways to connect or reconnect and grow our audience.

Social media is one of those ways. Actually social media provides many ways to connect with all kinds of audiences.

Back in February I wrote about our reinvigorated commitment to providing a better social experience through our Facebook pages.

While it's been a goal to post links that send you back to stories on Wicked Local in an effort to bump our web traffic, we understand that just having a presence on Facebook and joining the community conversation has many advantages as well.

It's been great seeing so many "Likes" and so many posts being shared by our "Fans." We also enjoy when people comment on our posts. It gives us a better idea of what our audience is thinking about certain issues. With the popularity of blogs, especially new start up blogs, seemingly on the decline, Facebook has really become the new blog. We look forward to continuing the discussion on that platform.

In addition to getting reaction from readers, Facebook has proven to be a great tool for Fans to share photos with us for our latest reader callout and provide us with great story ideas as well as contacts for those stories.

As our Facebook audience continues to grow, we're delving into Twitter and reaching an entirely new audience. Part of the goal is still to get people to Wicked Local, but Twitter has all kinds of possibilities as a reporting tool.

Twitter is a little more impersonal than Facebook with its character limit, but it helps us get information out to followers in real time, whether it's an important story or breaking news. We've also used Twitter to report from big meetings or events in town. Our sports editors have been using it to provide live coverage from games. One intrepid sports editor shot a video from a soccer game and posted it to Twitter.

Much has changed in the media business in the last six years and we can expect change to keep coming at a rapid pace. Facebook and Twitter are "in" now, with lesser social media platforms trying to rise to that level. What will be the next wave? Only time will tell, but if recent history is any indication we may not have to wait long to find out.

What do you think is the next big thing in social media? Do you use Facebook and Twitter? What do you think about our pages? Send me your thoughts.

Gregory Mathis is editor-in-chief for GateHouse Media New England's South and Cape Cod units. He can be reached at gmathis@wicked-local.com.

MARK YOUR CALENDAR

Governance to meet in evening

The Cohasset Governance Committee has scheduled a special meeting for Monday, Oct. 29th at 7 p.m. at the Cohasset Middle High School Library to review its discussions to date. Part of the charge of the committee is to review the current Town Manager Act with the goal of having the Act and the town bylaws clearly in concert eliminating any ambiguity between the two.

The committee regularly meets at 7:30 a.m. on Thursday.

Blood pressure clinic Nov. 13

Sunrise of Cohasset is hosting a Free Blood Pressure Clinic at 2:30 p.m. Tuesday Nov. 13 at 125 King St. Cohasset.

High blood pressure usually has no warning signs or symptoms; so many people don't realize they have it. Having high blood pressure puts you at risk for heart disease and stroke, leading causes of death in the United States. To reduce your chances of developing these issues, check your blood pressure frequently. For more information call 781-383-6300.

Cohasset woman sells charity bracelets

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

At Cohasset's weekly farmers market, you'll find more than just fresh local produce and tasty treats. Artisans and craftsmen also set up tables each week, and some of them are Cohasseters.

Jessica "Jessie" MacDonald has become quite the craftswoman at this summer's market, selling her hand woven bracelets each week. Customers can buy bracelets she's already made or choose their own colors right then and there, and MacDonald will make a bracelet on the spot.

But the bracelets are more than just pretty adornments — their proceeds go toward a good cause. MacDonald is making and selling them for the Magical Moon Foundation in Marshfield, a non-profit organization that supports children and families facing cancer.

For MacDonald, a Cohasset resident and athlete who has been a Hall of Fame Special Olympian since 1993, the cause is near and dear to her heart.

"I had cancer in my elbow and lungs, and they helped me get onto the right diet," MacDonald said of the foundation.

The Magical Moon Foundation was founded by artist and author Donna Green of "The Velveteen Rabbit" fame. The organization has a farm in the Marshfield Hills and hosts events and activities for children and their families. Famous friends like rocker Steven Tyler, also a Marshfield resident, and author Loretta LaRoche also support the Magic Moon Foundation.

MacDonald felt it was important to support an organization that "helps children with cancer get better," and started selling her bracelets to offer her support.

Her crafts seem to be a big hit with kids who stop by her table at the farmers market, who were lined up one late August afternoon to check out the "cool" bracelets.

Elinore Barrett, who is on the farmers' market board of directors, said that this type of generosity is typical from MacDonald.

"Jessie is so giving," Barrett said. "She will do anything for anybody... She just has a huge heart."

Barrett said that the market did not charge MacDonald to have a vendor's table, as all of her proceeds are donated to a charitable cause. And not only has MacDonald lent the Magical Moon Foundation a helping hand — she's also pitched in at the market.

"Jessie is always there to help set up tents and take them down," said Barrett.

For more information on the Magical Moon Foundation and to find out how to donate, visit www.magicalmoon.org/.

Cohasset firefighters 'Fill the Boot'

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

Cohasset's firefighters are taking part in the Fill-the-Boot drive for the Muscular Dystrophy Association (MDA) on Oct. 20 and 21, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. on both days at Stop & Shop.

The fire department participates in the charity drive, through the International Association of Fire Fighters (IAFF) each year. Last year, according to Cohasset firefighter/paramedic Rob Forde, the department raised $3,100 for the MDA.

This year, Forde is hoping they can top that amount. With $2,500 raised over the summer from drives at the South Shore Music Circus and a similar drive at Stop & Shop on Labor Day weekend, they're on their way to matching or beating last year's total. Any donation amount is appreciated.

While the IAFF has been raising funds to help families facing muscular dystrophy for decades, the issue is close to home for many Cohasseters. Forde has become quite the advocate for the cause because of one very special family in town.

"I got hooked on it," Forde said of fundraising, "especially when I met the Smith boys." The Smith brothers of Cohasset, 10-year-old Gregory and 7-year-old Daniel, have both had neuromuscular diseases since they were little and are both ambassadors for the MDA.

"It's unbelievable how far they've come," Forde said of the Smith boys, who often participate in the Fill-the-Boot drive. "They're inspiring."

The drive at Stop & Shot on Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 20 and 21, also offers kids a chance to "Touch-a-Truck." Kids can try on gear and sit behind the wheel of the engine.

This is a way to bring a little family fun to the charity drive, said Forde. "It makes me feel like I'm doing something that's special."

Fill-the-Boot facts

The International Association of Fire Fighters' (IAFF) Fill-the-Boot campaign for the Muscular Dystrophy Association (MDA) is a time-honored summer fundraising tradition. Each year, members of hundreds of IAFF locals across the country invite the public at intersections, malls and sporting events to fill a firefighter's boot with donations for MDA. And, in the spirit of service and friendly competition, firefighters vie to raise the most money for MDA.

Founded by the late fire fighter George Graney, Fill-the-Boot began in 1953 when a friend, Charlie Crowley, approached Graney in South Boston. Crowley needed money to take care of his two sons with muscular dystrophy, so Graney rounded up 20 fire fighters and started a door-to-door canister drive, raising $5,000.

Since taking up the MDA cause nationwide in 1954, firefighters have raised nearly $375 million for MDA's lifesaving research, services and information programs. In 2011, Fill-the-Boot campaigns helped fire fighters raise $27 million — the highest yearly contribution from an MDA sponsor. The IAFF is MDA's largest sponsor. – Muscular Dystrophy Association

Beacon Hill Roll Call

If you have any questions about this week's report, e-mail us at bob@beaconhillrollcall.com or call us at (617)720-1562.

Y = Yes; N = No, NV = No Vote (President rarely votes) * Not every item is voted on by both House and Senate

Representative Garrett J. Bradley (D-Hingham) (617) 722-2520 Room 479

THE HOUSE AND SENATE: There were no roll call votes in the House or Senate last week.

This week, Beacon Hill Roll Call examines the percentage of times in the 2011-2012 session that Republican representatives voted with GOP House Minority Leader Bradley Jones (R-North Reading) on key roll call votes.

Beacon Hill Roll Call uses 374 key votes from the 2011-2012 House sessions as the basis for this report. These do not include quorum calls or roll calls that were on local issues.

No Republican representative voted with Jones 100 percent of the time.

The top five list of representatives who voted with Jones the most number of times include Paul Frost (R-Auburn), 99.7 percent; Donald Humason (R-Westfield), 99.7 percent; Randy Hunt (R-Sandwich), 99.7 percent; Jay Barrows (R-Mansfield), 99.4 percent and Donald Wong (R-Saugus), 99.4 percent.

The GOP representative who voted the lowest percentage of times Jones is Steven Levy (R-Marlborough). He supported the GOP leader 95.7 percent of the time.

The other 26 GOP members voted with Jones at least 95.9 percent of the time.

Here's how all 33 GOP representatives fared in their support of Jones.

The percentage next to the representative's name represents the percentage of times the representative supported Jones.

The number in parentheses represents the number of times the representative opposed Jones.

Some representatives voted on all 374 roll call votes. Others missed one or more of the votes. The percentage for each representative is based on the number of roll calls on which he or she voted and does not count the roll calls for which he or she was absent.

MARRIAGE THERAPISTS (S 72) - The House and Senate gave final approval to and sent to Gov. Deval Patrick a measure adding licensed marriage and family therapists to the list of licensed mental health professionals required to be recognized by health insurance companies. The current list includes psychiatrists, psychologists, independent clinical social workers, mental health counselors and nurse mental health clinical specialists.

TWO HEARINGS SCHEDULED ON DISABILITY RETIREMENT SYSTEM - The 13-member Special Commission on Disability was created by the Legislature in 2011 to examine problems with the state's public employees' disability retirement system. The commission will hold hearings on October 15 at 1 p.m. in Room A-1 of the Statehouse and October 18 at 1 p.m. at the University of Massachusetts Medical School in Worcester. The commission is looking for ideas to improve and reform the system.

OFF TO A STUDY COMMITTEE - Various committees recommended that many bills be shipped off to a "study committee" where measures are never actually studied and are essentially defeated. Here are some of the bills heading for that fate last week:

SALES TAX ON INTERNET SALES (S 1554) - Imposes the state's 6.25 percent sales tax on many goods consumers buy on the Internet. Currently, Amazon.com and other Internet companies are exempt from collecting the tax under a 1992 U.S. Supreme Court ruling that Internet retailers only have to charge sales tax in states in which they have a "physical presence." The bill would expand the definition of physical presence to include some 5,000 affiliates with physical offices in Massachusetts, which are associated with the large online retailers. This would result in these online retailers being required to collect the sales tax.

Supporters of imposing the tax say that retailers in Massachusetts are losing millions of dollars in annual sales to online retailers, and the state is missing out on millions in tax revenue. They argue consumers often go to brick-and-mortar retail stores to see items and then buy them on the Internet in order to get a lower price and also save the sales tax.

Opponents said imposing the tax on Internet sales will simply result in many of the 5,000 affiliates closing up shop in Massachusetts and the loss of many jobs while out-of-state retailers would still be exempt from charging the sales tax.

Meanwhile, Amazon.com is interested in increasing its physical presence in Massachusetts. This has led to negotiations between the Internet giant and Gov. Patrick to strike a deal that would require Amazon to collect the Massachusetts 6.25 percent sales tax.

REGISTER TO VOTE ON ELECTION DAY (S 301) - Allows people to register to vote at their polling place on Election Day. Current law requires people to register three weeks before an election in order to be eligible to vote in it. Supporters say this would increase voter turnout on Election Day. Opponents say it would open the door to fraud and increase election costs for cities and towns already struggling with their local budgets.

WIDTH OF STAIRWAYS (H 3135) - Requires stairways be at least 48 inches wide in any housing projects for persons aged 55 years and over. Supporters say most hallways in homes are only 36 inches in width, not wide enough for seniors in wheelchairs.

POSTING GAS PRICES (S 1674) - Requires the price on the marquee at gas stations to state the per-gallon price if paying with a credit card. Supporters say consumers are often lured into a gas station with a misleading large sign that states a lower cash price for gas only to find that the credit card price is higher.

NO SCHOOL ON ELECTION DAY (S 251) - Prohibits public schools from scheduling classes on statewide Election Day. The measure would designate those days as professional development days, currently required under state law, to train principals, teachers and other professional staff new curriculum frameworks and other skills. Supporters say many schools serve as polling places on Election Day. They argue that crowds entering the schools on those days reduce safety and put children in danger.

ALLOW LIQUOR SALES ON CHRISTMAS (H 1028) - Allows package stores to sell alcohol on Memorial Day, Christmas Day and Thanksgiving.

UTILITY SHUTOFF NOTICE (S 1644) - Prohibits all telecommunications, utilities and insurance companies from discontinuing service because of non-payment of a bill unless the company sends a certified letter at least ten days in advance to notify the customer.

NOTIFY HOME BUYER OF ELECTRIC BILLS (S 1698) - Requires sellers of residential homes or condos to provide potential buyers with detailed information on the utility and heating fuel costs for the preceding twelve months.

VEHICLE EMISSIONS STANDARDS (H 2750) - Requires manufacturers to put a vehicle emissions label on all cars and trucks sold in Massachusetts beginning with 2012 models. The labels, similar to those required in California, score each vehicle based on tailpipe emissions that contribute to air pollution.

Food Pantry: New Shaw's box location

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

If you donate to the Cohasset Food Pantry via their drop box at Shaw's, you might have noticed that it has been moved.

The box is now located behind the desk of the courtesy booth, rather than its previous location by the entrance/exit. Shaw's now has new items available for purchase at the checkout that can be donated to the food pantry.

Jane Corry, director of the food pantry, explained that there was a problem with people leaving expired products and even trash in the previous drop box.

"People were cleaning out their cupboards and basements and then dumping their refuse in our box," Corry wrote in an email. "We spoke to the managers and they came up with a wonderful solution. Shaw's would keep several new items at each check out counter and the cashier would ask the person if they would like to purchase an item for their local food pantry."

Corry said the new system is working out.

"The past several weeks have been terrific. We have received several boxes of new food items! We did not have to throw anything away! We are very pleased with the new program."

Any items that are donated are put into boxes and divided between the Cohasset and Scituate food pantries.

The food pantry could use several different types of items year round:

- Coffee, ground and instant
- Tea
- Hot chocolate
- Sugar, non-sugar sweeteners
- Healthy soups
- Broths
- Corned beef hash
- Beef stew
- Spaghetti sauce
- Canned tomatoes, whole and diced
- Canned beans: kidney, cannelloni, chickpeas
- Peanut butter
- Jams/jelly (strawberry, raspberry)
- White tuna in water
- Mayonnaise
- Canned fruit (no sugar added)
- Applesauce
- Kid sized snacks
- Kid sized juice boxes
- Juices (apple, any kind of cranberry)
- Brownie/cake/muffin mix
- Pancake mix
- Maple syrup
- Toiletries: Bar soap, shampoo/conditioner, toothpaste
- Dish/laundry detergents
- Cleaning products

The Cohasset Food Pantry is located at 129 South Main St., in the rear of St. Anthony's rectory. The pantry's mailing address is: P.O. Box 297 Cohasset, MA 02025

The pantry is open every Tuesday morning from 8:30 to 10:30. Donations may be left at the pantry from 9 to 10:30, any Tuesday. They may also be left at any Church in Cohasset on Sunday mornings.

St. Anthony's Parish Center is open to receive donations from 9 to 3 p.m. Monday through Friday. Monetary donations may be made out to the Cohasset Food Pantry and mailed to the P.O. Box. Stop & Shop and Shaw's supermarkets provide donation boxes for the Cohasset food pantry.

The Cohasset Food Pantry serves any resident in need. Anyone seeking assistance may call and speak to a director. Applications must be completed and two forms of identification, a license and proof of residency are required.

HEARING

against the project attended all of the project's hearings.

Last month, Chris Ford and his attorney, Charles Humphreys, asked Creighton consider reopening the hearing. The Con Com voted 5-0 to do so during their Sept. 6 meeting.

But after a neighborhood dispute over the issue was aired out in the press, Ford decided to withdraw the application and seek to finish the project in "an unbiased environment."

Peter DeCaprio, Water Commission chair and an abutter to the property, has taken Ford to task during the Con Com hearings and in a commentary to the Mariner, stating that Ford failed to follow the proper permitting process for his application.

DeCaprio wrote that 559 Jerusalem Road is a vacant, unbuildable lot, and explained that the sewer commission's policy states that the commission will only grant a sewer tie in for buildable lots if they are within 400 feet of Straits Pond and have a Title 5 Septic Design approved by the Board of Health.

The Fords turned in a nearly blank sewer application, DeCaprio wrote, and listed their lot as vacant. DeCaprio further cited sewer commission minutes from Sept. 28, 2008 that said the property met the criteria to satisfy the Area of Critical Environmental Concern (ACEC) as well as zoning requirements. Since a Title 5 septic system was not approved, however, DeCaprio said that the property did not actually meet the requirements.

However, according to the sewer department, the sewer application was not incomplete and contained the necessary information. The department also said that the property does not need a Title 5 system because there was an existing dwelling on the now-vacant property in the past. The Black Rock House, originally built in 1707, rebuilt in 1890 and demolished in the 1970s, was on Jerusalem Road, and the commission said that a portion of it was on the Ford's property.

Whether or not the lot is actually buildable is the jurisdiction of the zoning officer, according to the sewer commission.

Likewise, the Con Com is only tasked with issuing a permit for stormwater, although Creighton explained that the commission as a regulatory board can't "omit anything" that "may come up." The commission's chief concern is protecting Strait's Pond by upholding the wetlands bylaw.

Where does this leave the project and its hearing now? According to Creighton, the public hearing will continue, whether Ford and his attorney attend or not. The chair said that he expects the commission will hear from members of the Straits Pond Watershed Association and address their concerns.

Ford explained in a phone call why he and his brother felt the need to withdraw.

"We feel the environment has been made toxic. It's being painted that we wanted this reopened, [but] we were comfortable with the path we were taking," said Ford. "It was clear to us when DEP was onsite making the evaluation that it was going in our favor."

Ford said that DEP did not want to step in any further, and advised him and his brother to "work out [their] differences" with all the parties involved. He said that he was initially pleased when the Con Com reopened the hearing because he thought "it was going to be a brand new hearing."

Ford and Humphreys asked Creighton for a "focused hearing" during which they would seek to answer any lingering questions the Con Com had over the stormwater application. The two felt the Con Com lacked "sufficient information" to make their initial vote to reject the application; Ford wanted to address the specific issues that led to the Con Com's denial.

But after Creighton said during the Sept. 6 meeting that all of the issues concerning the application would be back on the table, Ford ultimately chose to withdraw. Explaining that the process has already cost $30,000 in professional fees, Ford said, "We saw it happening all over again and could see it mounting up... it would be an expensive, drawn-out process."

Creighton said in a phone call that the commissioners who missed any of the hearings on 559 Jerusalem Road reviewed all of the documents and signed affidavits. The Con Com chair maintains his stance that the commission has done their due diligence to protect Straits Pond, a critical environmental area (see page 10 for Creighton's commentary).

Look for more on this issue in an upcoming edition of the Mariner.

Gridders roll by Carver

The Cohasset Mariner

During the week, Cohasset football coach Pete Afanasiw said the key to winning his team's Friday afternoon matinee with Carver was consistency, and stopping the run.

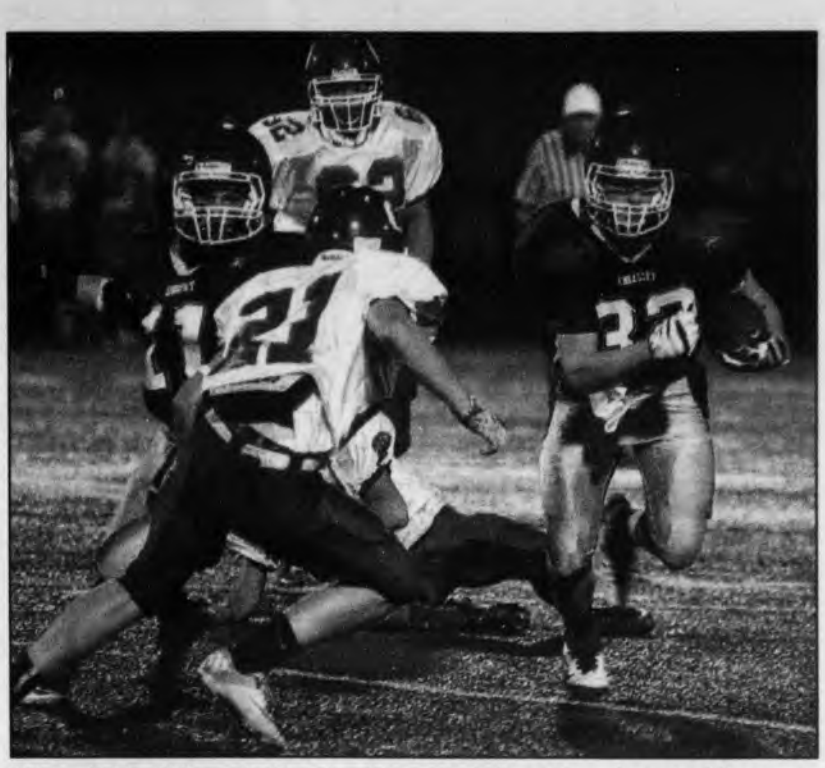
Mission accomplished.

Friday, Tim Gillis scored a pair first-quarter touchdowns on 10-yard rushes, each followed by Shane Haggerty kicks to give the Skippers a 14-0 lead in what became a 42-13 victory

Chris Haggerty scored and Shane Haggerty nailed the kick for the first of three Cohasset scores in the second quarter.

Brandon Rudolph put Carver on the board with a 3-yard rush followed by a Chris McCarthy extra point that set the score at 21-7, but Cohasset had more damage to do before halftime.

Gillis rushed 50 yards for his third touchdown and Christian Davis pulled in a 26-yard pass from Chris Haggerty before the intermission. Shane Haggerty topped each with a PAT to put Cohasset up 35-7 at the half.



Shane Haggerty returned a punt 60 yards for the only score of the third quarter.

Carver's Mike Maynard caught a 50-yard pass for the Crusaders' other score. Cohasset blocked the extra point attempt.

Cohasset improves to 2-3, 1-1 in the South Shore League. Carver falls to 0-5 (0-2).

Cohasset hosts East Bridgewater tonight at 7:30 p.m. and will host Rockland next Friday night at 6 p.m. for the annual homecoming game.

The Homecoming Dance follows the game.

Skippers in the mix for league title

By William Wassersug
wwassersug@wickedlocal.com

After a quick start to the season, the Cohasset boys have hit a bit of a bump in the road as they prepare for the second half of the season.

The Skippers jumped out to a fast 4-0 start, but have slowed that pace slightly.

After 11 games, including a 3-0 win at Carver, Cohasset checks in at 7-3-1 (7-2-1 South Shore League), good for second place in the league with rematches on the horizon. An invitation to the MIAA Tournament is only three points away.

Monday was one of those little bumps as the Skippers dropped a tightly contested 2-1 game to Mashpee.

"That put us in second place behind Mashpee and East Brigewater," Cohasset coach Jim Willis said. "It was a good game. We were 0-0 at the half. They have one of the most explosive players in the league, Romeo Grey. He scored both of their goals."

Gray netted the first goal of the game, before Conor Goetz tied it up.

"We'll have to defend him a little better next time," Willis said. "He's just an explosive player."

Things got better Wednesday with a trip to Carver and a 3-0 win.

Cohasset ties Hanover

The Cohasset field hockey team tied Hanover 0-0 in a non-league game on Monday at Hanover high School.

The game gave Cohasset a 7-2-2 record.

While the offense was stifled, Cohasset got great play from midfielders MacKenzie Axelson, Valerie Farren and Giselle Hart.

Cohasset's defense was led by Caroline Evans, and Kathryn Dunn.

COMMUNITY SERVICE

Go Blue and Pink For a Cure

Pick up a pink sweatband

The athletes and coaching staff of Cohasset High School will again be participating in an athletic program wide community service project beginning Wednesday, October 17, during Homecoming Week.

All of the fall athletic teams and coaches will be wearing pink sweat bands with the CHS "C" logo for the month of October in honor of breast cancer awareness month.

The captains of each team will collect a donation for each sweatband from all the players and coaching staff. The sweatbands will also be available at CHS sporting events. The suggested donation for a sweatband is $5 but any and all donations are welcome.

All proceeds from the donations will go to the Dana Farber Cancer Research Institute in Boston. Last year CHS Athletics donated over $600 to Dana Farber to help fight cancer. A special thanks goes out to Ron Goodwin at Goodwin Graphics in Cohasset for helping us with the project.

Anyone interested in receiving a pink "C" sweatband can pick one up at a CHS game or contact Athletic Director Ron Ford at 781-383-6103 or email at rford@cohassetk12.org.

Pink wristbands will be available for a donation to the Dana Farber Cancer Research Institute in Boston. COURTESY PHOTO

Stingers suffer first loss

South Coastal League Hockey roundup

By Mark Ducharme
Correspondent

It was a night of firsts in the Men's South Coastal Hockey League.

The Legends Div. leading Stingers suffered their first loss of the season at the hands of the Toros, 6-2 and the Canadiens defeated the Maple Leafs for the first time in 34 games by a 5-3 score.

The Canadiens got a goal by Glen Harnisch of Marshfield five minutes into the second period to break and 3-3 tie and lead them to a 5-3 win over the Leafs.

Tim Curran of Cohasset, Mike Fahie of Pembroke, Jim Donnelly and Tom Lema both of Marshfield had a goal each for the Canadiens. John MacLelllan of Pembroke had three assists in the game.

Rockland's Marty DeCourcey scored two goals and Mike Bartlett had one for the Leafs.

A can of wasp repellent was put on the Toros bench before the game and James Ward of Norwell and Paul Brinkman used it for them to deal the Stingers a 6-2 loss. Ward scored two goals and Brinkman had a goal and four assists to lead the Toros.

Norwell's Mark McGreenery had a goal an assist, Matt Sonnabend and Dave Currier added a goal each for the Toros while Chris Poudrier and Scott Kelly of Pembroke scored a goal each for the Stingers.

Harry Denley and Hank Mosca of Pembroke scored a goal each while Art Riccio had two assists in the Sharks, 2-1 Legends Div. win over the Whalers.

Steve Concannon of Scituate scored the goal for the Whalers.

Jim McNeill and Jim Callahan both scored short handed goals in the first two period and Todd Roche added a third period goal in the Saints 3-1 win over the Crusaders in a Legends Div. game. Paul Murphy had two assists in the game for the Saints and Scott Mondeau scored for the Crusaders in the third period.

Mike Martin set up two goals in regulation and scored the only goal in the shootout as the Bruins 4-3 win over the Blackhawks in a Classics Div. game.

Jeff Vancura and Jim Martin and Peter Fallon both of Hanover scored a goal each while Steve Anzuoni had two assists for the Bruins.

Pembroke's Paul Lyons, Tim Fallon and Tony Rota scored the goals for the Blackhawks.

Pat Burke scored two second period goals as the Red Wings hung on for a 4-3 Classics Div. win over the Rangers. Jim Bailey and Kevin Brophy added a goal each and Kevin Barnard had three assists for the Wings.

Bob Sideropoulos scored the three goals for the Rangers for the second straight game that he has scored a hat trick offense with a goal and an assist, giving him nine goals and an assist in the team's first 11 games.

Goetz had a goal with an assist from Tangherlini, and Ryan McKeon added a third goal to the cause.

"We played great all-around today," Willis said. "Our defense was excellent. Carver has two kids who can score. We kept them out of the net."

Cohasset has a chance for redemption later in the season.

"We play East Bridgewater and Mashpee again at the end of the season,

Last week, Cohasset tied Abington 3-3, giving the Skippers a 1-1-1 record in the last three games.

The Skippers face Norwell today on the road.

"That's a big one," Willis said.

Cohasset will celebrate Senior Night on Thursday at 6 p.m.

INSIDE THE 6 SOCCER POWER RANKINGS

Week 5: More of the same from the top six

By Ryan Wood
rwood@wickedlocal.com

The fifth week of high school soccer rankings is abbreviated due to some postponements (and a vacation week for the author), so we'll call Week 5 the rankings for games played between Sunday, Sept. 30 and Thursday, Oct. 4. Contrary to Week 4, we don't see a ton of movement in the rankings, actually none at all. The teams in the top six on both the boys and girls side remain the same after turning in some stunning performances last week. The teams have certainly turned their play up a notch as they begin to fight for postseason berths and a lead in their respective leagues. Let's take a look at the rankings for Week 5.

Boys

1. Weymouth – What can you say about this team that hasn't been said in the previous four weeks of the rankings. These guys know how to win and take their game up a notch when the competition gets tougher. A 2-1 win on the road against St. John's Prep followed by a 3-0 victory over Norwood keeps the 'Cats on a roll.

2. Marshfield – The Rams remain red hot and last week extended their unbeaten streak to seven with a 6-1 win over Sandwich and a 3-3 draw against Nauset, the only Atlantic Coast League team Marshfield has lost to this season. Boy, I'd love see a Marshfield vs. Weymouth match. Maybe in the postseason?

3. Hingham – The Harbormen made it three in a row by taking two shutout victories to start last week. They topped North Quincy, 4-0, before easily handling Whitman-Hanson, 3-0. The wins improved Hingham's record to 6-2 at the time.

4. Braintree – The Wamps are in a dogfight with Weymouth for the top spot in the Bay State Carey division. The Wildcats hold a slight edge with their win over the Wamps earlier this season, but Braintree is legit. Despite a 3-0 loss to Wellesley, which is in first place in the Bay State Herget, the Wamps picked up a 2-1 win over a solid Newton North side.

5. Hanover – It's tough to fault the Indians for their 2-1 loss to Scituate last week. The Sailors have been a bubble team recently and have played some quality soccer this season. The Indians hold down the No. 5 spot however, at least for one more week. They also remained tied for first in the Patriot League.

6. Cohasset – The Skippers had a relatively rough go to start last week, but after losing, 2-1, to East Bridgewater, they earned a valuable point in the South Shore League with a 3-3 draw against Abington.

On the bubble: Silver Lake, Scituate, Duxbury

Last week: 1. Weymouth, 2. Marshfield, 3. Hingham, 4. Braintree, 5. Hanover, 6. Cohasset

Girls

1. Marshfield – Much like Weymouth on the boys' side, the Rams are an absolute machine this fall. And after two wins to start last week (3-1 over Sandwich and 2-0 against Nauset), they improved to 9-0 overall and 7-0 in the Atlantic Coast league.

2. Duxbury – Chalk up two more victories for the Dragons, another hot team on the South Shore. A 5-0 win over Quincy, followed by a 5-2 triumph over Silver Lake, put the Dragons at 7-1-1.

3. Scituate – Talk about explosive. The Sailors outscored Middleboro and Hanover by a combined 10-0 score to remain in first place in the Patriot League Fisher Division. A 4-0 win over Hanover came Thursday and was key as Hanover was in second place, chasing the Sailors for the top spot.

4. Carver – Nothing surprises me anymore about Carver this season. Youth and inexperience were concerns at the beginning, but certainly not now. With a 1-0 win over Abington, the Green Wave maintained a half game lead over Norwell for first place in the South Shore League.

5. Norwell – The Clippers score in bunches, and they proved it last week by hammering Mashpee, 6-0, extending their unbeaten streak to eight. With the win over Mashpee, the Clippers improved to 6-1-2 overall, their only loss coming to Marshfield.

6. Plymouth North – A 1-1 draw against Sandwich was enough to keep the Blue Eagles in the top six. This team has struggled a bit as of late, but will no doubt return to form and can still challenge Marshfield for the ACL title.

On the bubble: Weymouth, Hanover, Plymouth South

Last week: 1. Marshfield, 2. Duxbury, 3. Scituate, 4. Carver, 5. Norwell, 6. Plymouth North

The Inside the 6 - Soccer Power Rankings are decided based on a number of criteria: record, strength of schedule, performance against teams in and out of their divisions, goals scored, and goals conceded. The public schools in our coverage area include: Abington, Braintree, Carver, Cohasset, Duxbury, Hanover, Hingham, Holbrook, Marshfield, Norwell, Pembroke, Plymouth North, Plymouth South, Rockland, Scituate, Silver Lake, and Weymouth. Check out your town's Wicked Local website to see the rankings and to comment on them, and feel free to email Ryan Wood at rwood@wickedlocal.com.

Lynch: 'No new taxes' pledges are impediment

By Jack Encarnacao
THE PATRIOT LEDGER

U.S. Rep. Stephen Lynch doesn't see a way the country can realign its spending and borrowing habits if Republican heels are dug in on tax increases.

"My colleagues are going to have to come off that position of 'no new taxes,'" Lynch told an editorial board meeting with GateHouse Media staff at The Patriot Ledger last Tuesday (Oct. 2). "We're going to have to have some tax reform, and we're going to have to find a way to balance this thing. Right now, we're borrowing 40 cents out of every dollar we spend at the federal government level. We can't continue that."

Lynch, a South Boston Democrat who has served in Congress since 2001, said he has the credibility with the other side of the aisle to help shepherd compromise after the Nov. 6 election.

"If you ask the Republicans who are those Democrats that you can work with, I bet I'd be on that list," he said.

Lynch faces Republican Joseph Selvaggi of Beacon Hill in the Nov. 6 election for the 8th Congressional District seat. In light of the 2010 federal census, the district boundaries were altered to include several South Shore communities, including Weymouth, Hingham, Cohasset, Scituate and Abington.

Lynch said the congressional leadership has not been receptive to moving along bipartisan attempts to address structural problems until after the election.

Among the frozen initiatives is one he and a colleague crafted to address the financial insolvency of the U.S. Postal Service. He said the plan would use overpayments postal employees have already made to their pension and health and welfare funds to move about 100,000 employees into retirement and close 4,000 post offices without layoffs.

Selvaggi has harped on why Lynch voted against the federal Affordable Care Act ("Obamacare") but against its repeal.

Lynch said he objected to taxes the bill would charge employers and employees for health-care plans and taxes in other areas, like on medical device manufacturers. Lynch also said the act, which requires 31 million new people to get health insurance, did not address the fundamental problem: why it costs so much.

Lynch said he was assured in a meeting with the president that concerns about the taxes in the bill would be fixed after passage.

"I said, 'Mr. President, with all due respect ... people are furious about this. I don't think we're going to fix it later. I think there are going to be repercussions,'" Lynch said. "I did say to the president, 'Look, if this passes – and I will not support it – I will try to fix it. I'll work with you to try to fix it. I promise I will not vote to repeal this.' I gave the president my word. That's it, bottom line."

Lynch said he supports a plan that would allow states to offer competitive health plans to drive down prices.

Lynch, who sits on a national security subcommittee, also spoke about international tours he has done in assisting with postwar transitions in Iraq and Afghanistan.

He said he supports pulling the 88,000 remaining troops out of Afghanistan next year, one year ahead of schedule, and fostering basic literacy education for native border patrol and other agents being recruited and trained by American troops.

Selvaggi: country is 'headed off a cliff'

By Jack Encarnacao
THE PATRIOT LEDGER

He may be composed and careful, but Republican candidate for Congress Joseph Selvaggi does not mince words when conveying his view of the country's economic outlook.

"I see our country as headed off a cliff," Selvaggi said during an editorial board meeting with GateHouse Media staff at The Patriot Ledger last Tuesday (Oct. 2). "My customers are children... Every day, we borrow $4 billion of their money. I don't see any moral justification for borrowing from tomorrow's taxpayers to pay for today's government."

Selvaggi, a Beacon Hill resident who founded a chain of recreational plaster painting centers called Plaster Fun Time, will face incumbent Rep. Stephen Lynch, D-South Boston, in the Nov. 6 election for the newly constituted 8th Congressional District. Redrawn after the 2010 federal census, the district now includes Quincy and several South Shore communities, including Weymouth, Hingham, Cohasset, Scituate and Abington.

Selvaggi advocates simplifying the tax code, reducing marginal tax rates, reducing regulation and reforming health-care costs as reliable ways to foster job creation and lure back employers who relocated outside of the United States.

Selvaggi said his experience managing a 60-employee company shows him that escalating health-care costs are the key burden on businesses, and the drivers of those costs need to be the focus of reform.

"We have perverse incentives," he said. "We have no incentives to spend less. We pay doctors to do more, we pay hospitals to provide more, we pay for more tests. We shouldn't be surprised when we have enormous increases in our health care."

He said elements of the federal Affordable Care Act, also known as "Obamacare," will hurt local companies and their willingness to expand and create new jobs, particularly a 2.3 percent tax on medical devices that will be rolled out next year.

"You don't need to be an economist to know that if you raise the tax on something, you get less of it," he said.

Selvaggi framed Lynch, a member of the Financial Services Committee, as doing little more than preserving the status quo in the wake of the economic crisis and not offering reforms. He said he is banking on the electorate being receptive to new faces and perceiving a need for reform.

"If we keep sending Democrats from Massachusetts and Republicans from Texas (to Congress), it's not going to work," he said. "We need Republicans from Massachusetts and Democrats from Texas, and then it might work."

Local candidates answer questions

Prior to the Nov. 6 election, local GateHouse Media New England papers will be asking a series of questions to candidates in contested races. Candidate responses are limited to 250 words.

Eighth Congressional District

Which is more important, stimulating the economy or reducing the debt?

Republican challenger Joseph Selvaggi

My opponent in this Congressional race believes that more government spending is the way to stimulate our economy. I disagree. We can get Americans back to work by simplifying our current tax code and by reducing marginal tax rates.

My opponent voted for the stimulus in 2009. I believe that his vote was a mistake. To be sure, spending nearly $1 trillion did have an effect on our economy. But was the positive impact of the stimulus greater than the harmful impact of the taxes and borrowing used to fund it? The Congressional Budget Office and most objective economists say it was not. We did little to improve our national productive capacity and now must pay back $1 trillion with interest.

There is a better way forward. I started my own business in 1995 as a way to keep more of the fruits of my labor. Each of us knows that we will work harder if we get to keep more of our profits. Few of us would work overtime simply to enrich the tax collector. Lower marginal rates will encourage businesses and individuals to thrive and generate more revenue. Eliminating loopholes will level the playing field.

Fighting powerful interests for the benefit of working people and small business will not be easy. But a cleaner tax code with lower rates for all Americans is the only true, sustainable way to stimulate the economy and a thriving economy will allow us to reduce our debt. See joe4jobs.com.

Democratic U.S. Rep. Stephen Lynch

Stimulating the economy and reducing the deficit are not mutually exclusive; rather, they are complimentary priorities. I believe that both are vital components of one larger goal — putting our country back on a fiscally sustainable path.

In order to put Americans back to work, it is important that Congress agrees on an economic plan that is balanced. We need to get spending under control while we create conditions that allow businesses to grow. Currently, for every dollar that the government spends, we are borrowing 40 cents. This is unsustainable.

However, we also need to ensure that we do not balance our budget at the expense of our senior citizens, veterans and working families. I have voted to cancel obsolete billion-dollar weapons programs that the Defense Department no longer wants, and I have voted to end taxpayer subsidies for big oil companies. I also support comprehensive tax reform, which will simplify the tax code and eliminate special deals for a few powerful industries. These steps will help to provide certainty to businesses and financial markets while reducing the deficit and sending a strong message to the world that the United States is committed to getting our fiscal house in order.

Plymouth & Norfolk State Senate District

What steps can be taken to increase job creation on the South Shore?

Republican state Sen. Robert Hedlund

Job creation and job sustainability is one of my top priorities as your state senator. Far too often, I get phone calls or get stopped at the grocery store by someone who is about to lose their job or who has lost their job and has been unable to find suitable work. Every day, every vote I take, I keep these people in mind and try to find ways not only to get them back to work, but to get them back to work with a job that pays the bills.

This economy is very tough. I am proud to have been endorsed by the National Federation of Independent Business for my years of taking tough votes to promote small business and job creation.

The steps to job creation start with creating a good environment for small business by encouraging and assisting individuals opening or expanding a small business, rather than having the government getting in their way with burdensome red tape. These small businesses are the lifeblood of our economy, and sadly have been neglected because government has decided it is their obligation to choose winners and losers in this economy rather than let the free market do what it has been doing for hundreds of years.

Lastly, I myself am a job creator. I own half of a small restaurant in Weymouth Landing. I know how tough it is out there, and I am working every day to make sure jobs are created, kept, and wages are livable.

Democratic challenger Genevieve Davis

Success in job creation is always about supply and demand.

On the demand side, consumers are still recuperating from the 2008 fiscal crash, so their demand for goods and services remains low. Urgent demand does, however, exist to repair our crumbling infrastructure.

All of us own the infrastructure we take advantage of. This includes roads, bridges, public buildings and all facilities managed by government. Now is the time to invest public funds to make repairs that are absolutely necessary. This creates jobs that will put money back into the economy, money that will translate to demand for additional goods and services. This will spur growth in local small businesses.

On the supply side, jobs already exist that need to be filled, but they are empty because of an existing skills gap. Training programs for the unemployed or underemployed need to be designed through cooperation between businesses and local colleges to close this gap. We need to identify where these jobs currently are on the South Shore, places like our hospitals and technology-driven companies. We also need to find businesses with jobs unfilled who are willing to relocate to the South Shore because we will have the skilled workforce for them to hire.

As your senator, I will work to rebuild our infrastructure. I will also use my experience as the chief financial officer of the New England Board of Higher Education to ensure that people have opportunities to learn skills that will lead to employment that pays a living wage.

Come and learn how to Double Dutch with the Beantown Jumpers, a competitive Double Dutch team from Boston, Milton, Quincy and Pembroke. Their mission is to share the sport of Double Dutch with others while encouraging physical activity, teamwork and fun.

In conjunction with the Red Auerbach Youth Foundation, Beantown Jumpers believe in the value of sports and athletics to the healthy development, both physical and emotional, of children. Each event is a lot of energetic fun for everyone! The team will perform a "Fusion" music presentation and then they will demonstrate the jumping styles necessary for competitions, including speed, compulsory and a free-style (tricks) routine. After the presentation, group participation with the team is encouraged.

For Grades 1 and up. 4-6 p.m. $20 each. Come learn how to jump in, turn the ropes and share some of their jump rope tricks. To register, and for information on the full Fall Lineup at Cohasset Recreation visit cohassetrec.org

COHASSET MATHNASIUM

Math-letes shine at event

On Saturday Sept. 29th, 20 children from all across the South Shore area gathered at the Cohasset Mathnasium to put their "math-letic" prowess to the test. The math-centric-center welcomed the eager math-letes both familiar and new as any student in the 3rd through 6th grade whether in public, private or homeschool was eligible to participate.

The triathlon was comprised of three events Magic Squares, The Counting Game and the Mental Math Workout all based on key mathematical concepts studied at each grade level. Magic Squares challenged student's creativity and ability to apply math skills by asking students to develop their own math problems. In The Counting Game, math-letes were evaluated on their ability to quickly and easily jump number to number. And finally, in Mental Math Workout contestants demonstrated their mental math aptitude by solving high-level math problems without the aid of pencil and paper. Competition was fierce, and each 15-minute event demanded more of the young contestants than the last.

In addition to providing students with an opportunity to showcase their math skills, the center also recognized the dedication of all Triathlon participants, and presented each child with a goodie bag and certificates of participation to commemorate the event.

First, second, and third place winners were declared in each of the four eligible grades. Winners include; Third Grade (1st place) William Bernstein of Hingham, (2nd place) Benson Chen of Scituate (3rd place) Meg Dugan of Cohasset, 4th Grade (1st place) Brady Connolly of Hingham, (2nd place) Madeline Bulman of Scituate, (3rd place) Anna Cain of Cohasset, 5th Grade, (1st place) James Cain of Cohasset, (2nd place) Sydney Childs of Cohasset (3rd place) Alexandra Beckwith of Weymouth, in 6th Grade, (1st place) Shurtika Kumareshan of Sharon, (2nd place) Molly Kirves of Rockland, and (3rd place) Brielle Browne of Hull.

Brady Connolly was the highest scorer of all four grades with 764 out of 815 possible points. National winners will be selected from the top three scorers from all participating centers and will be eligible to receive their share of $10,000 in cash prizes. Mathnasium extends its heartfelt thanks to all the students and parents who came out to the event and its congratulations to all the regional winners.

HAPPENINGS

Pancake Breakfast Sunday, Oct. 14

Cohasset Soccer Booster Club will host its 34th annual Pancake Breakfast at Deer Hill School from 8 a.m. to noon, on Sunday, Oct. 14.

The event is the single fundraiser for the High School soccer programs. Tickets include a raffle for a month's worth of gasoline or food shopping. Tickets are $5 each and can be purchased at the door.

Halloween Fair

The South Shore Community Center Nursery School will hold its annual Halloween Fair on Cohasset Town Common from 2 to 4 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 21. There will be a Costume Parade at 1:45 p.m. Children should meet on the Cohasset Town Common and parade around the pond with their favorite witch. Bring the family and enjoy Knuckle Bones activities, a dance party, games, slides, hayrides, prizes and the bake sale.

All proceeds benefit the Nardo Scholarship, The Nursery School Enrichment Fund and the Nursery School.

Fall dinner, annual meeting

The Cohasset Historical Society will hold its annual Meeting and Fall Dinner on Sunday, Oct. 28, at the Cohasset Harbor Inn from 5:30 to 9 p.m. Guest speaker, Dana Benner will tell us about the people that made the Cohasset area home before the Europeans ever set foot on this soil. Dana is an historian, writer and educator specializing in Native American history and culture. This program will focus on the culture and lifestyle of the Massachusetts and Wampanoag people who lived in this area.

The dinner menu offers a choice of grilled chicken with a champagne sauce or roasted baby cod with buttery seasoned crumbs. There will be a cash bar beginning at 5:30 p.m. with accompanying cheese and cracker tray. Dinner will begin at approximately 6:15 p.m., followed by a short business meeting and our speaker. The cost of this evening is $31 for Historical Society members and $36 for non-members. This meeting and dinner is open to all who wish to attend. LIFE AT CHS

Spirit Week!

WHITNEY MALONE

School spirit should reign

I hope you all had a great holiday weekend! We students certainly enjoyed the relief from a four-day school week.

For the first time of the year, Peer Leaders met with their assigned middle school classes, introducing themselves and getting to know the students. To motivate participation, the Leaders began their sessions with fun icebreakers, such as "Birthday Timeline," in which students organized themselves in order of their birthdays, without speaking, of course.

Wednesday, senior staff members of the Spinnaker met to decide which news and features articles, such as the infamous gossip column, the "Scuttlebutt," will be published in the first issue on October 31st. Other columns will include interviews of the new administration and spotlights of underclassmen athletes. All articles are due this Monday to be edited!

Everyone is getting psyched for Spirit Week and Homecoming next week! Students are encouraged to prove their school spirit by dressing-up according to the days' themes, some of which include Disco Day, Wild West Day, and Snapper Sneaker Day (without the field games we played at Osgood, unfortunately). The week will be topped-off with the Homecoming football game, followed by the Homecoming dance in the school gymnasium Friday night.

Well, that summarizes what's happening in Life at CHS around this time. While the annual Powder Puff game is not for another month, it is not too early for juniors to start strategizing. (How are they going to put up a fight against a senior class with a standing 1-0 record?)

WHAT WOULD HOSPICE BE WITHOUT IT?

Hope for an afternoon with your grandchild. Hope for quality of life. And peace of mind. For over 30 years, we've brought hope to those facing serious illness or loss with our hospice care. Child find

In accordance with Individuals with Disabilities Act (IDEA 2004) and Massachusetts special education regulations, 603 CMR 28.00, the Cohasset Public Schools provide screenings and/or evaluations for all children residing in the Town of Cohasset, between ages 3-21, when parent(s), caregiver(s), and/or teacher(s) suspect the presence of a disability.

The purpose of the evaluation is to determine if the student has a disability and is eligible for special education services. This notice applies to children residing in Cohasset who attend either public or private schools. If you suspect your child may have an educational disability, contact the Student Services Department of the Cohasset Public Schools at 781-383-4167.

This is a cost-free, educational evaluation, which follows all MA DESE special education regulations outline in 603 CMR 28.00. Further information can be found on the Cohasset Public Schools website and the Massachusetts Department of Elementary and Secondary Education website.

HIGH SCHOOL

Make the most of your senior year

How to end school on a high note

Ah, senior year. You've waited for it, pined for it, ached for it — and now it's finally here. That last year before you go off to college; the last months before you get to be on your own.

Understandably, it feels like it drags on forever. After a while, you lose steam and simply become a high school zombie, waiting for that final of final bells to ring so that you can close out your high school chapter and start your college story. You've fallen prey to that most dreaded of high school diseases: senioritis. The symptoms of senioritis are common and widespread among graduating classes: glazed-over eyes, blank expressions and lack of interest in everything. You're done, you're spent and you're ready to move on.

The problem is, school isn't ready to move on with you, and what you do this last year of high school still matters. It matters to your GPA, and it matters to the colleges to which you're applying. Slack off, and you could be, in the most extreme cases, saying goodbye to college acceptances you thought were already in the bag. So, it's time to come up with a plan. Follow these five simple steps to stay active and involved that last year of high school, and make it truly count.

Become a leader

Now that you're a senior and you've been involved in your extracurriculars for two or three years, it's time to step it up and really get involved. Become the editor-in-chief of the yearbook or newspaper. Take on the lead role in the school play. Become the volunteer liaison or fundraising leader for your school's chapter of a charity. You know the lay of the land, so lead the pack! Becoming a leader will keep you involved in your activities, and will help lend structure to your extracurricular pursuits.

Get interested (and interesting!)

Don't let your curriculum get boring just because it's your last year. Sure, you need to get all your core courses done, but that doesn't mean you can't spice things up with some fun or unusual courses. What off-the-beaten-path classes does your school offer? Seek them out, and consider adding one or two to your schedule. It'll keep things interesting and keep you interested in academics during this long but last year in high school.

Give back

You're an expert at navigating the high school scene. You know where to go, what to do and how to get things done. Consider becoming a mentor to incoming freshmen, volunteering at the guidance office and maybe even giving talks through your college advising office about how to best apply to college. Taking the time to guide others through experiences you've already mastered will give you a new appreciation for everything you've learned.

Remember: It's a year of 'lasts'

Don't let the fog of senioritis cloud over the fact that this is the last year of high school. Chances are pretty good that everything you do will be some version of the "last time" you do it. Don't simply go to school for the sake of going — savor each moment! Take pictures. Hang out with your friends. Make a list of all the silly stuff you want to do "one last time"— and then do it! Once you're in college, high school is gone forever, so make your senior year a year to remember.

Try something new

Just because you are a senior doesn't mean that you can't join a new school activity. Consider checking out a new group or club this year. Always wanted to be a football booster? Check them out. Wondered what writing an article in the school newspaper would entail? Contribute one. Love taking pictures? Consider joining the yearbook or school magazine. Not everything on your résumé has to have had lengthy, long-term commitment; sometimes, just doing something because it's new and fun is enough of a reason. Trying something new keeps things fresh, and may even land you some new friends.

METASTATIC BREAST CANCER

Against the odds

Judy Christensen with her husband, Bill, children, their spouses, and grandchildren. She said she hopes family vacations and photographs will leave her family with special memories. COURTESY PHOTO

By Ruth Thompson
rthompson@wickedlocal.com

When Judy Christensen was diagnosed with metastatic breast cancer her initial thought was that she wanted one more year so she could be there for her daughter, who was going through a difficult time.

In January, it will be eight years since that diagnosis.

"And I'm still here," she said.

The fact that Judy is "still here" is quite remarkable. The average life expectancy after a diagnosis of metastatic breast cancer is three years.

"Most people don't last this long," she said. "I'm totally on borrowed time."

Judy credits beating the odds with being put on a treatment that has really worked well for her type of cancer.

She began participating in clinical trials through the Dana Farber Cancer Institute in Boston within 60 days of finding the lump. It was here that she met Dr. Leroy Parker of the Women's Cancer Program.

Parker said there are 225,000 new cases of invasive breast cancer in the U.S. annually.

"About 40,000 women are diagnosed with metastatic breast cancer each year," he said, adding that there are about 160,000 women living with metastatic breast cancer in the U.S.

An estimated 40 percent of patients live for at least five years.

According to Parker, the treatment of metastatic breast cancer depends on what type of breast cancer the patient has.

Judy was 60 when she diagnosed. Prior to discovering the lump in her breast she had no other symptoms.

"I figured I would have a lumpectomy and go on chemo and survive," she said.

Her doctor scheduled an MRI to see the size of the lump. The MRI showed the cancer had spread to her liver.

"My original thought, coming out of that meeting, was 'this is it,'" said Bill Christensen, Judy's husband of 46 years. "I thought she had maybe six months left."

Even when Judy was getting information about treatment, Bill said he kept thinking, "they're going to do all of this in six months?"

A couple of days after the diagnosis Judy and Bill updated their wills.

Living with metastatic breast cancer, Judy said, is like "waiting for the other shoe to drop."

Shortly after being diagnosed, Judy joined a support group at Dana Farber.

She is also a member of an online support group for metastatic breast cancer patients, and an advocacy group as well.

"These groups are helpful," she said. "I learn so much about treatments I may need in the future and how to deal with them. I learn about how strong and caring people can be, and how to live despite a terminal diagnosis."

Both Judy and Bill said despite the apparent success of the trials, the reality of the situation is never far away.

"It's always in the back of your mind that this thing can turn," Bill said. "Every time Judy feels something that is different about her body, her first thoughts are that it could be something related to the cancer."

"You never have it beat," Judy said. "You get off treatment by dying."

Judy's main priority is her family, which in addition to Bill includes their two grown children, Robert and Kimberly, and six grandchildren, ages 2 to 11 years.

"I want them to have memories," she said of her grandchildren. "I want them to know how much I love them, and for them to get strength from that later in their lives when they're out in the world."

After Judy was diagnosed, Bill said he wanted a family portrait taken before they lost her. However, they have had to have several more family portraits done as the years passed and the family continued to grow; four grandchildren have been born since Judy's diagnosis.

And while she said she is trying to live as normal a life as possible – she is heading to Mexico in a few weeks, and recently played the devil in a play at The Pinehills in Plymouth – she said she has days when she feels depressed or lacks motivation.

She also realizes that she can't take for granted what most people do, and that is time.

"I was watching a Plymouth Planning Board meeting and they were talking about a hotel and spa coming into the Pinehills in 2014," she said. "And I thought I probably won't be here by then."

In addition to her conventional treatment, Judy has acupuncture, tong Ren energy work and tui na massage, for symptom and side effect management, and to eliminate energy blockages.

"I see a Naturapathic physician for overall wellness and compassionate side effect management," she said, adding that she also has an integrative therapist to keep her "sane and balanced, and help me live my life to the fullest and to keep true to myself."

A major highlight was going to Washington, D.C. during the summer of 2009 with a group organized by the Metastatic Breast Cancer Network.

"We went to meet with senators and members of Congress to inform them of the differences in early stage and metastatic breast cancer," Judy said. "And ask them to support a resolution establishing October 13 as National Metastatic Breast Cancer Awareness Day."

The group also wanted to have legislators eliminate the 24-month waiting period Medicare when patients are diagnosed with metastatic disease.

"I loved being in the Senate," she said. "I was like a kid at Disney World."

Bill admits he doesn't like to think of the reality of the situation.

"I prefer to think things will go on like this forever," he said.

Judy, however, tends to think ahead.

After the family dog died unexpectedly in 2009, Bill was devastated and didn't want another one.

"All I could think of was that if I died, he would be left alone in this house," Judy said.

The next month she and her kids presented Bill with two puppies for his 65th birthday.

"I feel much better because now he won't be alone," she said.

She said she tells her story to give people hope.

The support group she started at The Pinehills in 2005 for women with breast cancer – and now includes women with other cancers – remains ongoing.

She recommends two books for anyone dealing with terminal illness, "Dying Well" and "The Best Care Possible" by Dr. Ira Byock.

While she said she is not afraid to die, she is afraid of being in terrible pain.

She said she supports the November ballot questions about medical marijuana and death with dignity.

Funeral arrangements are something she thinks about "sometimes."

"I think I want to be cremated," she said. "I've told Bill he and the kids will have to worry about all that; I'll be dead."

As for death, Judy said her thoughts are always changing.

"I believe we are all connected to an energy force and my energy will not be lost when I die," she said. "I want my energy and love to enrich and strengthen the lives of those I love. I am not afraid of death. I am more afraid of not finishing what I have to do on Earth. I believe I'll live on in the love I give my family."

DEBORAH CORNWALL

Local author cares and shares

By Mary Jane Hanron
mjhanron@wickedlocal.com

After interviews with 86 cancer caregivers and dozens more touched in various ways by the disease, Marshfield resident and cancer advocate Deborah Cornwall was ready to put her evolving project on paper. A breast cancer survivor herself, Cornwall had spent years contemplating and preparing to write a book unlike anything that existed.

She learned as she proceeded that similar to every cancer experience, her path to finding her published work on the shelf of a bookstore would be a unique one.

"I became like a general contractor for the book," she said. "Every interview was different. I learned that so many stories were locked up inside people. Once they had an opportunity to talk as they wished in a comfortable way, the information and emotion flowed and flowed. It was a way to feel useful, that they were personally making a difference. And it was true."

Cornwall's book, "Things I Wish I'd Known," was released Oct. 1, 2012. Distinctive based on its blend of caregivers' own stories, factual information and practical guidance, it is likely to ease the life changing experiences of countless people dealing with the terror of diagnosis and subsequent monumental to mundane moments that follow.

"Care giving is unexpected, but nevertheless needs to be planned," she said, adding that more people than not will become caregivers of some sort at some time in their lives.

"I was honored that people entrusted me with their stories so many of which were so personal. It was wonderful to know I was working on something that could matter to so many."

The book, which weaves accounts of various caregivers about personal moments, relationships, emotions and expertise through the various stages of the cancer experience, offers a readable and applicable source to those in search of assistance, support or reassurance.

"Caregivers themselves share their learning and stories with the intent of helping other people not feel they have to reinvent the wheel," she said about the book's contents. "The emotion of their stories and experiences are as valuable to the reader as the practical things they share."

Clearly protective and warmhearted about the information she had garnered, Cornwall described how the book had evolved, intertwined with the experiences of those included in the pages and how its purpose had become self evident.

"I hope the emotional aspect is valuable to the reader," said Cornwall. "Emotions are a real and practical thing we share. It is truly an account of human resilience. In a time when we see so much wrong with the world around us, even though people are facing disease, life and death, loss of a sense of control and often struggling with loss and despair there is a sense of the vastness of humanity; the depth of human goodness and all that is right in the human condition is evident in these accounts."

Cornwall sees her journey as oddly connected to the events of Sept. 11, 2001. Her own diagnosis coincided with the time period and simultaneously the business climate and state of the nation also brought her own consulting business to a virtual standstill.

"Looking back I was very fortunate," she said. "Because business and travel had come to a stop in so many ways for months following the terror attacks and it coincided with my treatment, I never had to reschedule things or walk into a meeting and explain where I had been or why I wasn't feeling well or how cancer had interrupted my life."

It was her subsequent work with cancer organizations and connections with those affected by the disease that inspired her to consider compiling information that had not been gathered previously, yet was still seriously needed.

During the process of compiling the book, Cornwall received countless suggestions on how to proceed with her endeavor. "Many were suggestions for good books," she said. "But it would not have been my book. People did not entrust me with their stories to homogenize them. I consider my expertise comes from the people I have talked to. Their stories became part of me."

She explained, despite the terror and devastation of the initial diagnosis, she considers her own cancer experience a relative "non-event.

"Compared to the stories and experiences I have heard since, I realize I was extremely fortunate," she said.

As a result it was not long after she began to contemplate how she would "reinvent" herself and continue to use her professional skills. The cancer cause was the ideal calling.

"Ironically an elderly aunt of mine was an inspiration to me," she said. Cornwall was active prior to and since her own diagnosis in various cancer causes. In existence since 2008, the AstraZeneca Hope Lodge in Boston was one of them, a facility for those involved in outpatient cancer care in the Boston area who travel far from their homes, the Jamaica Plain facility offers lodging for those receiving care at the renowned Boston medical centers in a comfortable, supportive setting. "I would share some of the stories I encountered with my aunt and she suggested I write a book. Here I am years later and her recommendation has become a reality."

The book was recently awarded the 2012 Florida Publishers Association Gold Medal Prize in the self-help category. It was the unanimous prizewinner, chosen by professional librarians on a panel of judges in Florida where there is a large number of independent publishers.

Deborah Cornwall

A local resident for more than 30 years, Cornwall is known widely on the South Shore for her work with the Marshfield, Hanover, Pembroke, Norwell and Duxbury Relay for Life. For the past three years she has not only served as co-chairperson for the event but has coordinated and inspired individuals, organizations and businesses to participate, donate and promote the event which raises hundreds of thousands of dollars annually for the American Cancer Society.

Reflecting on the many encounters she has had researching, writing and now marketing her book, Cornwall expressed gratitude and appreciation for the experience.

"I had no idea where this was going to take me or that it would become a mission," she said. "As I look back, it was parts of a puzzle that have brought me to a wonderful place. This is all a very fulfilling part of who I have become as a result of having written the book."

PAULA J. FATERSIK

People say that there is no love like that of a mother and child and it seems so true in the animal world.

Kitten season continues at Hull Seaside Animal Rescue! This week, we are giving special attention to a sweet mother and son pair. Mommy Mica is a very social, inquisitive and exotic looking young girl. Honestly, she is barely old enough to have had this litter. Baby Jake is one of three wonderfully engaging siblings, two of whom have been placed on hold very quickly. Jake is a wide-eyed little boy, with his kitten blue eyes, just 7 weeks old and is just as cute and sweet as can be. Both he and his mom are small cats and are available for adoption.

At this writing, Mica and Jake are living in a loving foster home where their "parents" have watched them bond. Maybe Jake is her favorite. He certainly adores her. Following her around and nuzzling her lovingly, it seems that they were meant to be together. First born? Last born? Either way, there seems to be a connection here. He just loves her company. People say that there is no love like that of a mother and child and it seems so true in the animal world. Watching the caring, feeding, cleaning and nurturing that a mother cat gives her young, meeting their every need, is both amazing and endearing.

As the cool nights are already upon us, this loving pair would be happy to snuggle up with you and share your loving, warm home. Lazing in a sunny window together or bounding up and down the stairs, chasing toys and running together, your days will be filled with entertainment and joy watching these two adorable felines.

Fall is here, time is flying and as we move closer to the holiday season, this is a wonderful time to consider introducing a new pet into your home. Once we enter November and December, the hectic activities in our homes can be overwhelming to little kittens so if you are thinking of bringing a new pet into your home, this would be a great time to look at the wonderful cats and kittens in our shelter and foster homes. There is a special place in out hearts for every one of our lucky cats and kittens and their adoptive families. You mean the world to them and to us.

Please call Judy at 781-534-4902 to visit Mica and Jake. Visit us during Open Hours on Monday from 6:30-7:30 or Saturday 2-3 p.m. at 50 L. St in Hull. Our office number is 781-925-3121 and you may leave a message or visit out website, www.hsar.org, and click on Available Pets to view more of our cats and kittens on Petfinder.

Our sincere thanks go out to New England Thunder and Star Southeast Chapter 225 for making our Columbus Day weekend so special! These generous motorcycle club members and local merchants who provided many needed items, roared into Hull laden with so many donations, from kitten essentials to office supplies, food, toys and litter as well as cash donations, all were delivered to help us keep our animals happy and healthy. It was very exciting and endearing to see the teamwork, caring and spirit shown by everyone involved. We are just so amazed and appreciative for their support.

We also have some very special folks who have adopted from HSAR and continue to be involved, donating on a regular basis. While some of you like to remain anonymous, know that we love seeing you at the door, and thank you for opening your home to one of ours, and being there for us.

To our Kittendale's calendar fans, the website is up and running to take your orders for the 2013 issue. Just go to www.kittendales.com to order your holiday gifts! It is tax deductible and goes to a great cause. With rising costs for veterinary care, this fundraiser and donations will help us to keep some of our special needs kitties healthy and comfortable.

Thank you to all of our loyal supporters, volunteers and permanent foster parents who make it all happen.

Paula J. Fatersik is a board member and volunteer at Hull Seaside Animal Rescue.

Horoscope

SALOME'S STARS FOR RELEASE WEEK OF OCT. 22, 2012

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You're eager to Ram headfirst into that new project. But before you do, find out why some of your colleagues might not appear to be as gung-ho about it as you are.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) All that dedicated hard work you've been putting in pays off better than you expected. So go ahead, reward yourself with something befitting a beauty-loving Bovine.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) It's a good time to take on that new challenge. And if your self-confidence is sagging, instead of telling yourself why you can't do it, list all the reasons why you can.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) This is one time when you might want to put some distance between you and the job at hand. It will give you a better perspective on what you've done and still need to do.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Resist that occasional lapse into Leonine laziness that sometimes overtakes the Big Cat. Don't cut corners. Do the job right at this time, or you might have to redo it later.

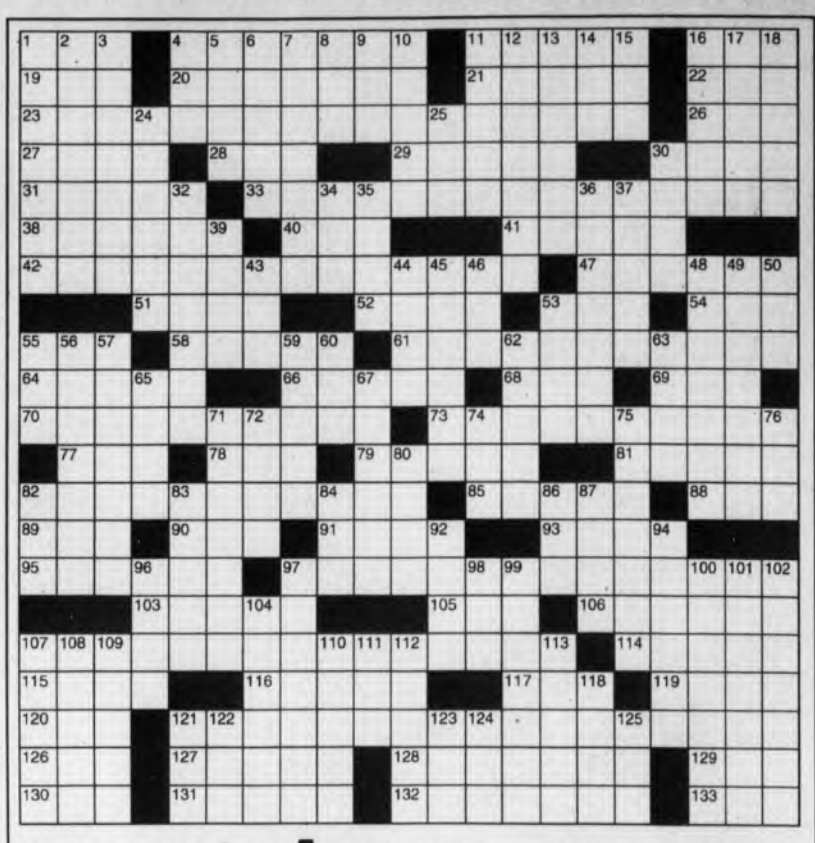
VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) You know how you like to do things. And that's fine. But watch that you don't impose your methods on others. A current financial crunch soon eases.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Someone might try to take advantage of your generosity. But before your sensitivity toward others overwhelms your good sense, check his or her story out carefully.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Your strong Scorpian sense of fairness lets you see all sides of a dispute. Continue to remain impartial as you help each person work through his or her particular grievance.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Trust your keen Sagittarian insight to help you see through an offer that might not be all it claims. A closer look could reveal disturbing elements.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) With the Goat exhibiting a more dominant aspect these days, you could find it easier to make your case in front of even the most skeptical audience.



AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Take things nice and easy as you continue to build up your energy reserves for a big change that's coming with the full Hunter's Moon on Oct. 29.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Recent news from someone you trust could help you make an important decision. Also, be prepared to confront an upcoming change in a personal situation.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

DeLuca calls allegations false

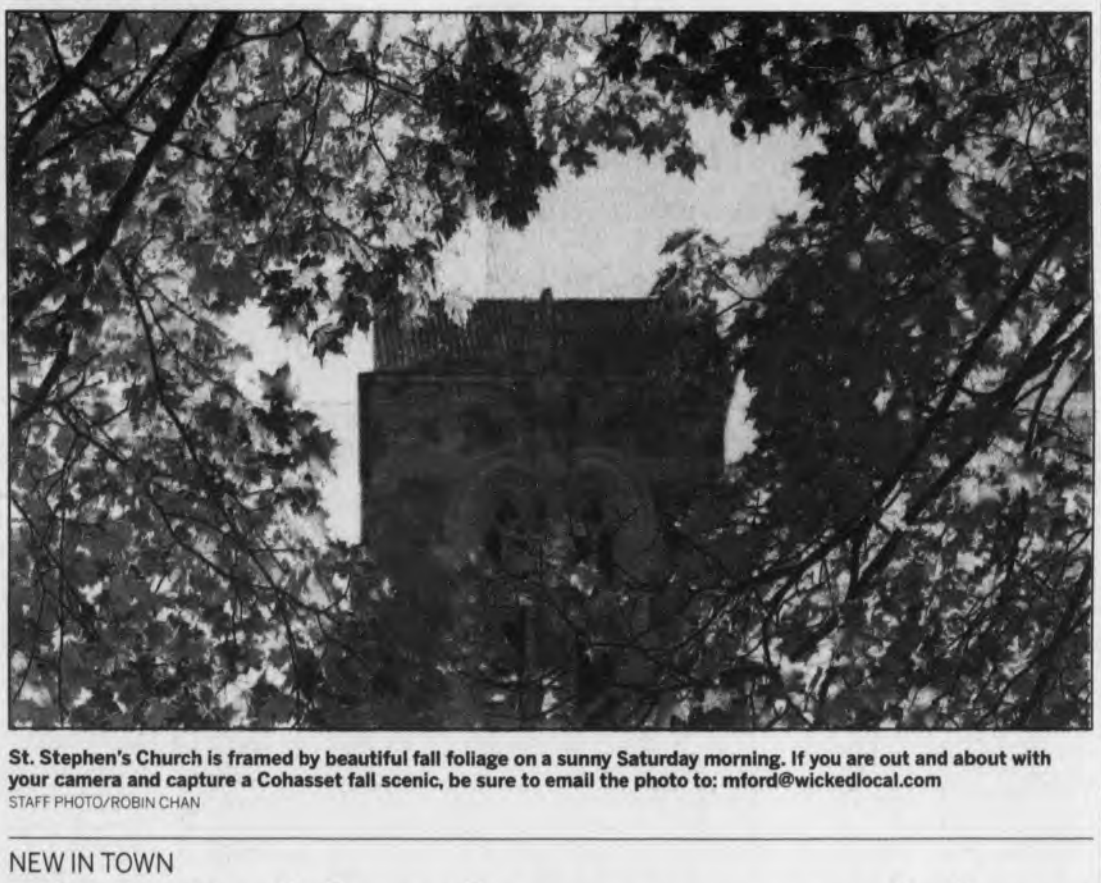
By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

Police Chief Mark DeLuca has been on paid administrative leave since May 25, but is finally speaking out publicly against the 11 allegations levied against him by the Cohasset Police Union. DeLuca said that the complaints made against him, ranging from physical abuse to abuse of power, are all untrue.

"We brought forth a list of allegations backed up by evidence and a thorough investigation. We're still waiting for a result of the town's investigation."
Officer Patrick Reardon, union president

DeLuca told the Boston Globe this week that he is planning to fight for his job, and that everything alleged against him "is a lie."

While multiple calls to DeLuca were not returned before press time, his comments to the Globe and Patriot Ledger were made shortly after blogs published posts last week about Richard Sjoberg, the private investigator hired by Cohasset's Town Counsel to investigate DeLuca, and Sjoberg's firing as a Weymouth police officer following a sex scandal nearly 20 years ago.



Cohasset Police Union president Patrick Reardon said of DeLuca's recent comments to the press, "We brought forth a list of allegations backed up by evidence and a

New lease

Children's Museum ready to sign with town

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

The town might grant Our World a new lease soon.

After getting a one-month extension when their 10-year lease with the town was set to expire, the directors and owners of the Our World Children's Global Discovery Museum have tentatively agreed to a new lease proposed by Acting Town Manager Michael Milanoski.

The news follows a public dispute between Our World and the library over the use of the 7,000 square foot, two-story space. Our World is located in the rear of the Paul Pratt Memorial Library at 100 Sohier Street, in what used to be a condemned wing in the former Osgood School.

A draft of the lease was given to the Board of Selectmen this week, but Our World's attorney Charles Humphreys told Milanoski that his clients could not live with the lease as proposed. He since met with Milanoski, and the town manager reported Tuesday night that the lease has been revised.

Milanoski said that he and Humphreys met for a few hours earlier in the week and "made modifications" to the lease. "I'm waiting for Charles Humphreys to confirm the changes with his clients."

Milanoski will ask the selectmen to vote on the lease at their Tues., Oct. 30 meeting. It also happens to be the same day the museum's current, extended lease expires.

The museum was organized in 2001 as a non-profit shortly after the Oct. 2000 Special Town Meeting approved leasing the wing to the discovery center. Our World officially opened its doors in 2003. The agreement was for the town to lease the

First Parish welcomes new minister

Rev. Cowie comes to Cohasset

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

The new minister at First Parish on North Main Street may have grown up "unchurched," but she has since learned a thing or two about spirituality, religion and community.

After a two-year search for a new minister following Reverend Jan Carlsson-Bull's departure in 2010, First Parish welcomed the Rev. Jill Cowie this fall. Cowie most recently served as part-time minister of the Unitarian-Universalist Society of Martha's Vineyard.

Having grown up on the water, Cohasset is a natural fit for Cowie, who resides in Marshfield with her husband, Ben, and twins Adam and Laura, 17.

"I live on the South Shore and understand the rhythms of a seaside community," said Cowie.

The reverend said that she grew up in the New York Finger Lakes area in a small town "where community matters."

Raised "un-churched" by a mother who held a master's degree in social work and a father who worked for Mobile Corporation and advocated for the rights of women and minorities helped shape Cowie and prepare her for a life of ministry.

"There was an expectation to put time and effort into the community," said Cowie.

DID YOU KNOW?

This is deer vs. vehicle season

By Bob Rankin

- The majority of deer-vehicle collisions occur during the months October through December.
- Most incidents occur two hours before sunrise and after sunset. This is when darkness makes it harder to see them.
- With Whitney Woods and Wompatuck State Park on the west side of Route 3A deer have a natural habitat. Rut (mating) season, a change in seasons, and diminishing food supply cause deer to shift habits.
- Deer are seen along Route 3A and in neighborhoods.

Avoid hitting a deer by:

- Being aware of where they are frequently seen.
- Reducing your speed at night. Keep your eyes moving.
- Using high beams to expand your field of vision.
- Be prepared to brake.
- Remember: Deer are unpredictable. Deer often travel in pairs or groups. If you see one deer cross the road another may follow.

Bob Rankin is a Cohasset resident with an interest in public service journalism.

TRAFFIC TALK

Officials review trouble in village, 3A intersection

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

The village is losing a few parking spaces to make room for commercial vehicles.

The change is the result of the Board of Selectmen, Acting Town Manager, and the police department's traffic safety unit exploring traffic issues in the village and at a dangerous intersection in Cohasset.

The safety unit, consisting of traffic officer Sgt. Jeff Treanor and Deputy Police Chief William Quigley, reported that they have received numerous complaints about delivery trucks blocking the flow of traffic on Depot Court and the town parking lot.

The unit suggested posting new signage in the village that would limit the use of three parking spaces on Ripley Road and take over an unlined space on Depot Court.

According to the traffic report, delivery trucks for businesses on Depot Ct. and Ripley Rd. create gridlock on weekday mornings and block access to Route 3A. This is especially dangerous for public safety vehicles, notably a fire engine apparatus, that need to get to the highway.

Treanor said that while sometimes, smaller delivery trucks appear, often times large 18-wheelers block the road. "There's not a lot of room down there for these types of vehicles."

The officers proposed posting "commercial loading zone" signs for commercial vehicles only from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. This will create two loading zones for delivery trucks, one at three spaces on Ripley Rd. across from Pat's Barber Shop, the second in an unlined space on Depot Ct. between Mangia and Mr. Dooley's.

While doing so will take away three one-hour parking spots, the officers said that according to their traffic study, theses spots are a "dead zone" and often go unused. The smaller zone on Depot Ct. would be designated for smaller delivery vehicles.

Selectmen were at first reluctant to take away any village parking spaces, but acknowledged the need to remediate the traffic problem.

The safety unit, consisting of traffic officer Sgt. Jeff Treanor and Deputy Police Chief William Quigley, reported that they have received numerous complaints about delivery trucks blocking the flow of traffic on Depot Court and the town parking lot.

"It's a tight village, but that's part of the special-ness of it," said selectmen vice chair Diane Kennedy.

"We're a victim of our own success," said Treanor. "We have a very robust village and very few spaces to put people."

Acting Town Manager Michael Milanoski said that the new commercial loading zone signs will not be posted for another few weeks.

Business that would have use of the loading zone are Ava Cucina, Fresh Feast, Lido Juice Bar, Mr. Dooleys, Mangia, and 5 South Main. The officers noted that several village merchants have indicated that they are willing to share in the cost of lining off the parking spaces to create the loading zone.

Toll Brothers project

The traffic safety unit also looked into the Toll Brothers home building project on the former Cedarmere site off Beechwood Street. Officials have stated before that Beechwood/Route 3A is a dangerous intersection and warranted a thorough traffic review.

The area is a cause for concern because of numerous accidents over the years, including a double fatality in 1997, according to Deputy Chief Quigley.

The building project requires Planning Board approval, but ensuring the roadway is safe lies under the jurisdiction of the selectmen. In order to move forward with the project, the Toll Brothers must make a good faith effort to present to the selectmen. Representatives from the Toll Brothers have been trying to get on the selectmen's agenda for a few weeks, but Milanoski explained that he is awaiting a full report from them so he can present complete information to the selectmen.

While the town manager said that he has met with the Toll Bros. attorney Richard Henderson recently, "I was waiting to have all the information from our discussion before putting it on the agenda for the board vote, and discussed with the chairman of the board of selectmen that I wanted to have a full package before we schedule for a public hearing," said Milanoski.

David Bower, Toll Bros. vice president, attended Tuesday's selectmen meeting and said that he did not attend Henderson's meeting with Milanoski, which was also attended by the town's new Director of Project Management and Planning Brian Joyce.

Furthermore, Bower said that he did not authorize any plans that are being developed as a result of this meeting. However, the VP said he did meet with Milanoski last week, and the documents Milanoski gave him are being "analyzed internally." He said he hopes to get back to the town manager within the week and to present to the selectmen during their Oct. 30 meeting.

Milanoski explained the importance of making a plan for this intersection before new buildings go up.

"It's a dangerous intersection in Cohasset that's already failing, and the Toll Brothers are going to put 90 percent of their capacity [there]," the town manager said. "They need to help us mitigate if they're going to put increased volume at an intersection with multiple fatalities."

Kennedy noted that while the selectmen have jurisdiction with respect to road and sidewalk issues, "Toll Brothers is responsible to do due diligence to get before us with a plan. Their permitting is strictly in the hands of the planning board, and they have to prove to the planning board that they made every effort to have a meeting with us."

POLICE BEAT

Car hits traffic island by train crossing

By Mary Ford
mford@wickedlocal.com

Police responded to a single-car accident at 9:49 a.m. on Monday (Oct. 15) on North Main Street at the grade crossing. Police said a 58-year-old Hull woman in a 2006 Mercedes SUV turned left out of the Greenbush parking lot onto North Main Street when she looked into the rear-view mirror for a few seconds and was not watching the road. She hit the traffic island near the railroad tracks crossing and did substantial damage to a tire and undercarriage of her vehicle. The SUV had to be towed; she was not injured. The MBTA was notified but there were no trains in the area at the time.

Bracelet

Police are working with the mother of a 9-year-old autistic boy to obtain a special bracelet with an alarm should the boy wander. He is old enough now to undo locks and walk out of his Avalon apartment. Police have been called twice by concerned passersby who have seen the boy near Route 3A. Last week a concerned person, who saw the boy chasing a balloon near the highway, called police.

Police have a receiver that can track the bracelet should the boy wander or get lost.

Expired plates

An officer on patrol in the area along Chief Justice Cushing Highway by the train station spotted a 2011 Land Rover SUV pass by his location with plates that had expired last month. He pulled the vehicle over. The car was towed and police gave the 46-year-old Cohasset woman, who was driving, a ride home.

Zero tolerance

Police remind residents that they have a "no tolerance" policy for anyone who is trespassing along the right-of-way by the railroad tracks. The fire chief notified police last Monday (Oct. 8) about a man along the tracks near the North Main Street grade crossing. By the time police arrived the man was gone. They notified Hingham police who checked the right-of-way in their town but had no success either.

Police said trespassers along the right-of-way are subject to arrest.

Car fire

A 77-year-old Cohasset woman in 1991 Honda Civic pulled next to the police station last Wednesday around 11:26 a.m. and went inside to report that her car was smoking and thought it was on fire.

An officer used a fire extinguisher to put out the fire and the fire department followed up to be sure it was extinguished. The car was towed.

Not towed

An officer on patrol on Sohier Street pulled over a 2010 Jeep Patriot that passed by going 45 in a 30 mph zone around 1:41 p.m. on Wednesday (Oct. 10). Further investigation revealed the 50-year-old Cohasset man who was driving had a suspended license. A wrecker was called to pick up the vehicle but the man's wife arrived paid a "drop" fee to the towing company and drive the car home. The man is being summonsed to court for operating with a suspended license.

Drug report

A concerned citizen walked into the police station last Thursday around 6:30 p.m. to report a possible drug transaction in the pocket park on South Main Street between Tedeschi's and French Memories. The citizen reported he thought he witnessed a hand-to-hand drug transaction between a blonde teen in a red hoodie and three girls and three boys. The group had left when police arrived by the incident is under investigation.

Gun missing

A 24-year-old Cohasset man went to the station on Saturday (Oct. 13) to report that his 9 mm Beretta handgun was missing from his garage. Police said the man is licensed to carry and reported that he had the gun properly stored in that it was unloaded and the trigger was locked. He had put the gun, which was in a black, metal firearms box, on a shelf in his garage because he had workers at his house. Police entered the gun into the NCIC (National Crime Information Center) database as stolen.

Traffic

Police will be stepping up patrols and will use the speed board in response to recent complaints about speeding and erratic driving along Jerusalem Road between Howe Road and Hull Street. Police said concerned residents could email the traffic safety officer, Sergeant Jeffrey Treanor at jtreanor@cohassetpolice.com with traffic concerns.

Election signs

Police received two complaints last week, one from a resident on Lantern Lane and the other from Beach Street about political signs being stolen from their yards.

K-9 help

Scituate police requested mutual aid from Cohasset's K-9 unit at 3:45 a.m. last Saturday (Oct. 13) to help track those who had abandoned a stolen car on Central Park Drive in that town. Officer Patrick Reardon, who is a K-9 officer, was working the midnight shift and went over to help Scituate. Police were unable to track the suspect(s).

OUR WORLD

building to Our World for $1 per year until the museum became financially stable. Through private fundraising, the space was renovated and turned into Our World to the tune of $90,000.

Library trustees and staff members have said that their understanding was that once the 10-year lease expired, the Our World space would be given back to the library. Growth in library programs over the years, including student tutoring and the popular author's talks, have necessitated the two groups working together to share the space.

The town published a request for proposals (RFP) for the space, and Our World was the only responder. The selectmen voted to extend the museum's lease, which was set to expire in September, through the month of October while the RFP was revised and the lease finalized.

The new lease, while not yet voted upon, would continue leasing the space for $1 per year; the last draft has the lease ending on Sept. 30, 2017. However, Humphreys asked for an automatic 10-year renewal of the lease if Our World conforms to performance standards outlined by the town, including paying for utilities and hiring part-time staff (the museum has relied on volunteers for the past decade, a practice the selectmen called unsustainable). There was talk at the Sept. 18 selectmen meeting of having a five-year release with a review before granting an additional five years.

In the event the lease is not renewed, Our World would like to retain the right to remove the original $790,000 worth of improvements made on the building; the draft of the lease said that the town would own any improvements made by the tenant, unless those improvements are removed prior to the lease's termination.

Library trustee Agnes McCann responded to the draft in an email to the selectmen, and said that the Our World portion of the utilities bill should cost around $1,500 per month. She also noted that the lease state's the tenant's use as "education of children."

McCann called this "a striking departure from the original purpose, and causes me great concern. We should talk about that as a town. Sounds like selling public space for private tutoring business."

Our World in its mission statement says it was founded to "create educational awareness," and functions as an "educational and social learning center" for children aged one to eight.

Humphreys said in a phone call that his clients are "more or less prepared to sign" the lease.

While Our World's attorney explained, "Early iterations of the lease we're not satisfactory and required some work, he and his clients are "relatively satisfied" now.

UPDATE

Special Town Meeting draft warrant

Acting Town Manager Michael Milanoski will present a draft article warrant for the fall Special Town Meeting to the Board of Selectmen during their Oct. 30 meeting. Special Town Meeting is scheduled for Monday, Dec. 10 at 6:30 p.m.

Milanoski said that the warrant will consist of several routine articles, including unpaid bills from previous years; new projects or old ones that require additional funding; the fiscal year 2013 operating budget. There will also be an Alternative Energy article on the solar panel project; articles seeking to allocate free cash into the town's stabilization fund, Other Post-Employment Benefits (OPEB) trust fund, and phase one of the town-wide IT (information technology) plan; amendments to the water and sewer enterprise funds; and recommendation's from the town's Governance Committee.

Veterinarian bylaw

The Selectmen voted unanimously to approve an article submitted by the Planning Board that asks for a language change in the town bylaw that deals with the classification of veterinary clinics and hospitals. Changing the language would make it possible for retail pet grooming businesses or offices for domestic pets to open in a commercial zone along 3A that is currently prohibited in the bylaw.

559 JERUSALEM ROAD

Permit denial to be tried in Superior Court

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

The ongoing saga involving a proposal to build a house at 559 Jerusalem Road, which has sparked a neighborhood dispute over the past several months, will likely continue in court.

Those involved in the dispute include the property owners, who got the OK for a sewer permit but have been denied stormwater and wetlands permits; the Conservation Commission, who denied the latter permits and say they are protecting Straits Pond, which the property is in close proximity to, and upholding the local wetlands bylaw; and abutter Peter DeCaprio, who believes Ford did not follow the proper process to obtain his sewer permit and disagrees with the Con Com for re-opening the hearing on the project after they initially closed it in May.

Two weeks ago, the applicants for a residential house project at 559 Jerusalem Road — brothers Chris and Ted Ford — withdrew their request to reopen the hearing before the Con Com. As the Mariner previously reported, the Con Com had denied the Fords' stormwater and wetlands permit applications after several meetings on the matter, stating that they did not address the commission's concerns to protect the nearby waterway, Straits Pond.

After the Fords withdrew their application, the Con Com met and held their scheduled public hearing on Oct. 4. However, since Chris Ford, who has been pursuing the matter on behalf of his brother who lives in California, and his attorney, Charles Humphreys, were not present, Con Com chair Jack Creighton did not allow public comment (abutter Peter DeCaprio and his attorney, Jay Talerman, were present, along with members of the Straits Pond Watershed Association).

The hearing was scheduled to continue at the Thursday, Oct. 18 Con Com meeting as of press time.

Prior to asking the Con Com to re-open the hearing after denying a stormwater permit, the Fords appealed the matter to the state Dept. of Environmental Protection (DEP) and the Norfolk County Superior Court, and served the commissioners with court summonses. One of the issues is that the Fords believed the Con Com decision to deny the permit was an uninformed one, as not all of the commissioners attended every hearing on the subject. However, Creighton said that each of the commissioners who missed a hearing reviewed all of the corresponding documents and signed an affidavit.

After the Con Com voted during their Sept. 6 meeting to re-open the hearing, the Fords' attorney said they would hold off on either DEP or court action.

DeCaprio said at the time that the commission was making a decision with a lawsuit over their heads. Creighton said that Ford and Humphreys approached him separately and asked to limit the scope of the re-opened hearing to answer only the questions the commission had about wetlands protection. However, Creighton explained that a re-opened hearing would consider all the issues.

Now that the Fords have chosen to withdraw their application, Humphreys wrote in a letter to Acting Town Manager Michael Milanoski dated Oct. 4 that they will no longer wait to get the DEP and Superior Court involved.

"Our agreement to stay the DEP and Superior Court action is terminated by virtue of their withdrawal from the re-hearing," Humphreys wrote.

However, the Fords' attorney continued, "...the Town's interest should not be adversely affected by the stay. I agree on behalf of my clients that the Town shall have 20 days from your receipt of this letter to file an answer, and the Town's obligation to assemble and file the record of proceedings is correspondingly extended from your date of receipt."

Following a request for town counsel to contact him to discuss the record assembly, Humphreys wrote, "I am sure it is disappointing to all that the matter was not resolved locally."

Ford said last week that he and his brother wanted to complete their project in "an unbiased environment."

Milanoski told the Board of Selectmen during their Tuesday meeting that he has put Town Counsel on the matter, as it will be tried in Superior Court.

Humphreys said in a phone call Wednesday that he and his client would likely attend Thursday's hearing before the Con Com.

BRIEFLY

Town Manager's contract update

The Board of Selectmen met in a long executive session after their public meeting Tuesday night to discuss extending Acting Town Manager Michael Milanoski's employment contract. This item was listed on the agenda under the Town Manager Update and requested action.

However, Selectmen chair Paul Carlson said that the item would be discussed in a closed session under exceptions 2 and 3 of the Open Meeting Law, for purposes of discussing strategy with respect to preparation for negotiations with union and non-union personnel that may have a detrimental effect on the bargaining position of the town if held in open session.

MINISTER

"And growing up on a lake, there was a sense of being part of the natural environment."

First Parish's new minister, who was ordained into the Unitarian-Universalist denomination in 2010, noted that the Cohasset community shares similar values.

"There's an emphasis on taking care of the natural environment," she said. "The town invests in its people and education."

One of the draws to congregation of First Parish, said Cowie, was "the vibrant sense of history."

The reverend's journey to Cohasset – and becoming a reverend at all – is long one, although she can boast a long history of working to help other people. Cowie spent a decade working in economic development job training before taking seven years off to have her kids—she has two sets of twins, including Kate and Morgan, 19, and has a twin brother herself.

"Most people stop after one set of twins, but I wanted to have a mixed-age family," she said.

While Cowie learned about helping people from her "do-gooder" parents, she observed from watching her mother toil in the social work field that this type of service "could only do so much."

Cowie felt called to ministry because she wanted to engage people and help them find a "change of heart, tapping into the core energy of self and vision."

The reverend was drawn to Unitarian-Universalism because of its pursuit of truth and emphasis on progressive values and community, she said. The denomination draws from "multiple wisdom sources" including liberal Christianity, Buddhism and humanism, Cowie explained.

Core values of the church include that "God is love and loves everybody no matter what," and that "God is within each of us."

While she grew up in a town without a church and never attended as a child, Cowie's father was Unitarian, and she and her husband were married by a Unitarian-Universalist minister. They also had their children dedicated at the U-U church in Duxbury.

But when it came time to exploring religion and spirituality for her own edification, Cowie said that she did so "with an open mind and a beginner's mind."

Cowie eventually went back to school to become an ordained minister, and involved her kids in the process.

"They got a kick out of me going back to school," she said, adding that they participated in many study sessions with her. One of her daughters even told her that she could see her mother "coming into my own," said Cowie. "It made me cry."

Having grown up on the water, Cohasset is a natural fit for the Rev. Jill Cowie, minister of First Parish Church.

First Parish's new minister describes her congregation as a vibrant, passionate one in many areas, including education and music.

Describing the youth group program as "hands-on," Cowie said that she is proud to watch the church's high school seniors get involved in social justice issues. She said they might coordinate a mission trip to New Orleans next year. The reverend said that while getting youth involved is important, the future direction of the church is to create more inter-generational missions opportunities.

Cowie noted that there is a youth program that helps with the transition from middle to high school that "honors well the life phases and transitions." Another important program for that age group is called "Our Whole Lives" and tackles sex education for seventh and eighth graders.

The reverend explained that the U-U congregation is one that likes to celebrate life. The church explores "meaning-making" through music, and has a regular concert series featuring professional musicians.

"Our music program is outstanding," said Cowie, adding that the church's choir is also outstanding, and "we are always looking for people to join."

When asked if, as the church's new minister, she has a goal to grow the congregation, Cowie said that her goal is to not necessarily increase the number of bodies in the church, but to "increase the spiritual experience here and draw people into that type of expression."

Of course, "We always welcome new people," said Cowie. "We want to be a community that's growing spiritually."

The reverend noted that LGBT rights are important to the church, and that First Parish is a welcoming place. Cowie explained that the first and last of the seven tenants of the U-U movement align with these values. The first tenant states "the inherent worth and dignity of every person," while the last stresses "respect for the interdependent web of existence of which we are all part."

Cowie said that this value ties into the environment, too, and one reason she's adamant about protecting it. "I have a sense of accountability to not create mounds of garbage; we live in a finite world."

It's fitting, then, that the reverend is married to the president of Sustainable South Shore, Ben Cowie-Haskill. The reverend said that she and her family enjoy getting out in the natural world, kayaking, hiking the mountains of New Hampshire, or just taking out their 17-foot motorboat.

It sounds like the minister enjoys tranquil pastimes; it also sounds like she takes a similarly peaceful approach to her sermon writing. When asked about her writing process, Cowie explained that it's relatively informal, with the topics being thematic.

"I lay out a journey," she said of her sermons. "In September I focused on pilgrimages... October is about engagement. November is about inheritance; December is about incarnation."

Cowie's goal with her sermons, she said, is to have them "match up with the rhythm of what's happening around us."

As she settles into her new role in Cohasset, it seems that Cowie has already fallen into a comfortable rhythm here.

GIVING BACK

Cohasset firefighters 'Fill the Boot'

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

This weekend, Cohasset's firefighters are taking part in the Fill-the-Boot drive for the Muscular Dystrophy Association (MDA). The drive takes place on both Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 20 and 21, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. at Stop & Shop.

The fire department participates in the charity drive through the International Association of Fire Fighters (IAFF) each year. Last year, according to Cohasset firefighter/paramedic Rob Forde, the department raised $3,100 for the MDA.

This year, Forde is hoping they can top that amount. With $2,500 raised over the summer from drives at the South Shore Music Circus and a similar drive at Stop & Shop on Labor Day weekend, they're on their way to matching or beating last year's total. Any donation amount is appreciated.

While the IAFF has been raising funds to help families facing muscular dystrophy for decades, the issue is close to home for many Cohasseters. Forde has become quite the advocate for the cause because of one very special family in town.

"I got hooked on it," Forde said of fundraising, "especially when I met the Smith boys." The Smith brothers of Cohasset, 10-year-old Gregory and 7-year-old Daniel, have both had neuromuscular diseases since they were little and are both ambassadors for the MDA.

"It's unbelievable how far they've come," Forde said of the Smith boys, who often participate in the Fill-the-Boot drive. "They're inspiring."

For the Smith Brothers, the feeling is mutual when it comes to Forde.

MDA ambassadors Daniel Smith, 7, and his brother Gregory, 10, have fun at Fill-the-Boot.

Gregory said that Forde is truly dedicated to the cause. "He means it with his whole heart and he spends a lot of time having 'Fill the Boots.' Plus, he is friendly and asks how everything is going all the time."

Daniel had high praise for Forde: "He is the best firefighter and the strongest, too."

The drive at Stop & Shot on Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 20 and 21, also offers kids a chance to "Touch-a-Truck." Kids can try on gear and sit behind the wheel of the engine.

This is a way to bring a little family fun to the charity drive, said Forde. "It makes me feel like I'm doing something that's special."

If you go

Fill-the-Boot facts

The International Association of Fire Fighters' (IAFF) Fill-the-Boot campaign for the Muscular Dystrophy Association (MDA) is a time-honored summer fundraising tradition. Each year, members of hundreds of IAFF locals across the country invite the public at intersections, malls and sporting events to fill a firefighter's boot with donations for MDA. And, in the spirit of service and friendly competition, firefighters vie to raise the most money for MDA.

Founded by the late fire fighter George Graney, Fill-the-Boot began in 1953 when a friend, Charlie Crowley, approached Graney in South Boston. Crowley needed money to take care of his two sons with muscular dystrophy, so Graney rounded up 20 fire fighters and started a door-to-door canister drive, raising $5,000.

Since taking up the MDA cause nationwide in 1954, firefighters have raised nearly $375 million for MDA's lifesaving research, services and information programs. In 2011, Fill-the-Boot campaigns helped fire fighters raise $27 million — the highest yearly contribution from an MDA sponsor. The IAFF is MDA's largest sponsor. – Muscular Dystrophy Association

Just two weeks left to get tickets

What can you expect to see this year? "Razzle Dazzle & More" will be an up tempo musical revue that will provide a variety of numbers from Broadway and movie musicals. The show will be comprised of solo and group numbers, comedy, tap, dance and a barbershop quartet. To start off the audience will see and hear "Razzle Dazzle" from "Hello Dolly." I believe you will really enjoy the very moving song Freedom, from the musical "Shenandoah." Just wait till you hear the medley of love songs and the classic Barry Manilow hit "One Voice." To top off a night of entertainment "When the Saints Go Marchin In" will be presented, which the audience loved last year. If this is one's first time seeing the show, you are in luck, as we plan to end the show again this year with this rousing version. The cast will include some familiar faces from prior shows and performers from the Showstoppers organization.

Attendees can try their luck at the raffle and silent auction table, which will have items from local artists and merchants.

Attendees can try their luck at the raffle and silent auction table, which will have items from local artists and merchants. Audience members are encouraged to bring their own snacks cabaret style. There will be a cash bar serving wine, beer and soft drinks. Cohasset Cabaret is sponsored by The Friends of Cohasset Elder Affairs and will benefit the Friends and St. Anthony's Youth Ministry.

Tickets are on sale now and the cost is $25. Tickets can be purchased at St. Anthony's Parish Hall office and the CEA office at South Shore Community Center. Call 781-413-7540 for more information.

AROUND TOWN

Maria Buckley earns recognition

JENNIFER PIEPENBRINK

Greetings

Hi Cohasset, what is everyone doing for the upcoming week? It sounds like the options are many around the South Shore, I hope that you all find at least on thing that makes you smile.

Scholar

Maria Buckley of Cohasset, a senior at Montrose School in Medfield, has been named a 2012-13 National Hispanic Recognition Program Scholar.

Maria, the daughter of Peter and Emilia Buckley, was one of 253,000 Hispanic or Latino students who competed to be a National Hispanic Recognition Program Scholar by taking the 2011 Preliminary SAT/National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test.

She was one of only 5,000 high school seniors selected as a Scholar from this pool. To be considered for this honor, students must have a grade point average of at least 3.5, as well as an excellent score on the PSAT/NMSQT.

Congratulations to Maria on this exceptional academic accomplishment.

Library

Here are some events that are coming up at the Paul Pratt Library that may interest many. Come join the group for coffee and a discussion of "Lost in Shangri-La." by Mitchell Zuckoff on Wed., Oct 31 at 10 am.

Another event coming a few days after that on Nov 2, at 11 am, is a free movie for all who want to come enjoy and the name of the movie is, "Eat, Pray, Love." starring Julia Roberts. Light refreshments will be served, courtesy of the Friends of the Cohasset Library.

Last, but by no means least on Sunday, Nov 4, at 4pm, the Sunday Author Talk will take place. Author Mitchell Zuckoff will talk about his new book, "Loat in Shagri-La," followed by a wine and cheese reception, conversation with the author and book signing. Seating is limited for this free event so please call to reserve your spot. 781-383-1348.

The Library is also hosting a Cookie Swap in Wed., Nov 7 at 10:30 am. Bake a batch of cookies and share the recipe with others while you get to taste all of their yummy goodies as well.

On stage

The Cohasset Dramatic Club is getting ready for the November performances of "Steel Magnolias." The show has a wonderful and talented cast with two Cohasset residents, Lisa Pratt and Barb Baumgarten. Show dates are Nov 9, 10, 16, 17 at 7:30 pm and Nov 11 and Nov 18 at 2: pm. All performances take place at the Cohasset Town Hall Theatre. Tickets may be purchased at the door as well as at PaperScapes in Cohasset Village and Buttonwood Books & Toys. You may also reserve your tickets by calling 617-922-0280. For more info, go to www.cohassetdramaticclub.org

Play date

Don't forget all parents and caregivers of young children of the great program being offered on Friday mornings, from 9:30-11 am in St. Anthony's Parish Center. This is for fellowship and community, planned weekly and you can come together to spend some time with other adults while the children have fun with each other. All are welcome and if you have any questions or comments, send them to Susan Donahue at susanmdonahue@comcast net

That is the news for this week Cohasset. Send in all your news, photos and celebration info to me no later than Tuesdays by 5 pm.

Just an FYI. We receive dean's list and honors notices from many colleges and private schools, but not all. If your son or daughter has earned recognition, please share that news directly with us!

We also LOVE new baby announcements with photos if possible. Need birth date, weight, length, names of siblings, parents and grandparents. Emailed photos are fine but glossies can be dropped off at Tedeschi's in the village in our Mariner drop box.

2000+ more pumpkins

Late yesterday afternoon, a dedicated group of Cohasset Appalachia Service Project volunteers and friends helped add just over 2,000 more pumpkins to Phil Lehr's "cat" design at the Pumpkin Patch on North Main Street. The Patch is open daily, 10 a.m. to 7 p.m., through Oct. 31.

Last Sunday night, this year's volunteers attended a Stock Workshop where they gathered to write personal letters to family and friends offering personal stock options in CASP. Approximately 300 envelopes were stuffed and then placed in the mail this week. To buy stock in Cohasset Appalachia Service Project, please visit the CASP website (below) and click on "support" and follow the instructions.

CASP also extends a warm welcome to members of the Youth Group from St. John's Episcopal Church in Hingham who will be joining them this year. While ASP Inc., their parent organization is a Christian, faith-based ministry, CASP welcomes all – no matter their religious background (if any). Anyone with a desire simply to make this world a better place by serving in and making connections with a unique culture is encouraged to sign on!

For further information, please visit the CASP website: www.CohassetASP.org.

Details concerning the parent organization, Appalachia Service Project Inc. can be explored at www.ASPhome.org.

CASP 2013 Handbooks may be picked up in the Cohasset High School office or by calling 781-383-0345 for other options. All registration forms can also be found on the CASP website. Upon request, financial aid will be considered on a case-by-case basis.

Halloween fair is Sunday

The South Shore Community Center Nursery School will hold its annual Halloween Fair on Cohasset Town Common from 2 to 4 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 21. There will be a Costume Parade at 1:45 p.m. Children should meet on the Cohasset Town Common and parade around the pond with their favorite witch. Bring the family and enjoy Knuckle Bones activities, a dance party, games, slides, hayrides, prizes and the bake sale.

EAST COAST OPEN WATER CHAMPIONSHIP

CMI rowers make a splash!

Last Saturday the temperatures were hovering around the freezing mark as three boats of Cohasset rowers and a few cars of spectators made the trip down to the East Coast Open Water Championship 2012 Rowing Event hosted by the Saquish Rowing Club. The four-mile race, the primary yearly fundraiser for Team Saquish Rowing Education Society, began at 10 a.m. off Nelson's Beach, just north of Plymouth's historic waterfront district.

Cohasset Maritime Institute (CMI) had three Mainville 26 Pilot Gigs (four sliding seats with sweep oars, plus cox'n) entered. Youth Boat 1 included cox'n/coach John Liffmann and student rowers Christine Guinee (stroke), Melissa Alves, Harrison Durant, and Ross Erler. Youth Boat 2 included cox'n/coach Betts Murray. and student rowers Taylor Frederick (stroke), Morgan Fechter, Jillian Ahern and Ben Moy. The CMI adult men's boat included Pete Comrack, Mike Novak, Paul Gratta, Mike Pecca and George Bushnell.

CMI's youth boat 1 had the fastest time among all the entrants; in fact, each CMI posted very fast times over the course. This is impressive considering that for most of the youth rowers this was their first race and some have only rowed for a few weeks in the spring or summer of 2012. The CMI fall youth rowing program includes kids in grades 8-11 from Cohasset High School and Notre Dame Academy.

Congratulations to all CMI rowers for a job well done. For more information visit rowcmi.org

LIFE AT CHS

Week of school spirit wraps up

WHITNEY MALONE

This week was especially eventful, being that it was Spirit Week in the high school. As always, the seniors rightfully separated themselves from the rest of the school by dressing in different themes and lining up along the parking lot stairs to cheer on those showing their school spirit. Nevertheless, all grades came together today by dressing in the school colors, blue and white.

Tuesday, juniors and underclassmen put together some cleverly thought-out knight, princess, and jester costumes for Medieval Day, while the Class of 2013 went for a more modern look: 80's workout. At lunch, the seniors, in their neon spandex and leotards, jogged through the cafeteria to pump-up the other students and then continued their workout with a fitness video (on VHS, of course) in the senior lounge.

In school Thursday, students met with their homeroom classes for advisory period. Seniors voted for class superlatives, including "Most School Spirit" and "Life of the Party," which will be announced tonight at the Homecoming Dance. Student council has hired a professional DJ for this year's dance, which should be an exciting change from the usual Glow-Jam theme!

Another exciting change in CHS's history of school spirit was today's pep-rally in the gymnasium. For the first time, students sat by grade and decorated their designated sections of the bleachers in competition of school spirit. The pep-rally also included an amusing choreographed performance from the Cohasset Cheerleading Team combined with some of the senior boys. Certainly, everyone will be pepped-up for the Homecoming game against Rockland tonight!

Unfortunately, this weekend will be much less exciting than the school week for sophomores and juniors taking PSATs Saturday morning. However, they have next week to look forward to, in that Monday after school Concert Band practices will be starting up again and students have two half-days, Wednesday and Thursday!

Whitney Malone is a senior at Cohasset High; her column runs weekly in the Mariner.

GARDEN CLUB

Readers welcome to Tuesday Program

LINDA FRAKER

A mellow Indian summer is the time to carry out new planting, to divide plants in the perennial border and to collect leaves for compost. Of course, we've had a lot of wind and rain too this month, so the relationship with our gardens is not always romantic.

With that in mind, The Community Garden Club of Cohasset has decided that their October General Meeting will stay warm indoors and local resident and member, Gail Saccone will give a photographic show and tell the story of "A Year in the Life of a Garden Club." The club offers a lot of different things during the year including a varied speaker's program for each monthly General Meeting, field trips, fundraisers and outreach to the community. They often forget themselves just how many different things they do and how much fun all these activities are. So, this month it's Movie Morning with coffee and cookies. If any reader would like to join in at 9 a.m., Tuesday (Oct. 23) at the Second Congregational Church, they would be very welcome.

In addition to the monthly General Meetings, at which there is always a speaker, the Community Garden Club also offers horticulture and design workshops each month. This month the club focused on the basics of design, where they thought about balance, proportion, scale and rhythm. To help achieve this, members made a small arrangement that would have to fit into an 8 inch square niche and used flowers, grasses and foliage from their gardens. Nancy Auensen, one of the club's newer members said the following "Just wanted you to know how much I enjoyed the workshop. Making a diminutive flower arrangement was something I had never tackled, or ever really thought about, but I found it easy and a wonderful way to express creativity. It was good to know that our gardens still have such inviting materials that we could include in our projects. Next, I plan to make a second to give to a friend. I am so grateful for the learning opportunity!"

The Community Garden Club of Cohasset is a member of The Garden Club Federation of Massachusetts, which also offers a plethora of different activities and educational courses on gardening and conservation. The club will tell you more about these opportunities in future articles in The Mariner.

OUR VIEW

Second section

There is a lot going on in Cohasset and in our area. Hence, some "news" that might ordinarily appear in the front section of the Mariner, appears in our second section.

Anyone who is number two in their family — (second child, second son, second daughter, second grandchild) – knows that being second is just as important as being first.

Here at the Mariner, we try to give everything that is either generated by us or received by us "good play" in the paper. However, due to the limits of space – not everything fits in the first or "front" section of your Mariner.

While our sports coverage leads the second section of your Mariner (and we are very proud of our sports coverage) – the second section is not solely a sports section.

Even during the summer months when town boards and committees meet less often – we try to fill the second section with local news that is interesting and relevant.

Over the past two weeks our political coverage of regional races and our ongoing coverage during Breast Cancer Awareness Month have appeared in our second section.

Also regularly in our second section are obituaries, the police/fire log, the popular Gimme Shelter column, photo pages, some happenings, school news and much more.

We hope our readers – who may not have children in the schools playing sports – take the time to delve further into our second section to see all that it has to offer.

Making your Mariner easy to navigate is one of our weekly goals. Through the "rail" and index on page one, we try to remind our readers of and direct them to items of potential interest.

We also endeavor to be as consistent as possible so our readers know — through habit — where certain features appear, such as the Police Beat and Around Town, for example.

We are always open to suggestions and welcome feedback from our readers. Please email editor Mary Ford with your thoughts at: mford@wickedlocal.com

We appreciate your support and encourage you to read your entire Cohasset Mariner! Don't forget the Community Classifieds section that includes real estate and auto sales.

If you have submitted an item or article and it has not appeared – please check with us to be sure it has not been misplaced. However, if it is not time-specific, it has probably been held due to space issues in the paper, is in the queue and will appear soon.

TAKE PART

The Cohasset Mariner is building a Readers Advisory Network of e-mail addresses so we can more frequently involve our readers in the content of the newspaper.

Readers, who join the network, may be asked for reactions to stories, ideas for stories or follow-ups, for a digital "person on the street" interview, or for a community commentary.

If you are interested in becoming a member of the network, email Mary Ford at mford@wickedlocal.com. She will answer any questions that you may have. The Mariner promises to remove you immediately from the Readers Advisory Network if you request that we do.

Davis talks about diversity

The following was submitted by Genevieve Davis, Democratic candidate for State Senate:

I was recently interviewed on the lack of diversity in the Massachusetts State House. I was asked if I thought every segment of the population is fairly represented.

This question has stuck with me. It got me thinking about all that I have experienced, working in so many different non-profits with so many different cultures and socio-economic groups.

In my years of experience, it was not unusual for me to work one day beside someone working his or her way out of homelessness and the following day attending a meeting led by a member of the International Accounting Standards Board or the president of a bank.

We all see through filters that begin at birth. I was a teenager during the period depicted in the movie "The Help." While I was blessed with parents who were tolerant, everyone my age saw through the filters of the times.

After I graduated from college, I started working in the financial arena of non-profits where I quickly learned each non-profit had a different culture, a new way of life to appreciate or life situations to improve. The filters that I viewed life through started to fall away. Over time I stopped pre-judging people when I met them.

After 40 years of working in the world of non-profits, I don't have many filters left. I view people on their own merits, listening and responding to a diverse population.

I believe that this is one of the most important things that I bring to the senate.

Hedlund endorsed by PFFM AFL-CIO)

The Committee to Re-elect Senator Robert Hedlund announced the full endorsement from the Professional Fire Fighters of Massachusetts (PFFM AFL-CIO). The Professional Fire Fighters of Massachusetts have endorsed the Senator due to his ability to help safeguard firefighters from those legislators who attempt to, "take our benefits, reduce our staffing and change the way we perform our jobs."

"I am honored to have the support and endorsement from the Professional Fire Fighters of Massachusetts," Hedlund said. "I am proud of the work I have done on behalf of those who put their lives on the line every day to provide us with safety in our communities and it is my plan to keep those people and their families in mind when casting votes in the Legislature."

Hedlund has also been endorsed by the Boston Carmen's Union Local 589, Massachusetts Teachers Association, Massachusetts and Northern New England Laborer's District Council, and others.

The Professional Fire Fighters of Massachusetts (PFFM AFL-CIO), "during their more than 60 years of history, have entrenched themselves in the Legislative process. They have successfully proven themselves as one of the most highly respected labor and lobbying organizations in the Commonwealth and have demonstrated their solidarity by fostering relationships with other labor organizations throughout the State and Country."

Judge Patrick Hurley – A job well done!

SCOTT D. PETERSON

Judge Hurley's reputation as a judge was beyond reproach. Other judges looked to him as a mentor.

Judge Patrick Hurley, the presiding Justice of the Hingham District Court, retired on Oct. 10. He did not go willingly or quietly. State law forces all judges to step down when he or she reaches the mandatory retirement age of 70.

Judge Hurley, a Cohasset resident, devoted his entire professional life to serving the judicial branch. Judge Hurley spent almost 17 years at the Hingham District Court – 1995-2003 as an Associate Justice and 2003 until his retirement as the Presiding Justice. Before his appointment as Associate Justice of the Wrentham District Court in 1984, Judge Hurley served as an Assistant Clerk at the Norfolk Superior Court and as the Clerk to the Supreme Judicial Court. To be sure, Judge Hurley knew the judicial system inside and out.

The red carpet was also rolled out inside the courthouse lobby for Judge Hurley, who served as presiding justice at the Hingham court for many years. STAFF PHOTOS/CHRIS BERNSTEIN

Retiring Chief Justice Patrick Hurley and his wife Cynthia, are honored by state and local police, color guard, court officers, friends and family upon their arrival at Hingham District Court on Wednesday morning (Oct. 10).

Judge Hurley's reputation as a judge was beyond reproach. Other judges looked to him as a mentor. He meted out justice in a fair and impartial manner and his rulings and dispositions were always fitting.

One of his hallmarks, Judge Hurley opened the doors of the courthouse to the community. Hingham's annual Law Day program and the mock trial competitions involving local high school students, to name just two, thrived under his watch.

If you run into Judge Hurley around town in Cohasset or on his boat on Cape Cod, be sure to thank him for his service. Even if you have never met Judge Hurley, you may still recognize him. If ever there was a judge who looked like a judge, it's Pat Hurley.

Scott D. Peterson practices in Hingham and oversees the Law Day program at Hingham District Court.

LIVING WELL

Bullying comes in all shapes and sizes

JOAN F. WRIGHT, CMC

Whether physical or emotional, bullying affects all aspects of one's health. But often, unless it's witnessed, it goes unreported, ignored, or dismissed.

Bullying affects all ages... and all aspects of one's health.

When we hear about bullying, we usually hear about it in terms of young people... the student on the school bus, the mean girls in high school, the college freshman who doesn't quite fit into the dorm's culture. But sadly, we're hearing just as much about bullying among adults in neighborhoods or in the office place. And what may not be as publicly known but even more disturbing, is the senior bully whose presence within senior housing or at senior lunches and events brings out a lifetime of emotional responses, which in turn aggravate or cause physical complications.

Whether physical or emotional, bullying affects all aspects of one's health. But often, unless it's witnessed, it goes unreported, ignored, or dismissed. In fact, workplace bullying is called "the silent epidemic." In surveys completed by the Workplace Bullying Institute, 35 percent of respondents said they had been bullied; of those 40 percent never told anyone about it, and of those who did – 62 percent said nothing was ever done about it.

Yet, the consequences of bullying take its toll not only on the people bullied and the witnesses who work within the bullying environment, but also the workplace and business itself, which is impacted through loss of productivity, absenteeism, and healthcare costs.

In an effort to be more responsive to the repercussions of bullying and other forms of personal violence, the American Medical Association Alliance (AMAA) has designated October as Stop America's Violence Everywhere Month. Resources to address issues such as bullying and domestic violence are available at: http://www.amaalliance.org.

Physical signs of bullying can be obvious: scratches, bruises, torn clothing or books or belongings. But the physical and emotional impact of bullying might be more like melding together an array of puzzle pieces, such as difficulty sleeping; not eating or overeating; refusing to ride the bus and asking for daily rides or choosing to walk a different, longer route; quitting a favorite sport; constant fatigue; headaches; stomachaches; and depression. In adults, the physical signs include much of the above as well as rising blood pressure, increased alcohol consumption, pronounced weight loss, loss of attention or cognitive ability, and agitation and irritability.

What complicates one's physical and emotional well being even further is the feeling that one has no control over the bullying situation. But learning how to respond is a major way to gain control. The website stopbullying.gov is an excellent resource for parents to learn how to help their children if bullied.

But what about adults? And, what about the elder who is bullied? Accessing employee assistance programs (EAP) is one resource within the workplace. Being honest with one's healthcare provider is another recommendation. While that bully may not disappear from the neighborhood, senior center, or workplace, you can fight back figuratively speaking by taking healthy measures to control your blood pressure and combat negative emotional responses such as over-drinking, not eating, not sleeping. Take the power away from the bully by keeping your physical and emotional well being healthy. Easier said than done perhaps, but connecting with healthcare professionals is a good first step.

FOR THE RECORD

Finding out what our readers want

GREGORY MATHIS

Veteran journalists – and I'll lump myself into that group – too often sit around the newsroom talking about what our newspaper readers want and expect from us. We think we have all the answers, especially since many of us have been at it for a rather long period of time. But if we were so smart, why aren't we selling more newspapers?

While there's a plethora of reasons for the decline of newspaper circulation over the last decade, including the growth and power of the Internet and the technological advances with smartphones, we're not as smart as we think we are in terms of what readers want. But you probably already knew that.

The truth is we make a lot of assumptions based on what newspaper readers have always wanted, but times have changed and we've been slow to change in some regards.

The good thing is we pretty much know what our web audience wants. We have detailed analytics at our disposal that tracks all kinds of information. The most useful tells us what stories people click on the most. So we just keep giving them that type of content.

Taking that approach with the newspaper isn't always the simple solution. Most would agree our web audience is different from our print audience. Or at least they want different things from each medium.

Unless there is some kind of media company secret out there that would give us the power Mel Gibson had in "What Women Want," we're not going to be able to hear the deepest, most intimate unspoken thoughts of our audience. Although that would be very helpful.

I've spent the last two-plus years trying to explain the various aspects of our media business through the For the Record column. Past columns have included insight into the redesign of our newspaper in March of 2011, to Extra in Print, Your News and reader-submitted photos, to explaining headlines, opinion pages, online commenting, election policy, police log policy, use of social media, community blogs, and much more.

Instead of sitting around trying to come up with topics I think readers might want to know about, what questions do you have about the newspaper, website, or generally about the way things are done and why?

I would love to be able to answer some of those questions in an upcoming column.

Some basic questions that I have for you that might trigger some questions for me would be:

Why do you read newspapers?

Why don't you read newspapers?

What do you like best about the newspaper?

What do you like least?

Then, on the website side of things...

What do you like about Wicked Local?

What don't you like about Wicked Local?

I could let you know what I think are the answers, or go out into the newsroom and poll my fellow journalists, but I'd like to hear what you have to say.

Please send your questions, comments, or answers to the above questions to gmathis@wickedlocal.com.

Gregory Mathis is editor-in-chief for GateHouse Media New England's South and Cape Cod units.

Absentee ballots available for the state election

Absentee ballots for the State Election on Nov. 6, are available at the Town Clerk's office. Absentee voting may be done during normal office hours until noontime on Monday, Nov. 5, at which time the office will be closed to prepare for the election. If you will be in town on Election Day and you are able to come to the polls you should vote in person. You may vote absentee for the following reasons only:

1. Absence from the town during the hours the polls is open.
2. Physical disability.
3. Religious beliefs, which prevent voting at the polls on Election Day.

The applicant must request an absentee ballot. Applications are available in the Town Clerk's office or a written, signed request can be sent by mail, or hand delivered by the voter or any other person. The application should include the legal voting address of the voter, where the ballot is to be mailed, and the signature of the applicant.

A family member of a person qualified to vote by absentee ballot may apply on behalf of such voter. The applicant shall state his or her relationship to the absentee voter; sign the application under the pains and penalties of perjury and mail or hand deliver the application to the clerk's office. Absentee ballots must be mailed to the voter. Returned ballots should be mailed or can be delivered by an immediate member of the family to the Town Clerk's office by Nov. 6, 2012 to be counted.

Governance to meet in evening

The Cohasset Governance Committee has scheduled a special meeting for Monday, Oct. 29th at 7 p.m. at the Cohasset Middle High School Library to review its discussions to date. Part of the charge of the committee is to review the current Town Manager Act with the goal of having the Act and the town bylaws clearly in concert eliminating any ambiguity between the two.

The committee regularly meets at 7:30 a.m. on Thursday.

DELUCA

thorough investigation. We're still waiting for a result of the town's investigation."

The 11 allegations the union filed against DeLuca have not been shared publicly, except for four general descriptions that Acting Town Manager Michael Milonoski wrote in his suspension letter to DeLuca: "Using your position as chief to secure benefits for which you and others were not entitled to; forging important documents; physical abuse; abusing your authority during an internal affairs investigation."

DeLuca's three-year contract with the town expires at the end of January. His current yearly salary is $136,000. So far, officials have said there are no plans to schedule a public hearing on the matter.

Selectmen chair Paul Carlson said prior to the selectmen meeting Tuesday, "We're on top of the investigation and will not be discussing it tonight."

"It's a personnel matter that is still being reviewed," Milanoski said Wednesday.

Former Cohasset Town Manager Michael Coughlin, who was fired in March, has publicly supported DeLuca and is saying that Sjoberg is not a credible or honorable investigator.

"I have serious questions about the credibility of the investigator," Coughlin said in a phone call Wednesday. "I also think he has a potential bias toward sitting police chiefs. He might have an axe to grind because the Weymouth chief fired him."

Sjoberg was fired from his position as a Weymouth police officer in 1993 after making sex tapes with two different women. The footage was obtained by a fellow officer, according to published reports.

Coughlin also claimed that Deutsch-Williams, the Boston law firm Cohasset retains as Town Counsel, has hired Sjoberg to investigate sitting police chiefs in the past. "I have real concerns about the objectivity of this investigation," he said.

Cohasset Police Chief Mark Deluca walks into the Selectman's Office for his swearing in ceremony in February 2010.

Sjoberg also investigated Milanoski, since DeLuca alleged that the town manager had interfered with a police internal affairs investigation. Milanoski was later exonerated from the allegation.

Milanoski said that Town Counsel hired Sjoberg's firm to conduct the investigation and that they have used the firm in numerous occasions in the past. "He has a stellar record as a private investigator and is investigated by the state police on a regular basis."

Officer Reardon said that during the investigation, Sjoberg "conducted himself in a professional and thorough manner."

In response to the question of what bearing, if any, Sjoberg's past indiscretion has on the investigation into DeLuca, town labor counselor Brian Magner wrote the following in an email: "The Town has conducted a thorough and fair investigation into the allegations involving the police chief. As this investigation and the allegations involve an ongoing personnel matter of a current Town employee, we are prohibited by law from commenting any further."

Coughlin's chief complaint against Sjoberg, besides the sex scandal, is that the investigator did not interview him about two charges against DeLuca involving activity that Coughlin said he authorized.

"It's my opinion that Chief DeLuca's being crucified because he's supported me," said Coughlin. "I was town manager and for whatever reason the political forces in Cohasset didn't like me and then took it out on a whole string of employees."

Coughlin said that when he was town manager, he gave DeLuca permission to do two things that the union reported as abuses of authority: sending a police officer to Logan Airport to drop off luggage for a friend of DeLuca's, and issuing Coughlin's daughter a police I.D. for an internship.

Regarding the luggage incident, Coughlin said he gave DeLuca permission last October to send officer Patrick Reardon to Logan Airport with luggage for special police officer Robert Hayden, who was headed to Ireland. According to Coughlin, the luggage contained medication. (Deputy Police Chief William Quigley explained that a special police officer is part of the reserve force for shifts and details, but that while Hayden was sworn in as a member of the force, he was not on the payroll and there was never any background investigation conducted on him).

Coughlin also said that while he likely gave DeLuca permission verbally, he might also have had email correspondence that proves he did so. However, since being fired from the town, he no longer has access to emails sent with his town email address.

The police I.D. DeLuca reportedly issued to Coughlin's daughter, Sarah Negron, was for an internship that she did not end up completing. The I.D. was subsequently returned to the police department in January 2012, said Coughlin. However, he alleged that Sjoberg never spoke with him or his daughter on the matter.

Coughlin also said that DeLuca has been wrongfully accused of improperly giving away toys collected for a Marines Toys for Tots Drive. DeLuca redirected the gifts to the John Winthrop Elementary School in Dorchester, but Coughlin said the chief had permission of the Marines to do so.

Marine Sgt. Matthew LaRoche wrote a letter dated July 20, 2012 stating that DeLuca had approval to hand deliver the toys to the school.

"To my knowledge Mr. DeLuca has in no way stolen from or violated any rules set in place by the Greater Boston Toys for Tots program," LaRoche wrote.

Another allegation is that DeLuca arranged to have a fellow police officer take photos for his girlfriend's holistic healing business while both officers were on-duty. The officer, who wished to remain anonymous while speaking to the Mariner, confirmed that he was on-duty when DeLuca made the request, and that he did take the photos. However, the officer retroactively took vacation time because he was uncomfortable with the situation.

While the chief has been on paid leave for the past five months, one would think that morale among the police officers would be low in the midst of a heated investigation. Deputy Chief Quigley said that the department seems to be doing well, however.

"It's a great group of guys I work with; it's a pleasure to lead them and everybody's very upbeat," said Quigley. "I can honestly say this is the best group I've had in the 18 years I've been there."

Officer Reardon agreed, stating that overall, conditions at the P.D. have improved. "Ever since [DeLuca] left, things have gotten a lot better [for] the department as a whole. People are happy to come to work and do their jobs without fear of reprisals. Deputy Chief Quigley turned things around and brought us in the right direction."

DELUCA TIMELINE

From Duxbury to Cohasset

Duxbury

- May 1999: Boston Police Sgt. Mark DeLuca is hired as Duxbury Police chief.
- July 2009: Duxbury Town Manager Richard MacDonald decides not to renew DeLuca's contract when it was set to expire in Nov. that year; Selectmen vote 2-1 to overturn the decision; Town Counsel determine the vote was illegal.
- Oct. 2009: Duxbury selectmen reached tentative severance deal with DeLuca for reported $240,000; final agreement never signed, deal rescinded two weeks later; Allegations against DeLuca include abuse of overtime; Town Manager announces plans to form search committee for Duxbury's next chief; DeLuca is placed on paid administrative leave.
- Nov. 2009: Stephen Doherty appointed interim police chief; DeLuca and his attorney ask to re-open negotiations but the town pulls the settlement offer; DeLuca's contract expires .
- Feb. 2010: DeLuca is hired as police chief in Cohasset at $111,000 annual salary.
- Feb. 2012: DeLuca filed a lawsuit against the town of Duxbury with the federal court, claiming the town retaliated against him for trying to form a police labor union and renounced his severance deal.

Cohasset

Feb. 2010: DeLuca takes the helm as Cohasset's Police Chief.

- May 12, 2012: DeLuca says at the Annual Town Meeting that he is "dead set against the station going dark," referring to reports that the public safety building would be unmanned during nights and weekends once the town's dispatchers moved to the regional center in Hingham.
- May 19, 2012: On the morning of the Town Election, Sgt. Jeffrey Treanor parked the PD's Humvee on the town common with a banner reading, "Keep the police station open... A message from the Cohasset Police Association." Milanoski called DeLuca and asked him to have Treanor remove the vehicle; Treanor did so and later apologized to Milanoski, saying he had acted alone; DeLuca ordered Treanor to write a to/from report.
- May 21, 2012: Milanoski called Cohasset Police Union president Patrick Reardon to discuss "several union business issues."
- May 22, 2012: Milanoski sent an email to Town Counsel stating his intention to extend DeLuca's contract for another three years.
- May 23, 2012: DeLuca ordered Lt. Gregory Lennon to conduct an internal affairs investigation into Treanor's actions.
- May 24, 2012: The investigation of Treanor is completed; the police union brings several allegations against DeLuca to Milanoski's attention.
- May 25, 2012: Milanoski places DeLuca on paid administrative leave; the chief's current yearly salary is $136,000.
- May 26, 2012: A letter from DeLuca to Milanoski dated May 25 is leaked; DeLuca suggested that Milanoski had interfered with the internal affairs investigation, writing that he believed actions Milanoski had taken "could possibly lead to ethical, civil or criminal sanctions."
- May 29, 2012: A group of DeLuca supporters and members of the community police liaison board attend the Selectmen's meeting.
- June 2012: Town Counsel hires private investigator Richard Sjoberg.
- June 26, 2012: Sjoberg's investigation exonerates Milanoski.
- June 27, 2012: DeLuca's attorney Edward McNeeley tells the Mariner he has yet to receive the list of allegations against his client; Town Counsel sends him the list two days later.
- October 16-17, 2012: Five months after being placed on paid leave, DeLuca breaks his silence and tells the press he will fight for his job, and the allegations against him are all untrue.

Volume 38 - Report No. 42 October 12, 2012

Y = Yes; N = No, NV = No Vote (President rarely votes) * Not every item is voted on by both House and Senate

THE HOUSE AND SENATE: There were no roll call votes in the House or Senate last week.

This week, Beacon Hill Roll Call examines the percentage of times in 2012 that the Senate's three Republican members voted the same as the Senate Republican Minority Leader Bruce Tarr (R-Gloucester) on key roll call votes. There are only four GOP members in the entire 40-member Senate.

Beacon Hill Roll Call uses 135 key votes from the 2012 Senate session as the basis for this report. This includes all roll calls that were not on local issues.

- Sen. Robert Hedlund (R-Weymouth) voted with Tarr 95.5 percent of the time — voting against him six times.
- Sen. Richard Ross (R-Wrentham) voted with Tarr 97.7 percent of the time — voting against him three times.
- Sen. Michael Knapik (R-Westfield) voted with Tarr 98.5 percent of the time — voting against him only twice.

ALSO UP ON BEACON HILL

CHOKING ON FOOD (H 1462) - The House approved and sent to the Senate a proposal expanding the current law that requires restaurants with more than 25 seats to have on the premises an employee trained in manual procedures to remove food lodged in a customer's throat. The measure would make the requirements apply to all restaurants regardless of their seating capacity. The measure also exempts take-out only restaurants. The American Red Cross offers a $50 two-hour restaurant emergency program that includes teaching choke-saver skills.

Supporters said this would close a dangerous loophole and noted customers can choke on food regardless of the size of the restaurant.

Opponents said the bill is well-intentioned but unfortunately would be another costly burden on an already struggling hospitality industry.

THE GOVERNOR VS. THE LEGISLATURE ON SICK LEAVE BANK LEGISLATION - The House and Senate approved and Gov. Deval Patrick vetoed a bill establishing a sick leave bank for a cancer-stricken employee of the Department of Health and Human Services. The measure, a common practice for years, allows employees to voluntarily donate sick, personal or vacation days to a sick leave bank for use by the ill fellow state worker so he or she can get paid while on medical leave. Sick leave banks are typically approved when an individual has limited time sick, personal or vacation left.

Supporters said this case is unique because the employee has advanced cancer and anticipates that her remaining accumulated paid sick time will be depleted very shortly. They said this is a proactive measure to guarantee the sick leave bank is in place for the employee and prevent her from worrying about its passage when her health deteriorates at a more rapid pace.

In his veto message, the governor said the employee "currently is attending work and has not indicated a need to take a leave." Patrick continued, "She currently has over 700 hours of leave time available to her should the need arise. As such, this legislation appears unnecessary at this time."

The Legislature continues to meet only in informal sessions in which no roll calls are allowed. The governor's veto cannot be overridden without a roll call vote. So unless the governor changes his mind, the bill will likely die when the 2012 session ends in January.

Beacon Hill Roll Call is withholding the name of the employee to protect her privacy.

ALLOW SPEARFISHING FOR STRIPED BASS (H 247) - The House approved and sent to the Senate a bill legalizing fishing with spearguns for striped bass in Bay State waters. Current law allows spearfishing for all other species except the striped bass.

Supporters said the ban is unfair and noted fishermen are instead bass and spending an estimated $1 million of tourism dollars in neighboring New Hampshire and Rhode Island. They argued that spearfishing actually results in less killing of undersized bass than traditional hook-line fishing.

Opponents said the stock of striped bass is already overfished and declining. They argued that supporters are incorrect and that spearfishing results in more killing of undersized bass.

The bill was approved by the House in 2010 but it died when the Senate did not take action on it.

STUDY AKA DEFEAT BILLS - Various committees recommended that proposals be shipped off to a "study committee" where measures are never actually studied and are effectively defeated. Here are some of the bills on their way to a study committee:

POWER OUTAGES (H 3829) - Requires electric utilities, after the first eight hours of a power outage, to rebate customers the amount equal to two days of their average prior month's electric bill for each day they are without power.

REPEAL BOTTLE BILL (H 3046) - Repeals the state's 30-year-old bottle bill that requires a five-cent deposit on beer and soda containers.

LARGER TYPE AND AMPLIFIERS (H 3298 and H 3299) - This pair requires telephone companies to enlarge the size of the type used in printed telephone directories and public pay phones to be equipped with a hearing amplification device.

HIGH-RISK SEX OFFENDERS MUST VOTE ABSENTEE (H 188) - Prohibits Level 3 (high-risk) sex offenders from voting at schools and libraries and requiring them to vote by absentee ballot.

ALLOW NON-CITIZENS TO VOTE (H 202) - Permits cities and towns to allow non-citizens over age 18 to vote in local municipal elections. These non-citizens would be eligible only if they certify in writing that they live in the city or town and "intend in good faith to become a U.S. citizen and intend to begin that process, if eligible." Communities could adopt this law if it is approved by the local governing body and by the voters on a local ballot question.

LEASING HOME PHONES (H 2624) - Requires phone companies to specify on all bills the exact charge to a customer who is still leasing his or her telephone. Once the customer's cumulative payments for the leased equipment equal or exceed its fair market value, the customer owns the phone at no additional cost except for a "reasonable finance charge." The customer has the option to refuse ownership of the phone in writing and continue to lease.

Supporters say that many elderly customers have continued leasing phones — a carryover from decades ago when all phones were leased. They note that many don't even know there's an option to buy and over the years have paid thousands of dollars to continue to rent the phones.

The 'balance' of yoga and live music

Join the Balance Studio's Stephanie Ford, with very special guest Girish, this Saturday, October 20th from 6-8 p.m. for a very special yoga experience. Girish (girishmusic.com) will play and sing "heart opening chants" LIVE throughout the class. An accomplished musician and former monk, Girish is also a self-proclaimed word-smith who links lyrics and rhythm to create a blissful musical/yoga event. His healing sounds and chants include Sanskrit hymns and mantras that he will sing and play to compliment Ford as she guides the class through two hours of yoga. For several years Girish has offered this unique experience to yoga practitioners from Coast to Coast. This is his first collaboration with The Balance Studio. This class is open to everyone.

"Practicing yoga with live music in the background is something all yogis, of all levels, should experience at least once," says Kellie Lynch, owner of Balance Studio. "We've offered an evening event several years ago that included live music during class and received tremendous feedback. It's such a treat to have Girish coming to the South Shore."

Cohasset resident and Balance Studio instructor, Stephanie Ford, will teach this Saturday night class. According to the Balance Studio website, Ford is known for creating a "fun, relaxed atmosphere where students can practice a creative flow that allows them to try new things within their practice." Her background is in dance, and she has practiced yoga for ten years and taught for eight using innovative sequences and humor to inspire her students.

Due to a tremendous response the Balance Studio has relocated this Saturday night event to First Parish Universalist's Trueblood Hall, 23 North Main St., across from the Town Common. The space holds 50 students and there are still a few spots left for what promises to be a very nurturing and memorable experience. Tickets are $45 and all levels of yoga students are encouraged to attend.

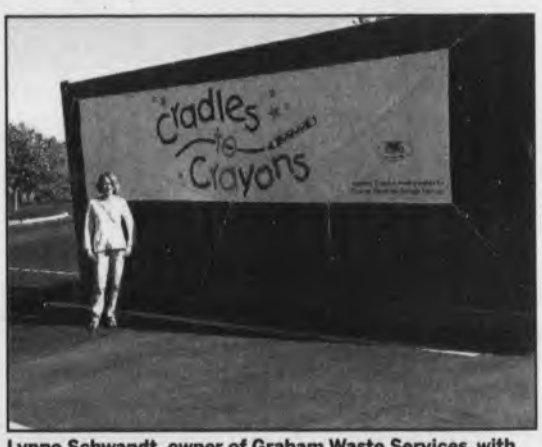
"Practicing yoga with live music in the background is something all yogis, of all levels, should experience at least once."
Kellie Lynch, owner of Balance Studio.

Girish will sing and play his music at Saturday night's yoga class.

This class is also the kick-off of Balance Studio's first ever 200 hour Yoga Teacher Training Program, certified by the Yoga Alliance ®, the national education and support organization for Yoga in the United States. The Balance Studio Teacher Training Program will run from October through June 2013. Lynch is thrilled to be able to train new teachers and to bring yoga to her students in a whole new way.

"Over the past several years yoga has taken off, as we can see with the numbers coming through our doors," says Lynch. "Offering teacher training to our motivated and inspired students seemed like the natural progression of things. We're so proud of this new program and look forward to our first ever graduating yoga class in 2013."

The class is open to all, yet will also serve as part of the Teacher Training Program, which will begin this weekend. According to the Balance Studio Teacher Training brochure, the certification program is designed to "unveil the historical, spiritual and physical practice of Yoga. It will prepare students to teach a safe and accessible yoga class and will inspire each participant to connect with their authentic self and be more than they ever thought possible."



The Balance Studio Training Team involves many familiar South Shore faces including: Stephanie Brown Ford, Kellie Lynch, Kerry Donnelly, Cindy Matheison, Victoria Haffer, Shannon Lynch, Audrey Cassevoy, Jill Jardin & Joy Tarr.

For more information on the Teacher Certification program or to buy a ticket for tomorrow night's yoga class, contact The Balance Studio, 15 Depot Court Cohasset, at 339-337-3660 or visit their website at balancestudio.com

JILL GRIMES TO SPEAK ON

'Are You Ready to Listen?'

Everyone is looking for solutions. Health and hope are on everyone's wish list. But can people hear the answers? "When one's thinking is guided by the spiritual laws of harmony, as explained in the Bible, thought moves beyond the ground-level view of any problem," said speaker, Jill Grimes. "And God's all-inclusive law of love is not only felt, but is seen as healing."

Grimes will present a talk titled, "God is speaking – are we listening?" at 3 p.m., on Sunday, Oct. 21, at Paul Pratt Memorial Library, 35 Ripley Road, Cohasset.

In her talk, Grimes will discuss the practical application of spiritual law and how it heals consistently and completely. Grimes' ideas are based on the teachings of Jesus as recorded in the Bible, and as discussed in the seminal work on spiritual healing "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy.

"So are you ready to hear your own healing language?" asks Grimes. "God's healing love is contemporary and understandable. It is universal and unconditional, not denominational. It gives you peace."

Grimes has been a practitioner of Christian Science healing for more than 25 years. She has been involved in numerous healings including broken bones, addictions, diseases and depression. Now a member of the Christian Science Board of Lectureship, Grimes travels throughout the country sharing her spiritual discoveries. She makes her home in Tucson, Ariz., with her husband.

CYBSA

Major League tryouts

Cohasset Youth Baseball/Softball Association's Major League Tryouts for 2013 Season will be held Monday, October 22

Tryouts will be held from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. at Barnes Field. Sign-in is at 2:45 p.m. All players are asked to arrive by then.

All 10-12 yr olds (all boys and girls who are age 10 prior to May 1, 2013 and no older than age 12 on April 30, 2013) who are not currently on a major league team are eligible to try out:

All 12 yr olds (born between May 1, 2000 and April 30, 2001) who attend the tryouts are automatically selected for a Major League team; provided that these players attend the tryout.

All players interested in making the Major Leagues must attend the tryout. There are no exceptions to this rule - other than injuries, which are disclosed to the Player Agent before the tryout.

Players will field ground balls at shortstop and throw to first, catch fly balls in the outfield and throw to a cutoff player, and hit against live pitching from adult coaches.

Please direct any questions to info@cybsa.net. In case of rain we will hold the tryouts on October 29th (same time and location)

Great season

Skippers win League again

By William Wassersug
wwassersug@wickedlocal.com

The Cohasset golf team has a record of excellence, and nothing changed this season.

With a 13-1 record, Cohasset won the South Schore League and will be in action in the Div. 3 South Sectionals on Monday in Millis.

In recent action, Cohasset routed Norwell, but also had a big battle at Mashpee's home course, Ballymeade in Falmouth.

"It was windy and cold and we got there a few minutes late," Cohasset coach Aaron Ungvarsky said. "There's water right in front of the ninth hole in front of the green. It's a tough place to play and their coach is very competitive. I'm sure with our record they wanted to knock us off."

It wasn't looking too great for the visitors at first as No. 1 and No. 2 golfers Connor O'Brien and Sam Asnault both lost their matches.

But No. 3 golfer Austin Sloane came back with good news with a win and co-medalist status while shooting even par.

As the numbers crunched Bryce Avila came back on the losing end, but he had picked up enough points to keep the final decision in the

Vikings hijack Skippers

Cohasset set for Rockland

By William Wassersug
wwassersug@wickedlocal.com

The Cohasset football team gave its all against a solid East Bridgewater squad on Friday, but just didn't have enough to overcome a powerful running game based on some razzle dazzle and misdirection in a 34-21 loss at Cohasset.

"They do a good job with the blocking scheme and early there was some confusuion from that," Cohasset coach Pete Afanasiw said. "We had people in position to make plays. We just didn't.

The loss dropped the Sailors to 2-4, but the record doesn't show the character of this particular group.

"One thing about this team is that they never show any signs of quit. Even at Scituate when the score was one sided, they played to the very end."

Against East Bridewater, a slow start didn't help the Skippers.

"We didn't get of to a ideal start," Afanasiw said.

East Bridgewater scored frst, but Cohasset answered and trailed just 14-7 in the first quarter.

Midway though the second quarter, the Vikings improved the lead to 21-7.

Cohasset scored at the midway through the third when Ryan Gillis capped a 60-yard drive with a one-yard run through the middle for the touchdown that cut the lead to 21-14.

It didn't take long for EB to answer, as they got a score at the buzzer that made it 34-14.

Connor Dooley's touchdown catch at the end of the final frame made the final score 34-21.

This week, Cohasset has Rockland, a team that runs well, but has had some struggles this season.

Skippers win

The Cohasset boys soccer team improved to 8-4-1 (8-3-1 South Shore League) with an 8-2 win over Hull on Tuesday' Senior Night.

Cohasset was led by Andrew Barrett's two goals off the bench.

Nick Tangherlini also scored.

The Skippers played Rockland yesterday and have a showdown with Scituate Friday at 3:30 p.m. at Scituate.

INSIDE THE 6 SOCCER POWER RANKINGS

Week 6: A couple shakeups in the top 6

By Ryan Wood
rwood@wickedlocal.com

The sixth week, which actually dates back to games played on Oct. 5, produced some tremendous games and a big shakeup on the boys side. One team falls off the charts, while another makes its debut at the No. 4 spot this season. The girls side sees two significant changes, but no movement at the top. Here are the rankings based on games played from Oct. 5 through Sunday, Oct. 14.

Boys

1. Weymouth – After a week or two of going unbeaten, you sensed this team was something special. Now through six weeks and still without a loss, it'll take a college team to stop the Wildcats. Impressive wins over Oliver Ames, Newton North, and Milton keeps the 'Cats at the top.

2. Hingham – The Harbormen bump the Marshfield Rams out of the No. 2 slot after beating Duxbury and North Quincy to extend their unbeaten streak to seven.

3. Marshfield – The Rams had a relatively productive week, earning a point against Falmouth, but slipped one spot in the rankings due to Hingham's continued surge.

4. Silver Lake – Where'd the Lakers come from? It's not exactly all of the sudden. After a slightly sluggish start, the Lakers ran their unbeaten streak to six, which includes four straight wins. They topped Whitman-Hanson, Quincy, and Pembroke in recent action to move to 7-3-1 overall.

5. Hanover – Riding a seven-game unbeaten streak heading into this week, the Indians picked up three vital points with a massive win over Duxbury last week. They also beat North Quincy to keep up their torrid pace.

6. Scituate – Making their Inside the 6 debut for this season, the Sailors beat Whitman-Hanson to remain atop the Patriot League division and continue to be a threat to any team they face.

On the bubble: Cohasset, Braintree, Norwell

Last week: 1. Weymouth, 2. Marshfield, 3. Hingham, 4. Braintree, 5. Hanover, 6. Cohasset

Girls

1. Marshfield – After seeing their 9-0 run come to an end with a 1-0 loss to Notre Dame, the Rams rebounded with a 3-2 win over Falmouth. They drew, 3-3, with a tough Plymouth South side, but remain atop the Atlantic Coast League and the Inside the 6 rankings.

2. Scituate – The Sailors earn their highest-ever ranking in the three-year history of the rankings, and deservedly so. Ross Maki's bunch beat Nantucket, 4-0, and Pembroke, 4-1, in recent action, but the biggest result came in a 1-1 draw against Whitman-Hanson. Only three teams have scored on W-H through 12 games, and Scituate can now claim it's one of them.

3. Duxbury – Following a 3-2 win over Plymouth North and a 3-0 win over Hanover, the Dragons drew, 1-1, with Hingham. The win over Hanover qualified the Dragons for the postseason.

4. Norwell – After a season-opening loss to Marshfield, the Clippers haven't lost (entering this week). In recent action, they beat Hull, Rockland, and Cohasset to win their fourth game in a row and improve to 9-1-2.

5. Carver – The Crusaders and Norwell are battling it out both in the South Shore League and Inside the 6. Carver slips a notch this week due largely to Norwell's run despite a recent 3-2 win over Mashpee and a draw against East Bridgewater.

6. Plymouth North – The Eagles remain in the top six after beating Nauset and Falmouth. This came after a tough stretch that ended with a 3-2 loss to Duxbury. The Eagles, who have been banged up as of late, seem to be back on track.

On the bubble: Weymouth, Plymouth South, Abington

Last week: 1. Marshfield, 2. Duxbury, 3. Scituate, 4. Carver, 5. Norwell, 6. Plymouth North

The Inside the 6 - Soccer Power Rankings are decided based on a number of criteria: record, strength of schedule, performance against teams in and out of their divisions, goals scored, and goals conceded. The public schools in our coverage area include: Abington, Braintree, Carver, Cohasset, Duxbury, Hanover, Hingham, Holbrook, Marshfield, Norwell, Pembroke, Plymouth North, Plymouth South, Rockland, Scituate, Silver Lake, and Weymouth. "We'll try to right the ship and get back in the win column," Afanasiw said. "We've had two good pactices yesterday and today. Now we'll regroup, Our scouting shows they run the ball well. You know what you get. You just have to stop them. We feel they're about the same size and have the same ability."

Afanasiw said a big problem his team has faced was making mistakes at inopportune times.

Mistakes like plays for negative yardage in the red zone, or not stopping opponents in situations like third-and-long.

It hasn't been penalties, but plays that have gone a little haywire, espcialy inside the 20.

"This week we'll se toughness," Afanasiw said. "We've got pretty tough kids. If they play tough for four quarters we'll be fine. We just need to put together four solid quarters of football."

Afanasiw said he's hoping that after six games, his young defense is finally ready to mesh and pick up the speed of the game.

"Eight of our 11 kids (on defense) never played varsity before this year," he said. "Hopefully they can be more productive the rest of the season."

COMMUNITY SERVICE

Go Blue and Pink For a Cure

Pick up a pink sweatband

The athletes and coaching staff of Cohasset High School will again be participating in an athletic program wide community service project beginning Wednesday, October 17, during Homecoming Week.

All of the fall athletic teams and coaches will be wearing pink sweat bands with the CHS "C" logo for the month of October in honor of breast cancer awareness month.

The captains of each team will collect a donation for each sweatband from all the players and coaching staff. The sweatbands will also be available at CHS sporting events. The suggested donation for a sweatband is $5 but any and all donations are welcome.

All proceeds from the donations will go to the Dana Farber Cancer Research Institute in Boston. Last year CHS Athletics donated over $600 to Dana Farber to help fight cancer. A special thanks goes out to Ron Goodwin at Goodwin Graphics in Cohasset for helping us with the project.

Anyone interested in receiving a pink "C" sweatband can pick one up at a CHS game or contact Athletic Director Ron Ford at 781-383-6103 or email at rford@cohassetk12.org.

You can view a picture of the "C" sweatbands on the Cohasset High School Athletics Page at www.cohassetk12.org or the Goodwin Graphics website www.cottonfeelsgood.com.

Pink wristbands will be available for a donation to the Dana Farber Cancer Research Institute in Boston. COURTESY PHOTO

MEN'S HOCKEY

Parity the word of the week

Men's South Coastal Hockey League roundup

By Mark Ducharme
Correspondent

The word for the week in the Men's South Coastal Hockey League was parity.

The six games that were played this past Sunday at the Hobomock Arena in Pembroke saw five decided by a goal and one tie, which included four shootouts.

The Canadiens in their Classics Div. game won their shootout by a 3-2 score as Marshfield's Glen Harnisch concluded the extra session with a game-winning back hand shot to give his team a 4-3 win over the Red Wings. It is the second time that the Canadiens have defeated the Red Wings by a 4-3 score in a shoot out.

Tom Lema of Marshfield scored two goals and Pembroke's Mike Fahie added a goal and Don Dudley of Duxbury had two assists for the Canadiens.

Tom Pipenbrink, Duxbury's Harry Mathews and John Guilderson scored the goals for the Wings.

The Rangers Paul LaFond of Hanover scored a goal and had two assists in regulation and added the game-winning goal in the shootout as the they rallied for a 4-3 Classics Div. win over the Black Hawks. Pembroke's Daron Jacobs had a goal and an assist and Mike Crisp scored a goal for the Rangers, who trailed 2-1 in the second period.

Norwell's Mike Murray had a goal and an assist, Vin Joyce and Norm Racicot scored a goal each for the Black Hawks.

Jack Carrig of Marshfield scored three goals and assisted on another one while Jeff Guathier had a goal and two assists in the Maple Leafs, 4-3 Classics Div. win over the Bruins.

Mike Martin scored a goal and set up another while Tom Dromey and John Dougenik scored a goal each for the Bruins.

The Stingers Peter MacPherson of Hanover scored with 1:18 left as they rallied from a 3-0 deficit for a 3-3 tie with the Crusaders. Steve Lemish had a goal and an assist and John Scag had a goal for the Stingers.

Jim Donovan of Marshfield scored a goal and assisted on another, Jack Parsons also of Marshfield and Hingham's Nate Rasmussen added a goal each for the Crusaders.

Steve Concannon of Scituate set up one of Paul Flagg's two goals and scored the only goal of the shoot out in the Whalers' 3-2 Legends Div. win over the Saints.

Bill Spillane scored the tying goal for the Saints in the second period after Jonathan Graham scored in the first period for the Saints.

Steve Collela of Duxbury and Dennis Yates scored a goal and assisted on another in the Toros 3-2 Legends Div. win over the Sharks.

Dave Currier also scored for the Toros, Richard Petrosino and Tim Cruz both of Marshfield scored the goals for the Sharks.

Eighth Congressional District — What should U. S. policy be toward Iran?

Democratic U.S. Rep. Stephen Lynch

Iran's expansion of its nuclear program is a threat to our ally Israel and to the stability of the region. The United States must prevent Iran from obtaining a nuclear weapon; however, sanctions and diplomacy should be fully exhausted before any consideration of a military strike against Iran.

I support tough economic sanctions against Iran, and there is evidence that current U.S. and multilateral sanctions are putting pressure on the Iranian government in Tehran. The Iranian economy has been plagued by inflation and huge losses in the value of its currency. Importantly, Iranian crude exports have fallen dramatically, costing the Iranian economy approximately $5 billion a month.

The United States has continually increased its pressure on Iran's economy, and will continue to do so. Most recently, President Barack Obama signed into law the Iran Threat Reduction and Syria Human Rights Act of 2012, which dramatically expanded existing U.S. sanctions.

The United States recently withdrew military forces from Iraq and continues to draw down troops from Afghanistan after nearly a decade of two simultaneous wars in the region. Before committing our brave men and women to another military action, we must carefully weigh the necessity and potential consequences of such an action. While we must ensure that Iran does not obtain a nuclear weapon, the United States should focus on sanctions and diplomacy first.

Republican challenger Joseph Selvaggi

We must prevent Iran from acquiring a nuclear weapon. As your congressman, I will strongly support the increasingly strict economic sanctions that have caused Iran's currency to lose 40 percent of its value in one day last week. Encouraging change within Iran through sanctions may help the world avoid military action by discouraging the regime from pursuing nuclear weapons or by encouraging the people of Iran to overthrow their leaders.

Despite the current sanctions, Iran may have a weapon as early as this spring. If sanctions fail and we believe that Iran is on the verge of having an operational weapon, the United States should lead an intervention, with the help of our allies, to substantially damage Iran's weapons capabilities. These strikes must be planned to minimize civilian casualties and assure the Iranian people that any such attacks are essential for protecting the world from catastrophic nuclear weapon proliferation. While one can argue that any attack will merely delay Iran's quest for nuclear weapons, such delays will offer the Iranian people time to change Iran from within. It is my hope that any actions with Iran will be crafted in such a way so as to reassure the Iranian people that we support their quest for a democratic and peaceful future.

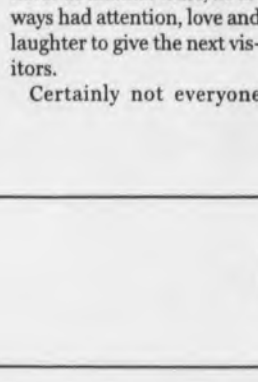
The Iranian people want peace and prosperity for themselves and their children. Our actions, either sanctions or intervention, must offer clear signals that we are their allies for democracy in their fight against their oppressive regime. Please see joe4jobs.com.



Plymouth & Norfolk state Senate district — How much of a problem is drug abuse on the South Shore and what can the state do about it?

Republican state Sen. Robert Hedlund

The opiate epidemic on the South Shore is very real and very serious. Too many of our children are getting hooked on opiates, and too many families are being torn apart by the addiction.

As the ranking Senate member of the Public Health Committee, I have worked with many members of the Legislature to assist those addicted, strengthen laws to punish those selling drugs, and help families cope.

Most notably, I worked with then-Sen. Steven Tolman on his recommendations from the Oxycontin and Heroin Commission that I voted for. One of the recommendations called for a complete ban on the use of opiates as prescribed pain medication. I supported this recommendation. Although our attempt was unsuccessful, we sent a message by taking on very well-funded prescription drug companies. I also supported reducing the excess supply of pills around the state and requiring physicians to register in the state's Prescription Monitoring Program; these passed the legislature. Sen. John Kennan of Quincy has also been on the forefront of this issue, and I am proud to have worked with him on his legislation that will hopefully curb the use of opiates.

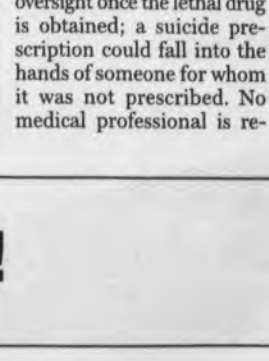
I commend the work of Mayor Susan Kay and the Town of Weymouth for taking this issue head-on. The mayor has promoted support groups for both those trying to get clean and families trying to cope that their child or sister or brother or parent who is addicted. I support her work and the work of Weymouth Drug-Free Coordinator Lyn Frano.



Democratic challenger Genevieve Davis

The South Shore has an escalating problem with drug-related crimes.

Pharmacy-related thefts are on the rise, as are house break-ins by users looking for quick cash.

According to the Patriot Ledger, the face of South Shore drug users who died from opiate abuse does not fit any particular profile. Users cross all ages and socioeconomic status

In an effort to address this epidemic, state and local governments have recognized and acted upon a need for programs to curb drug abuse. For example, Massachusetts has a registry of prescribed drugs that is used to flag abuse. Legislation has also been filed to make prescription drugs tamper-resistant. At the local level, the proper dispensing of drugs has been written into recycling efforts, ensuring that the collected drugs are handed over to the DEA.

Education is another critical piece in curbing drug abuse. In September of this year, state Secretary of Education Paul Reville submitted a "Report to the Massachusetts Legislature: Substance Use Prevention Education, A Cost Analysis." The report studied the cost to the state and/or individual school districts to implement an education program for all middle and high school students that would specifically address substance abuse and awareness. I would give my full support to the initiatives of state and local efforts to curb drug abuse. I would also endorse funding an education program for school age youth as proposed by the report submitted by the secretary of education.

STATE BALLOT QUESTIONS

Question 2: Prescribing medication to end life

The Nov. 6 election ballot has three questions, although Question 1, the so-called "Right to Repair" law, was settled when the state Legislature passed a law after the deadline to remove the question from the ballot.

Information on Question 2 from Secretary of the Commonwealth William Galvin's website, www.sec.state.ma.us, reads as follows — "This proposed law would allow a physician licensed in Massachusetts to prescribe medication, at a terminally ill patient's request, to end that patient's life. To qualify, a patient would have to be an adult resident who (1) is medically determined to be mentally capable of making and communicating health care decisions; (2) has been diagnosed by attending and consulting physicians as having an incurable, irreversible disease that will, within reasonable medical judgment, cause death within six months; and (3) voluntarily expresses a wish to die and has made an informed decision. The proposed law states that the patient would ingest the medicine in order to cause death in a humane and dignified manner."

"A yes vote would enact the proposed law allowing a physician licensed in Massachusetts to prescribe medication, at the request of a terminally-ill patient meeting certain conditions, to end that person's life.

A no vote would make no change in existing laws."

Representatives on each side of the issue have been invited to submit columns in support of their position.

Yes — Terminally ill should be able to choose when they die

By Heather Clish

When my dad was diagnosed with brain cancer, he gave serious thought to how he would stay true to himself during his final days. Five months later, as his care transitioned to hospice, he chose to use the Death with Dignity option in his home state of Oregon.

My dad wanted to live. But his diagnosis was clear and his tumor was killing him. He wrote a friend about why he planned to choose the Death with Dignity option, "I have been an independent person since I was 13 years old. The brain tumor I have is draining that independence in painful sips rather than one, enormous bite. I have options for many of the small things and will use them. But I have a larger option. I can choose the time and place of my death. This choice is neither more selfish nor more generous to the living I leave behind. Although it has strong elements of each, it is simply the last choice I can make for myself."

My dad was a kind and gentle, yet strong-willed and independent man. He lived with intention and enjoyed life immensely. He wasn't done exploring, learning, creating or sharing. He had more stories to tell his young grandchildren and he anticipated the day he would teach my son his woodworking craft.

With the extra months treatment gave him, he welcomed friends and family, imparted his wisdom and prepared for what was to come. Even as he said goodbye to many people for whom he knew there would never be another hello, he always had attention, love and laughter to give the next visitors.

Certainly not everyone would take the same approach my dad chose. But with the Death with Dignity law, my dad could find a bit of relief and control despite a disease nobody could control, stay connected rather than sedated, tell us he loved us and understand how much we loved him and go peacefully in my mother's arms.

Question 2 on the Massachusetts ballot this November will give mentally competent, terminally ill adults an option to take life-ending medication prescribed by a physician. No doctor is forced to participate and nobody is forced to take the medication within a certain timeframe or ever.

I urge you to vote yes on Question 2 because, while this choice is not for everyone, everyone has a right to this choice.

Heather Clish is writing on behalf of Dignity 2012.

No — Proposal lacks safeguards and is potentially dangerous

By Rosanne Bacon Meade

On Nov. 6, voters will be asked to decide on a dramatic shift in Massachusetts policy — whether to legalize physician-assisted suicide for those with a terminal diagnosis.

This ballot question is poorly written, confusing and flawed, which is why concerned doctors, nurses, hospice workers, religious leaders and citizens have come together from around the state to urge residents to vote no on Election Day.

Regardless of your position on physician-assisted suicide, Question 2's lack of safeguards is disconcerting and suggests potentially dangerous ramifications.

For instance, patients would not be required to seek psychiatric care before obtaining the lethal drug. Multiple studies — including a recent NIH study — show that between 25 and 50 percent of those receiving a terminal diagnosis develop clinical (and treatable) depression.

Furthermore, patients would not be required to receive counseling regarding palliative care approaches, even though tremendous strides have been made in relieving pain for those with ongoing diseases. Advances in palliative and hospice have allowed many with terminal diseases to live active and largely symptom-free lives and allow others near death to experience limited pain and suffering.

Worst of all, in my opinion, Question 2 would not require any family notification. A 40-year-old father of three could receive a troubling diagnosis and, without consulting his spouse or other family members, obtain the lethal dose and take his life — alone.

These are three key flaws to this poorly written ballot initiative. And there's more.

It lacks any public safety oversight once the lethal drug is obtained; a suicide prescription could fall into the hands of someone for whom it was not prescribed. No medical professional is required to be with the person when the 80 to 100 pills are consumed. Question 2 sidesteps any questions about possible complications involved in taking the pills, or what happens to the pills if they are not consumed.

The people of this state deserve a real debate on this very complicated issue. As it stands, Question 2 is flawed, dangerous and would result in an ill-conceived policy for Massachusetts. Our committee has brought together a wide coalition of individuals and groups who oppose Question 2 on several levels. The Massachusetts Medical Society, Massachusetts Osteopathic Society, Massachusetts Academy of Family Physicians and Hospice and Palliative Care Federation of Massachusetts each oppose physician-assisted suicide. On Nov. 6, we ask that you do the same by voting no on Question 2.

Rosanne Bacon Meade is the chairwoman of the Committee Against Physician-Assisted Suicide.

Kerry is sweet and sassy

PAULA J FATERSIK

Like a sassy Irish lass, Kerry has her sweet, lovey side as well as the feline, give me my space, don't bug me part of her personality. COURTESY PHOTO

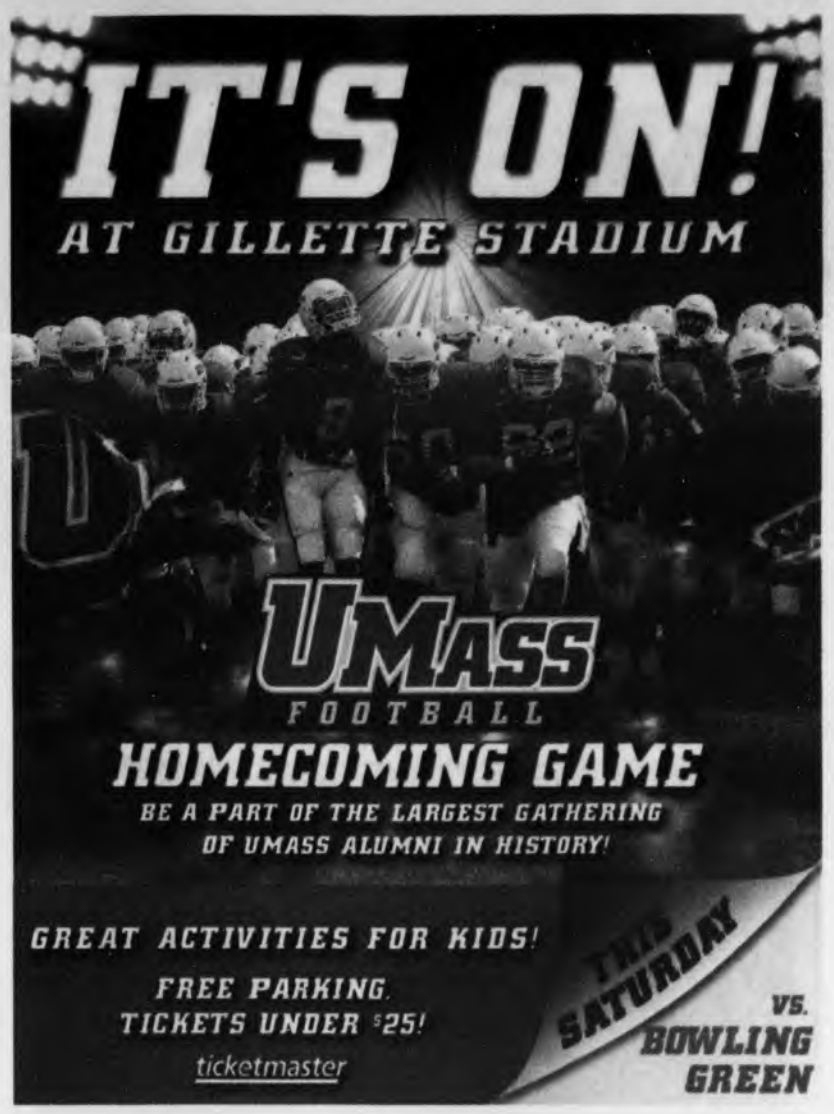
If you are missing a spoiled child in your little family, our Kerry would love to fill that position. She has such an adorable face, expressive eyes, is small in size and just a cute tiger package. Like a sassy Irish lass, Kerry has her sweet lovey side as well as the feline, give me my space, don't bug me part of her personality.

You are likely to find Kerry at your shoulder, wanting to climb on and nuzzle in your hair, nibble an ear for a bit, then settle in your arms for a neck and head rub. Oh, that is the sweetest experience with her. Once she knows you and feels comfortable, this is her way.

Then, there are moments when she will let you know that she is in charge and it's her time to get a little crazy, play, run and chase toys and laser lights. That's the active side that can be so much fun for Kerry. When she gets into her look but don't touch mood, Kerry will sit and watch you carefully until it is time to engage in more fun activities. There is a silly, unpredictable nature that she will show to get herself noticed. Kerry will win you over if you have enough time and love to share with her.

It has been a little while since Kerry has lived in a home. Her young childhood was spent outside, and she is a survivor. Learning at a young age to defend herself, now that she has been living inside, Kerry knows it's a good thing. Oh sure, she made a break for it once, but she returned to us on her own so you know she's learned the comfort that home, warmth and attention bring. Smart little girl. At a year and a half, she has experienced quite a lot. Being young, there is still much for her to figure out, but she has the personality and spunk to be a great pet in a loving home. Like many young cats and kittens, Kerry may be a little timid until she feels comfortable with you, but she is worth the wait and worth the spoiling as she wants to be loved so much.

Like many young cats and kittens, Kerry may be a little timid until she feels comfortable with you, but she is worth the wait and worth the spoiling as she wants to be loved so much.



The best situation for Kerry would be a household where she could be the center of attention. Other animals and young children are somewhat of a challenge for her. Though she tolerates some of the cats in her room, Kerry does seem to need and want her own territory and wants the attention of that special someone with whom she can bond. That makes her a good choice for a single or couple who has time to spend with her, share her sassy personality, and let her find her way into your heart. She can do it.

Please come in to HSAR and spend some time with Kerry and maybe this little girl's life story will have a happy new chapter. We are located at 50 L St. and Open Hours are Mondays 6:30-7:30p.m. and Saturdays 2-3p.m. Or you can schedule an appointment with Judy @ 781-534-4902.

Hull Seaside Animal Shelter is a non-profit, no kill shelter. We invest a lot of time and love caring for our kittens and cats who deserve a chance to live in safe and loving homes. As always, we thank all of the wonderful people who send donations, bring needed supplies and turn in bottles and cans that add up in helping to pay some of our bills. Columbus Day weekend was very special for us as we had a fabulous delivery of supplies and donations brought to the shelter by our supporters from New England Thunder and Star Southeast Ma Chapter 225 motorcycle clubs. We were overwhelmed by their generosity. Is your group or club looking for a way to help a worthy organization? Please consider Hull Seaside Animal Rescue. There is nothing more rewarding than seeing our kittens and cats receiving healthy food, funds for medical care and necessary items for their care. There are many ways that you and your group can help. Please contact us at 781-925-3121.

Also, we are always looking for people who can spare a few hours each week helping to care for our cats. If you can give some time, please call Nancy@ 781-925-3638 for details. Our volunteers are our lifeline and everyone involved makes a difference in the lives of the animals in our shelter. Thank you to all!

If you are looking for a fun gift for the new year, why not check out our Kittendale's calendar at www.kittendales.com and give the gift of adorable kittens and great looking guys! It's twelve months of page turning that will guarantee sighs and smiles, and remember, your purchase price is tax deductible and goes toward the care of the deserving animals featured here. *Paula J. HOPE IN BLOOM

Gardens bless breast cancer patients

By Carol Britton Meyer
cmeyer@wickedlocal.com

Hope in Bloom gardens offer comfort and hope to women and men undergoing breast cancer treatment.

Since 2007 the organization has planted flower and vegetable gardens free of charge for breast cancer patients throughout the state – including Hingham, Weymouth, Cohasset, Marshfield, Pembroke, Quincy, other South Shore communities, and Cape Cod – thereby improving their quality of life.

"These gardens are a place breast cancer patients can escape to – they're colorful and alive – something to touch and smell – offering a very spiritual kind of healing," Hope In Bloom founder Roberta Hershon said. Many of the recipients are now in remission and attribute their good fortune in part to their gardens. Others say the gardens help reduce stress and anxiety, thereby strengthening their resolve to face the challenging treatment regime.

Because of their positive impact, they have become known as healing gardens – therapeutic sanctuaries – that help meet the emotional and psychological needs of breast cancer patients and their families. Both year-round indoor and outdoor seasonal gardens (container, patio, or in-ground) are offered, depending on the recipient's preference and tailored to his or her residential space and lifestyle.

Hingham resident Beth Anderson was one of the first recipients of a Hope in Bloom garden. "It is a wonderful reminder every day that there is much love and hope even in times of illness and fear," she said.

Madeline Gatti, also of Hingham, calls her Hope in Bloom garden "a joyful place where I feel safe, loved, and supported."

She explained that many other members of her family have been touched by breast cancer.

"I have added their plants and other items to my garden and now each spring, as my garden begins to grow, I feel their strength and love and know that I will have that same courage to triumph over any challenges I may face," Gatti said.

Hope in Bloom was the outcome of Hershon's 50-year friendship with Beverly Eisenberg, who died from the disease in August 2005.

"We were inseparable growing up, and she wasn't supposed to get sick or die," Hershon recalled.

In later years, the two friends enjoyed gardening together. After she was diagnosed with breast cancer and was no longer able to garden, Hershon and other friends kept Eisenberg's house filled with flowers, allowing her an opportunity to "take pleasure in their quiet beauty," Hershon said. "We called [gardening] our magical brand of medicine."

Following her friend's passing, Hershon formed the non-profit Hope in Bloom and started collecting donations to be used for planting gardens at the homes of others who were undergoing breast cancer treatment.

Beauty, tranquility

"Hope in Bloom offers beautiful, tranquil places to sit, reflect, and escape from the world of doctors, hospitals, and illness," Hershon said.

She noted that studies have shown that individuals who are exposed to nature – whether a waterfall, tree, or garden, and whether healthy or ill – often experience a drop in blood pressure. "Our outdoor gardens [coax the recipients] outside, which reduces anxiety and depression," Hershon said. "All they have to do is roll out of bed to experience them. Unlike with a public garden, they never have to leave theirs."

So far Hope in Bloom has planted 118 privately funded gardens. Recipients include women in their 20s to a 90-year-old. So far, only one or two gentlemen have requested a garden.

"A few years ago, people started asking for vegetable gardens, so we planted one in Cohasset," Hershon said.

The gardens include a visual feature such as a sculpture or birdhouse to liven up the landscape during the winter months. It's reassuring for patients who have received the gift of a garden to realize that in the springtime it will bloom again. "It's the cycle of life," Hershon said.

The feedback is always complimentary.

"The gardens provide a sense of renewed hope and foster a positive attitude," she said.

Everyone has different preferences, so each recipient is asked what kind of color they prefer and what their favorite plants are. Favorites range from black-eyed Susans, roses, and a variety of grasses to hydrangeas, lilacs, and Rose of Sharon.

Team effort

Many individuals and companies have joined the Hope in Bloom team to make the program possible.

"Hundreds of miles have been driven, countless gallons of water consumed, and many new friends made at each new installation," Hershon said.

While the hope is to eventually receive enough donations to expand the program to other states, there are currently more than 200 individuals on the Massachusetts waiting list, so no new requests are being accepted at this time.

The only requirement for a garden to be planted is a note from the individual's oncologist confirming that his or her patient is undergoing active treatment for breast cancer.

Hershon noted that one of the Seven Wonders of the World is the Hanging Gardens of Babylon and that many medications are plant-based. "Many hospitals today have healing gardens," she said.

For more information, to volunteer, or to make a tax-deductible donation, visit hopeinbloom.org or call 781-381-3597. Notecards, jewelry, sunscreen, and t-shirts are available through the Hope in Bloom online shop. The organization is based in Dedham, Mass.

'Diva Nation' benefit concert

The Four Bitchin' Babes will rock Framingham High School with "Diva Nation," their hilarious musical review, on Sunday, Nov. 4, from 1:30-4:30 p.m.

Concert organizer and Hope in Bloom recipient Kimm DelGizzi and her committee are donating 100 percent of the proceeds to three local organizations, including Hope in Bloom.

This original tour de force comedy theater troupe will tickle funny bones with their raucous original songs and stories, event organizers say. Also, learn why chocolate is a vegetable, wine is part of the food pyramid, and shopping for shoes is good for one's health.

Women are invited to celebrate their "Inner Majesty" with all the women in their lives and help three local organizations – Hope in Bloom, The Ellie Fund, and Vernon Cancer Center – support people with cancer, including breast cancer. Tickets are $50 and $60 and are available through the Hope in Bloom website (hopeinbloom.org) or by calling 781-433-4357 or 781-381-3597.

Hope in Bloom provides gardens free of charge at the homes of breast cancer patients. The Ellie Fund offers meals, groceries, and transportation for families coping with breast cancer, while the Vernon Cancer Center is a treatment facility.

MEET A SURVIVOR

'I live every day as though it's my last'

Name: Lisa Murphy
Current hometown: Weymouth
Age: 43

When were you diagnosed with breast cancer? How did it impact you?
I was diagnosed March 26, 2009 with stage 2 breast cancer. During my first surgery they discovered a third lump and the cancer was in my lymph-node as well so I was immediately upgraded to a stage 3 breast cancer patient. A cancer diagnosis impacts you in a hundred different ways. I was shocked, saddened, scared, then decided to put all those original feelings aside and went full steam ahead into survival mode. I had a mastectomy, (four major surgeries and eight minor surgeries in total) I endured four months of chemotherapy, 30 rounds of radiation therapy, and I am three years into a five-year hormone therapy plan. At the time I was diagnosed my sons were only 3 and 6 years old... just babies. I needed to survive to watch them grow up. I thought to myself...they need me...I can't go anywhere. This is not going to take me.

If you've completed treatment, how long have you been cancer free?
I finished my chemotherapy treatments on Oct. 1, 2009, so to say with great pride...I am a three-year survivor.

What treatment did you undergo or are you currently undergoing?
I had a mastectomy, (four major surgeries and eight minor surgeries in two years) I had four months of chemotherapy, 30 rounds of radiation therapy and I am currently three years into a five-year plan of hormone therapy.

What is the biggest help/support getting you through your battle with cancer?
My family and friends were my biggest support. I had a whole army on my side. There were so many people and organizations that came forward to help me and my family. It was unreal. I was never a person to ask for help, but when you are in treatment and you feel like you have no control, you would be foolish not to accept help. I even had my own "Team Lisa" formed by my best friends and family members. They integrated themselves into my daily life for two years straight and I am forever thankful they all did it. All they wanted me to do was focus on getting through my treatments and beating this disease. I often asked them, "How can I repay you for all that you did?" They answered: You already did, you're still here and that's all we wanted.

What advice can you offer to others going through treatment and recovery?
I say keep a sense of humor... laugh often and cry if you must. Allow others to help you. Ask lots of questions and if you don't understand ask until you do. Be open and courageous. It's not a fun trip, but you are the driver, you make this your adventure. You will do whatever it takes to survive.

How has your perspective changed since your diagnosis?
Since I was diagnosed, and now out of treatment, I don't sweat the small stuff anymore. I used to worry about everything. Now I take each day with comfort knowing that I am alive and nothing is as bad as what I went through. I amazed myself with the strength I found inside. When I get up every morning I thank my lucky stars when my feet hit the floor. I see colors brighter, sounds are clearer, love & friendships are what they seem. I live everyday as though it's my last. People will stop me or go out of their way to say, "Wow...Lisa what a smile!" I think to myself... I earned it. I know that my story has reached many people and I can only hope that I educated many and hope to give thousands of women hope!

JORDAN HOSPITAL BREAST CENTER

New screening program assesses risk

By Rich Harbert
rharbert@wickedlocal.com

Nobody enjoys filling out questionnaires at the doctor's office, but the new survey for breast cancer patients at Jordan Hospital can be a real lifesaver.

It's also a little easier to complete than most.

Since May, the hospital's nationally accredited Breast Center has offered the region's first-of-its-kind risk assessment screening program for area women as part of its overall screening mammography program.

When women visit the Breast Center, they are given iPad tablets to complete a brief series of questions relating to their personal and family history of breast cancer.

A computer program then calculates the patient's lifetime risk of developing breast cancer. The risk assessment score gets reported as part of the woman's mammography report.

Women whose risk assessment score is 20 percent or higher get a call from Cat Melendy, the nurse navigator of the Breast Center.

Melendy offers to set up appointments for patients to discuss the findings with Jordan Hospital doctors and develop personalized plans for screening and early detection.

Since the program started, Melendy has reached out to between 10 and 15 women a week, explaining that while women generally have a one-in-eight chance of getting breast cancer, their risk assessment indicates their chances are better.

For many, the news is not a shock. Melendy said most women these days are aware of their cancer risk and proactive about their care. But those who get the call are usually also very happy to know that someone from the hospital shares in their concern. "It opens a dialogue with them," Melendy said.

Perhaps more than anything, the risk assessment program gives women the assurance that everything possible is being done to detect breast cancer early. Early detection generally results in less treatment and better outcomes.

Depending on the risk score, Melendy may encourage women to visit the Breast Center for testing for the BRCA 1 and 2 genes.

The program is just one of the many diagnostic, treatment and recovery programs offered from the corner wing in the lower level of the hospital.

Dr. Lisa Tito is the Breast Center's medical director. Dr. Marvin Lopez is executive director of the Jordan Hospital Cancer Center. Both are oncology surgeons.

Melendy, as nurse navigator, serves as patient advocate and teacher, a single point of contact who can guide patients through treatment and survivorship.

The Breast Center prides itself on delivering big-city hospital care in an easy, local setting.

The Breast Center features private examination rooms, digital mammography units, breast ultrasound and a stereotactic imaging and biopsy unit.

The Jordan Hospital Club Cancer Center, located just down the hall, offers a full range of outpatient treatment services, including radiation therapy, medical therapies and laboratory services.

In addition to providing the full range of diagnostic and treatment options, the Breast Center also offers support services for recovery.

Nutritionists help patients develop dietary plans that keep their strength up while undergoing treatment.

The hospital's pain management center offers a variety of options, from injection therapy to acupuncture.

The Breast Center offers two exercise programs.

Beat Cancer Boot Camp is designed to empower and inspire survivors to change their lives. I Hope You'll Dance is a weekly dance program for cancer patients and survivors.

Individual and group therapy is available, and support groups meet at the hospital twice a month on Thursdays.

For more information about the Breast Center, visit www.jordanhospital.org/breastcenter.

Concert Season opens at St. Stephen's

St. Stephen's Episcopal Church in Cohasset is proud to announce that the first concert of this year's Concert Season will take place on Sunday, Oct. 21 at 2 p.m. The concert will feature the Cascabel Trio performing the Fauré Cello Sonata, the Mozart E Minor Violin Sonata and the Mendelssohn Piano Trio in D Major.

The Cascabel Trio is an outgrowth of the musicians' longstanding association with the South Coast Chamber Music Society, a popular ensemble based in New Bedford, where their spirited performances have left audiences clamoring for more. With a focus on masterpieces of the trio repertoire, the trio has performed throughout New England to enthusiastic acclaim. They are delighted to return to Cohasset this season. They take their name from a small, hot chili pepper emblematic of their musical intensity and sensuous delight. Trio members are Piotr Buczek, violin, Timothy Roberts, cello, and Janice Weber, piano.

Admission to the concert is free, and there is ample on-street parking. St. Stephen's Church is located at 16 Highland Ave. in Cohasset.

OBITUARIES

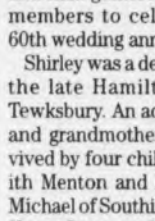
Marie Pattyson

Marie Pattyson

COHASSET – Marie O'Keefe Pattyson, born April 1920, in Barrow-on-Furness England and later from Schenectady NY, Syracuse NY; Newport RI; E.Orange NJ, Rochester NY; Watertown MA; Marion MA; Cohasset MA; Hingham MA; Plymouth MA; and, finally, after all those years of trying to get there, Weymouth, MA, passed away on August 26th 2012.

She began her working career as one of General Electric's first female draftspersons, as GE developed television. Marie entered the U.S. Navy Waves in1944 and served as a Yeoman 3rd Class during WWII, stationed, primarily in Newport RI. Attending Syracuse University she met Brewster Pattyson. They married and settled in Cohasset, raising their four children.

They enjoyed many years with the Cohasset Drama, Golf, and Yacht Clubs. They were well-known for their inspired and elaborate entertainments. (Any members of the Black-and-Gold Society still out there?) They were keen Bridge players and weekend-long Bridge parties were very serious affairs for the first rubber or two. After that all we remember is laughter. Marie was an accomplished pianist who enjoyed playing for her family and her guests. Other creative expressions included knitting and crewel work She developed a great love of watercolor painting, and her sumi-e - paintings are much coveted family treasures. Marie and Brewster both shared a love of words, and her intellectual curiosity would find her reading anything that crossed her path.



Considering her 82-pound size, she leaves behind a HUGE void, , and Sons: John and Stephen and his wife, Charlotte Delaney, and; Daughters, Pam Schwartz; and Laura Hibbard and her husband, Harry, and Grandchildren: Stacey Joyce Marie Schwartz, Jesse Schwartz, and John's Lena; her brother, John O'Keefe; her brother-in-law, Bob Allen, and nieces and nephews: Brian, Michael, and Kathy Pattyson, Tim and Brian O'Keefe, and Chris, Collin, and Pat Allen; her cousin Margaret Doreen Fotheringham (and Alan) from England, and her dear friend Denny Ripley, as well as loving relatives in New Zealand, especially Fathers John and Tony Harrison.

She left us peacefully, we were able to be with her at the end. Her departure saddens us for these particular days, her memory brings smiles to us for the rest of our days.

A memorial gathering will be held at the Glastonbury Abbey Room, 16 Hull Street, Hingham, MA Oct 28th , 12:00 N to 2:00 PM.

In lieu of flowers, expressions of sympathy may be made to South Shore Elder Services, 1515 Washington Street Braintree, MA 02184 Phone: 781-848-3910.

Shirley A. Tewksbury

Shirley A. Tewksbury

COHASSET – Shirley Ann (Thompson) Tewksbury, formerly of Cohasset, died peacefully Oct. 2, 2012, surrounded by family.

Shirley, daughter of Elmeron and Carrie Thompson, was born and grew up on a dairy farm in Canton, N.Y. After graduating from Canton High School, Shirley attended Potsdam State Teachers College in Potsdam, N.Y., graduating with a degree in elementary education and minor in music education.

While at Potsdam State, she met her husband, Hamilton Thaxter Tewksbury, who was attending Clarkson College.

Following graduation, Shirley taught in Albany, N.Y., for two years. She and Hamilton were married in Canton, N.Y., in 1951, moving shortly thereafter to Brookline, where Shirley taught for two years.

Shirley and Ham settled in Cohasset in 1953, where they resided and raised their four children, until moving in recent years to assisted living facilities in Weymouth.

Shirley was well-known in Cohasset, where she spent many years working in the Cohasset school system, first as a substitute teacher while her children were growing up, and later as an elementary teacher, where she touched the lives of countless children and families.

Shirley was very active in the Unitarian Church, working as Sunday school director and in many other capacities, including in recent years as a member of the Nursery School Committee. She spent many years serving at the annual Christmas Bazaar sponsored by the churches around the common, assisting at the White Elephant Table.

Following retirement, she volunteered in the maternity ward at South Shore Hospital.

In March 2011, Shirley and Ham gathered with family members to celebrate their 60th wedding anniversary.

Shirley was a devoted wife of the late Hamilton Thaxter Tewksbury. An adored mother and grandmother, she is survived by four children, Meredith Menton and her husband Michael of Southington, Conn., Karen Dauer and her husband Gary of Franklin, Ellen Volpe and her husband Jim of Germantown, Md., and H. Thaxter Tewksbury and his wife Lisa of Charlestown, R.I.; 10 grandchildren, Greg Menton, Nicole Menton Stevens, Daniel Dauer, Robert Dauer, Emily Dauer, Josh Volpe, Renee Volpe, Rachel Tewksbury, Alison Tewksbury, Sara Tewksbury; and one great-grandchild, Sarah Menton.

A wake will be held at McNamara-Sparrell Funeral Home Friday, Nov. 2, 2012, from 4-6 p.m. A memorial service celebrating her life will be held at the First Parish Church in Cohasset, Saturday, Nov. 3, 2012, at 2 p.m.

In lieu of flowers, donations in her memory may be made to Cohasset Education Foundation or to Dana Farber.

SALOME'S STARS FOR RELEASE WEEK OF OCT. 29, 2012

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) This is a good time to speak out on a difficult situation. You're known for your honesty, so people will listen and, perhaps, begin to make long-needed changes.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) The Bovine's sharp business sense alerts you to question the positions of those trying to push the Bull into a deal. Demand to see proof of what they profess.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Your quick thinking helps you get out of a troubling situation that was suddenly thrust upon you. Later on, you can expect to learn more about why it happened.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You might feel you've dotted all your i's and crossed all your t's regarding that upcoming deal. But there might be some facts you've ignored. Check again.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Time for the Lion to be more physically active. It will help shake off any lingering Leonine lethargy and restore your energy levels, so you'll be prepared for what lies ahead.

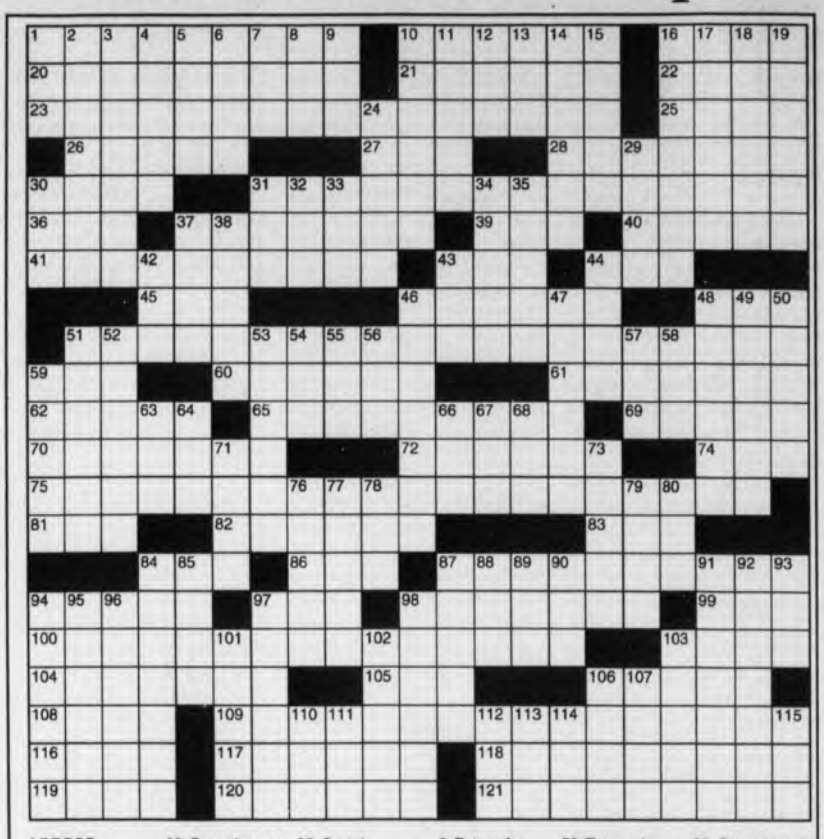
VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Helping those in need at this time is laudable. But don't ignore your own needs, especially where it concerns your health. A medical checkup is a wise move.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Good news: Your outspoken views about a controversial on-the-job situation could find unexpectedly strong support from a most unlikely workplace faction.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) You might have to draw on your reservoir of spiritual strength to help someone special through a difficult time. Your loving attitude makes all the difference.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Your proven leadership qualities make you the perfect person to take on an important workplace task.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Although some compromise might need to be reached regarding your stand on an important issue, you'll still be able to get the most crucial points across.



AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A chance to make a career change carries both positive and uncertain possibilities. Best advice: Check it out thoroughly and don't be rushed into a decision.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You're still a staunch supporter of one side of an important issue. But be prepared to deal with new information that could cause you to question your current stand.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Governance takes center stage

Hearing to tackle Town Manager Act and more

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

The Governance Committee will hold its first evening public hearing on Monday, Oct. 29 at 7 p.m. in the Middle-High School auditorium.

The committee was created last year by the Board of Selectmen and charged with reviewing all town boards, committees and governing documents to find the most effective and efficient use of town taxpayer dollars.

Historically, the group has met every other Thursday in Town Hall at 7:30 a.m. While the committee has been criticized by some for meeting at a time when it is difficult for members of the public to attend, this time was identified as the most convenient hour for the current committee members. However, they planned to hold some evening meetings as an effort to involve the public in their process.

MEETING LAW ISSUE

Seeing double

Selectmen hold same meeting twice

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

The Board of Selectmen have scheduled two extra meetings over the past week to correct a few mistakes made while discussing Acting Town Manager Michael Milanoski's employee contract with the town.

Last Tuesday, Oct. 16, the selectmen held their usual bi-weekly meeting and went into an executive session under exemptions 2 and 3 of the state Open Meeting Law (OML) to discuss Milanoski's contract. However, the board neglected to go back into open session at the end of their hour-long discussion to adjourn the meeting publicly, which is required by the OML.

A second meeting was posted for later that week on Fri., Oct. 19 at 5 p.m. The board reconvened in open session, but the meeting only lasted approximately three minutes. The selectmen briefly discussed making a few minor changes to a draft press release and voted unanimously to approve the release. A printed copy was provided to the Mariner along with an electronic copy, which was emailed the following morning.

The release states the selectmen's support of Mi-

UPDATE

Projects line up at CPC hearing

Town Hall, playground, Sailing Club and more

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

The Committee Preservation Committee (CPC) held a public hearing Monday, inviting members of other boards to propose recreation, open space, affordable housing and other potential projects that could be paid for using CPC funds.

The CPC is an outgrowth of the Community Preservation Act, a 10-year-old law that set the stage to increase the amount of historical preservation, open space, affordable housing, recreational facilities, and other community enrichment projects. There are currently 148 communities in Massachusetts that have adopted the CPA. The funds come from a 1.5 percent surcharge on Cohasset property taxes with some level of state match.

The CPC is required to set aside 10 percent of its revenues, excluding the state's matching funds, for recreation, open space and affordable housing in particular.

Recent changes to the state's Community Preservation Act (CPA) legislation,

THINGS YOU SHOULD KNOW By Sgt. Jeffrey Treanor, safety offcer

Halloween safety tips for kids

- Make sure your costume is visible to others: wear glow sticks, reflective stickers, or carry a flashlight.
- Avoid wearing a mask: it restricts your vision when you are walking. Try face paint instead!
- Wear comfortable shoes.
- Never trick or treat alone. Always have a parent or trusted adult with you.
- Plan a route that you will take prior to leaving the house. This way if you do get lost, mom or dad would know where to look for you.
- Always stay on the sidewalk, walk together in a group, and have your parent or trusted adult help you cross the street.
- Be aware of strangers (somebody you don't know.) Don't approach someone's car, or enter somebody's house unless you get your parents' permission.
- Do not share your candy with friends. They may have allergies.
- Wait until you get home to eat your candy. Mom and dad need to inspect it first!
- Be safe and most importantly HAVE FUN!!!

Halloween is next Wednesday, Oct. 31.

JOEY

JOEY is an enthusiastic young Beagle with a funny, lovable personality. About 2 1/2 years old, this nice dog is eager to please and to learn and loves a good cuddle. We feel Joey would do best in a home with adults and children 6 or older (since he is energetic and we don't know if he has had experience with younger children). A fenced yard is not required but may be helpful as Beagles tend to follow their noses. Joey is interested in cats but would probably do fine with a confident dog savvy cat with claws!

Call (781) 544-4533 for more information or stop by the Scituate Animal Shelter during open hours to meet Joey.

Mariner drop box at Tedeschi's

The Cohasset Mariner has a "drop box" and pickup location at Tedeschi's in the village. The drop box is on the counter in the front window around the corner to the right (by the candy display) after you enter the front door.

The Mariner picks up at 8 a.m. on Mondays and Tuesdays. The drop box can be used to drop off glossy photographs, letters, flyers or other editorial copy.

FISH volunteers

Cohasset F.I.S.H. is currently in need of a few more volunteer drivers. This organization provides rides to medical appointments for those in Cohasset without other options. Each volunteer is scheduled to drive (if needed) one weekday per month using their own vehicle. Our corps of drivers has declined over the summer months as a result of relocations, disabilities, or simple aging issues — thus the need for more volunteers.

If you are available and might be interested in serving Cohasset residents in this easy manner, please contact Dick Avery at 383-6043 or leave a message with the F.I.S.H. answering service (781) 545-7073.

THIRD SUSPECT BEING SOUGHT

Arrests made in cocaine sales

In 2011, Cohasset Police detectives developed information about the trafficking of cocaine from Boston into Cohasset, which led detectives to monitor activity at locations in Cohasset where cocaine sales were taking place.

On Thursday (Oct. 18) Cohasset Police arrested two Boston residents after executing search warrants on two men and a vehicle and seized 65 packages of cocaine found disguised inside a potato chip can.

The arrests are the result of a long-term, ongoing investigation into drug sales in Cohasset and Weymouth conducted by the Cohasset Police Department Criminal Investigation Division, the United States Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA) New England Field Division, Task Force Group II, the Boston Police Department Special Investigations Unit and the Weymouth Police Department Narcotics Unit.

In 2011, Cohasset Police detectives developed information about the trafficking of cocaine from Boston into Cohasset, which led detectives to monitor activity at locations in Cohasset where cocaine sales were taking place.

Police said the suspects were delivering the drug to residents' homes or meeting them in the Village. Twelve to 15 homes in Cohasset were involved, police said.

Based on the information obtained through extensive surveillance in Cohasset and Boston as well as other advanced investigative techniques, detectives were able to develop evidence of a Drug Trafficking Organization (DTO) that delivered illegal drugs the South Shore. During their investigation, Cohasset Police learned that the Weymouth Police Narcotics Unit was also investigating common elements of the DTO, and a joint investigation was initiated between Cohasset and Weymouth Police, with the assistance of DEA and Boston Police.

The following men were arrested:

- Rafael Torres, 30, Roslindale, charged with trafficking in cocaine over 18 grams and conspiracy to violate the drug laws. He faces up to 20 years in prison and a fine of up to $50,000;
- Gabriel A. Martinez, 27, Dorchester, charged with trafficking in cocaine over 18 grams, conspiracy to violate the drug laws and giving a false name to a police officer. He faces up to 20 years in prison and a fine of up to $50,000.

After Torres and Martinez were arrested, based on an affidavit prepared by Cohasset Police Det. Lt. Gregory Lennon, Cohasset Police, DEA, Boston and Weymouth Police executed a search warrant of an apartment in Roslindale, which, detectives believed, was being used by Torres and Martinez as a stash house for their drugs and seized approximately one half kilogram of powder cocaine. During the investigation, Cohasset Police also seized three vehicles and an undetermined amount of cash.

During the booking process, Martinez provided Cohasset Police with a false name and date of birth. His fingerprints were faxed to the Federal Bureau of Investigation's Special Processing Center in Clarksburg, W.V., who identified Martinez based on fingerprints from previous arrests.

Torres and Martinez were arraigned on the charges and are each being held on $25,000 cash bail at the Norfolk County House of Correction. Boston police have sought an arrest warrant for a third suspect who was renting the stash house in Roslindale.

Cohasset Deputy Police Chief William Quigley stated, "This investigation and resulting arrests should send a strong message that we will continue to work with our partners in law enforcement to keep our neighborhoods safe."

Crash knocks out power for hours

At about 6:40 am, on Friday, Oct. 19, Cohasset Police responded to a reported motor vehicle crash on Route 3A near Tedeschi Plaza.

When officers arrived they discovered that a 2006 Ford Expedition had gone into the front of a commercial building at 779 Chief Justice Cushing Hwy (Route 3A). Witnesses on scene stated that it appeared that the 27-year-old male driver had suffered some type of medical episode and lost control of his vehicle. When that happened, the driver, who was headed north on 3A by Pilgrim Bank, went off the road, hit the island, took down a utility pole snapping it at its base, and went toward Curtis Liquors. The SUV then turned, changed direction, careened across the plaza going over the island by the big plaza sign, then across 3A, and slammed into the building.

The driver is from Boston and had been visiting relatives in Scituate. He sustained non-life threatening injuries and was transported to South Shore Hospital in Weymouth by the Cohasset Fire Department. Deputy Chief of William Quigley said: "it is amazing that nobody was killed in this crash."

The area experienced off-and-on power outages for three to four hours while the pole was replaced. The traffic lights were out at 3A & Beechwood Road and 3A & Pond Street.

Man banned from library

By Mary Ford
mford@wickedlocal.com

A 47-year-old Cohasset man has been issued a no-trespass order from the Paul Pratt Memorial Library after he was observed looking at pornography on a computer at the library. Police were called at 7:27 p.m. on Monday (Oct. 15) to the library that reported the man became a little disruptive when asked to leave. When the officer arrived he told the man that he would be leaving. If the subject returns to the library he can be charged with trespassing, police said.

Jewelry left

A 75-year-old Cohasset woman told police last week that she had left jewelry in her car that had been involved in an accident previously. Police said she never claimed the car, which was towed and turned over to the insurance company. She told police that she had personal property including some jewelry in the vehicle. It is not clear what recourse she has because she had forfeited the car to the insurance company. Police gave her information about how to contact the insurance company.

Alcohol issue

A Cohasset woman may be civilly committed for alcoholism after two incidents over the past week that resulted in police action. The woman was arrested and charged with domestic assault and battery for slapping her husband, who went to police to report she was intoxicated and had assaulted him. Police found probable cause to arrest his wife. This week police were called back to the house where the woman, who was intoxicated, was taken into protective custody.

Warrant arrest

An officer on radar patrol on Forest Avenue on Wednesday (Oct. 17) around 2:19 p.m. pulled over a vehicle that was speeding. A check through the Registry of Motor Vehicles revealed the operator, a 69-year-old Hull man, had a warrant for his arrest for operating on a suspended license. The man was arrested on the warrant and his car was towed.

MV crash

Police said a 58-year-old Hull woman in a 2010 Honda sedan had stopped to pull out of lower King Street to make a right onto Route 3A at 8:13 a.m. on Thursday (Oct. 18) when her car was hit from behind on lower King Street by a 2001 Chrysler sedan operated by a 41-year-old Hull woman. Both women were transported to the hospital with minor injuries, police said. The 41-year-old was cited for failure to use caution.

OUI arrest

A 36-year-old S. Main Street man was arrested for drunken driving at 3:25 a.m. on Friday (Oct. 19) on Elm Street. Police said a detective who had just left the station stopped the 2000 Mercedes Benz that was being driven erratically. The operator was displaying signs of intoxication and failed field sobriety tests, police said.

MV crash

Police responded to a two-vehicle crash at 3:40 p.m. on Friday (Oct. 19) at Forest Avenue and Jerusalem Road. Police said a 26-year-old Scituate woman in a 2001 Nissan sedan was traveling on Forest Avenue toward the water when she stopped or slowed down to proceed through the intersection. She was then hit from behind by a 2008 Nissan sedan operated by a 27-year-old Hull man. Neither car was towed but the Hull man was cited for following too closely. There were no reported injuries, police said.

Parking lot

An 84-year-old Cohasset woman was hit by a car that was backing out of a parking space at a local retailer on Route 3A at about 2 p.m. on Sunday (Oct. 21). Police said the elderly woman was walking through the lot when a 2006 Mercedes sedan, operated by a 67-year-old Norwell woman, who did not see the pedestrian who was in the car's "blind spot," backed out, hit her and knocked her to the ground. The Cohasset woman was transported to the hospital where she was treated and released. No citation was issued.

Election signs

Another complaint was called into the police last week about political signs being stolen. The Beach Street caller was the third complaint in two weeks about signs being taken.

Suspicious man

At 7:08 p.m. on Wednesday (Oct. 17) an employee at a business at West Corner reported there was a suspicious man outside who was possibly homeless. Police went to the location, talked to the man whom the call was about, identified him as being 44 years old with a Hull address, and he left the area.

Candy left

A concerned babysitter called police at about 7:50 p.m. on Tuesday (Oct. 16) after hearing someone bang on the door. As it turned out the incident may have been a prank as someone dropped off a bag of candy and left.

Contentious hearing goes on

559 Jerusalem Road still making news

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

After several months of public hearings and debate, the saga at 559 Jerusalem Road continues without much resolution in sight.

Following a long discussion and argument between the applicant seeking to build a single-family home and abutters during last Thursday's Conservation Commission meeting (Oct. 18), another hearing will be held on Thurs., Nov. 1. The board is expected to vote to approve or deny the applicant's request for stormwater and wetlands permits at that meeting, perhaps finally putting an end to a drawn-out battle.

The matter is controversial, not just because the Con Com initially voted to deny the applicant's wetlands and stormwater permits in May, but because of the neighborhood dispute that has broken out over the proposed construction.

During their Thursday, Oct. 18 meeting, Con Com chairman Jack Creighton tried to get the applicant, Chris Ford (on behalf of his brother, Ted Ford, who lives in California) Ford's attorney Charles Humphreys, and the abutters to focus on issues pertaining to environmental impact and upholding the town's wetlands bylaw. The Con Com is obligated to protect the 50-foot buffer zone in the resource area of Straits Pond, which is considered an Area of Critical Environmental Concern (ACEC). The construction project lies within the 100-foot buffer zone.

However, after a presentation by the applicant's engineer that laid out construction specifics, the meeting quickly devolved into heated debate that lasted for over two hours.

At the beginning of the meeting, Creighton responded to a letter Ford wrote suggesting the chairman recuse himself from the discussion because of a past issue the two had. Creighton cited a letter he wrote in August, when he was appointed chairman, which disclosed that he did business with Ford's real estate business. The transaction "created issues between" them that were eventually resolved, said Creighton, adding that it was a "minor issue" that wouldn't affect his objectivity.

Vice chairman David Farrag, who is an attorney, also disclosed that the Fords' engineer, Greg Morse, was a client of his.

Humphreys explained that he and Ford were back before the Con Com to answer any lingering questions they failed to answer during the previous hearings. After Morse had presented the engineering plans and environmental studies on wildlife, flora and fauna, Humphreys said they were under the impression that they would be granted the requested permit.

Creighton responded that the Con Com still had questions on the design of the house, including the height, and wanted to see a shadow study; they also still had concerns on protecting Straits Pond.

Humphreys said that the project would improve the environment rather than impact it negatively by improving the "severely disturbed site" that is covered in non-indigenous species by removing them and replacing them with native plantings. Ford had hired a wetlands scientist, Brad Holmes, to address the environmental concerns on the proposed construction site.

Morse explained that the project would add raingardens and trenches to catch any stormwater run-off, and would actually collect more water and prevent it from running down Jerusalem Road and creating safety hazards than leaving the land undeveloped. The opposing side later questioned the practicality of having a single-family homeowner having to maintain the raingardens.

"Our project, even without mitigation, is an improvement to the site," said Humphreys, adding that during a site visit with a representative from the state's Dept. of Environmental Protection (DEP), the DEP said they favored new development in that site, where the historic Black Rock House stood before being demolished in the 1960s, over virgin land. Overall, his client and the engineer were there to present and discuss "scientific issues," not "political or social" ones.

Flack

The proposed project has gotten flack from abutters, particularly Peter DeCaprio, Cohasset's Water Commission chair, who said that Ford had not followed the proper process when applying for a sewer permit for the property despite the fact that the Sewer Commission granted him one. The sewer department told the Mariner that Ford had filled out the necessary paperwork.

DeCaprio and his lawyer, Jay Talerman, gave a presentation during Thursday's Con Com meeting that argued that even being in the 100-foot buffer zone was too close to Straits Pond and would have adverse effects on the protected resource.

DeCaprio cited the town's Master Plan from 2003 and a survey in which townspeople said they cared most about protecting the natural environment and character of Cohasset, stating that 70 percent of residents agreed the town should limit future development.

"It's not just our issue," DeCaprio said of opposing Ford's project.

Ford later stated that he had a friendly conversation with DeCaprio last winter and told the abutter about his project. DeCaprio later emailed Ford about the water commissioner had with the Con Com on a water department topographic survey. In the email, which the Mariner was given a copy of, DeCaprio told Ford that they were "in the clear as the 50 foot buffer is the only one that really matters and it seems like it will not impact either of us. For once, Con Com acted reasonably... Thank god for small miracles. Good luck with your project. Let me know if you need anything."

Talerman said in response to Ford's bringing up the email, "What can we say? Peter has seen the light."

Humphreys, meanwhile, called DeCaprio's presentation "fluff designed to distort your [the commissioners'] view. Talerman argued that the presentation was relevant, as it concerned the Con Com's duty to uphold the wetlands bylaw and protect Straits Pond.

Other abutters had questions about blasting in the area, as a concrete wall will be removed. One resident, an amateur bird-watcher, discussed several different bird species she'd spotted in the area, including great horned owls; Creighton asked her to submit a list of these to the Con Com. He also told abutters to keep in mind that during construction there would obviously be some disturbance, but the commission was more concerned with any permanent damage to the environment that could result from the project.

The Con Com also had concerns on where trucks and equipments would be kept on the site, and Morse said that everything would stay in the parking lot on the site and would not block the road.

The commission would still like the applicants to clarify the shadow study, which so far only shows one snapshot in time.

Perhaps this question and more will be answered at the next hearing on Thurs., Nov. 1 at 7:30 p.m.

For more on this issue, see an upcoming edition of the Mariner.

PROJECTS

when the state's fiscal year 2013 budget was approved in July, now allow the CPC to focus on projects they were not allowed to previously. Recreation properties that were not acquired using CPA funds are now allowed under the act. The legislative changes also included a one-time $25 million transfer to the statewide CPA trust fund.

On the local level, this allows the Cohasset CPC to consider a project from the town's Sailing Club, which was not acquired through the CPC. The Sailing Club came before the CPC last winter to request CPA money to help pay for its planned new clubhouse on Government Island.

The CPC's statute requires them to hold a public hearing with other boards, although it is not required annually. However, chairman Russ Bonetti said he would like to hold hearings more often to "make the committee more accessible to people in town."

The purpose of Monday's meeting was to hear about potential projects and prepare to submit a warrant article for the Dec.10 meeting.

The meeting had a successful turnout with members of the Recreation Commission, Housing Authority, Sailing Club and more in attendance. Acting Town Manager Michael Milanoski also attended and discussed the five-year capital improvement plan he has been working on with the town's new Director of Project Management and Planning, Brian Joyce.

Throughout the meeting, several potential projects were discussed, including:

- The Historical Society may apply for funds to remove carpeting in two rooms and restore the birch flooring underneath.
- Representatives from the Sailing Club told the CPC that they have raised almost half the amount needed for their project, $250,000 (300 local families are members of the Sailing Club).
- The Recreation Commission could apply to fix the fence at Milliken Field and install new light poles at the town library and Elm's Meadow.
- The PSO would like to upgrade the playground at the Deer Hill School, which is also utilized by the recreation department during their summer playground program.
- The Housing Authority discussed creating new affordable housing for people with special needs, who are currently in "inappropriate housing" on Elm Street.
- Milanoski and Joyce discussed applying for CPA funds to rehabilitate Old Town Hall, which could cost $3.6 to $3.8 million in total production costs; $240,000 to $320,000 would be needed for design and construction documents for the restoration project. The project will likely appear on the fall Town Meeting warrant.

The CPC often asks applicants for partial funding.

"The bigger the impact" of the project, said Bonetti, "the higher on the food chain they go."

Milanoski agreed, "It comes down to priority," adding that he recommends the committee to fund the projects that have "the broadest common benefit."

The CPC always presents its recommendations to the Advisory Committee and Board of Selectmen, with Town Meeting having the final say. Bonetti said that some CPC proposals that were "shot down" by those boards went on to get approval from Town Meeting.

Town Meeting offers "a chance for everyone in town to come out and say yes or no" to a project the CPC recommends, Bonetti explained. "We just give advice, but we'll fight for" a project they support.

An example of this is the First Parish church window restoration project that was hotly debated in many public meetings, from CPC to Advisory and Selectmen— and passed by Annual Town Meeting this past May.

CPC member Susan Sardina agreed. "We're not afraid. If something's controversial, so be it — if we believe in it, we'll stick by it."

Recent legislation

The Community Preservation Coalition has been advocating for passage of An Act to Sustain Community Preservation — a bill designed to stabilize and strengthen the Community Preservation Act. The bill cleared an important hurdle in early June 2011, when the Joint Committee on Community Development and Small Business gave it a favorable recommendation. The bill was then forwarded on to the House Committee on Ways and Means, and became known by its House number, HB 765. The bill was then filed as an amendment to the House version of the FY 2013 state budget in April 2012, passing with a change to the funding source. The Senate changed the funding source yet again, and passed the legislation as part of its budget debate in May, 2012. The two versions were reviewed by a conference committee, which revised the funding source yet again, with the final version including a one-time $25 million transfer to statewide CPA Trust Fund in the fall of 2013. The House and Senate voted to approve the conference committee report on June 28, 2012 and sent it to the Governor for approval.

HAPPENING TOMORROW

Fall Festival in the village

In lieu of Cohasset Day this year, village merchants are coming together to offer other family-friendly fall festivities. This Saturday, Oct. 27, the Fall Festival will take over downtown from 2 to 5 p.m.

Participating businesses will have scarecrows placed in front of their stores. Attendees will even get a chance to vote on which store has the best scarecrow.

As kids take in the hayrides treasure hunt, face painting, sidewalk chalk drawing, balloon making, pet costume contest and pumpkin carving and lighting, adults can enjoy the live music, beer and wine tasting, chair massage and special sales at participating stores. For an educational component, Cohasset Historical Society buildings are also open throughout the afternoon.

Schedule

- 2-5 p.m.: Hayrides from Red Lion Inn to Brook and Elm streets, Depot Court and back to the inn; street art/sidewalk drawing contest in the parking lot with judges from the South Shore Arts Center; free raffles; snacks and beverage samples; restaurants open early; Cohasset Historical Society buildings open; Fire truck parked on S. Main to climb on
- 2 - 3:30: Chair massages at Mariposa
- 2:30 - 4:30 p.m.: Pet costume contest on South Main St. Bring your dog, cat, bird, lizard, or whatever dressed for Halloween. Winner will receive a free weekend stay at Cohasset Kennel courtesy of Steve and Wendy Oleksiak.
- 3 p.m.: Live music at Bia Bistro (Jackson Weatherbee) and Mr. Dooley's; Tour of St. Stephen's bell tower; Pumpkin carving contest; kids' game room opens at Red Lion Inn
- 4 p.m.: Street art judging by South Shore Art Center
- 5 p.m.: Carillon at St. Stephen's
- 6 p.m.: Pumpkin lighting; carving winners announced

BRIEFLY

New members for elder and cultural councils

During their last regular meeting, the Board of Selectmen voted unanimously to approve three new associate members for the Council on Elder Affairs and renewed one member of the Cultural Council. The town also received two applications for the open seat on the Board of Health, but the selectmen held off on making an appointment until they can hold a joint meeting with the health board.

The new Council on Elder Affairs associate members are Kelli Gildea, Paul C. Kierce, and Cindy Swartwood. Elizabeth Morse was reappointed to the Cultural Council after taking a year off, which is required by the committee.

FISH volunteers

Cohasset F.I.S.H. is currently in need of a few more volunteer drivers. This organization provides rides to medical appointments for those in Cohasset without other options. Each volunteer is scheduled to drive (if needed) one weekday per month using their own vehicle. Our corps of drivers has declined over the summer months as a result of relocations, disabilities, or simple aging issues — thus the need for more volunteers.

If you are available and might be interested in serving Cohasset residents in this easy manner, please contact Dick Avery at 383-6043 or leave a message with the F.I.S.H. answering service (781) 545-7073.

GOVERNANCE

"Hopefully people will come out and give ideas we might not have thought of."
Christine Cunning, chairman

The goal, according to chair Christine Cunning, is to "try to summarize where we are and what we're working on. Hopefully people will come out and give ideas we might not have thought of."

While Cunning said that her fellow committee members have a lot of experience and ideas between them, "It's good to get some perspective from the public."

The governance committee will discuss the town's budget planning documents and give a status report on how these documents have been utilized so far this year.

The committee will also discuss an online survey on committees that they gave over the summer, and how they plan to use the data they culled.

Another planned topic—the committee's review of the Town Manager Act's language and the relation between it and the town's bylaws. Over the past year, the committee has reviewed discrepancies between the TM act and the bylaws.

Delving into the town's governing documents has been a "major process" that Cunning said she finds fascinating. This includes the Town Manager Act, which was enacted in 1997 but reportedly differs in parts from town bylaws. The committee is reviewing where the documents don't add up.

"Most recently we've been looking through the Town Manager Act itself, trying to clarify and justify any conflict with the bylaws," said Cunning. "We've been microscopically looking to solve some of that without creating other problems. How do you react to those but anticipate future issues? Clarity seems to be the goal."

While she said the governance committee hasn't "come up with anything firm yet" with regards to refine the TM act or bylaws, Cunning said the topic has been a point of discussion and debate, adding that she "can't see where that can hurt at all.

"At a certain point, there's a lot of good discussion and debate looking at both sides of each and every issue we addressed, and I think given the past experience and problems, that's a healthy exercise."

While admitting that the Act may need some "tweaking" to clear up any discrepancies with the bylaws, Cunning didn't seem to think the document would be scrapped. Rather, the committee would like to make changes "without throwing the whole thing out and starting over... I don't see that being necessary. In general, the current structure is good. We're hoping to eliminate areas of tension so everyone coming in knows... balance of town manager power relative to the board of selectmen, having that work most effectively and still have checks and balances."

Any changes to the TM Act recommended by the governance committee would be mere suggestions that would be presented to other boards, including the selectmen; Town Meeting would have the final say.

"We've become the experts, and [what we propose] would become a recommendation to be voted at Town Meeting," said Cunning. "At that point you have to trust the system; that is the only process you can use."

While the governance committee might not have any articles on the warrant for the Dec.10 Special Town Meeting, Cunning said she would still like the board to present a "snapshot" of what they've been working on. They could have recommendations for Annual Town Meeting in the spring, but not before holding another evening public hearing.

"Our hope is that we will obviously finalize any of these recommendations and have another public meeting in the spring when we're at more of a final point and have had a better opportunity to debate what's proposed," said Cunning.

The governance committee is set to sunset at the end of December 2013, having been recently extended by the board of selectmen. Cunning hopes the committee will tie up any loose ends by then.

"We really need to be thorough but also need an end point," she said.

The committee currently has eight members, with one resigning last month due to a conflict of interest. While they have received a few applications, the committee has yet to appoint anyone new (the committee can appoint anyone they wish but must present that to the selectmen for approval).

Cunning said the committee has tabled the replacement until after the public hearing, but hope to add new members after next week.

The governance committee would welcome "anyone interested in the town and how government works," specifically those with experience sitting on private sector boards or with managerial experience. "There's a lot of experience from different places that can be applicable."

Anyone who would like to serve on the Governance Committee should send a letter of interest to the Board of Selectmen's Office, Cohasset Town Hall, 41 Highland Ave., or email Tracey Connors-Kelly in the selectmen's office at tconnorskelly@townofcohasset.org.

McKenna named to St. Michael College Board of Trustees

JENNIFER PIEPENBRINK

Mary-Kate G. McKenna of Cohasset, a 1980 graduate of Saint Michael's College, and the parent of a member of the Saint Michael's Class of 2015, has been named to the SMC Board of Trustees. Mary-Kate, appointed to a three-year term, renewable for another two terms, attended her first board meeting at the college Oct. 11 through 13.

About her inspiration to join the SMC board, she said, "I love Saint Michael's; I've been affiliated with the college since I arrived at the school as a student in 1976. Since then I've headed up different reunion years for the college and my classmates, and have sent my son to Saint Michael's."

Mary-Kate, who holds a master of science degree (2012) in management from Boston College, served for the past 10 years as a trustee of Derby Academy of Hingham. Previously, she was an associate at Paine Webber and then at Morgan Stanley, and for seven years was vice president at Dillon Read & Co., New York, N.Y.

"I love the magic and the alchemy of Saint Michael's College," she said.

Mary-Kate was named Saint Michael's College Alumna of the Year in 2005. She chaired the Class of 1980 reunions in 1990, 1995, 2000 and 2010.

Mary-Kate served from 1998 through 2008 as co-chair and treasurer of Martha's Vineyard Hospital House Tour. She is a member of St. Anthony's Parish in Cohasset.

Mary-Kate and her husband, James McKenna, and their children, John Peter (SMC '15), Katherine and Mark, reside in Cohasset.

Quiz Show for senior set

Come to Cohasset Elder Affairs on Wednesday, Oct. 31 (Halloween!) at 12:30 for a fun, quick paced "as seen on TV" game show, presented by Mr. DJ. Exercise your cognitive skills and stroll down memory lane as we play: "Fun Facts," "Name that Tune," "Name that Hollywood Actor" and "Is the Price Right?" Lunch will be served at 12 (prior to the presentation). Halloween costumes are optional but encouraged! Call 781-383-9112 for reservations and/or van transportation.

Coastal Carolina

Alexandra Lelio, a resident of Cohasset, has enrolled in Coastal Carolina University. All the best for a great year, Alexandra!

Supper tonight!

Saint Anthony Parish will be the host parish for an Old Fashioned Community Supper, sponsored by the local faith communities, from 5:30 to 8 p.m., on Friday, Oct. 26. Parishioners from St. Anthony Church, St. Stephen Church, Second Congregational Church, First Parish Unitarian Universalist and the Vedanta Centre will provide a meal consisting of salad, bread, entrée, dessert and beverage. People of all ages, faith traditions and walks of life are invited.

Come and enjoy a complimentary home-cooked meal prepared by the parishioners of local Houses of Worship while enjoying lively conversation at St. Anthony Parish Center, 10 Summer St. For more information, call Barbara or Jean at 781-383-0219.

That is the news for this week Cohasset. Send in all your news, photos and celebration info to me no later than Tuesdays by 5 pm.

Just an FYI. We receive dean's list and honors notices from many colleges and private schools, but not all. If your son or daughter has earned recognition, please share that news directly with us!

We also LOVE new baby announcements with photos if possible. Need birth date, weight, length, names of siblings, parents and grandparents. Emailed photos are fine but glossies can be dropped off at Tedeschi's in the village in our Mariner drop box.

FAQ's from CASP 2013 Handbook

• What projects might a volunteer be working on?

Jobs include: Repairing roofs, eaves and gutters; digging drainage trenches; working on foundations; installing insulation in walls, floors and attics; repairing floors; building retaining walls; constructing and repairing interior and exterior walls and siding; rebuilding a bathroom; installing and repairing foundations and major supportive structures; constructing a room addition; building porches and handicap ramps; installing doors and windows; etc.

• What does one get out of going on ASP?

Expect an eye-opening experience in a beautiful part of the United States, making new friends from home, in the center and most especially, the wonderful folks who live in Appalachia. There will also be some personal growth and learning more about oneself. There is often the feeling of receiving more than one has given.

• What are other motivations for going on the trip?

There are many reasons. Some go because their friends are going or have gone and speak of an amazing experience. Others sign on to boost community service points on college and scholarship applications. There can also be the deeper motivation to lend a hand in helping those less fortunate to improve their living conditions.

For further information, please visit the CASP website: www.CohassetASP.org.

CASP 2013 Handbooks may still be picked up in the Cohasset High School office or by calling 781-383-0345 for other options. All registration forms can also be found on the CASP website. Upon request, financial aid will be considered on a case-by-case basis.

Evan loves to talk to people

PAULA J. FATERSIK

Sometimes, when the unexpected happens, loving pets finds themselves in a challenging and lonesome spot. Well, Evan, pictured here, is one of those pets, but he is hoping that someone will come to his rescue and return him to the comfort and warmth of a true home. Living in a shelter is a temporary situation, and it would be wonderful if there was a family out there who could help him find that special place and peace in his life. Losing your best friend is tough, and having someone step in and show you that it will be ok is a perfect ending.

The first days in the shelter were rather unsettling for Evan, but once he started coming out and about, his social nature came shining through. This friendly, senior male is so very attentive and spent hours just following us around, rather like a puppy at times. He was so intent on being with people. Whether it was strolling around or sitting on the desk, on the keyboard, or relaxing on the chair, Evan made it clear that he needed to be a part of everything. This is a great part of his personality. And he is a bit of a conversationalist too! Evan will let you know he wants some of your time and attention for sure.

When looking at Evan, you cannot miss his incredibly long, white whiskers. They give him a rather distinguished look really, and stand out handsomely against his tiger fur. And as he studies you, it is the wisdom of age that comes through. Evan has been checked by the veterinarian and at 10 years old, has received a very good report so he is just waiting for his big day.

You can come in to HSAR and spend some time getting to know Evan and maybe give this friendly guy a chance to be happy again in a loving home. We are located at 50 L St. and Open Hours are Mondays 6:30-7:30p.m. and Saturdays 2-3p.m. Or you can schedule an appointment with Judy @ 781-534-4902.

Hull Seaside Animal Shelter is a non-profit, no-kill shelter. Many volunteers invest a lot of their time here and love caring for our kittens and cats who deserve a chance to live in safe and loving homes. We are so fortunate to have this wonderful group of people come in and connect with our cats and kittens, helping to provide them a clean and comfortable space and prepare them for that happy moment when they are chosen for a forever home.

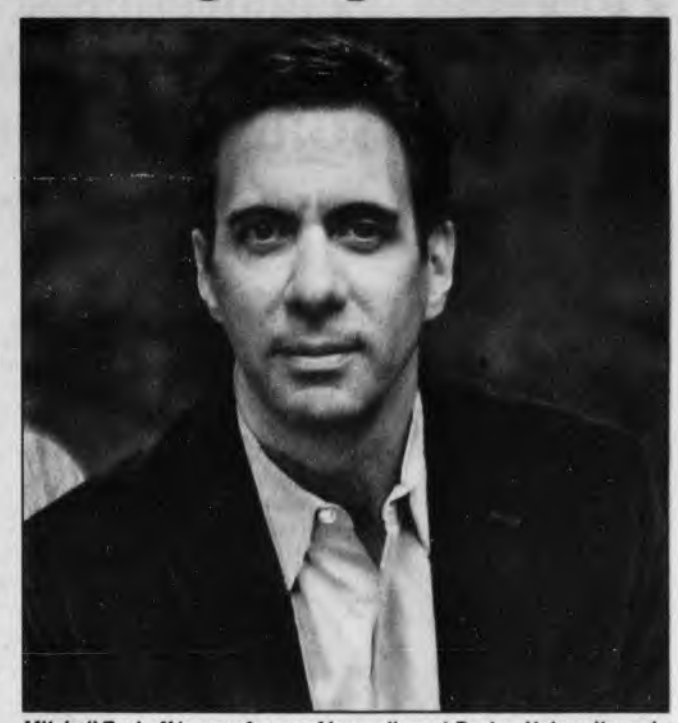
SUNDAY AUTHORTALKS

'Shangri-La' author is guest speaker Nov. 4

By Marylou Lawrence
Special to the Mariner



Pulitzer Prize finalist Mitchell Zuckoff will speak at the next "Sunday AuthorTalks" on Nov. 4 at 4 p.m. at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library. He will discuss his most recent book, "Lost in Shangri-La: A True Story of Survival, Adventure, and the Most-Incredible Rescue Mission of World War II."

Zuckoff's book tells a remarkable story, through the words and images of those who lived it, of a lost Eden hidden by low cloud cover and surrounding mountains, protected by lush, impenetrable jungles, and inhabited by primordial, man-eating warrior tribes, untouched by progress since the Stone Age.

In the waning days of WWII, a US Army plane flying over the island of New Guinea crashed in this unchartered region. Only three people survived — a beautiful young WAC and two G.I.'s. That they endured is in itself miraculous and due solely to their grit, determination, and trust in one another.

After an arduous four-day trek through dense rain forest, they found a clearing where they could signal their whereabouts to a search plane. But they would remain in Shangri-La for 46 more days before the army could come up with a rescue plan — no small feat given the threat of thousands of hostile Japanese soldiers hiding around the perimeter of the island, warrior tribes, and mountain air too thin for helicopters. Meanwhile, the survivors nursed their injuries, and knowing that good relations with their hosts would keep them out of the stew pot, worked on making friends with local tribesmen.

While researching an unrelated subject, Zuckoff discovered newspaper clippings about the crash six decades later; the articles ultimately led him to a 90-year-old survivor with vivid memories of his ordeal, living a quiet life on the Oregon coast. Zuckoff's relentless search eventually uncovered scrapbooks, photographs, films, a lost diary, and boxes of declassified US Army documents, which revealed a story he knew he had to write.

Zuckoff's relentless search eventually uncovered scrapbooks, photographs, films, a lost diary, and boxes of declassified US Army documents, which revealed a story he knew he had to write.

In his "New York Times" review of "Lost in Shangri-La," Michael Washburn says, "Even at the level of exposition, the book is breathless...By the end of Zuckoff's narrative, it's clear that the Americans, however painful and anguishing the ordeal, were hardly victims. After all, they experienced the thrills of adventure. The New Guineans, by contrast, inherited a tragedy." Any visitor to Shangri-La today would understand the toll the last 60 years have taken on this paradise.

Mitchell Zuckoff is a professor of journalism at Boston University. His prior works include "Robert Altman: The Oral biography," "Ponzi's Scheme: The True Story of a Financial Legend," "Choosing Naia: A Family's Journey," and "Judgment Ridge: the True Story Behind the Dartmouth Murders." His work has appeared in "The New Yorker" and "Fortune," among other publications, and has earned him many national honors, including Pulitzer Prize finalist for his investigative reporting for the "Boston Globe."

A wine and cheese reception will follow Zuckoff's talk, and his book will be available for purchase and signing. Admission is free, but seating is limited. To ensure a spot, reserve a seat either online at cohassetlibrary.org or phone the library at 383-1348 ext 1 or pick up a ticket at the library's circulation desk.

"Sunday AuthorTalks" is sponsored by Dean and Hamilton Realtors and The Cook Estate. Bruce Sinclaire, owner of A Taste for Wine and Spirits, donates the wines for post-talk receptions.

School clubs starting up again

WHITNEY MALONE

As sports are reaching the end of the fall season, various clubs are starting up again. Tuesday, the Debate Team met to assign partners and positions in preparation for their first competition of the year and Thursday, the Math Team also had its first meeting. If you are interested in joining or would like to learn more about these clubs, see Mr. Fish in the English department and Ms. Giuliano in the Math department.

Wednesday night, the cast and crew for the school musical met to continue rehearsing for their performance at the end of November. Rehearsals began a few weeks ago, but if you still want to be a part of the musical, it's not too late! We are short of backstage crewmembers and encourage all students who are interested to contact Mrs. Moriarty or Mr. Mahoney in the Music department!

Next week, there will be a Peer Leader Workshop in Ms. Gordon's room Monday after school. Peer Leaders will be presenting their prepared activities and discussions to the middle school students on Friday.

This time of the year is certainly my favorite because of all the excitement from Spirit Week, Homecoming, Friday football games, and coming-up, the annual Powder Puff game. I am really enjoying writing to all of you about Life at CHS! Please let me know if you have any comments or suggestions.

Whitney Malone is a senior at CHS; her column appears weekly during the school year.

SUPPORTS WELLSPRING

Attendees had a wonderful time — not only was the evening a financial success...but and everyone danced! COURTESY PHOTO/LYNNE LAYMAN

Dance Party!

Many Cohasset residents extended their time and their talents to make Wellspring's Dance Party a fabulous event. Wishes for Wellspring Dance Party! was held at the Cohasset Golf Club on Sept. 13th. The night focused on how Wellspring helps, and included an inspirational talk by a former student, who graduated from Wellspring and was able to get a job in her field of interest, thanks to the Adult Learning Program at Wellspring.

The Wish Wall depicted individual needs in the community, and the overwhelming generosity of guests ensures that these wishes will be granted. Everyone had a wonderful time — not only was the evening a financial success...but and everyone danced!

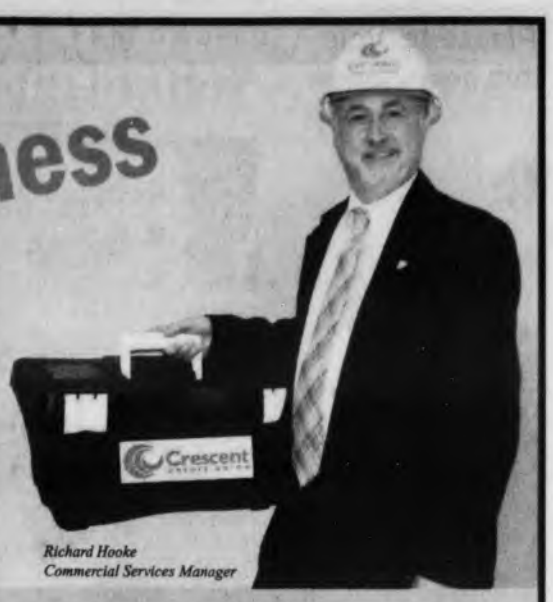
COHASSET CABARET

Still a few tickets left!

There are still a few tickets left for the annual Cohasset Cabaret, which will take place Nov. 2 and 3. Those who haven't bought tickets yet can grab a few friends to see Razzle Dazzle & More! Broadway Kidz will have the audience smiling and cheering as they see and hear how these young people can put on a show. Two hours of solid entertainment.



People can try their luck at the raffle and silent auction table, which will have items from local artists and merchants. Audience members are encouraged to bring their own snacks cabaret style. There will be a cash bar serving wine, beer and soft drinks. Cohasset Cabaret is sponsored by The Friends of Cohasset Elder Affairs and will benefit the Friends and St. Anthony's Youth Ministry.

Tickets are on sale now and the cost is $25. Tickets can be purchased at St. Anthony's Parish Hall office and the CEA office at South Shore Community Center. Call 781-413-7540 for more information.

BREAST CANCER AWARENESS, SEE PAGES 28 & 29

Local plastic surgeon talks reconstruction options

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

Breast cancer patients who are facing mastectomy and the loss of their breasts have several reconstructive options available.

Cohasset's resident plastic surgeon, Dr. Christian Ford, who has his own private practice in the village, is speaking out about reconstructive surgery options for breast cancer patients.

Dr. Ford has significant experience with breast reconstructive surgery. For two years, it was the focus of his practice at South Coast Hospital Group.

While it is not a part of his current practice – Ford performs other types of in-hospital cosmetic surgeries and non-surgical procedures in his Depot Court office – the surgeon is a local expert on reconstructive surgery options for breast cancer patients. He also offers services that can help patients look and feel better, post-operation and beyond.

"Patients faced with breast cancer who are required to undergo mastectomy are faced with the problem of asymmetry," Ford explained. However, there are many surgical options available to help women achieve a natural look.

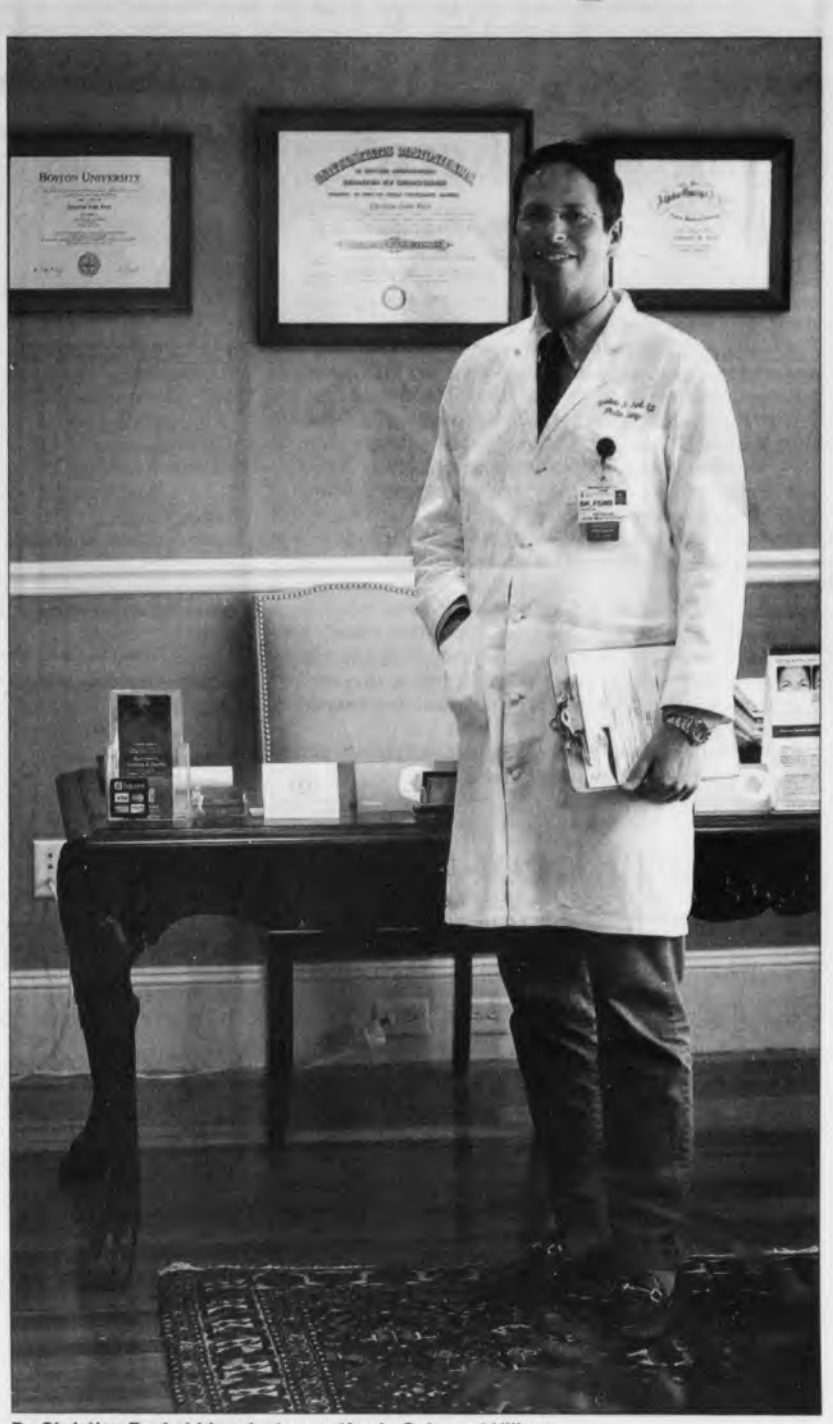
During an interview in his office, Ford discussed two different types of breast reconstructive surgeries, shared before and after photos, and explained why patients could consider either type of surgery.

The first option Ford explained is tissue expansion, which involves using a temporary tissue expander to inflate the breast. The expander is removed a few weeks later, and a breast implant, filled with either silicone gel or saline, is inserted.

First, a surgical incision is made below the pectoralis muscle, and as the expander is placed, Ford said that surgeons use great care to ensure breast symmetry. The patient is given a few weeks to heal before the expansion process is started; this takes place every one to two weeks until the desired sized is reached.

A folder with examples of breast reconstructions, and sample breast implants, at the practice of Dr. Christian Ford.

Nipple and areola reconstruction is also possible with a local flap and tattooing.



All together, this option requires two to three surgeries over the course of a few months, including the expansion process, implant insert, and nipple reconstruction. The first surgery may only require an overnight hospital stay, but the patient could be released the same day.

The second surgery option has a longer healing timetable, but more natural approach: autologous reconstruction, where tissue is taken from another area of the body (often the abdomen) and rotated into the breast defect.

Some patients prefer the second option because it uses their own tissue to recreate the breast, rather than a silicone implant. With this surgery, the patient is both the donor and recipient of relocated tissue.

Ford said that both types of surgeries "are really great options. A very nice result can be achieved."

As for which type breast cancer patients should consider, the surgeon said, "It really depends on patient preference."

Ford stresses, however, that priority one for any breast cancer patient is getting rid of the cancer before recreating the breasts.

"I counsel patients, first and foremost, the goal is to eradicate the cancer. The second priority is reconstructing the breasts."

From the time a patient is diagnosed with cancer and undergoes treatment, to a mastectomy and the point where the patient is ready for reconstructive surgery can take up to a couple of years.

"It's a long process because treating the cancer is the first step," said Ford.

If the patient has undergone radiation or chemotherapy, Ford advises waiting "a minimum of several months after those treatments have stopped."

It might be a long and harrowing process, but Ford said that there is hope for women facing a mastectomy. He cited a patient testimonial from a woman he performed reconstructive surgery on who thanked Ford for giving her "her self-confidence back. That's really what this is."

Ford's medical aesthetician, Christine McMackin, agreed: "It's helping women feel whole in their bodies."

Helping patients look and feel better

This month, Dr. Christian Ford and medical aesthetician, Christine McMackin, R.N., are preparing to open a new med spa in conjunction with the office's current services, which range from breast augmentations or reductions to facelifts and tummy tucks.

The new spa provides "a nice dovetailing with cosmetic procedures," said Ford. "There's a synergy between the services."

For women dealing with breast cancer and reconstructive surgery, the med spa also offers some healing and relief.

The customized treatments are "great pre- and post-op," said McMackin. "The patient heals quicker with less scarring and bruising. The treatments and serums help minimize and smooth out surgical scars."

The med spa offers medical and pharmaceutical grade skincare products that are "results-driven," said McMackin, and "help you achieve optimal healthy skin."

A range of peels are available to help treat skin conditions like acne and rosacea, along with hyper-pigmentation and fine lines.

Ford's new spa differs from other types of spas because it is supervised by an in-house physician.

When McMackin came to him and offered her services, Ford said that he saw a "natural need" to open a med spa in Cohasset. "It's a great service to provide the community."

A grand opening for the med spa is planned for Nov. 1. Free consultations are also available. For more information on Dr. Ford and the surgical and non-surgical treatments he offers, visit www.christianfordmd.com or call 781-923-1470.

OUR VIEW

Who's your hero?

With Veterans Day approaching, we would like to know who is your favorite veteran? On our website (www.wickedlocalcohasset.com) we have anchored a "call-out" in our carousel that asks web visitors to share photos and a short write up about their favorite veteran.

If you have a few minutes, please participate. You can also email a photo and a write up to Cohasset Mariner editor, Mary Ford at mford@wickedlocal.com

With the Operation Iraqi Freedom at a close and Operation Enduring Freedom (Afghanistan) coming to a close – this Veterans Day provides an opportunity for us to recognize new veterans as well as those from Desert Storm, Vietnam, Korea and World War II.

If you have a relative who fought in World War I or have done research on someone in your family that served in the Civil War or other conflict – those veterans would also be good candidates for our "call-out."

Captions and write-ups should include information about each veteran, their rank, branch of military, during which war they served, time of service, and why they are your hero. Please also include the connection the veteran has to Cohasset.

We'll take your Veterans Day submissions right up until the eleventh hour of the eleventh day of the eleventh month (Sunday, Nov. 11).

Governance

"Government of the people, by the people, for the people."

We all know those words as part of Lincoln's Gettysburg address, which he delivered on Nov. 19, 1863 – almost 149 years ago.

That phrase about democracy is perhaps the most quoted part of the speech and pertains to all levels of government.

On Monday (Oct. 29), our local Governance Committee is holding an evening meeting at 7 p.m. at the Middle-High School auditorium.

The GC has asked for ideas and input – they will also present an overview of what they have been brainstorming about over recent months.

The central issue will likely be the 1997 Town Manager Act. The Town has had a series of Town Managers over the past 15 years. Is the TMA, the way it is now, good for Cohasset, or does it need to be tweaked in some way?

Here is a short synopsis of the TM's duties from the town's website:

"Under the Town Manager Act, the Town Manager serves as the chief administrative officer of the Town and is responsible to the Board of Selectmen for the effective management of all town affairs placed in the manager's chart by the Act. The Town Manager Act provides that the Town Manager is responsible for the design and preparation of the annual budget, including all proposed revenues and expenditures. The Town Manager also appoints all paid town employees (excluding school employees), and negotiates all collective bargaining agreements with Town unions (excluding school unions)."

Hedlund fights for Bottle Bill

State Sen. Bob Hedlund, R-Weymouth, is seeking reelection to the Plymouth-Norfolk District. The candidates or their campaigns submitted these announcements.

The South Shore Recycling Cooperative (SSRC) recognized Senator Bob Hedlund with a Certificate of Appreciation for his active role in keeping the Updated Bottle Bill (UBB) alive almost to the bitter end of the legislative session. The Certificate reads:

"The South Shore Recycling Cooperative Board of Directors acknowledges with gratitude the efforts of Senator Robert Hedlund to update the Massachusetts Bottle Bill. Acting in the interest of constituents and municipalities, in the face of political peril, he championed this measure in both word and deed."

Hedlund stood up to industry and leadership in the interest of our municipalities, the will of the majority of the voters, and the environment. Non-deposit beverage containers, including water, sports drinks and ice tea, are a large component of litter, and cost Massachusetts cities and towns millions to manage.

Special interests have blocked the advancement of the UBB through the legislative process since 1998. The UBB would reduce government costs to manage the containers currently excluded from the deposit system, and create an estimated 1,500 jobs, so Hedlund, a longtime sponsor of updated bottle bill legislation, proposed it as both a Budget, and then as a Jobs bill amendment on the Senate floor in the last session. It passed with the Senate Jobs Bill.

The UBB was not included in the House version or the final version of the Jobs Bill, however. It will be re-filed in the next session.

Davis on education

Genevieve Davis is the democratic candidate for the Plymouth Norfolk-District.

Too many of our students are graduating from high school without the skills needed to successfully train for a career. Whether they are enrolled in a certificate, a two-year or a four- year program, the need for remedial education is a detriment to success.

In Massachusetts, almost two thirds of the graduating class of 2011 who attended a community college required remedial courses. Twenty-two percent of students from the class of 2011 who enrolled in a state university needed some remedial education. The odds of these students continuing their education at any level are severely diminished.

This is a problem that is not widely talked about in the legislature, but it is a crisis that needs to be addressed immediately because it impacts the state's economy. In order to grow over the next decade, the state's economy is projected to need more two and four-year college graduates.

The cost of remedial education in Massachusetts is difficult to determine but the national estimates run above $2 billion annually. We need to eliminate this duplication of expense by creating better alignment between high schools and two and four-year colleges and universities.

Some of the pathways to achieve this are online courses that help teachers identify problem areas, dual enrollment programs between high schools and local two and four-year colleges and early college high schools.

Armed with my experience at the New England Board of Higher Education, I will bring solutions to address this problem in the legislature when I become senator.

PUSHING THE EDGE

Ready for $100,000 per year for college?

GLENN MANGURIAN

The overall inflation rate since 1986 has increased 115 percent but college tuition increased a whopping 498 percent.

Last week the Time magazine cover story was "College Is Dead. Long Live College!" College may not be dead but it sure is expensive. Last month many of you paid a college bill that was the equivalent of purchasing a new automobile. How will parents and students cope when the bill reflects $100,000 for one year of college? It's coming in about 10 years for private colleges and universities. Think I am crazy? Consider this.

A good "rule of thumb" is that tuition rates increase at about twice the general inflation rate. During any 17-year period from 1958 to 2001, the average annual tuition inflation rate was between 6 percent and 9 percent according to the College Board, ranging from 1.2 times general inflation to 2.1 times general inflation. The overall inflation rate since 1986 has increased 115 percent but college tuition increased a whopping 498 percent.

Last year the average tuition increased by 7.9 percent. And we call this a bad economy! If we assume only a 7 percent inflation rate for college, private schools will hit $100,000 per year in 2022. For example, Boston University's current price is $55,070 per year or an estimated total of $244,508 for the next four years. For a child currently 9-years-old, the price will jump to $449,197 for four years. Worse yet, for a child born today the price will jump to $826,419 for four years! Do you think I'm making up these numbers? Sadly, it is true. That is the power of compound interest. In comparison to the private schools, UMass Amherst's current price of $23,922 seems like a bargain. The current gap between UMass Amherst and Boston University is $138,296 for four years of education. That gap will grow to almost $500,000 for a child born today.

Parents continue to be willing to stretch themselves financially to send their children to college. According to a recent survey by Sallie Mae, the nation's number one financial services company specializing in education, 89 percent of students and 77 percent of parents strongly agree college is an investment in their future. Parents only pay 28 percent of college expenses from savings and income. Financial planning for the payment of college expenses remains low – just 39 percent of families had a plan for paying for college before enrollment.

I see five reasons why college costs have increased so much.

1. There is an imbalance of supply and demand – applications far outpace available seats.
2. Colleges have few incentives to control costs and more reasons to spend for new facilities and programs.
3. There is an abundance of loan money allowing anyone to attend who can get in but creating a student loan debt of $1 trillion.
4. For most parents and students reputation and quality still trump price.
5. Colleges value their tradition and are reluctant to change.

I'm sure you're thinking that something will happen in the next 18 (or even five) years to change the trajectory. Let's hope so. But without some major changes, we are headed for the $800,000 college degree. Good luck saving for that price tag.

GROWING ON THE FARM

Field trips are memorable

JON BELBER

The kids are going to write about the goods, services, consumers and producers they learned about for their social studies unit.

Autumn is a lovely time to visit the farm. Actually, every season has its charms: winter woods walks, spring seedlings, and summer salads are seasonal rights of passage that come to mind.

But in fall the leaf peepers have lots to see. The winter squash chefs and soup makers have many options of butternut, acorn, pumpkin and delicata to roast. And the harvesters can pick beans, greens and plenty of root crops. The same goes for the hundreds of school children who come to the farm for a school field trip. The children, parent chaperones and teachers are delighted – and occasionally surprised – by what they see and encounter. The fall is a special and unique time.

Recently, we welcomed second graders from Cohasset's Osgood School. These same second graders came as first graders in the spring to sow some seeds, see and taste the short, ripe asparagus, the tart rhubarb and absorb the farm in full awakening after the winter of rest. It was extra special for the kids to see the changes that occurred over the seasons and months. They took in the tall leafy asparagus fern, tasted a bright red watermelon radish and harvested bean pods to save seeds for a hopeful new farm garden at school. These are just to name a few of the highlights.

I look forward to reading more in their journal entries the teachers will forward. The kids are going to write about the goods, services, consumers and producers they learned about for their social studies unit. These adventures and hands-on experiences are hopefully lasting and educational for all who visit. The Friends of Holly Hill Farm, which teaches these programs to the Osgood children, as well as kids from Marshfield, Norwell, Hingham and Scituate, is fortunate to greet these eager learners when they step off the bus.

The Friends has several farm teachers and volunteer farm teachers to greet the children, chaperones and parents. Without these trained knowledgeable teachers and docents, we would be unable to connect the farm to their curriculum or make meaningful the different aspects of how and why the farm, its fields, the buildings, animals and woods are of vital importance to the visitors and the community in general. Mostly, the kids are excited to take their learning outside.

Field trips are often quite memorable. The teachers at the farm provide lots of opportunities for all to get their hands dirty, taste a little bit of ripe vegetables, sift some compost and see up close the working farm. I am grateful that we are able to lead these groups around and even more delighted to empower our farm teachers and guides to also share in the discovery. As more children and their insightful teachers come to the farm for a field trip, the more grows the need for teachers to help us walk and delight in the farm's wonders first hand. If you would like to help lead a group or learn more about growing organic produce or just share in the thrills of the season, then perhaps you can help greet the bus, come learn along side the kids and taste some carrots too. The fun field trip can be memorable for all, kids and adults, teachers and parents.

His column appears twice monthly in the Mariner. He can be reached by email at jbelberhollyhill@hotmail.com. For information on upcoming programs at Holly Hill, visit www.hollyhillfarm.org.

EARTH AND SPIRIT

'It's the ecology, stupid!'

REV. KEN READ-BROWN

When will the politicians really get it? When will we all get it? Only when it is too late to make meaningful change?

You may feel that this election season has been filled to overflowing with the noise and often negativity of advertising, charges and counter charges, endless debates, and so on – and on. And it would be hard to disagree.

But in another way this election season has been filled with a deafening silence.

What do I mean?

From the presidential campaign to congressional campaigns to state house campaigns barely a word is spoken or seems likely to be spoken about what is arguably the most important, critical, urgent issue of our time: Global warming and climate change. Even the candidates who apparently do know that much more must be done to slow global warming and thereby reduce the disastrous effects of climate change rarely say anything about it!

What is going on?

Well, as the Clinton campaign put it 20 years ago, "It's the economy, stupid" – and everyone seems to agree this year too. And yes, the economy is still in rough shape: Unemployment way too high, too many small businesses still struggling, too many families not making ends meet, too many living in poverty. Yes, all of this must be addressed. But here's the thing: We are living in the past if we think with an earlier presidential campaign that it is only the economy. Because the unspoken, rarely acknowledged reality is this: "It's the ecology..." Look at it this way: You can have a healthy, thriving ecological life system without a human economy, but you cannot have a healthy economy without a healthy ecological system. The economy nests within the ecology and not the other way around.

Insurance companies already know this quite well as increasingly disastrous storms and fires likely related to climate change cost billions. Many coastal cities are waking up to the reality of sea level rise and are already developing contingency plans to protect subway systems and other infrastructure, along with evacuation plans as major storm surges become the rule rather than the exception. Pretty soon even those who love bacon and pork may figure it out too, since prices are expected to spike dramatically as part of the ripple effect of drought in the mid-section of our nation.

On it goes. When will the politicians really get it? When will we all get it? Only when it is too late to make meaningful change? Or will we pick up the pace of all the changes necessary to create a sustainable way of life on this, the only planet we have for the foreseeable future?

All this should take on particular urgency in an election year, because we must recognize sooner rather than later that though the changes we can each make in our personal lives are important, they won't matter much unless we also make significant collective strides in energy conservation and development of alternatives to fossil fuels.

When will enough of us (including our political leaders) understand that it is a dangerous kind of insanity – to offer just one more example – to view the shrinking Arctic ice cap not as a dire warning for us all, but instead as an opportunity for a few to drill for more of the oil that has caused the shrinking to begin with?

Yes, one can only hope sooner rather than later.

Rev. Read-Brown has been the minister of First Parish in Hingham (Old Ship Church), Unitarian Universalist, since 1987. He is also a member of REACH (Responsible Energy Alternatives Coalition of Hingham – hinghamreach.org). He can be reached at oldshipkrb@comcast.net.

FOR THE RECORD

Make it clear and it'll make it in

GREGORY MATHIS

You can find contact information including email addresses, phone and fax numbers on page 2 of your Journal.

The content we get for our newspapers and websites comes in all shapes and sizes, in many forms, and from many different areas.

Our journalists generate a large portion of the stories and photographs you see in the newspaper each week or online throughout the day. Professional writing companies and public relations firms contribute some of the content, and much of the rest comes from you.

A very important part of keeping up with the community is knowing what you're doing, what events you're planning or involved with, what's going on at the schools, and how the youth soccer or youth football team did this past weekend.

If we do a good job gathering all that information and getting it into the proper format for the newspaper or the website, we feel we've done our small part in serving you and the community well.

We understand all writers – and press releases for that matter – are not created equal. But don't let a fear of not knowing what to do or how to do it hold you back.

Here are a few helpful tips to demystify the process and point you in the right direction when submitting content.

- This isn't Facebook or Twitter, or texting, or Instant Messaging, so "LOL" and "OMG", as well as various symbols, abbreviations and smiley faces don't work when it comes to submitting information for the newspaper or online. Writing something for the newspaper requires real words strung together in sentence and paragraph form. Good grammar is also important. This message is especially true for the younger generation, which has grown up trying to cram as many thoughts into as few characters as possible.
- Avoid writing in the first person and including "we" and "us" in your announcement. Think of the audience you're writing for and the medium in which it will be received. Editors edit out "we" and "us," because "we" and "us" would mean the message people are reading in print is coming from the newspaper staff.
- Keep your announcement short and sweet. There is a limit to how much space we have in print, and long releases are tough to read online. Use common words and write succinct sentences. Chose your words wisely and use them appropriately. Don't use a lot of flowery adjectives or big words that send readers (and some editors) running to a dictionary.
- Don't forget to include the really important information in your event listing – date, time and location of the event and always include a contact phone number or email for people to get more information.
- Avoid putting words in bold text, or underlining words or having the word in all CAPITAL LETTERS for points of emphasis. We see this a lot in letters to the editor. While we greatly appreciate your opinion, the additional emphasis will end up on the cutting floor.

You can submit content to us in several ways. Sending an email to Mary Ford, editor of the Cohasset Mariner (mford@wickedlocal.com), is the quickest and most effective route. But we also get submissions by fax and the regular mail as well. You can find contact information including email addresses, phone and fax numbers on page 2 of your newspaper or by clicking the "Contact Us" tab on your Wicked Local website homepage.

We look forward to hearing from you.

Gregory Mathis is editor-in-chief of GateHouse Media New England's South and Cape Cod units. He can be reached by email at gmathis@wickedlocal.com.

FROM TOWN HALL

Good news on financial front

Free cash certified: $958,508

Financial Procedures are paying off for new leadership in Cohasset. According to the Acting Town Manager Michael Milanoski, who also serves as the Town's Chief Financial Officer and Chief Administrative Officer, the Massachusetts Department of Revenue has certified the town's free cash (surplus revenue) in the amount of $958,508 as compared to a negative ($82,490) last year.

On Feb. 28, 2012, Milanoski presented a proposed Town of Cohasset Financial Management Policies to the Board of Selectmen, which they adopted, followed by the Advisory Board, Capital Budget, Budget Planning Committee, and finally adopted at the Annual Town Meeting. At the heart of the document is the following:

It is the Financial Objective of the Board of Selectmen to demonstrate sound financial management of Cohasset taxpayer resources through earning a AAA bond rating that includes developing a sustainable town-wide budget based on a five-year forecast that provides the level of service we can afford within our known projected revenues.

These polices have been the framework that Mary Gallagher, Finance Director/Town Accountant and the town manager have implemented the multiple financial and management reforms to date, with the help of other staff and assistance of elected and appointed boards, to put Cohasset on a solid financial footing. Milanoski and Gallagher have already saved the Town taxpayers directly $1,333,506 when they refinanced the towns excluded bonds at an interest rate of 1.68 percent, which go straight to the taxpayers over the 12-year life of the bond.

Free cash or surplus revenues are only certified after the books have been closed and must be appropriated at town meeting. Also as part of the newly adopted policies, free cash can only be used for one-time expenditures such as capital equipment, as these are not revolving revenue sources and should not be expended for operating costs or salary items.

The acting town manager said that he will be recommending to the Board of Selectmen and Town Meeting for their approval to program $400,000 into the town's stabilization fund; $100,000 into the Other Post Employment Benefit (OPEB) Trust Fund that was created at Annual Town Meeting; $250,000 in phase one of the Information Technology Plan that will include 200 new computer town-wide with most going into the schools to replace computers that are over 10 years old; and the remaining funds going into other one-time expenditures and performance based initiatives.

There were several sources that helped to contribute to the free cash, including: reducing expenditures by $200K in the annual FY12 budget, sale of surplus property of $225K, $50K from MEMA from Hurricane Irene last summer, $100K in new state revenue mostly from reimbursement for Veterans relief, $200K in old property taxes, and other penalties and interest payment that the town has collected.

"We have a lot more to do through our future actions as we fundamentally shift the way Cohasset manages our taxpayer's resources and before we secure a AAA bond rating over time, but this is something the town should be proud of and is another step towards this goal," Milanoski said.

RESPECT THE EARTH ...RECYCLE!

MEETING

lanoski and their intention to extend his contract by another three years, through June 30, 2015. However, the selectmen stated that they "do not yet have a negotiated contract extension with Michael Milanoski."

However, last Friday's meeting agenda, which is posted on the town website's calendar and on the board in the front entrance of Town Hall, was vague as to what the meeting entailed. The agenda read, simply, "General Discussion – Action Requested. Adjournment." This posting did not meet OML requirements.

According to the OML, meeting notices must list the topics that are going to be discussed, along with the meeting's date, time and location. "The list of topics must be sufficiently specific to reasonably inform the public of the issues to be discussed at the meeting," the OML reads.

As of press time Thursday morning, the selectmen were scheduled to meet yesterday evening (Thurs., Oct. 25) to correct this oversight.

Selectmen vice chair Diane Kennedy explained in a phone call Tuesday, "We were just concerned last Friday's meeting was not specific enough. We're just going to repeat Friday's meeting on Thursday just because the agenda was posted and it didn't have any specificity, and people didn't know what we were even there for."

Thursday's agenda reads that the board will discuss the issuance of the Oct. 19 statement regarding the status of the Acting Town Manager, with action requested on that item.

"We were just concerned last Friday's meeting was not specific enough. We're just going to repeat Friday's meeting on Thursday just because the agenda was posted and it didn't have any specificity, and people didn't know what we were even there for."

Diane Kennedy, vice chairman

Kennedy said that the board does not plan to make any more changes to that document, as it was already voted on and circulated to the local press. The purpose of the meeting is to make an effort to "do things clearly, transparently and openly."

This meeting will likely be brief, as the adjournment time is listed as 7:10 p.m. The agenda also states that the selectmen could discuss any topics not reasonably anticipated by the chairman within 24 hours of the meeting.

Check the Mariner online for updates on this issue.

Clarification on status of Acting Town Manager

The following is the statement Selectmen issued following last week's meeting.

The Board of Selectmen would like to clarify a few things regarding the status of Acting Town Manager Michael Milanoski. Michael is currently working under a March 2012 contract naming him as Acting Town Manager through June 30, 2013. Per his contract as Acting Town Manager, he has the responsibilities and authority of the Town Manager provided through the Town Manager Act.

In September, after a very favorable review of his performance on a number of goals and objectives noted in his contract, the Board entered into executive session and voted to come to terms on a contract with Milanoski through June 30, 2015. We did this based on advice from counsel and the belief that "acting" positions can and often do last for multiple years. We recognize the need to improve upon the current contract and Chairman Paul Carlson and Lee Jenkins are working with counsel on this matter. We do not yet have a negotiated contract extension with Michael Milanoski.

Michael is performing the duties of his job with great skill. We believe that in the past 7 months, we have made progress in our financial management that has eluded us in the past and many old issues are being tackled while new initiatives are being discussed. One of the Board's primary concerns is the careful and productive management of our town employees, including Michael, who are working extremely hard and with a great sense of duty to the Town of Cohasset. In order for the Town to continue its positive momentum, it is critical that all decisions – particularly those involving personnel – are made with the utmost care and for that reason the wheels can be slow.

Please know that the Board is mindful of our responsibilities as a Board, the parameters and legal interpretations of the Town Manager Act, the town bylaws and our authority, as well as the many perspectives. We are committed to setting the tone and fostering an environment of cooperation among all town employees, citizen volunteers and residents and expect nothing less than that from all those engaged in the management of the town.

The Board of Selectmen approved the release of this statement on Oct. 19, 2012, by a vote of 5 to 0.

Elder Affairs seeks volunteers

A variety of volunteer opportunities are available at Cohasset Elder Affairs. For information, call Christine "Bebe" McCarron at 781-383-2196 or email at bebemccarron@comcast.net. Alternatively, call 781-383-9112 or email Martha Horsefield, volunteer coordinator at mhorsefield@cohassetma.org,

- Luncheon assistant – Assist in serving meals at Cohasset Elder Affairs on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays. 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.
- Meals on Wheels – Assist in packaging pre-cooked meals for delivery five days week to elders in Cohasset – approximately 1 hour per day Monday through Friday, 10 to 11 a.m. Choose as many or few days that may work for you.
- Volunteer receptionist/office assistant – Provide clerical support for the staff at Cohasset Elder Affairs. Some computer experience helpful.
- Volunteer escort shopper – Provide grocery shopping assistance to those elder Cohasset residents unable to shop independently. This service is offered two times a week, approximately 3 hours a trip. The volunteer driver picks up the elders at their homes in the CEA van. The escort shopper assists the elders at the supermarket, if needed carries groceries in.
- Volunteer van driver – Drive the van for Cohasset seniors to shopping, library, local appointments, meals at the Center, and other events. Valid Massachusetts drivers license required. Approximately 3 hours a month.
- Volunteer home visitor – Make a friendly visit to a homebound elder. 1 hour a week.
- Volunteer instructor – Do you have a talent that you would share with seniors? Often, the time that volunteers spend with an elder is the only interaction that elder experiences each day.

COLLEGE BASEBALL

Slinging it

Former Sci/Co Legionairre goes sidearm at SNHU

By Dick Trust
Special to the Scituate Mariner

Casey Burns is a happy study in contrasts.

His personality is lively and he attracts friends easily, but his fastball is nasty and he attracts mostly scorn from opposing batters.

Burns is a sophomore right-handed relief pitcher for the Southern New Hampshire University baseball team. The former Scituate High School athlete, who played football with Scituate/Cohasset Youth Football and also baseball for Cohasset American Legion Post 118, has a low sidearm delivery - one step from that of a submariner - and a two-seam fastball with such movement that hitters cringe when he takes the mound.

"Honestly, if you ask all the guys on our team who the toughest guy to face is, they'll say Casey," said Southern New Hampshire pitching coach Corey Muscara.

"To a man, they'll say, 'I don't want to face Burns. Burns is nasty.' We have a ton of guys who throw 90 miles an hour or better and the hitters would rather face those guys than Casey because his ball moves so much. It's tough to see. You can't pick it up. You can't be on time. Now if you can throw their timing off, it's really difficult to face when you get to face him only one time."

Burns' fastball is in the 82- to 85-mph range, and his low sidearm serves sling away from batters. His secondary pitch (or maybe 1A), a slider, has similar results and was effective during the recently completed session of fall scrimmages against other colleges and intra-squad games on SNHU's Manchester campus.

Next up are individual workouts and strength conditioning in preparing for the 2013 season that gets under way Feb. 22 with five games in the warmer climes of Myrtle Beach, S.C., and eight in Florida before the Penmen head back north for the rest of the spring season.

Casey's teammates are happy knowing that the next batch of batters for Burns to torment will be those on opposing teams.

Always a sidearmer

Burns, 19, always threw with a sidearm motion, going back to his shortstop days in Little League right on up through his successful pitching career at Scituate High (Class of 2011).

But, in an effort to make him even more valuable at the collegiate level, the 6-foot, 170-pounder has committed to a relief role and the lower sidearm delivery.

"I like it a lot, coming out of the bullpen into a game in a big-time spot," said Burns, who was a starting pitcher from midway through his sophomore season at Scituate until he graduated.

"The transition from starter to reliever wasn't hard. I knew I wasn't going to be a starter, and the lower arm slot is very comfortable and makes for a tough pitch for batters."

Burns appeared in only two games as a Southern New Hampshire freshman, working 2 1/3 innings (striking out two).

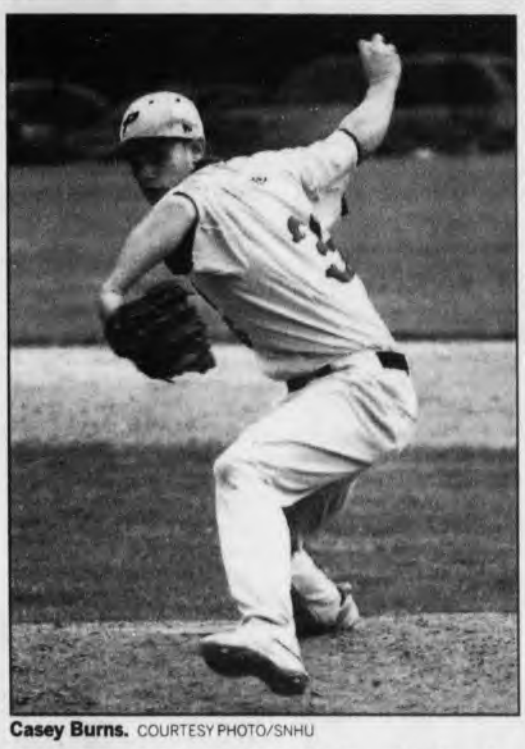
However, it was a good team of which to be a part. The Penmen finished with a school record in victories, going 43-15 overall (including 19-10 for fifth place in the Northeast-10 Conference), and they went to the Division 2 College World Series in Cary, N.C.

There, SNHU won its first game before losing two straight in the double-elimination tournament.

All in all, it was a great learning experience for Burns, who grew emotionally and competitively.

"It was tough," he said of his limited action, "but I understood that I was a freshman and a lot of guys had better stuff than I did. I just needed to find myself and how I could pitch and be effective and earn a spot."

He found out.



"Last year he was like a high three-quarters in his arm angle," Muscara said. "He threw hard, maybe 84, 86, but he didn't have very much command. We led the country (in Div. 2 colleges) as a pitching staff in earned run average and strikeouts and were second in fewest hits allowed.

"We had the (Div. 2) national pitcher of the year (Tim Flight, drafted by the Yankees in the 17th round), another (Zack LeBarron) signed as a free agent with the Angels, probably two or three more guys will be drafted next spring, all on the same pitching staff. We were loaded with a bunch of guys throwing in the low to mid-90s.

"I was like, 'Casey, if you're going to be a big factor for us, we've got to make something that's special and unique about you. Right now, you're just a dime a dozen on our team. But I think you have the ability to throw from a lower spot. If you do that, you will be the only guy on our team who has that gift and it'll wreak havoc on teams because that'll be completely different from everything else they've seen in a game against us, and you can really carve yourself a nice niche.'

"Casey embraced it wholeheartedly, and what I saw of

Skippers get win and a tie

By William Wassersug
Wwassersug@wickedlocal.com

After three games last week, the Skippers check in at 9-5-2 for the season and while the South Shore League title is just out of the picture, Cohasset can still make a mark on the way things pan out for everyone else.

The Skippers still play Mashpee and East Bridgewater.

Both of those teams are 13-2.

"We're getting ready for the tournament," Cohasset coach Jim Willis said. "We'll use these next games. Maybe we'l l play spoiler."

In the last three games, Cohasset beat Rockland, then lost 2-1 to Scituate, followed by a 1-1 tie with Harwich.

Nick Tangherlini had a goal in the Scituate game and another against Mashpee, giving him 12 goals and 4 assists this season.

Rally to victory

Skippers earn late win over Rockland

Rockland's Andy Reardon looks to hold off Cohasset's Danny Tangherlini.

Junior quarterback Chris Haggerty threw three fourth-quarter touchdown passes to his brother Shane, a senior, as the Cohasset High football team rallied Friday night to beat visiting Rockland, 19-8. The spirited finish was possible because Cohasset's defense stiffened after allowing an 8-yard TD run by Rockland's Joe Reardon in the second quarter.

The victory got Cohasset back on track after a tough loss to East Bridgewater last week.

The Skippers are back in action tonight at Sandwich.

Game time is 7 p.m.

New playoff plan up for vote today

Idea is to get more teams to postseason

By Eric McHugh
The Patriot Ledger

In the big picture for high school football, the big showdown this week isn't Duxbury vs. Hingham.

It's Status Quo vs. Something Different.

On Friday morning at Assabet Valley Regional High School in Marlborough, representatives from each of the 370-plus MIAA member schools will gather in a special assembly to vote on a statewide football playoff proposal.

The new plan, a two-year trial program for the 2013 and 2014 seasons, would crown six statewide Super Bowl champions. Under the current system there are 19 champs – nine in Eastern Mass., six in Central Mass. and four in the West.

The plan also would dramatically increase playoff participation (either eight or 16 teams would make the South Sectional in each division), preserve leagues and Thanksgiving games, and eliminate the three-games-in-10-days crush that Super Bowl teams now face.

Teams would play their complete league schedules in the first seven weeks. In Weeks 8-10 a committee would set schedules for teams that didn't make the playoffs and for playoff losers that drop back into regular-season play.

Full details of the plan are available at www.miaa.net.

Two years ago, a similar proposal was voted down, 190-114, by the full membership. That one eliminated the current leagues – a wrinkle that ultimately doomed it.

The latest proposal has been green-lighted by the MIAA's Football Committee (a 15-2 vote in favor) and Tournament Management Committee (10-4). The MIAA Board of Directors could have implemented the plan in June but opted to kick it to a vote of the full membership, including schools that don't have football programs. (For the record, all-girls schools Notre Dame Academy and Fontbonne Academy are on board with the plan.)

"I think we have enough votes, but who knows?" said Stoughton coach Greg Burke, one of the proposal's architects. "We've done all we can. The South Shore is big on it.

"We'll find out Friday. If it passes, it'll be the best thing that ever happened to the game (in this state). If it doesn't, it'll be a black eye for football. We'll never get a playoff. We'll have 19 champions again, which is a joke."

The plan appears to enjoy wide support in Ledgerland. Twenty-five athletic directors responded to an email asking how their school will vote. The tally: 20 yes, three no, one undecided and one abstaining.

Jim Rendle, the AD of both Quincy and North Quincy, said he has "mixed" feelings on the plan. Hull AD Jim Quatromoni said he is "not in love" with it. And Weymouth AD Kevin Mackin says he has "some lingering concerns that are legitimate."

Yet all three said they are likely in the yes camp because they want to see more teams involved in the playoffs, bringing football in line with other sports, where a .500 record can get you into the postseason.

Last year alone saw teams such as East Bridgewater (10-1), North Attleborough (9-1), Hopkinton (10-1) and Weymouth (9-2) shut out of the playoffs.

"I just don't feel that we're eating off the same table as all of the other (sports) when they go to dinner," Abington coach Jim Kelliher said. "We're at a separate table."

"I'd just like to see change," agreed Norwell AD Scott Paine.

However, there is strong opposition to the plan, including from the Bay State Conference, where Milton and Braintree plan to vote no. (South Shore Votech is in their corner.)

Milton AD Steve Traister said he doesn't like the idea of shortening the meaningful portion of the regular season to seven weeks. That's an especially tricky issue in the 11-team Bay State Conference. Under the new proposal, teams would have to play unbalanced schedules.

"If you asked hockey, baseball, softball or basketball to reduce their schedule by around 30 percent before the tournament started," Traister said, "there would be an uproar."

Braintree AD Mike Denise said the plan has "too many unanswered questions" regarding Week 8-10 scheduling and revenue sharing. He also doesn't like the idea of Thanksgiving rivals who are league foes having to play twice a season.

And he worries that players might lose interest late in the season if they are playing non-league foes. Braintree (2-5, 1-5) has no playoff hopes this year, but the Wamps still can impact the league standings, especially if they upset Carey Division co-leader Weymouth on Friday night.

"We have a great conference, a great system that works for us," Denise said. "... My hope is that (the proposal) won't pass, but I don't think anybody has a clear idea of how the vote is going to go."

INSIDE THE 6 SOCCER POWER RANKINGS

Week 7: The song remains the same

By Ryan Wood
rwood@wickedlocal.com

If there's one thing we've learned this season is that teams in this region are consistent. These rankings haven't changed dramatically from week to week, and the top two teams on each side remain the same this week, despite a bump in the road for the Weymouth boys. There are two changes, one for the boys and one for the girls. Here are the rankings based on games played from Monday, Oct. 15 through Sunday, Oct. 21.

Boys

1. Weymouth – Well, so much for my prediction last week that it'd take a college team to beat the Wildcats (sorry for the jinx, boys). It wasn't exactly a shock loss, but Weymouth did lose its first game of the season, a 1-0 decision to first-place Needham, which has nine shutouts this season.

2. Hingham – The Harbormen continue to roll, earning a 1-1 draw against a talented B.C. High squad and two Patriot League wins – 1-0 over Pembroke and 3-1 against Whitman-Hanson. It's a crucial week, however, as the Harbormen have to continue their winning ways and not slip or else Silver Lake could win the Patriot League title.

3. Silver Lake – The Lakers flat out refuse to lose, going unbeaten in nine straight heading into the week. Most recently, the Lake beat Duxbury, 3-2, dropped the hammer on North Quincy, 9-0, and drew with St. John's Prep.

4. Marshfield – You can't really say the Rams slipped up last week. A 2-1 loss to B.C. High isn't exactly a stunner; the Eagles are sharp. The Rams rebounded with a 6-1 win over Dennis-Yarmouth, getting five goals from Evan Jastremski, an absolute beast this season and one of the top scorers in the state.

5. Hanover – Still holding down first place in the Patriot League Fisher division, the Indians continued to earn points last week, drawing 1-1 against Pembroke. This came after a 3-1 victory over Middleboro as Hanover is doing all it can to fend off a surging Scituate side.

6. Scituate – The Sailors did what they were supposed to do last week, take points from the winnable games, and this included an 11-0 victory over North Quincy followed up with a 3-0 triumph over Middleboro to remain in second place in the Patriot League Fisher division.

On the bubble: Norwell, Cohasset, Braintree

Last week: 1. Weymouth, 2. Hingham, 3. Marshfield, 4. Silver Lake, 5. Hanover, 6. Scituate

Girls

1. Marshfield – The Atlantic Coast League title is Marshfield's to lose, and Plymouth North came into the week seeking to avenge its loss to the Rams, which would make things interesting at the top of the ACL table. In action last week, the Rams had one of their finest of the year, beating Norwell (unbeaten in South Shore League) and Notre Dame, 3-2, and mixing in a 9-0 win over Dennis-Yarmouth to move their mark to 13-1-1.

2. Scituate – A huge win over a red-hot North Quincy side followed by a 6-0 pounding of a winless Middleboro team sees the Sailors in the second spot yet again. A showdown with Duxbury looms on the horizon. Could be the best match of the regular season.

3. Duxbury – Another solid week for the Dragons. After struggling to finish off Silver Lake in a 1-1 tie to start the week, the Dragons followed it up with shutout victories over Barnstable and Quincy to retain No. 3. Consistency again this week could easily vault the Dragons back up to No. 2.

4. Norwell – A pair of South Shore League victories – 2-0 over Carver and 6-1 over Harwich – all but wrapped up the league title for the Clippers, who have outscored their opponents, 46-11, through 15 games. They enter the week with a 10-0-2 record in the SSL.

5. Plymouth North – It's safe to say the Eagles have put the midseason slump in the past. After a 1-0 win over rivals Plymouth South followed by a come-from-behind, 2-2 tie against another rival, Silver Lake, the girls came into the final week of the season at 10-3-2.

6. Weymouth – After a 1-4-3 start, the Wildcats have turned it around and find themselves back in the top 6 for the first time since the preseason. Scoreless draws last week against Brookline and first-place Needham have Weymouth on a 2-1-4 streak after a four-game midseason slide.

On the bubble: Hingham, Carver, Hanover

Last week: 1. Marshfield, 2. Scituate, 3. Duxbury, 4. Norwell, 5. Carver, 6. Plymouth North

The Inside the 6 - Soccer Power Rankings are decided based on a number of criteria: record, strength of schedule, performance against teams in and out of their divisions, goals scored, and goals conceded. The public schools in our coverage area include: Abington, Braintree, Carver, Cohasset, Duxbury, Hanover, Hingham, Holbrook, Marshfield, Norwell, Pembroke, Plymouth North, Plymouth South, Rockland, Scituate, Silver Lake, and Weymouth. Check out your town's Wicked Local website to see the rankings and to comment on them, and feel free to email Ryan Wood at rwood@wickedlocal.com.

MEN'S HOCKEY

Shutouts the word of the day

South Coastal Hockey League roundup

By Mark Ducharme
Correspondent

The Legends Div. of the Men's South Coastal Hockey League was defensive about its play this past Sunday.

All three games in the Legends Div. were won by shutouts by the Whalers, Stingers and the Toros.

Mark Frano of Pembroke stopped 10 shots in the Stingers 4-0 win over the Sharks. Pembroke's Scott Kelly, Ken Wingate and Dave Christensen and Paul Smyth scored the goals for the Stingers.

Dan Nason stopped 15 shots while Eric Jacobson of Rockland, Hanover's Jim Toner and Bill McMahon of Scituate scored a goal each in the Whalers 3-0 win over the Crusaders.

Ken Menkello had 14 saves and Dennis Yates scored two goals, while Paul Brinkman and Duxbury's Steve Collela each had two assists in the Toros 4-0 win over the Saints. Ray Degaust and James Ward of Norwell also scored goals for the Toros.

John Zimmer of Marshfield scored two goals and assisted on another while Hanover's Peter Fallon added a goal and two assists in the Bruins 7-1 Classics Div. win over the Rangers.

Steve Anzuoni had a goal and an assist, John Dougenik, Tom MacInnes and Mike Martin scored a goal each for the Bruins.

Jim Hutchinson scored the Rangers goal in the first period.

Rockland's Marty DeCourcey scored two goals and set up another in the Maple Leafs 6-1 win in a Classics Div. matchup. Dave Salvaggio had a goal and an assist, while Marshfield's Dave Evans, Jeff Gauthier and Shawn Malloy scored a goal apiece.

The Red Wings Tom Pipenbrink scored with 28 seconds left in the first period.

Pembroke's Pat Mulkern scored two goals Norwell's Mike Murray and John Dunn had a goal each and Tony Rota had two assists in the Black Hawks Classics Div. 4-2 win over the Canadiens.

John MacLellan and Sean Keegan both of Pembroke had a goal apiece and Michael Fay had two assists for the Canadiens.

CASEY

him the last four outings this fall was really dominating. "If he continues to progress like that, there's no reason he can't be one of our top guys out of the bullpen."

Something like Lopez

Burns is not a submariner, whose arm angle would have a pitcher's throwing hand almost scraping the dirt on delivery. Rather he throws from his knee, similar to the manner in which lefty Javier Lopez served it up for the Boston Red Sox (2006-09) and has been doing so with the San Francisco Giants since 2010.

"It goes submarine, low sidearm, sidearm, low three-quarters, high three-quarters, over the top," said Muscara. "He's at the second lowest you could possibly be at. He's having a lot of success, making good progress, so I'd like to think that's where we're going to keep him."

Southern New Hampshire head coach Scott Loiselle also appreciates what Burns adds to the pitching staff.

"Casey's doing great and we're expecting him to have a great impact this coming season," Loiselle said. "He's a bullpen arm for us, I think a late-inning guy potentially. He's a great teammate, great kid, works really hard, wants to do well. He's a guy who fits in really well here."

Burns is also a plus in the locker room.

"He's a happy kid, always smiling," the skipper said. "He loves being around the guys. He loves being at the field. In general, he's always in a good mood. He's an easy person to get along with. We're really happy to have him in the program. He's come a long way in a short time."

Burns played basketball in his freshman year at Scituate, then focused on baseball and football (as a wide receiver and defensive back). Southern New Hampshire has no football program, so baseball has Burns' full attention.

"Casey's in that 82 to 85 (mph) range, which is pretty impressive," Muscara said. "Guys in the big leagues throw 84 to 87 from down there, so he's pretty close to a major league average fastball from where he throws."

Pro potential?

That begs the question: Does Casey Burns show pro/major league potential?

"It's tough (to say) because you don't really know if a guy is going to make a velocity jump or not," said Muscara, who pitched collegiately at Siena and Franklin Pierce. "If he can pitch in that 85 to 87 range with a lot of success, then yes, I think so, but in baseball it's such a crap shoot and up to each kid. He's so young, only time will tell.

"Last fall, no scout wanted to talk to Tim Flight. By the end of the year, he was the national pitcher of the year."

And a Yankees draft choice.

Players at four-year colleges must be a junior or 21 years old before they can be drafted.

"I would absolutely love to play pro baseball," Burns said. "It's a dream. If I work and get better every day and just the do the best I can, maybe it could happen. You never know because (low sidearm) is such a different look and it throws people off."

That other Southern New Hampshire pitchers have been drafted encourages Burns to believe that he, too, could be selected.

"Definitely," he said. "Scouts still see the potential that athletes have even if they're in Division 2. And to know I was on the pitching staff when two kids are now in the pros gives everyone on the team hope that they have the same potential."

Burns, whose major is sport management, is undecided as to what he'd like to do career-wise. Getting drafted by a major league baseball team might decide that for him.

Said Burns, "That would be the best scenario."

Youth Jamboree a huge success

All day event draws 16 teams and 256 players

Sunday's Cohasset Youth Field Hockey Jamboree turned out to be a huge success with 16 teams from eight towns playing from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. on five fields throughout Cohasset.

Over the day, 256 girls participated with 33 games played.

Winners included Foxboro level 5/6 downing Easton 3-0.

In 7th level action, Cohasset tied Foxboro 0-0 in the championship and Cohasset's 8th level squad beat Derby 2-0 for the title.

Many parent volunteers helped and worked at the jamboree. The Cohasset varsity and junior varsity girls participated and refereed all the games.

The planning for this event started in August and didn't stop until the day of the Jamboree.

Special thanks to the following people for all their hard work and support of this event:

Jeff Moy, Christine Cunning, Katy Lydon, Laurie Greenip, Eileen Norton, Maureen McElgunn, Tom DiLillo, Lisa Pratt, Betty Morrison, Kathleen Desjourdy, Sue Roth, Erin Marcelli, Debbie Johnston, Sean Bisceglia, Susan Chase, Lisa Talacci, Lori Langenhagen, Jessica Patterson, Linda Klier, Linda Litchfield, Brigid Lengyel, Jessica Moy, Mary St. Sauveur, Abigail Moy, Leslie Armstrong, Laurie Wimberly, Laura Humphrey, Collette McElhinney, Maureen Faherty, Kim Hansen, Sigrid Burnett, Abigail Aves, Julie Hess, Molly Adams, Lynda Mooney, Donna Hayden, Christy Driscoll

Maggie Moy- Chair of Jamboree - organizing the volunteers, coordinating and managing teams, food, logistics, innumerous calls and emails and pulling it all together.

Thanks to William Marsden and Jamie Gilman for raking the front field and managing the parking.

And to all the Mom's and Dad's who worked the concessions, manned the merchandise tables, coaches for keeping the girls going and to everyone who participated and were there to make it and cheer for all the girls.

It also would not have been possible to have this event without the support of the Varsity and JV Field Hockey Team and their head coach Laura Giuliano. They were our referee's, team hosts and helped wherever we needed them. They worked very hard under the leadership of their captains and we want to thank you all so very much for being there and supporting our team. A tremendous thank you to Kerri Saccoia our former coach who came all day and helped with everything and coached our 8th grade girls to win the Championship.

Many thanks to the Varsity Captains for their leadership, coordination and all day commitment to this event: Sara Campedelli, Giselle Hart, Kelsey McCunney and Christina Tedeschi.

Cohasset's Emily Moy makes a big save against Bridgewater-Rayhnam.

The Cohasset 8th Grade field hockey team won their division of Sunday's Jamboree with a 2-0 win over Derby in the championship game.

Local candidates answer questions

Decision 2012

Prior to the Nov. 6 election, local GateHouse Media New England papers will be asking a series of questions to candidates in contested races. Candidate responses are limited to 250 words.

Eighth Congressional District —

Which current member of Congress do you most admire and why?

Republican challenger Joseph Selvaggi

Few supporters of my campaign know that I run marathons. "Running doesn't build character; it reveals it" is a favorite saying among runners and suggests that we can only know our true character when we are tested. Texas U.S. Rep. Sam Johnson suffered in a Vietnamese prison camp for seven years. During that time, he was often tortured. He spent 42 months in solitary confinement. Johnson is the Congressman that I admire most because he had the strength to survive his ordeal and the temerity to continue to serve his country after his release. Johnson is a true hero. Johnson's life inspires me.

After his military service, he returned to the country that he loved and started his own successful business. He served in his state legislature from 1984 until he was elected to Congress in 1991. Johnson has used the honor of serving in congress to fight for individual rights, for small business interests and for the poor. He has committed to ensuring that Social Security will continue to serve as a vital program for our seniors. I also respect that Johnson consistently earns near-perfect marks from the watchdog group Citizens Against Government Waste for eliminating wasteful spending in Washington.

Integrity, courage and commitment to serve our nation are words that describe Johnson. He is the person in Congress whom I admire most. It would be a great honor to serve alongside a fellow entrepreneur, veteran and dedicated public servant like Johnson.

Democratic U.S. Rep. Stephen Lynch

U.S. Rep. Jim Langevin of Rhode Island personifies what is best about public service. His personal story is an inspiration, and I greatly admire his character and courage.

Langevin is the first quadriplegic to serve in Congress. At 16, he was left paralyzed after a shooting accident that occurred while he was a volunteer with the Warwick Police Department. He often talks about how the tremendous support he experienced led him to enter public service. He believes deeply in the positive role government can play in making people's lives better.

During his time in Congress, Langevin has fought for working families, for seniors and for veterans. A member of the Armed Services Committee, he has ventured into the war zones of Iraq and Afghanistan in support of our troops. I'm sure the sight of Langevin in his electric wheelchair rolling down the ramp of a C130 aircraft has inspired many of our soldiers.

Langevin's work ethic and thoughtful approach to governing has earned him great respect from our Republican colleagues as well. His triumph over personal adversity makes him a more effective advocate for those he represents. Langevin is a great friend and leader, and his example of perseverance and commitment inspires us all.

Plymouth & Norfolk state Senate district —

What should the state's budget priorities be in the upcoming fiscal year?

Democratic challenger Genevieve Davis

The state's budget priority should be local aid, funding that has been cut 36 percent since 2008. This drastically and negatively impacts our communities' schools, public safety and other municipal services.

The best way to increase local aid is to increase state revenues without increasing taxes. One way to do this is to create and fill jobs by supporting small and medium-sized businesses and by increasing the skills of the workforce. There are too many jobs that go unfilled because there is a growing skills gap between the current labor pool and the needs of the workplace. This gap can be closed by strengthening the connection between the business sector and community colleges.

Infrastructure repair is another avenue. Five years after the beginning of the recession, there is still low demand by consumers for goods and services, and this impacts the slow growth of the business sector. There is, however, demand for infrastructure repair. These badly needed repairs create jobs and improve our public facilities, highways, bridges and public transportation systems that we all take for granted.

The local aid formula also needs to be reformed. General aid for public services outside of education has been severely cut, including areas with growing needs such as public safety and the councils on aging that are bracing for the onslaught of the baby boomers, a.k.a. the "silver tsunami."

I have the resume and skills to generate state revenue. This will restore local aid to our district and to districts throughout the state.

Republican state Sen. Robert Hedlund

The commonwealth's budget priorities should be increasing local aid to cities and towns and increasing funding to programs that serve the most vulnerable in society: children, seniors, and the disabled.

In order to do this, we have to go through the state budget line item by line item in order to find cost savings. During the past three Senate budget debates, I have put forth more than $1 billion in cost savings. Not a single dollar of these savings came from any social program or from our cities and towns. As a matter of fact, I earmarked every dollar produced from any of these cost-savings proposals be sent back to cities and towns in form of local aid.

The problem with Beacon Hill is that too many people shy away from talking about tough issues. We were elected to make these tough decisions, to cut waste when we see it, to reform when necessary even if it's unpopular and to do everything we can to make sure the most vulnerable in society are protected and our cities and towns are given the tools they need to educate our children, protect our streets and create communities.

STATE BALLOT QUESTIONS

Question 3: Allowing marijuana for medical use

The Nov. 6 election ballot has three questions.

Information on Question 3 from Secretary of the Commonwealth William Galvin's website, www.sec.state.ma.us, reads as follows — "This proposed law would eliminate state criminal and civil penalties for the medical use of marijuana by qualifying patients. To qualify, a patient must have been diagnosed with a debilitating medical condition, such as cancer, glaucoma, HIV-positive status or AIDS, hepatitis C, Crohn's disease, Parkinson's disease, ALS or multiple sclerosis. The patient would also have to obtain a written certification, from a physician with whom the patient has a bona fide physician-patient relationship, that the patient has a specific debilitating medical condition and would likely obtain a net benefit from medical use of marijuana."

"A yes vote would enact the proposed law eliminating state criminal and civil penalties related to the medical use of marijuana, allowing patients meeting certain conditions to obtain marijuana produced and distributed by new state-regulated centers or, in specific hardship cases, to grow marijuana for their own use.

A no vote would make no change in existing laws."

Representatives on each side of the issue have been invited to submit columns in support of their position.

Yes — 'Medical marijuana saved my life'

By Jerry Smith

I am a paraplegic but thanks to medical marijuana my physical condition no longer defines who I am. After surviving a horrible car accident I was left paralyzed, and as a result of my injury I lost my job in the construction industry as well as my home. Living in constant pain I endured muscle spasms so severe I was sometimes ejected from my chair onto the floor. The medications prescribed to me never truly alleviated my symptoms and I suffered brutal side effects like bladder spasms that caused incontinence, and I soon was unable to venture outside the four walls of my bedroom.

Recognizing my diminishing quality of life, my doctor recommended that I educate myself on the unique benefits of medical marijuana. At first I was hesitant. I have three children and did not want to send the wrong message. After having an honest conversation with them concerning the differences between medicinal and recreational drug use and doing the research, I decided to try medical marijuana about four months ago.

The relief it brought me was life changing. My spasms have subsided and I have been able to decrease my use of some narcotics and end the use of others completely. Since I am no longer taking OxyContin I have more energy and am less likely to have bowel obstructions, which can be fatal for someone with paralysis. I truly believe that medical marijuana saved my life.

My friends and family have noticed the dramatic improvement in my condition. One year ago, I was unlikely to leave my house more than once a week. Today, I am involved in my teenagers' lives, attending their softball games and music concerts, something I did not think I would be able to do after I lost the use of my legs. I consider myself the luckiest guy in the world.

This will be the safest medical marijuana law in the country. Massachusetts will keep a centralized database of all patients enrolled in the program and the doctors who write recommendations, aiding enforcement. The initiative will also create a new felony including five years in prison for anyone who defrauds the system.

While I have regained my life, it is frightening that I am forced to put myself at risk to obtain my medicine.

Please vote yes on 3 in support of compassion for patients like me.

Jerry Smith is a medical marijuana patient who lives in Fall River

No — Don't let Massachusetts go to pot

By Heidi Heilman

Ballot Question 3 should be making Massachusetts citizens angry. Supporters say it's about allowing our chronically ill legal access to marijuana as medicine. But the loopholes would make Massachusetts look exactly like California within a few years.

The more voters understand the details of Question 3, and what marijuana treatment centers (aka pot shops) are doing in other states, the more they don't want to open up Massachusetts to the increased crime, violence, school truancy, and community decay such systems breed.

Question 3 puts no limit on which symptoms or conditions can be treated with pot. It allows people to grow pot in their homes and calls for opening 35 pot shops around the state, just as a starting point in the first year. It also allows a "patient" to carry hundreds of joints on their person. In California, pot shops are everywhere, selling raw pot and all manner of marijuana-infused foods, candies and beverages. Last month, due to public concern and hazard issues, the Los Angeles City Council unanimously voted to ban all pot shops within city limits. Even in Berkeley, Calif. — famous for its liberal stand for recreational drug use — the zoning board unanimously declared a pot dispensary a "public nuisance."

In states that have a medical marijuana law, less than 1 percent of "patients" have chronically ill conditions. Most purchasers are young, healthy and struggling with substance abuse. In a drug treatment center in Colorado, 74 percent of addicted teens received their pot from a medical marijuana cardholder an average of 50 times. Ballot Question 3, allowing "patients" to walk around with hundreds of joints, practically begs them to sell their pot for personal, illicit profit. And under Question 3, not one dime of pot sales will be taxed. In fact, the industry will cost Massachusetts taxpayers money to create a new government agency to oversee and regulate the unique, separate state "pharmaceutical" system where pot shops could be owned and operated by anyone 21 years or older with not a drop of special training — including a high school diploma.

The Massachusetts Medical Society, comprised of 24,000 physicians, opposes Question 3, noting it would legalize a controlled narcotic in a way that will lead directly to heightened abuse among users at an earlier and earlier age.

Question 3 is poorly framed and does not serve the public's interest or health. Vote no on Question 3 Nov. 6.

Heidi Heilman is president of mavotenoonquestion3.com and the Massachusetts Prevention Alliance.

FOCUS ON BUDGET

Question Four on ballot in Cohasset

Voters in Cohasset, Hingham, Hull, Scituate are able to vote on non-binding referendum concerning social security, taxes, military spending and jobs. The following is a press release from proponents of Question Four.

On election day about one third of all Massachusetts voters will have the opportunity to send a message to Washington about some of the key issues that lay at the heart of the national election.

A network of over 50 community and labor organizations and peace groups around the state has gathered enough signatures to put a question on the ballot asking voters whether they support proposals to protect Social Security, Medicare and other vital programs; invest in useful jobs; end offshore tax havens and tax cuts on the highest incomes; reduce the military budget and bring all troops home safely from Afghanistan now: and re-direct the savings into job creation and public services that our families need.

The "Budget For All" referendum will be on the ballot in 91 cities and towns around the state, including Cohasset, Hingham, Hull, and Scituate — meaning that about one million voters can cast a ballot regarding these critical matters of national policy. Evidently there has never been a non-binding referendum with more extensive statewide ballot placement in modern Massachusetts history.

This public policy question was placed on the ballot by a committed group of people who has had enough of the one-sided debate on the critical issues of the day now taking place in Washington. In a massive effort carried out largely by volunteers, well over 25,000 signatures on legal petitions were collected and 17,565 were certified as valid signatures of registered voters in cities and towns across the Commonwealth.

Meet Rev. Kiyimba in Cohasset Oct. 30

The Rev. Mark Kiyimba will speak at 7 p.m., on Tuesday, Oct. 30, at First Parish in Cohasset, Parish House, 23 North Main St. The public is invited to come to hear from and meet Rev. Kiyimba from Uganda. A human rights activist, Rev. Kiyimba operates a primary school for more than 550 students, many of whom have been affected by HIV/AIDS, and a children's home of 44 kids for AIDS orphans near Masaka, Uganda. He has received international attention for his stand against the anti-LGBT bill that is now before the Ugandan Parliament. According to the bill, those perceived as homosexual can receive life imprisonment and in some cases, even death. Many gay and lesbian Ugandans and their allies are risking arrest by protesting this bill.

Rev. Kiyimba, who is a Unitarian Universalist minister, was awarded the National Education Association's Virginia Uribe Award for Creative Leadership in Human Rights in Washington, D.C., on July 1. This award is presented to a person whose activities in human rights significantly impact education and the achievement of equal opportunity for those facing discrimination due to their sexual orientation.

All are welcome. Voluntary contributions will be accepted.

The public is invited to come to hear from and meet Rev. Kiyimba from Uganda at the First Parish House in Cohasset on Tuesday. COURTESY PHOTO

B.C.

Circa 3000 B.C.: Part of an ancient Egyptian text, now called the Edwin Smith Papyrus, is the oldest known reference to cancer although that term is not used. It describes eight cases of tumors or ulcers of the breast that were treated by cauterization with a tool called the fire drill. The writing says about the disease: "There is no treatment."

"There is no treatment."

Cancer diagnosis from the Edwin Smith Papyrus (Circa 3000 B.C.), the oldest known reference to the disease

Circa 400 B.C.: Greek physician Hippocrates, the "Father of Medicine," uses the terms "carcinos" and "carcinoma" to describe the disease. In Greek these words refer to a crab, most likely applied to the disease because of the finger-like spreading projections from a cancer called to mind the shape of a crab. Later the Roman physician Celsus will translate the word into "cancer" and another Roman physician, Galen, will use the term "oncos," which is Greek for "swelling."

Pre-1900s

16th to 18th Century: The Renaissance brings with it "the scientific method" to study disease.

19th century: The modern microscope enables the birth of scientific oncology. Advancements in anesthesia make possible "the century of the surgeon."

1860s: German surgeon Karl Thiersch shows that cancers metastasize through the spread of malignant cells and not through some unidentified liquid.

1896: German physics professor Wilhelm Conrad Roentgen presents his work on what he calls X-Rays. Within months X-Rays are being used in diagnosis and within years radiation is used to treat cancer. Roentgen will receive the Nobel Prize for his work five years later.

1900-1969

1915: Katsusaburo Yamagiwa and Koichi Ichikawa at Tokyo University induce cancer in lab animals for the first time by applying coal tar to rabbit skin.

1940s: While studying mustard gas during World War II, the U.S. discovers that a compound called nitrogen mustard works against a cancer of the lymph nodes called lymphoma by damaging the DNA of the cancer cells. Along with the work of Boston's Dr. Sidney Farber, the era of chemotherapy begins.

1946: The American Cancer Society Research Program begins with $1 million raised by Mary Lasker.

1947: American Cancer Society-funded Dr. Sidney Farber obtains remission in childhood leukemia, the first successful chemotherapy of cancer, setting the groundwork for the first human clinical trial.

1953: James Watson, PhD, and Francis Crick, MD, establish the double helical structure of DNA. They will be awarded the Nobel Prize for their work nine years later.

1955: Charles Huggins, PhD, pioneers early work showing that both prostate and breast cancer are related to sex hormones. He will be awarded the Nobel Prize for his work 11 years later.

1964: U.S. Surgeon General Dr. Luther Terry and his department issue a report concluding that smoking is hazardous to one's health and is linked to various types of cancer.

1970s

1970s: Advancements in ultrasound, computed tomography (CT scans), magnetic resonance imaging (MRI scans), and positron emission tomography (CT scans), replace many of "exploratory surgery" procedures to detect cancers.

1970: The first cancer-causing gene, or oncogene, is identified.

1971: More limited mastectomy is proven effective for early-stage breast cancer.

1971: U.S. President Richard Nixon signs the National Cancer Act, beginning what is commonly referred to as the nation's "War on Cancer."

1974: V. Craig Jordan, PhD, shows that Tamoxifen (a selective estrogen receptor modulator, or SERM) could prevent breast cancer in rats by binding to the estrogen receptor.

1975: The incidence rate for female breast cancer in the U.S. is 105 new cases diagnosed for every 100,000 women in the population; the mortality rate is 31 deaths for every 100,000 women.

1975: Mastectomy is the only accepted surgical option for breast cancer treatment.

1976: First adjuvant chemotherapy increases cure rates for early-stage breast cancer.

1977: Susan Goodman Komen is diagnosed with breast cancer, a disease rarely discussed in public and about which there is scarce information and few medical options.

1978: First Lady Betty Ford goes public with her breast cancer diagnosis and mastectomy, helping to plant the seeds for greater awareness of the disease.

1978: Tamoxifen is approved by the FDA for treating estrogen receptor positive breast cancer.

1980s

1980: Susan G. Komen dies of breast cancer at age 36. Before she dies, she asks her sister, Nancy G. Brinker, to promise to everything possible to end breast cancer.

1982: Nancy G. Brinker founds the Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation on July 22 in Dallas, Texas, in her sister's memory with $200 and a shoebox of friends' names to call on for help.

1984: Nancy G. Brinker is diagnosed with breast cancer.

1985: Bernard Fisher, MD, demonstrates that lumpectomy plus radiation is equivalent to mastectomy for breast cancer survival.

1986: First National Breast Cancer Awareness Month (NBCAM) is held in October.

1988: Mary-Claire King, PhD, localizes the BRCA1 gene for inherited susceptibility to breast cancer to a specific site on Chromosome 17.

1989: Nancy G. Brinker is the first breast cancer advocate named by Ronald Reagan to the President's Cancer Panel.

1989: Only 54 percent of American women ages 40 and older receive a mammogram.

1990s

1991: Powerful anti-nausea drugs alleviate major side effect of cancer treatment.

1992: The Mammography Quality Standards Act of 1993 is passed.

1993: Smoking drops from 45 percent of the population in 1946 to 25 percent.

1994: Studies show exercise reduces the risk of breast cancer in premenopausal women.

1995: Taxol is approved as second line therapy for advanced breast cancer.

1996: Taxotere is approved for treatment of breast cancer.

1997: Dr. Judah Folkman and Dr. Timothy Bowder cure cancer in mice by blocking the blood supply of tumors with angiostatin and endostatin.

1997: First overall downturn in cancer mortality is reported.

1998: Craig Mello, PhD, discovers RNA interference (RNAi) inhibits gene expression, a discovery Nobel Laureate Phillip Sharp, PhD, hails as 'a gift from heaven." Mello will win the Nobel Prize for his work eight years later.

1998: The United States Postal Service issues the Breast Cancer Research Stamp, the first semipostal stamp ever offered to generate funding for disease awareness and research.

1999: Seventy-one percent of American women age 40 and older receive a mammogram, a third more than in 1989.

1999: Telomerase, an enzyme instrumental in a chromosome's ability to divide and replicate, is discovered by former Komen grantee Elizabeth Blackburn, Ph. D.

1999: The incidence rate for female breast cancer in the U.S. peaks at 141 new cases for every 100,000 women in the population. It has been in decline ever since.

2000s

2001: U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) approves the first digital mammography devices.

2003: Dr. Michael Clarke and Dr. Max Wicha discover that the ability of breast cancer tumors to metastasize resides in just a few "breast cancer stem cells" that are highly resistant to chemotherapy.

2003: The Human Genome Project, an international effort sponsored by the National Institute of Health and the U.S. Department of Energy, is completed. Among other accomplishments, the 13-year effort identifies the approximately 20,000 to 25,000 genes in human DNA.

2004: Avastin becomes the first FDA-approved anti-angiogenesis drug.

2005: Genentech Phase III trials on the use of Herceptin plus chemotherapy to reduce recurrence of HER2+ breast cancer were stopped early due to significant improvement in overall survival. Results suggest for the first time that therapy which targets the genetic mutation has the potential to reduce disease recurrence.

2007: The incidence rate for female breast cancer in the U.S. is approximately 125 new cases diagnosed for every 100,000 women; the mortality rate is approximately 23 deaths for every 100,000 women.

"Scientists have learned more about cancer in the last two decades than has been learned in all the centuries preceding."

From "The History of Cancer"
by the American Cancer Society

2007: Hormonal therapy with SERMs is now a standard in the treatment of women with estrogen receptor-positive breast cancer.

2007: Tamoxifen and another SERM, Raloxifene, are now approved by the FDA as treatments to reduce the risk of breast cancer in women who have an increased risk of developing the disease.

2007: Several breast cancer susceptibility genes have now been identified, including BRCA1, BRCA2, TP53 and PTEN/MMAC1.

2007: The overall five-year survival rate from 2001 to 2007 is 89 percent. Among white women, it is 91 percent. Among black women, it is 77 percent.

2009: Elizabeth Blackburn, Ph.D., a recipient of Komen funding, receives the Nobel Prize for Medicine for her 1999 discovery of Telomerase.

2009: NIH announces it will invest $275 million in the Cancer Genome Atlas project over the next two years as part of a five-year program to chart the genomic changes involved in more than 20 types of cancer, including breast cancer.

2010: The National Cancer Institute's investment in breast cancer research for FY2010 is $631.2 million.

2012: A NIH study reveals "genomic similarities" between breast cancer and ovarian cancer.

2012: It is estimated that 226,870 women will be diagnosed with cancer of the breast in 2012. It is also estimated that 39,510 women will die of the disease in 2012.

On the horizon: targeted therapies, nanotechnology, robotic surgery, expression profiling, and proteomic methods for cancer screening.

FUNDRAISING

Connecting for a cause

By Mark Burridge
mburridge@wickedlocal.com

During breast cancer awareness month, numerous fundraisers are being held at the same time with the end goal of raising money for a worthy cause.

Fundraising methods, however, have changed with the times with businesses taking a more personal approach and others turning to social media for assistance.

"Starting about 15 years ago, we would always be solicited and asked to donate to things," said Lyn Evans of Lyn Evans Potpourri Designs. "We wanted to focus on one charity, get the handle on one cause."

After Evans was diagnosed with breast cancer and survived it, she became even more active in fundraising and turned to her business for ideas and results.

"We wanted to get connected to the community," Evans said. "That's really the connection we were looking for."

Evans uses a system that helps her business, which now has eight stores in Massachusetts and Connecticut, as well as saving money for the consumer and raising funds for the charity.

On marked days for specific stores, a percentage of the money from a purchase will go to charity. During those days, sales are offered throughout the store to bring in more customers.

"We try to get involved so we can help those charities more than they would if they were just going up and down the streets," she said.

Evans also took part in the Making Strides Against Breast Cancer walk, with her team making a donation from the store sale days.

She also will be participating in another alternative fundraiser called "Runway for Recovery." Her daughter and she will walk the runway during a fashion show.

"They charge people to come to the event and we set up a mini store," she said. The event was scheduled for Oct. 25 in Concord, Mass. Her store will once again donate a percentage of money raised.

Social media

According to Julie Nations of the Ellie Fund, fundraising is beginning to get technological. In fact, she believed the old methods were starting to get on people's nerves.

"There are a lot of fundraisers out there that are bad," she said. "The key thing is to grow support so that you're not always calling the same people."

Nations said people were less likely to give when constantly asked for donations. She said donating through social networks is the wave of the future.

"We have a whole portion of our fundraising come from technology," she said. "We have a lot of Facebook and Twitter donations. I think it's something that you can't ignore."

Nations said social media fundraising is quick and cost effective. While a traditional fundraiser takes money to put together and weeks to execute, fundraising through social media can be over in a day or two and is free to set up.

"It's a new trend," she said. "But, I think it's here to stay."

Nations stressed social media fundraising isn't the only technique an organization should use. She said like anything else, if used too much, it would tire a potential donator.

"It's just one tool in our tool belt," she said. "You have to have a bunch of different [techniques]."

The Hanover law firm Epstein, Lipsey and Clifford used a Twitter-based fundraiser to raise funds for the Ellie Fund earlier this year.

"The Ellie Fund was selected as the charity to exclusively compete for Boston in 'Twive & Receive' on June 14, in a national one-day Twitter-based fundraising contest," said Kim Jenkins of the firm. "Local volunteers, companies and 'Twitterati' joined forces to help the non-profit organization win its share of $30,000 in prize money from Razoo.com, (the host of the contest)."

Jenkins said while the event was only three hours long, the simplicity of donating to a social media site allowed them to raise a high amount of money.

"In this day of busy schedules and smart phones, people are much more inclined to make a donation while coming home on the train or waiting for a bus," she said. "Gone are the days of sending a check in the mail."

Ultimately, Epstein, Lipsey and Clifford wanted to raise money for The Ellie Fund and embraced new techniques to get the job done.

"The Ellie Fund's mission of fighting breast cancer and providing for the immediate needs of families is near and dear to so many of our hearts," said Scott Clifford, one of the partners of the firm. "With an increasing demand for services, the Ellie Fund's resources are stretched thin."

The "Real Men Wear Pink" triathlon team, sponsored by Hanover-based law firm Epstein, Lipsey & Clifford, competed in the Sharon Triathlon Aug. 12 and raised $13,000 to aid local families struggling with breast cancer. Yoga opens doors to healing process

By Robert Aicardi
baicardi@wickedlocal.com

Before she found out about the recurrence of the disease she thought she had successfully battled, breast cancer survivor Chris Biggins began a yoga and breath work program to help others experiencing grief and loss through meditation and gentle stretching

"I'm trying to reframe living with cancer in a more healing way," said Biggins, 54, of Hanson, who launched the program through the Magoun-Biggins funeral home that her husband Bob has run in neighboring Rockland for 35 years.

"A few other funeral homes are also interested," she said. "A funeral home in Ohio and one in Connecticut want to do a program for people who would never go to a yoga class. I'm going to conduct training through workshops."

Information is available at www.christinebiggins.com.

"I'm not doing anything to make any money," Biggins said. "I'm doing this because I want to help people heal. I know the experience I've been through."

Biggins remembered what helped her respond to the breast cancer diagnosis she received on May 7, 2007.

"Everybody's case is different, but number one for me was my faith and my family, and then there was yoga," she said. "When I felt I had nothing left, I felt that God was with me. I got strength from that and from the support of my family. The key is to find something that will give you hope and strength. In my case, yoga helped me tap into my own inner strength.

"I had never done yoga before, but I felt that I needed to do something. I came upon a brochure that inspired me to take a class in yoga. For me, yoga was like a life raft I could grab on to. It gave me a sense of empowerment and becoming whole again. The first class led to additional classes, and then I became a yoga teacher who wanted to share this whole experience with everyone."

Biggins, who is currently undergoing chemotherapy, was teaching yoga at the Open Doors studio at 65 Washington St. in Weymouth Landing across from Sacred Heart Church.

"Open Doors has hired a substitute instructor to work with my classes until I'm healthy enough to come back and be able to teach again," she said. "My passion is to teach yoga. My focus is knowing that I can come back. This gives me such hope."

Biggins explained the thinking behind her program, which features therapeutic breathing and trauma sensitive meditation.

"The idea is to bring people back to their natural state of being instead of living in suffering and sadness and feeling defeated," she said. "Breath work means reminding people how to breathe. Sometimes when you're stressed out, you forget to breathe and your breathing becomes more shallow. Breathing a full breath is healthy for your body."

Biggins was re-diagnosed with breast cancer five years to the day of her initial diagnosis.

"A new tumor was found on my chest wall," she said. "The doctor had tears in his eyes. I smiled at him like a 5-year-old and reassured him that I'd be OK."

After her chemotherapy at Faulkner Hospital in Jamaica Plain is concluded, Biggins will have six weeks of radiation once a day at Dana-Farber Cancer Institute in Boston.

"I'm in the best hands in the world," she said. "They seem to be optimistic. I am doing well and soaking in all the support that surrounds me. This gives me strength, and I am grateful for it."

MEET A SURVIVOR

From needing help to helping others

Name: Pat Hayden
Hometown: Hanover
Age: 43

When were you diagnosed with breast cancer? How did it impact you?
It was September 2006. I was 37 years old and eight months pregnant with my third child when I found a lump in my breast. Given a family history of cancer, I immediately followed up with my doctor, who sent me for a biopsy. Within 24 hours I received a phone call from my doctor informing me that I had breast cancer. My doctor encouraged me to have my baby induced immediately so they could begin a comprehensive evaluation (to assess the stage of cancer). I was overwhelmed! My thoughts reverted back to my mom's breast cancer battle, which she lost at age 48 with nine children. I wondered how I would raise my children (ages 6, 2-1/2 and newborn) while fighting cancer.

My husband and I were shocked and numb. We spent the next few days meeting with the oncologists and informing our family of the unfortunate situation. We opted to have our baby induced immediately. We decided not to let the darkness of cancer shadow our baby's birth. Instead, we made a conscious decision to "celebrate" our baby's entrance into this world. Cancer was not going to win. On Sept. 17, 2006, our daughter Victoria Patricia Hayden was born. Her arrival along with the births of my two older children continues to be the most amazing moments in my life. At that point, I realized that my children were my inspiration and reasons to fight this cancer. I would not let cancer take away my children's mother like it had taken away my mother when I was 10 years old.

Ten days after my beautiful daughter was born, I had a mastectomy, followed by three months of chemotherapy. The three months of chemotherapy were marked by increased lethargy, a hospital admission or neutropenia, multiple doctors' appointments, head lice running through our family (a great time to be bald!) and many sleepless nights for my husband who was waking up several times during the night to feed our newborn daughter.

If you've completed treatment, how long have you been cancer free?
Six years.

What treatment did you undergo or are you currently undergoing?
Mastectomy, chemotherapy, five years of Tamoxifen. Currently participating in a research study at Dana-Farber Cancer Institute.

What is the biggest help/support getting you through your battle with cancer?
It was during those three months of chemotherapy that I realized how truly blessed I was to have such a strong and supportive husband who took such great care of me. In addition to my husband, I had amazing in-laws who took the baby for days at a time whenever I had chemotherapy or doctor appointments. My eight siblings, residing in New York, Florida and Pennsylvania, mapped out a schedule providing in-house family assistance each week during chemotherapy. Family and friends provided meals, childcare, and even hired a house cleaner every other week. I was extremely fortunate to have such a phenomenal support system and for that I will always be grateful.

What advice can you offer to others going through treatment and recovery?
I would advise other women to seek out a medical team that understands you and has an open line of communication. I would also encourage woman to accept help from family and friends, to rest, relax and focus on fighting cancer. And lastly, I would encourage women to look for the goodness in life and the goodness in people – this will truly inspire you!

How has your perspective changed since your diagnosis?
After chemotherapy ended, I reflected on all the events of the previous months. I had a new appreciation for my family and friends. I began to focus on my health and recovery. I wondered why cancer had entered my life once again and more importantly, what was I supposed to do after this experience?? I recalled that my interest in health, nutrition and disease prevention after my mother's death inspired me to become a Registered Dietitian. For years, I worked as a Registered Dietitian in many clinical settings including: hospitals, hemodialysis clinics and even nursing homes. I began channeling my knowledge and interest in nutrition into researching foods to increase cancer survival. I started eating a more plant based diet, low in fat, high in fiber and rich in phytochemicals, which have be shown to aid in cancer prevention. I slowly adjusted my diet while continuing to exercise. Soon, I was feeling better and able to take care and enjoy my children, family and life!

It is now six years later, my baby has just entered kindergarten. My family is stronger and we view life differently. We appreciate each day we have with each other and try to make a positive impact on the lives of those around us. I continue to follow up with my oncologist at The Dana- Farber Cancer Institute and am currently participating in a research study. I exercise, maintain a healthy weight and continue to eat a plant-based diet while staying abreast to the latest research on the diet – cancer connection. Since my cancer diagnosis, several family and friends have been diagnosed with cancer. I realize now that my cancer experience along with my knowledge and expertise as a Registered Dietitian was meant to help others. I have recently started a private nutrition practice and am helping other woman live a healthy life after cancer. I cannot imagine my life any better.

Horoscope

SALOME'S STARS FOR RELEASE WEEK OF NOV. 5, 2012

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Your honesty continues to impress everyone who needs reassurance about a project. But be careful you don't lose patience with those who are still not ready to act.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Pushing others too hard to do things your way could cause resentment and raise more doubts. Instead, take more time to explain why your methods will work.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Be more considerate of those close to you before making a decision that could have a serious effect on their lives. Explain your intentions and ask for their advice.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You might have to defend a workplace decision you plan to make. Colleagues might back you up on this, but it's the facts that will ultimately win the day for you. Good luck.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) The Big Cat's co-workers might not be doing enough to help get that project finished. Your roars might stir things up, but gentle purrr-suasion will prove to be more effective.

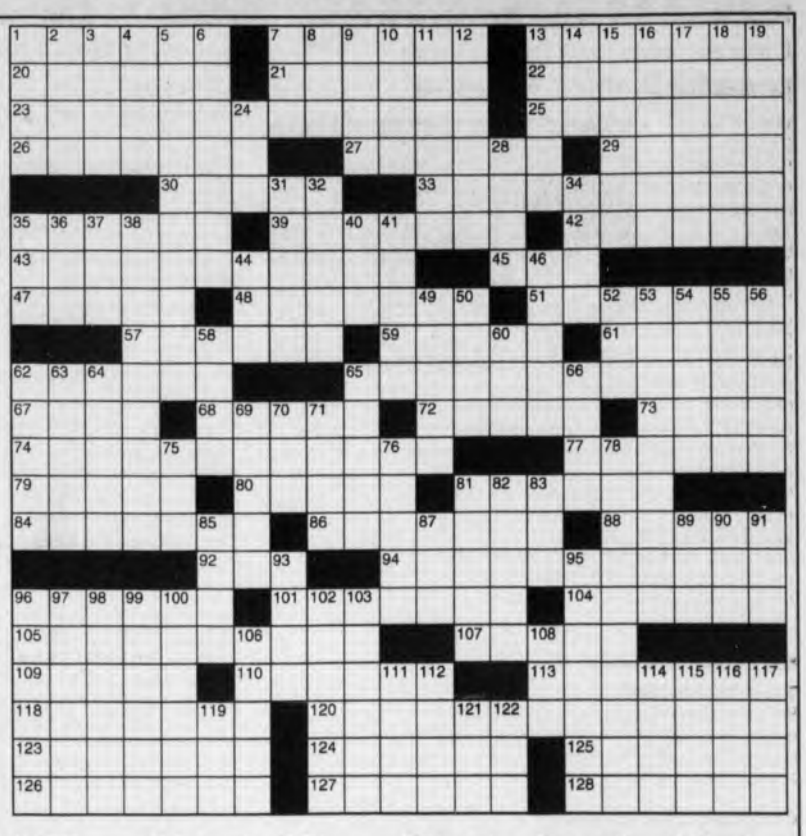
VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Someone you care for needs help with a problem. Give it lovingly and without judging the situation. Whatever you feel you should know will be revealed later.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) While you're to be admired for how you handled recent workplace problems, be careful not to react the same way to a new situation until all the facts are in.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Rely on your keen instincts as well as the facts at hand when dealing with a troubling situation. Be patient. Take things one step at a time as you work through it.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Your curiosity leads you to ask questions. However, the answers might not be what you hoped to hear. Don't reject them without checking them out.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Be careful not to tackle a problem without sufficient facts. Even sure-footed Goats need to know where they'll land before leaping off a mountain path.



AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Appearances can be deceiving. You need to do more investigating before investing your time, let alone your money, in something that might have some hidden flaws.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Your recent stand on an issue could make you the focus of more attention than you would like. But you'll regain your privacy, as well as more time with loved ones by week's end.

(c) 2012 King Features Syndicate, Inc.

BORN THIS WEEK: You're a good friend and a trusted confidante. You would be a wonderful teacher or a respected member of the clergy.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Cohasset fares well during super-storm

522 homes in town lost power

By Erin Dale

"We were expecting the worst and hoping for the best, and we came out somewhere in between."
Deputy Police Chief William Quigley

Cohasset weathered Superstorm Sandy on Monday afternoon and evening, which was downgraded from hurricane status. However, with 80 mph winds and massive waves that left over 7.4 million homes and businesses without power and killed at least 50 people in seven states, Sandy still made an onslaught in Massachusetts.

While utility companies have estimated that around 300,000 Commonwealth customers were without power on Tuesday, according to town officials Cohasset fared well during the storm.

As of Wednesday afternoon, all but three of the more than 500 Cohasset homes that lost electricity during Sandy had power restored. Crews were assigned to the remaining homes and National Grid estimated that they would have power by 5 p.m. Wednesday.

With other coastal towns like Dartmouth and Fall River having mandatory evacuations, Cohasset "was relatively fortunate" on Monday, Acting Town Manager Michael Milanoski said in a release issued Tuesday morning.

The situation was not as severe in Cohasset as the Mass. Emergency Management Agency (MEMA) originally projected; however, said Milanoski, "it was none the less a significant storm and damage did occur."

Fire Chief Robert Silvia called the storm a "drastic change from Irene last year."

"We weren't hit as hard as we were expected to be hit, and National Grid did a good job," said Silvia.

Residents were told they could be without power for 72 hours or longer, but most power was restored within 48 hours of Sandy's peak.

"Obviously we had a small window of very, very intense winds from 2 to 6 [p.m.], when the majority of the damage happened," the fire chief said. "That was originally forecast to last eight to 12 hours, but what they predicted didn't happen."

Deputy Police Chief William Quigley said, "We were expecting the worst and hoping for the best, and we came out somewhere in between."

ELECTION 2012

Voter ready

Town Hall expects big turnout Tuesday

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

It's hard to believe that the 2012 Presidential and state election will soon come and go. As voters are gearing up to cast their ballots, Cohasset could see a big turnout at the polls this year.

Town Clerk Carol St. Pierre said that there are 5,834 registered voters in Cohasset as of Oct. 17 (which was the last day to register), or roughly 75 percent of the town's population.

Less than 10 percent of voters are newly registered this year; as of July 1, there were 470 new voters in Cohasset.

St. Pierre thinks that the polls will be packed next Tuesday. The polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. at Town Hall.

"I anticipate an 80 percent turnout for election on Tuesday," the town clerk said. "The voters of Cohasset always exercise their right to cast a ballot in a presidential election."

While the Presidential race has heated up, with poll numbers showing President Barack Obama (D.) and former Mass. governor Mitt Romney (R.) neck and neck, the state senate race between Elizabeth Warren (D.) and incumbent Scott Brown (R.) could also be a close one.

The chairmen of Cohasset's Republican and Democrat town committees, Ray Kasperowicz and Kevin McCarthy, shared their views on the race, the crucial issues, and why voting in this election is especially important.

RTC chair Kasperowicz said this election will mark a

NEED TO KNOW

What's on the ballot?

WHAT: State officials are expecting record voting numbers at the 2012 General Election. Voters will cast their ballot for the next President of the United States, as well as U.S. Senate, U.S. Congress, state and county representatives.

WHEN: Election Day, Tuesday, Nov. 6. Polls open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. at Town Hall.

WHAT ARE YOU VOTING FOR?
This is the order of how each race appears on the ballot:
President and Vice President
Senator in Congress
Representative in Congress
Councillor (Governor's Council)
State Senator
State Representative
Clerk of Courts
Register of Deeds
County Commissioner (vote for two)

BALLOT QUESTIONS:

Question 1: Right to repair – A Yes vote would enact the proposed law requiring motor vehicle manufacturers to allow vehicle owners and independent repair facilities in Massachusetts to have access to the same vehicle diagnostic and repair information made available to the manufacturers' Massachusetts dealers and authorized repair facilities. A No vote makes no changes to current law.

Question 2: Prescribing medication to end life – A Yes vote would enact the proposed law allowing a physician licensed in Massachusetts to prescribe medication, at the request of a terminally ill patient meeting certain conditions, to end that person's life. A No vote would make no change in existing laws.

Question 3: Medical Use of Marijuana – A Yes vote would enact the proposed law eliminating state criminal and civil penalties related to the medical use of marijuana, allowing patients meeting certain conditions to obtain marijuana produced and distributed by new state-regulated centers or, in specific hardship cases, to grow marijuana for their own use. A No vote would make no change in existing laws.

Question 4 (non-binding): Shall the state representative from this district be instructed to vote in favor of a resolution calling upon Congress and the President to: (1) prevent cuts to Social Security, Medicare, Medicaid, and Veterans benefits, or to housing, food and unemployment assistance; (2) create and protect jobs by investing in manufacturing, schools, housing, renewable energy, transportation and other public services; (3) provide new revenues for these purposes and to reduce the long-term federal deficit by closing corporate tax loopholes, ending offshore tax havens, and raising taxes on incomes over $250,000; and (4) redirect military spending to these domestic needs by reducing the military budget, ending the war in Afghanistan and bringing U.S. troops home safely now?

UPDATE

Third arrest in cocaine case

A Roslindale man already facing one cocaine trafficking charge was arraigned last week on another after a joint local and federal task force recovered just under a pound of cocaine from his residence, Suffolk County District Attorney Daniel F. Conley said.

This is the third arrest as a result of a long-term investigation into drug sales in Cohasset and Weymouth by Cohasset police and several other police agencies. Two other men were arrested Oct. 18 and face cocaine trafficking charges.

Enrique Camilo, 38, was arraigned Oct. 26 on charges of trafficking in cocaine as a second or subsequent offense. Camilo is being held on $100,000 cash bail and was ordered to surrender his passport.

The Oct. 26 proceedings in West Roxbury District Court followed Camilo's arrest that morning at Logan Airport on a warrant Boston Police obtained after an Oct. 18 search of his Roslindale residence.

Acting on a West Roxbury District Court search warrant, Boston Police, along with Drug Enforcement Administration agents and officers of the Weymouth and Cohasset police departments, recovered 414 grams of cocaine in three plastic bags from his apartment. They also recovered a bottle of inositol, commonly used as a cutting agent, three boxes of plastic bags, and personal papers bearing Camilo's name and photo.

At the time of his arrest – and at the time the search warrant was executed – Camilo was facing an unrelated 2010 case in Norfolk County also alleging cocaine trafficking. His bail in that case was reduced to personal recognizance after it was learned that the drugs had been tested by a former DPH chemist now accused of mishandling evidence. Camilo return to court on Nov. 26.

Police said the suspects were delivering the drug to residents' homes or meeting them in the Village. Twelve to 15 homes in Cohasset were involved, police said.

In 2011, Cohasset Police detectives developed information about the trafficking of cocaine from Boston into Cohasset, which led detectives to monitor activity at locations in Cohasset where cocaine sales were taking place.

Police said the suspects were delivering the drug to residents' homes or meeting them in the Village. Twelve to 15 homes in Cohasset were involved, police said.

Based on the information obtained through extensive surveillance in Cohasset and Boston as well as other advanced investigative techniques, detectives were able to develop evidence of a Drug Trafficking Organization (DTO) that delivered illegal drugs the South Shore. During their investigation, Cohasset Police learned that the Weymouth Police Narcotics Unit was also investigating common elements of the DTO, and a joint investigation was initiated between Cohasset and Weymouth Police, with the assistance of DEA and Boston Police.

The two other men arrested on cocaine trafficking charges as a result of this investigation were Rafael Torres, 30, Roslindale and Gabriel A. Martinez, 27, of Dorchester.

RESCHEDULED

Governance public hearing

The Governance Committee public hearing, which was canceled this week due to Superstorm Sandy, has been rescheduled for Monday, Nov. 5 at 7 p.m. in the Middle-High School Library.

The meeting will include a presentation from the governance committee followed by public comment. Discussion topics include the town's budget planning process, a town-wide electronic survey on boards and committees, and the committee's review of the Town Manager Act and its relation to the town bylaws.

POLICE BEAT

Razor blades hot theft item

By Mary Ford
mford@wickedlocal.com

Police received a call from CVS at Tedeschi Plaza last week that a man who looked to be about 25 years old stole a quantity of razor blades from the store last Thursday (Oct. 25). The man had left by the time police were called at 6:40 p.m. Police said razor blade cartridges are easy to sell and therefore are attractive to thieves.

Attempted scam

A 67-year-old Cohasset man reported to police this week that he was almost scammed out of $1500 for a stamp collection that he had been contacted about during a series of phone calls, police said.

After several calls, the man gave the caller his credit card number and then thought the better of it and contacted his credit card company to cancel the transaction. The credit card company confirmed that the attempted sale was a scam.

ID theft

Last week a 62-year-old Avalon Drive resident went to the station to report $282 in fraudulent charges on his Visa card. He spotted the erroneous charges for the purchase of electronic devices and notified his credit card company right away. The items had not yet been shipped to the alleged thief, police said. Police provided the Cohasset man with an ID theft packet that explains what to do going forward including contacting all the credit monitoring agencies. Police encourage people who are victims of fraud to notify them.

Spent shell

A concerned caller notified police on Tuesday morning (Oct. 23) after finding what appeared to be a spent bullet shell on the high school track. Investigation revealed the shell was from a starter's pistol. Police explained that a starter's pistol operates much like a cap gun and does not actually fire a projectile.

Intoxicated

Police took at 55-year-old Cohasset woman into protective custody last week after her husband went to the station to report she was intoxicated due to alcohol consumption and was out of control. She was taken to the station and then transported to South Shore Hospital for treatment, police said.

Dispute

Police were called last week when a tenant reported that someone had entered her home. It turned out a pest control service had been called by the landlord and there was a lack of communication between landlord and tenant, police said.

Into pole

A neighbor to a house that is under construction on Beach Street reported seeing a large dump truck back out of the construction site and into a pole jarring some wires loose. The truck then drove away. Police contacted the driver, a 65-year-old Whitman man, who explained he did not realize he had hit the pole. National Grid was called to secure the wires. The incident occurred on Tuesday (Oct. 23) around 2:49 p.m.

Sideswiped

A 32-year-old mother from Scituate, who was driving a 2003 Honda sedan with a small child in the car, called police on Tuesday (Oct. 23) at 8:11 p.m. after sideswiping a parked, unoccupied 2006 Audi sedan on North Main Street by the common. Police said there was minor damage to both cars. There were no injuries and neither car had to be towed. The Honda was headed south (toward the village) when the mishap occurred.

Dog loose

Police responded to a complaint last Tuesday (Oct. 23) at about 11 p.m. about a man who was causing a traffic hazard with his vehicle while trying to corral his dog near the Deer Hill School.

No trespass

Stop & Shop has obtained a no-trespass order against a 62-year-old man who caused a disturbance over a purchase last week in the store at the customer service desk. Apparently the man became belligerent when asked to leave by the manager, police said.

Scaffolding

Police spoke to a group of youngsters on the common last week about staying away from the scaffolding at First Parish Church whose windows are being restored. A concerned caller notified police after seeing the kids playing on the scaffolding. The kids agreed to stay away, police said.

MV accident

At 8:11 a.m. on Thursday (Oct. 25), police responded to an accident in front of the Avalon complex on Route 3A. Police said a 2008 Toyota SUV, operated by a 65-year-old Cohasset man, was attempting to take a left out of the complex when he apparently changed his mind and tried to take a right hitting a 2011 BMW, operated by a 61-year-old Cohasset woman, who also lives at Avalon. The BMW was waiting to make a right out of the driveway when the incident occurred. Neither car was towed and no citations were issued, police said.

Class B drug

Police arrested a 25-year-old Hull woman on a default warrant that was issued by South Boston District Court. She was arrested at her place of work in Cohasset and was taken to the station. During inventory, police found the drug Suboxone on her person. She was also charged with possession of a Class B drug, police said.

MV accident

Police responded to a motor vehicle crash at South Main and Spring streets at 12:12 p.m. on Thursday (Oct. 25). Police said a 2006 Jeep SUV, operated by a 16-year-old Cohasset girl, was traveling on South Main toward the village when the teen driver attempted to make a left onto Spring Street cutting off a 2013 Toyota, two-door coupe, operated by a 41-year-old Quincy woman, police said. The Toyota was traveling south on South Main (toward Scituate). Both vehicles were towed and the 16-year-old was cited for failure to yield. The Quincy woman was transported to the hospital with minor injuries, police said.

Wedding guest

A wedding guest, who was attempting to walk home to Hull from the reception at the Red Lion Inn, was persuaded to take the wedding shuttle after police were contacted about her welfare last Saturday around 1 a.m.

Traffic

Police have stepped up enforcement in the Forest Avenue and Jerusalem Road area due to numerous complaints about speeding. Recently a cell caller complained about dump trucks speeding toward Black Road.

Cohasset CERT on the move

Emergency team lent a hand

"When police and fire find themselves tied up with different emergencies, the CERT can canvas the area; they are a wonderful auxiliary team."
Coral Grande, Director of Elder Affairs

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

Cohasset's CERT (Community Emergency Response Team) was mobilized and ready to go during the cleanup effort following Superstorm Sandy.

The 16-member team, led by Director of Emergency Management Glenn Pratt, completed a 10-week training course on October 20. Now, there are 16 volunteers who are certified as first responders.

"It was pretty timely — we used everyone a week later," Pratt said of the training. "We got them certified in the nick of time. We're always ready because you never know what's going to happen."

CERT training is designed to help citizens prepare themselves in the event of a disaster, since public safety personnel are not always available to help everyone immediately. The training covers basic skills first aid skills that are important to know in a disaster when emergency services are not available. Each CERT member wears a lime-green shirt and reflective vest and is equipped with a supplies bag that includes first aid kits, flashlights, caution tape, gloves, goggles, cutting tools, and other "things that might be helpful," said Pratt.

Nearly all of the newly certified CERT volunteers were available to help the public safety department, Dept. of Public Works (DPW) and Elder Affairs during Monday's event and the cleanup effort on Tuesday. Many CERT members reported for duty around noon on Monday and continued helping out through midnight, said Pratt.

"They were involved helping the Board of Health inspector check food establishments for refrigeration, they checked on elderly people for the Council on Aging and worked on road closures, those kind of things," Pratt explained.

On Monday afternoon, as wind speeds increased and power flickered on and off in Cohasset, five CERT volunteers were at the Elder Affairs section of the South Shore Community Center to make phone calls and check on people who are on the Cohasset community contact list, which Elder Affairs Director Coral Grande explained is updated often.

Grande explained that it's the emergency team's job "to check on people in the community, make sure they're ok and that they have food, water and batteries."

The team also checked houses using the VENS (Visual Emergency Notification System) implemented by Elder Affairs and the public safety team; people who are part of the VENS program hang a sign in their windows indicating to public safety and emergency responders that they should be checked on in an emergency.

Grande said that as long as the town has power during a storm, people on the contact list "can expect a couple of calls a day."

This is one reason CERT volunteers are so important, said Grande. "When police and fire find themselves tied up with different emergencies, the CERT can canvas the area; they are a wonderful auxiliary team."

In the same vein, Elder Affairs is also there to lend support. "It's one thing to get reverse 911 calls, but elders need to hear a human voice," said Grande. "They need to have a conversation with somebody and know we're truly looking out for them and want to talk to them specifically."

Sandy was "not unlike other emergencies we've had," said Grande. However, the Elder Affairs director noted, storms and similar situations provide an opportunity for town departments to work together.

"The cooperation and networking of other departments in town affected by this is a great opportunity to work with everyone," she said.

Pratt said that having extra manpower during an event like Sandy is crucial.

"We had 13 of our 16 able to come out, a big increase to the people available to help," said Pratt. "There are only 15 police and 15 fire [personnel], so that adds a dozen people who can actually do things; it's a big help with just the manpower. Checking all the food establishments took four people four hours, and [CERT members] actually driving to the addresses the Council on Aging... We also had a person on the phone [checking on the elderly]. It worked out pretty well."

Deputy Police Chief William Quigley said that the CERT volunteers were helpful when it came to checking streets for downed wires and in contacting the elderly. "In a situation like this, they serve as a force multiplier for public safety."

Fire Chief Robert Silvia agreed that "having additional CERT helped.

"We had them running all over the place," Silvia added. "It's one of those things, a baptism by fire — they've only been officially certified a week and we put them right to work."

National Grid reported Tuesday morning that 522 out of 3,607 Cohasset homes (14.5 percent) lost electricity. By Wednesday morning, the number dropped to below 150.

Schools were closed on Monday and Tuesday in response to information from National Grid. According to Milanoski, two trees with a diameter of three feet each fell on Jerusalem Road, which is not passable, and shut off the power on most of the side streets off Jerusalem and upper Beechwood Street.

The town manager said that these trees were beyond the capacity of National Grid's field team and the town's Dept. of Public Works (DPW) and would require a crane to move; and waiting for a crane, which were in high demand in the area, could have taken a few days. However, both trees were removed by Wednsday.

National Grid reported Tuesday morning that 522 out of 3,607 Cohasset homes (14.5 percent) lost electricity. By Wednesday morning, the number dropped to below 150. While awaiting updates from National Grid, Milanoski said that most of the remaining houses would have power by the close of day Wednesday.

On Tuesday, power was reconnected to the Beechwood area, which consists of around 300 homes; a large portion of Jerusalem Road was restored as well.

Officials are still inspecting all sidewalks during daylight hours to make sure there are no down power lines that folks could touch.

While Cohasset experienced some significant flooding at the noontide on Monday, the evening appeared to be less severe in harbor.

Treats Pond and Jacob Meadow appeared to hold their own due to the DPW draining them over the weekend, Milanoski explained. The pond and the tide gate were "well below their storm capacity. That early drainage paid off for both of them."

At the peak of the storm, mid-afternoon Monday, multiple trees down closed roads at once with power lines including South Main Street, Norman Todd Road, King Street, Oak Street, Nickels Street, and Jerusalem in multiple spots.

Overall, the storm's effects were not as major in Cohasset as predicted by MEMA and other agencies.

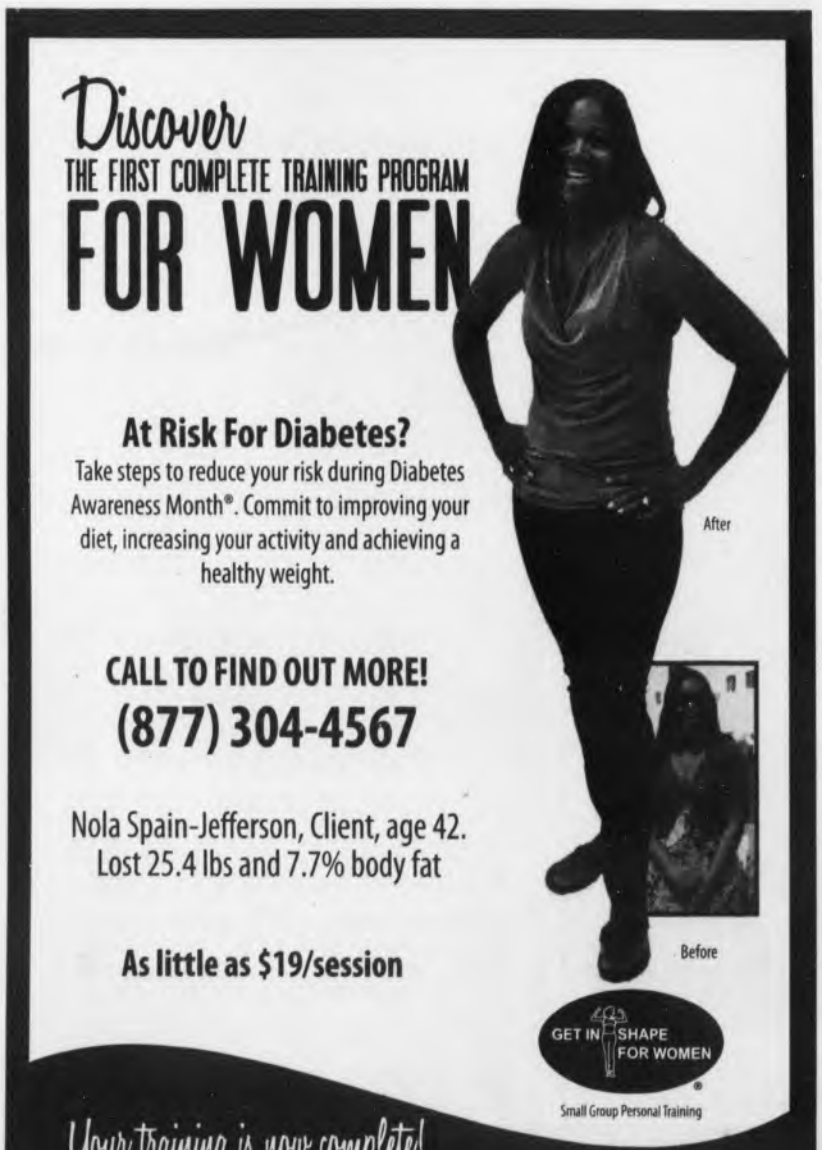
"We got lucky," said Milanoski. "Mid-storm it fizzled out on us, which was great."

The Community Emergency Response Team (CERT), led by Deputy Director of Emergency Management Glenn Pratt, and Cohasset police worked together after the storm to secure streets due to live wires and made multiple other responses throughout the day. "We had our forces out Monday morning," said Milanoski, praising the CERT, police, fire, DPW, "and all others that supported the cleanup and restoration effort."

Deputy Chief Quigley agreed, saying, "In situations like this, it's great to see all the departments come together. We were a well-oiled machine."

Quigley said that the town manager and public safety departments will hold an after-action meeting next week to discuss the storm "operation from start to finish, and see if we can do even better next time."

One concern the police chief had was folks ignoring police barricades and standing on seawalls to photograph the storm.



"People were out and about trying to get a look at the surf, but they just don't realize how dangerous that is," said Quigley. "The ocean was hurling rocks onto the causeway like they were nothing."

Silvia said that while Cohasset fared well during this storm, people should always prepare for the worst.

"Everybody assumes they'll get power back in 24 hours, but people need to plan for 72," said Silvia. "At this point [National Grid] has done very well, and we're in pretty good shape... but if the storm had tracked another 150 miles north, we wouldn't be having this conversation."

Local grandma is Cooking Channel star

Genevra Higginson hosts Mo Rocca

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

It's no secret that the coastal beauty of Cohasset has attracted Hollywood camera crews in the past; at this point, the town is developing a rich history in the film community.

Besides movies and music videos, Cohasset is calling out to another aspect of the film industry — culinary TV shows. In May, many Cohasseters were excited to learn that famous chef Gordon Ramsay would be filming an episode of his show "Kitchen Nightmares" in Hull and making a stop in Cohasset (he wound up serving chowder from the Barefoot Bob's food truck to an eager crowd on the common).

But few were aware that another TV star was filming an episode for his cooking show the following month, in the home of a Cohasset grandmother.

Genevra Higginson, 77, and her husband Charlie played host to comedian-turned-cooking-show-star Mo Rocca for an episode of his Cooking Channel show, "My Grandmother's Ravioli."

The program, produced by CBS Eye Productions, involves Rocca traveling to homes in order to have grandparents teach him how to cook. The story behind the show is that Rocca's grandmother offered to teach him, but he never learned; now that she has passed away, Rocca is reaching out to other people's grandparents to learn their special recipes.

While the show tends to film in the tri-state region of New York, New Jersey and Connecticut, Higginson said Rocca made a special exception to film in Massachusetts.

Since the film crew wanted to feature a "shore dinner" using fresh, local seafood straight from the harbor, Higginson said, "They decided they would make one trip, and that would be Cohasset."

Rocca, along with a 10-person film crew, stayed in town over three days in mid-June. While the crew stayed at the Harbor Inn, Rocca stayed in the Higginson family's 300-year-old house on Parker Avenue.

How Higginson was chosen for the show is "a funny story," she said in a phone call.

Higginson worked at the National Gallery for over 20 years as the Chief of Protocol and Special Events and worked closely with chefs and caterers coordinating food events in Europe and all over the U.S. Through her Sandy Cove Academy of the Culinary Arts, the cooking school she set up for her grandchildren, Higginson has passed on her culinary skills to many of her relatives. After Higginson's niese, Katherine Osborn, asked her aunt to teach her to bake a cake for her boyfriend, who is soon to be her fiancé, Osborn heard from a friend who worked at CBS that Rocca would be filming a new show and was looking for grandparents to cook with. Osborn told her friend about her aunt's cooking skills, and Higginson received an email from CBS asking for a resume and photo. She sent it in, not expecting a reply.

Months went by before Higginson received another email asking if she could come to New York for an interview. She took a taxi from Penn Station to CBS studios and completed an interview on camera, then waited to hear whether she had made the cut.

Obviously, Rocca saw something he liked, and was intrigued by Cohasset and learning to cook a traditional shore dinner. A producer visited Higginson at her home, and before she knew it, the crew behind "My Grandmother's Ravioli" were on their way.

The 10-person crew, including three producers and three cameramen, along with over $500,000 of camera and lighting equipment, set up shop in Higginson's kitchen.

"It was pretty intense, but great fun," she said of filming. "There was no script; it was all very impromptu. Mo is extremely great and funny, and you never know what he's going to say; he takes you aback."

Higginson and her husband, along with two granddaughters, got an inside look on the production behind a cooking TV show.

"Every time we moved from the table to the stove, they had to move all of their lights and cameras," she said. "We did 11 hours of filming for a half-hour show. They were wonderful to work with... The precision and professionalism was amazing."

Two of Higginson's granddaughters, Cadie and Noelle Higginson, both 14, who live in New Orleans and attended school at Osgood during the Hurricane Katrina evacuation, had just come back from winning a championship soccer game in Germany and flew in the night before the final day of filming. They appear in the episode making peach ice cream with Rocca.

"It was a big experience for the girls," said Higginson.

The cook thinks the show will help shine a spotlight on Cohasset as a culinary destination, as Rocca and the crew had a chance to see Cohasset Harbor and learn about the local lobstering tradition from two town lobstermen.

The Higginsons brought Rocca to the beach and showed him how to dig up clams for chowder; they also gathered saltwater and seaweed to cook lobsters in. Rocca even took to the sea, going out with lobstermen Bob and Brian Patterson, to learn how to pull up lobster traps.

The Pattersons "were wonderful," said Higginson, adding that Rocca "had a great time" learning the ropes.

"It was super to have them come and learn about the town a little," Higginson said of the experience.

For the meal, Higginson taught Rocca how to make clam chowder, a traditional New England boiled lobster dinner (steamed in fresh seaweed and saltwater) with lettuce sandwiches, and homemade peach ice cream.

The episode featuring Higginson, her family, home and Cohasset Harbor will air on the Cooking Channel several times in the next few weeks, starting on Wednesday, Nov. 7 at 8:30 p.m. Eastern, and again that night at 12:30 a.m. The episode will be shown again on Sat., Nov. 10 at 1:30 a.m. and 9:30 p.m., with another airing on Nov. 11 at 1 p.m.

FILMED IN COHASSET

Horror film to premier

Looking for a fright night this Halloween season?

A horror movie that was filmed in and around Cohasset last year is having its local premiere on Nov. 6 in Waltham, Mass.

California-based director Edward Payson and Anti-Hero Productions present a horror film like no other: "The Cohasset Snuff Film," a look into the mind of high school serial killer Collin Mason.

The movie is a "found footage" film, shot documentary-style like the popular "Paranormal Activity" films. Payson told the Mariner earlier this year that he hopes the film will become Cohasset's "Blair Witch Project."

The film premieres at the Waltham Landmark Embassy Cinema on Nov. 6 at 7:30pm. Tickets are $11 and can be pre-bought on Tugg.com or purchased at the door while they last.

The filmmakers will be on hand for a Q&A following the film.

For more information, visit www.tugg.com/events/1892.

Meditation event at Second Congregational

As a follow-up to the enormously popular "How to Meditate Event" with Dr. Susan Schrager, the Second Congregational Church of Cohasset is hosting "Walking Meditation: A Journey Inward on the Labryinth." The event will take place in Bates Hall this coming Monday, Nov. 5 from 7-9 p.m.

Walking meditation is an ancient practice. This practice can be greatly enhanced by the use of a labyrinth, which is a maze-like pattern often constructed outdoors with stones or hedges. Several years ago, the church purchased a custom made cloth labyrinth and would like to invite the public to enjoy the experience of walking it in candlelight. Participants will be given brief instructions.

Rev. Gary Ritts says, "Walking the labyrinth calms and centers the mind and often leads to great insights during difficult times or transitions. Regardless of your religious background, it can be a highly powerful spiritual tool."

This workshop will be strictly limited to 30 participants due to space constraints on the labyrinth. To secure your space, please rsvp to SCC@2ndcc.org as soon as possible.

Farm Harvest Benefit Dinner

There are still a few spots left for the fall Farm Harvest Benefit Dinner this Saturday Nov. 3, 2012 from 6 to 9 p.m. in the cozy heated greenhouse at Holly Hill Farm in Cohasset.

Maryann Saporito, owner and executive chef of Hola in Marshfield, is back by popular demand to create tasty dishes made with the farm's organic produce. Dishes will be paired with organic wines from Bare Cove Wine Annex in Hingham. This will be the fourth farm to table collaboration with chef Maryann and diners at past events have described the evenings as "magical" and "perfect." Maryann's cooking embodies the philosophy of fresh farm food, prepared simply and served from the heart. Combine food with Friends of Holly Hill Farm and the meal becomes an intimate evening of locavore dining at its best.

A silent auction will feature local artists including Jewelry by Sage, paintings by Tina Watson and Mary McSweeney, pottery by Beth Merry, a handmade journal by Melissa Chao, a wine and cheese party at your home, and many more items. Cost is $50 for members of the Friends of Holly Hill Farm, $60 for non-members. Call 781-383-6565 or email jbelberhollyhill@hotmail.com to reserve your spot.

Proceeds benefit the Friends of Holly Hill Farm, the non-profit education center that uses the farm as its outdoor classroom and teaches in over 20 school gardens in seven South Shore towns. Holly Hill Farm is located at 236 Jerusalem Road, Cohasset. For directions and more information, visit www.hollyhillfarm.org.

Wetheralds have a new baby boy!

Sandy thoughts

Hello Cohasset...what a week it has been. As we all know, the week started with quite a commotion when "Sandy" decided to roar up the Coast. For our area, we were lucky for the most part and through the decision of "Mother Nature" to track the way she did, and then, with the hours and days of work put in by the Police, Fire, Department of Public Works, utility companies...the list goes on and on, we dodged a huge storm. My heart goes out to all the other areas that were hit so hard and lost so much, puts it all in perspective don't you think?

Well, after the storm of course we jumped to Halloween and Trick -or-Treat night! I hope the night was a huge success for everyone and that the next morning was not too terrible for all the lucky teachers who received the classrooms filled with our tired little "creatures." Such a fun holiday but over so fast and takes a bit of recovery after the fact..

Now, we jump forward to today, Nov. 2! Does this mean gulp? Holiday season is almost here? Doesn't seem possible but I guess it is true, I am so not ready to accept that so here's to a happy mid-Fall instead!

Oh boy!

Tom and Maryanne Wetherald of Cohasset announce the birth of their son Samuel James Houghton Wetherald, who arrived on Sept. 8, 2012 at South Shore Hospital with a weight and length of 6.3 pounds and 19 inches.

Paternal grandparents Houghton and Carol Wetherald of Punta Gorda, Fla. and maternal grandparents James and Dorothy Keeney of Boston are excited about their new grandson.

If you see the Wetheralds around town, be sure to congratulate them on the new addition to their family!

On stage

Cohasset Dramatic Club's Steel Magnolia performance dates are Nov. 9, 10, 16, 17 at 7:30 p.m. and Nov. 11 and 18 at 2 p.m. All performances take place at the Cohasset Town Hall Theater, 41 Highland Ave. General admission tickets for "Steel Magnolias" are $20 each at www.brownpapertickets.com/event/279850 at Paperscapes in the Village or Buttonwood Books & Toys in Shaw's Plaza. You can also make a reservation by calling 617-922-0280 or at the door one hour prior to each performance. For more information go to www.cohassetdramaticclub.org

With honors

Wanted to share with you that Juliette Karp, daughter of proud parents Rena and Michael Karp, of Cohasset graduated cum laude from UMass Amherst, Isenberg School of Management. Class of 2012. Congratulations Juliette!

Merit scholar

Notre Dame Academy principal Kathleen Colin announces that senior Caroline A. Lengyel of Cohasset has been named a Commended Student in the 2013 National Merit Scholarship Program.

Commended Students placed among the top five percent of more than 1.5 million students who entered the 2013 competition by taking the 2011 Preliminary SAT/National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test (PSAT/NMSQT®). About 34,000 Commended Students throughout the nation will be recognized for their exceptional academic promise.

"Commended Students represent some of the most academically talented students in the country and NDA is proud to recognize Coroline's achievement" shared Colin. "We hope this recognition will encourage her to continue her pursuit of academic success."

Library

Two programs coming up in November at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library are both informative and, in the case of the first one, celebrate the release of a book from Cohasset resident Margot Cheel. Margot will present a slideshow and talk about her new book "Sea & Sand from the Sky" on Thursday, Nov. 15 at 7 pm. This program is free and all are welcome to enjoy.

The next event is a great one for those who want some skills when it comes to searching on the internet. Learn how to search the internet at a free hands-on workshop on Wednesday, Nov. 14 at 10:30 am. This is a free program as well, however, seating is limited. Call the library to reserve your seat or for more information on either program, call 781-383-1348.

That is the news for this week Cohasset. Send in all your news, photos and celebration info to me no later than Tuesdays by 5 pm.

Just an FYI. We receive dean's list and honors notices from many colleges and private schools, but not all. If your son or daughter has earned recognition, please share that news directly with us!

We also LOVE new baby announcements with photos if possible. Need birth date, weight, length, names of siblings, parents and grandparents. Emailed photos are fine but glossies can be dropped off at Tedeschi's in the village in our Mariner drop box.

Salon is small business success

Cohasset's Earth Tones picks up where The Stylist left off

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

From a young age, Tracey Leahy knew she never wanted to do anything as a career besides cutting hair.

"Nobody was shocked when I wanted to go to hairdressing school," Leahy, who sports a trendy short and highlighted cut, said. "I was obsessed with hair; I loved brushing my mother's and babysitter's hair."

The self-confessed hair-obsessed girl grew up into a businesswoman with two salons: Earth Tones in Duxbury and the new Cohasset location, which opened this past spring. As the Marshfield resident advanced in her career and changed salons over the years, many of her clientele followed her to each new location, and are happy to have her back in Cohasset.

Before it became Earth Tones, however, the building that houses Leahy's latest salon used to be The Stylist, which also happens to be the place where Leahy got her start.

"My first job [cutting hair] was right here," Leahy recalled. She worked there for six months before spending a few years cutting hair at American Image; then she got into skincare and worked for Lancôme before taking a job at Salon di Carlo in Norwell.

After taking time off to backpack around the world and get engaged (and, eventually, married with children; Leahy is mother to daughters Georgia, 15, and Elliotte, 12, and 17-year-old son Christian), Leahy worked in Cohasset once again at Hair Imports before cutting hair out of her home studio in Marshfield.

"I was very happy being by myself," she said. Because she was so busy with her clients, however, she wasn't taking any new ones; she would instead refer new clients to her friends who worked at different salons. Her husband, Patrick, told her this was a bad business model.

"He said, 'You should open up a salon and hire your friends instead of giving [clients] away,'" Leahy laughed.

Leahy opened Earth Tones, an Aveda salon, in Duxbury 12 years ago in November.

At some point during her career, Leahy discovered the all-natural product line Aveda, a company dedicated to social and ecological responsibility and "got hooked." She introduced the products to the salons she worked in, but some stopped carrying the lines once she'd left. Leahy felt called to open her own salon and stock the products she swore by.

Jada Coyne, business manager at Earth Tones, said that Aveda products are in high demand among their clientele, many of whom go to Earth Tones just to purchase Aveda products.

"Aveda prides itself on being very natural," said Coyne. "The company is committed to the environment." The eco-friendly product line "doesn't have all the petra-chemicals in it, which are bad for your hair and skin. The product speaks for itself."

Carrying the line, said Coyne, is an "investment on our part." Both Earth Tones locations are Aveda concept salons, meaning they don't sell any other brand.

When it came time to find a place for her second salon, Aveda even helped Leahy find a location. Leahy bought out the lease from The Stylist's owner and set up her new salon at the same address: 812 Chief Justice Cushing Highway, Suite 4, in the same complex as King Jewelers.

Coyne said it was fitting for Leahy to return to the familiar spot. "She has a history here... She's truly come full circle."

Between the two salon locations, Earth Tones employs 28 people. And while the typical salon environment is a competitive one, Coyne said that at Earth Tones, "Everyone works well together as a team."

In addition to expert hair cutting and styling, Earth Tones also has an Aveda makeup artist who does complimentary makeovers on Thursday afternoons (she is gone for the winter but will be back in spring); and last week, the Cohasset location unveiled its brand new spa room for facials.

The hairstylist and salon owner eventually hopes to expand her business with a third location — a large salon (Earth Tones in Duxbury is small while Cohasset's is medium-sized). This way, "guests can have the option of what they feel they like," said Leahy. This salon would also be located somewhere on the South Shore. Leahy likes having her two salons around 20 minutes apart, which gives clients flexibility to have appointments at either location.

In the meantime, Leahy plans to keep Earth Tones in Cohasset for a long, long time.

"We have a 20-year lease — that's our commitment to Aveda and Cohasset," said Leahy. "This industry can have ups and downs, but the message most important to us is that we're here, and we're committed."

Leahy is also committed to supporting other local businesses and charities. When someone asks for Earth Tones to donate a gift certificate for a charity raffle, Leahy said, "We never say no. We love working with the community. Whenever we can give back, we do it."

That sometimes means giving discounts or even free services to cash-strapped clients. "If a client is financially struggling, I won't charge," said Leahy. "We make it work. It's a tough time for a lot of people."

Salon owner Tracey Leahy has come full circle since opening Earth Tones Salon in Cohasset in the building that used to house The Stylist, where Leahy got her start cutting hair. STAFF PHOTO/CHRIS BERNSTEIN

Or, said Coyne, "If someone has an injury and can't wash her hair, we'll do it for free."

One of Leahy's longtime clients, who has been with her from day one, is Dottie Happel of Scituate, who will vouch for Leahy's commitment to her customers — and their love for her.

"I'm her first customer — I've followed her to six or seven salons," said Happel. "And the times I couldn't get there, she'd just come to my house. It's nice having a small-town salon and not a big chain where you can form a personal relationship" with your stylist. "Tracey's very accommodating... I can't say enough about her; she's awesome."

Happel said that she's known Leahy since the stylist was 12 years old, and over the past 30 years, Leahy has cut her hair and her daughter's, who is now 25.

"I worked with Tracey in a restaurant when she was still in high school," Happel said of their meeting. It wasn't long before Leahy was in hairdressing school and Happel became her first customer. "I was a client of hers 28 years ago and have stayed with her ever since; the only time I left was when she was pregnant and took time off... I've gone with her from hairdressing school to every salon she's ever worked in... She did my hair on my wedding day 30 years ago."

And when circumstances turned difficult over the years, as Happel was diagnosed with cancer and her daughter also suffered from illness, Leahy was there for them.

"Now I have cancer, she's nice enough to do my hair and color and does everything for free for me because I couldn't afford to stay, so she's been a great, great friend for many, many years," said Happel. "I had a sick child who lost her hair when she was 14, and [Tracey] came over and did her hair for her eighth grade dance and prom."

Happel said that Leahy isn't just good to her friends, but "helps a lot of cancer patients, which is wonderful."

As a Scituate resident, Happel said she loves the new Cohasset salon's proximity to her. "I have so many doctor's appointments, but I can call in the morning and she somehow fits me in. Whenever I have one of those days when I hate my hair, I'll call her."

Happel said that many of her friends who became Leahy's clients years ago have stuck with her all this time, too. And if her clientele has a say, it appears Leahy and Earth Tones will be around for a long time. The salon recently won the Wicked Local Readers' Choice award for Best Salon — and Coyne said that they didn't even ask their customers, friends or family members to vote.

Winning "means that much more," said Coyne. "It's very humbling that it happened."

Perhaps it's their commitment to clients that makes Earth Tones a hit with customers. Leahy said that she wants guests to be happy no matter what.

"We want you to love your hair," said Leahy. "My reputation is on your head — if you don't love it, you need to let me know... Come back and tell me; I have thick skin."

For more information about Earth Tones, call 781-383-9500 or visit www.earthtoneshairsalon.com.

Earth Tones will celebrate 12 years in Duxbury with a holiday kick-off party on Tuesday, Nov. 27 from 5 to 8 p.m. Anyone who calls and makes a reservation will receive a $25 voucher for their next appointment; walk-ins will receive a $10 voucher. The salon will be selling Aveda holiday gift sets, and a portion of the sale goes toward an indigenous tribe .

OUR VIEW

With gratitude

There's something both terrifying and intriguing about a big storm.

Here in New England, most of us have experienced some of the worst weather Mother Nature has had to offer – from blizzards to hurricanes to everything in between.

This time, however, Cohasset – and most of Massachusetts — were lucky and fared well during Hurricane Sandy.

However, our fellow citizens in New York City, New Jersey, Connecticut and several Mid-Atlantic and Mid-Western states were not so fortunate.

There are no words to describe the devastation in the scenes that have been chronicled in the press and continue to come to us on TV and through our computer screens. Hurricane Sandy was both precedent setting and history making.

At times like these, we should pause to thank our public safety personnel, DPW and facility crews, harbormaster department, school department, health officials and other town officials and CERT volunteers. We are grateful for our doctors, nurses and hospitals that are also ready for the worst. We also thank National Grid for restoring power in Cohasset as quickly as possible.

It becomes abundantly clear in any disaster that there are certain people – like firefighters, paramedics and police – who run toward danger when the rest of us are trying to escape it. There are DPW and electric company employees that head out to restore power and clear downed trees, so we can be comfortable and safe.

Sandy may have been just a blip on the screen in Cohasset – but if she had turned a little father north, the picture would have been totally different.

We are grateful that our town – and our CERT team — was prepared for the worst. Therefore, we can sleep comfortably at night when we first learn about an approaching storm while our town officials, public safety, and DPW personnel are lying wide awake thinking about what problems they might have to cope with. We are comforted that Cohasset's emergency management plans are activated during major storms and disasters and that the plans are then reviewed and improved upon.

We think we can speak for all in saying when we see a firefighter on TV carrying a child or elderly citizen out of a flooded home in New Jersey – tears come to our eyes. We are in awe of the firefighter's bravery and compassion.

The residents of Cohasset who stayed off the streets also deserve a pat on the back. Keeping our streets clear for police, emergency and DPW crews is key in any disaster.

It looks a little silly, but we think it will work

The Cohasset Mariner is building a Readers Advisory Network of e-mail addresses so we can more frequently involve our readers in the content of the newspaper.

Readers, who join the network, may be asked for reactions to stories, ideas for stories or follow-ups, for a digital "person on the street" interview, or for a community commentary.

If you are interested in becoming a member of the network, email Mary Ford at mford@wickedlocal.com. She will answer any questions that you may have. The Mariner promises to remove you immediately from the Readers Advisory Network if you request that we do.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Proud of our dedicated team

I want to offer my sincere appreciation to Cohasset's emergency management group for their excellent work during Hurricane Sandy. This calm, efficient response to an emergency only works when the officials plan carefully before the event. The group, headed by Glenn Pratt, does most of its work quietly, behind the scenes. However, the results of their planning and long hours on the job were certainly apparent to all during this storm. The emergency response was coordinated with the town management, public safety departments (police and fire), public works department (responsible flood prevention measures and for the prompt removal of downed trees and wires), school leadership, health officials, senior citizens department, harbor masters department and our two infrastructure departments (water and sewer.) Communications between the various departments were seamless.

Sandy's landfall in New Jersey spared us the worst of the winds and as of Wednesday morning we had only a handful of homes without electricity. Public Safety Director Bob Silvia worked closely with National Grid to assure that the outages were resolved as quickly as possible.

We should all be proud of these dedicated town officials!

COMMENTARY

Question 2 is public safety issue

TED CARR

I understand individuals feel strongly about this and I respect the divergence of opinion. But I believe we cannot make a decision as significant as life and death based on emotion and anecdotal experience.

On Nov. 6, voters will be asked to decide on statewide Ballot Question 2, which would legalize physician assisted suicide. Here we are days away from the election and few people know that there is not a provision in this ballot language requiring family members to be notified if their loved one decides to take his or her life, that doctors are not present at the end, and that a terminally ill patient can get this prescription filled at the local pharmacy. There is a misguided perception that somehow this all takes place in a medically supervised setting. In reality, there is no tracking of these pills once they are picked up and brought to the person's home. Here in Cohasset we have a tradition of strong debate, I believe an issue of this significance should be well vetted with rigorous discussion before we vote on it to become a binding law.

No doubt this is an emotional issue. I understand individuals feel strongly about this and I respect the divergence of opinion. But I believe we cannot make a decision as significant as life and death based on emotion and anecdotal experience. Regardless of your position on physician assisted suicide, it is important to remember that we are not voting on convictions, we are voting on the language as written in Ballot Question 2. If passed on Election Day, physician assisted suicide would become legal under Massachusetts law, effective January 1, 2013. No additional legislative or other approvals would be necessary. As written, the legislation is poorly written and lacks the basic safeguards against unintended consequences.

One of the particular flaws that trouble me is that patients would not be required to seek psychiatric care before obtaining the lethal drug. Multiple studies show a connection between a terminal diagnosis and patients developing depression. As it stands, no mental health professional would be required to be part of the consultative process. To me this is a glaring flaw in denying vulnerable patients proper care.

Furthermore, patients would not be required to consult with a palliative care or a hospice expert. Hospice addresses the multifaceted distress that dying patients and their friends and families are experiencing by providing extensive palliative care, expert pain management, and extraordinary social and spiritual supports. Hospice works with the patient to design a program that is individualized for the patient and provides choice, control and dignity when most needed. Unlike even a few years ago, appropriate medical care is now able to keep patients comfortable and pain free. When the infamous Oregon law was first passed, hospice care was only a glimmer of what it is today. Even though hospice services are now widely available, they are infrequently accessed.

Speaking as a former town official, I know public safety is one of the most important issues that face our town. It is my opinion that Question 2 lacks the necessary public safety oversight once the lethal drug is obtained. It bears repeating, a terminally ill patient gets this prescription filled at the local pharmacy and there is no tracking of the pills once picked up.

The people of this state deserve a real and in-depth look at the realities of this proposed legislation. Question 2 is flawed, dangerous and would be a major disservice if adopted on November 6.

NATURE (HUMAN AND OTHERWISE)

Whitney and Thayer Woods

Thanks to The Trustees of Reservations (TTOR), Cohasset and Hingham boast some of the largest and most interesting open space areas on the South Shore. World's End is spectacular – I've written about it here before. Weir River Farm, another gem, has also been featured in this column. But until now, I've never quite gotten around to exploring another large and notable parcel, Whitney and Thayer Woods, which straddles the Cohasset-Hingham line.

Comprising 824 acres, Whitney and Thayer Woods offers 10 miles of walking trails. That's a lot! Many of these trails are old carriage roads – wide, clear, and well-trod. It's a little overwhelming to have so many choices when planning one's route, which is part of the reason it took me so long to begin my explorations. In fact, when I finally did go there, I asked a friend, who knew the property well, to show me around.

Whitney and Thayer Woods is accessible from three places. The southern entrance is on Route 3A in Cohasset, across from the Stop & Shop plaza. The good-sized (20 cars) parking lot connects with two trails, which in turn branch out into three more. From there, there are a number of small and large circuit trails, providing plenty of variety, and possibly some confusion. Be sure to take a map from the kiosk at the entrance. All intersections are numbered and marked for ease of navigation.

Some highlights from the south entrance include: the very large Bigelow Boulder, left behind by a glacier, now a striking sight in the middle of the woods. Also Ode's Den, a large grouping of rocks named after a man who lived among them after he lost his home in 1830. The American Holly Grove, although quite a walk, is worth exploring too, as is the Milliken Memorial Path, which is lined with shrubs such as rhododendron and azalea – truly a sight to behold if you catch it while the flowers are in bloom.

The second entrance to the property is also on Route 3A, but in Hingham this time, at the foot of Turkey Hill. From the eight-car parking lot, one trail leads up the hill, and another heads down toward the middle of the property, where there is access to several additional trails.

The third entrance is at the very end of Hingham's Turkey Hill Lane, just past Weir River Farm, and atop Turkey Hill. The lot will hold only five cars, but additional parking can be found if you backtrack downhill to Weir River. The hill itself is managed by The Trustees of Reservations, as well as both towns. It is comprised of 62 acres, primarily meadow, an ideal environment for grassland birds. At 187-foot elevation, it offers quite a view. One curiosity on the hilltop is a cinderblock building with a rich history – it was once part of a Cold War-era anti-missile radar control station.

As you head over the hill and down into the woods, again, you will find access to a number of walking trails. These forests used to be farmland, so the hardwoods growing there now are relatively recent. It's not uncommon to see vestiges of old stone walls amidst the trees. Many, but not all of the trails within Whitney and Thayer Woods permit mountain biking and horseback riding.

In more recent history, after the decline of agriculture in this area but before the arrival of the subdivision, much of the Whitney and Thayer Woods was dedicated to equestrian pursuits. Henry Whitney purchased some of the former-farms and created the bridle paths and carriage roads that are still in existence today. It's easy to imagine a horse-drawn buggy making its way along some of the wider trails. The Whitney Woods Association, a horseback-riding group, eventually took ownership of 600 acres. In 1933 this was donated to TTOR, as was – a decade later – additional acreage to the west, owned by the Thayer family. Land acquisition from various sources continued as late as 1999.

Whitney and Thayer Woods, as well as Turkey Hill and Weir River Farm, all are open daily, from sunrise to sunset. Parking and admission to walking trails is free to everyone. Learn more at www.thetrustees.org.

SENIOR SCENE

Seminars keep us thinking

LOUISE SMULLEN

Lynn DeGiacomo of the Cohasset Historical Society presented an interesting program showing on the big screen, photos of Cohasset as it was many, many years ago.

Ed Naughton, professor and counselor, presented the first October seminar. He had us remembering, looking back and thinking about special moments in our lives, which have brought us thus far. By doing this, it helps to see where we are in life's journey.

The next week we had a visit from Peg McDonough, Director of S.H.I.N.E. (Serving Health Insurance Needs to Elders). Each year there are changes in Medicare health costs, also changes in supplemental plans and prescription coverage. Peg covered changes for 2013. At least one plan has added optical and dental insurance. All those on Medicare should have received a mailing concerning Medicare costs and benefits. Be sure to look through this.

Lynn DeGiacomo of the Cohasset Historical Society presented an interesting program showing on the big screen, photos of Cohasset as it was many, many years ago. Each scene was followed by a picture of the same spot as it is today. Liza Salerno, CEA staff member, had traveled around town to take the present-day photos. There were pictures of the Beechwood School and Brown's store. It seems that there were several regional schools in our small town way back then. The Historical Society has a great many more photos, and we all agreed that we would like to have another such program at a later date, perhaps in the spring.

On Oct. 18, the Norfolk County Sheriff's Office sponsored a TRIAD lunch at the Lightkeeper's. They served up hamburgers and hot dogs. Members of the CEA staff supplied backed beans, cold slaw, and also delicious trifle for dessert. Joe Canavan, Director of the TRIAD division from the Sheriff's office, was one of the speakers. Sheriff Bellotti discussed TRIAD and other safety programs. Also a dog-handler of search and rescue dogs told about that program. He told about the breeding and training of the dogs, how they are chosen, and of course how they are of help to police departments. When a dog is retired, the handler has the option of keeping it. They make good family pets. After he finished speaking he brought in his dog and introduced him.

At the next seminar, Sheila Pransky, Coordinator of the Senior Programs, Norfolk County district Attorney's Office, was the speaker. She gave current information on scams and identity theft. We received booklets on how to avoid identity theft, with guidelines for action if one should have a problem.

As I write this, hurricane Sandy is cavorting around outside with gusts of wind bowing down the trees. Fortunately, none has been uprooted here, and the power is still on. So far, so good. My heart goes out to those who are not so fortunate, especially those who have damage from flooding. Nature can be so calm and beautiful, yet can rage so furiously.

Louise Smullen's column runs monthly in the Mariner.

FOR THE RECORD

Stormy 2012 election season

GREGORY MATHIS

The negative ads, catchy sound-bytes and election-related snail mail clogging up the mailbox are getting old.

It's been a stormy political season to say the least and it just got wilder with a powerful storm walloping the Northeast with less than a week to go before the General Election Nov. 6.

Assuming there's power throughout Northeast, and that's not a certainty at this point, it will be interesting to see how the 2012 political process plays out at the polls.

There are many reasons to be happy that this coming to an end. The negative ads, catchy sound-bytes and election-related snail mail clogging up the mailbox are getting old. After a quiet primary and start to September, candidates have really ramped things up the last month. And they all seem to be taking their lead from the discourse that's taking place at the presidential campaign level and to some extent the U.S. Senate race between Scott Brown and Elizabeth Warren.

In a word, it's been nasty.

The negative ads coming out of both Brown's and Warren's camp have been disappointing. Instead of focusing on issues, the candidates have turned this into a "he said, she said" mudslinging affair. It's unsure who these ads are targeted to reach and influence, but they're appalling to the educated voter.

And the debates haven't been much better. We lucked out having to endure only one vice presidential debate, with the snickering and snide remarks by Joe Biden and the gibberish dialogue from Paul Ryan.

The presidential debates were full of rhetoric and misinformation, and it's hard to believe what either candidate said was true or know where they actually stand on issues or how they're going to solve the problems facing the country.

Locally, it's been interesting dealing with the candidates as we presented a Question of the Week in some areas, and sent out a questionnaire to be used as a candidate profile before the election. While some candidates are able to meet deadlines and follow instructions, it's amazing the number who can't.

Without naming specific candidates the week before the election and possibly influencing the election, let's just say deadlines aren't a big priority for some. Because we want full participation and to provide our readers with as much information about each race as possible, we've been "flexible" when it comes to receiving submissions past deadline. But there are candidates who are habitually late, which makes one wonder how that tendency plays out as an incumbent or challenger.

Following some basic instructions has proved to be a challenge as well. We've had specific word limits for the various opportunities we've given candidates. Either candidates or their staffers don't have a Word Count button on their computer, don't know how to measure Word Count, or just ignored the instructions about Word Count.

We should expect all of our representatives to display attention to detail, yet blowing deadlines and passing over specific instructions would have us believe otherwise.

By next week at this time – if Sandy hasn't crippled us and left us in the dark – all the votes will be cast, bringing an end to what's become a stormy 2012 election season.

UPDATE

Health board seeks to fill seat

The Board of Health is seeking to fill the position recently vacated by long-term member Steve Bobo, who wrote the Health Notes column for the Cohasset Mariner for many years. Bobo resigned from the board in August.

The board has received three applications for the open seat and will review these in a joint meeting with the Board of Selectmen. As of press time, the review and appointment were scheduled to take place during the Thursday, Nov. 1 selectmen meeting.

The following residents are vying for the seat:

- Elizabeth Kirkpatrick (Smith Place) Director of Environmental Health and Safety (EHS) Dept. for the U.S. Coast Guard on Cape Cod, who holds a B.S. from Montana State and has 11 years' experience in environmental protection and public health;
- Dan Rivera (Forest Avenue), a new resident since December and scientist with a B.S. in Pathobiology from the University of Connecticut, who has worked at the Children's Hospital Boston and for various biotech companies and is currently a Scientific Leader at Novartis Pharmaceuticals;
- Harvey Dickstein, M.D. (Beechwood Street) has experience working for the U.S. Public Health Service and has worked for the USDA in a supervisory position; he previously served on the Board of Health in West Windsor, NJ and holds a B.A. from American International College and received his M.D. from the Tufts University School of Medicine.

Look for more on this in an upcoming edition of the Mariner.

VSO Jermyn to help Cohasset

Inter-town agreement is temporary

"This will not negatively impact Hingham veterans because I will work in Cohasset on Fridays after my Hingham shift ends."
VSO Keith Jermyn

By Carol Britton Meyer
cmeyer@wickedlocal.com

Hingham Veterans Services Officer Keith Jermyn will lend a helping hand to Cohasset's veterans until the town hires its own VSO.

The Hingham Selectmen signed a Veterans Services Inter-Municipal Agreement with Cohasset recently.

The plan is for Jermyn to assist Cohasset veterans for a limited time on an interim basis – for three months initially with the option of renewing the agreement for an additional three months.

This would give Cohasset officials time to evaluate its VSO position, explore options for veterans' services in that town, and determine how best to meet the needs of Cohasset veterans. Cohasset has had a few VSOs in the past, including an interim VSO, but the position is currently vacant.

Jermyn said it's a natural fit since Cohasset already has a system in place. A similar previous agreement between Scituate and Hingham is no longer in effect since it was not renewed last March, according to Jermyn.

"Cohasset [Acting Town Manager] Michael Milanoski reached out to our Town Administrator [Ted Alexiades] to see if we could offer some support to them," Jermyn said. "We have already interfaced with Cohasset officials to facilitate a smooth transition. Everything is already in place. I'll basically be minding the store."

Cohasset will reimburse Jermyn for services rendered, mileage expenses, and supplies. Cohasset has 10 veterans' cases while Hingham has 31 veteran clients.

"This will not negatively impact Hingham veterans because I will work in Cohasset on Fridays after my Hingham shift ends," Jermyn said. "We will let Cohasset veterans know they are welcome to call me in Hingham or visit here to have their questions answered. We have already received a few calls from local veterans organizations and others offering their help and support for this agreement."

Besides, said Alexiades, "Keith's focus will be managing their caseload" and not planning their veterans celebrations as he does for Hingham.

Hingham Selectmen Chair Laura Burns described Jonathan Asher, who has served on the Hingham Advisory Committee for a number of years, helped work out this arrangement on a volunteer basis, and assisted with other Hingham veterans' matters, as "our informal deputy VSO volunteer." Asher was present when the Hingham BOS signed the agreement.

Hingham Selectman Bruce Rabuffo summed it all up: "This is a simple arrangement wherein Keith is extending his hours at Cohasset's expense in order to provide some of the services to Cohasset veterans that he now provides for Hingham veterans," he said. "This is not a regionalization effort [as was the previous case with Scituate]."

TOWN HALL

New awards program for town employees, volunteers

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

Acting Town Manager Michael Milanoski plans to commend town employees for their hard work with a special Employee Award and Recognition program, with nominations to be submitted in December followed by an awards dinner in January.

As of press time Thursday, the initiative was to be discussed during the Nov. 1 Board of Selectmen meeting. While the matter does not require a selectmen vote, Milanoski said that he wanted to discuss the awards program with the board.

The acting town manager explained in a phone call Wednesday that this program will provide a good time and place to reward employees who go above and beyond at work and on a volunteer basis.

"There are a lot of hard-working people here for the town, as demonstrated by the storm [Sandy] and fixing multiple issues in the past," said Milanoski, "people putting above and beyond the effort of what their normal job requires. We want to have the ability to recognize those standout employees."

The town manager said that he has put a group of employees together to create and draft the awards program. "This has been an employee effort to recognize those who go above and beyond the call of duty."

The program has four awards: the Excellence Award, Meritorious Service Award, Volunteer Service Award, and Community Service Award.

All paid employees who have worked for the town for at least a year are eligible for the Excellence, Meritorious Service, and Community Service awards, and will be nominated by their fellow town employees. The Volunteer Service Award is for municipal volunteers.

The Excellence Award recognizes excellence and improvement in the workplace. In order to receive this award, the winner must display:

- Integrity and setting high standards
- Dedication and fulfilling a purpose
- Punctuality and accountability
- Internal and external communication skills

The recipient of the Meritorious Service Award is someone who will have shown a high degree of initiative, professionalism and proficiency beyond their required job description.

The nominee for the Volunteer Service Award is eligible if his or her efforts directly benefit the town; they must also have volunteered in town for at least a year. The nominee must also show initiative and professionalism. Any Cohasset citizen or individual who is affiliated with the volunteer service may nominate someone for this award.

All four winners will receive proclamations from the Board of Selectmen and state officials, a to-be-determined Cohasset keepsake, and a $50 gift certificate to a local merchant of the recipient's choice.

The Community Service Award, meanwhile, is for a paid town employee who, by virtue of sacrifice and expense of his or her own time, fosters or contributes to a valuable and successful program in the area of community affairs, or who acts to substantially improve town-community relations through contribution of time and effort during their off-duty hours.

The Town Manager, member of the Board of Selectmen, or a town department head will make the nomination for the Community Service Award.

Nomination forms must be filled out and submitted by Sat., Dec. 1. Once the deadline has passed, a committee of four town employees or volunteers will review the forms and vote on the recipients.

The committee will not consider anonymous nominations.

A date, time and location for the awards ceremony has not been set.

Puppet show

The South Shore Country Club announces the return of Pumpernickel Puppets with John McDonough from 10 to 10:45 a.m. Friday, Nov. 9. Mr. McDonough will be performing "Sir George and the Dragon." Admission is $5 per person at door.

Writing workshop

Buttonwood Books & Toys will welcome the Rev. Dr. Judy Campbell, author of the "Olympia Brown Mystery Series," at 3 p.m., on Saturday, Nov. 3, at Buttonwood Books & Toys, 747 Chief Justice Cushing Hwy. Hwy.

Campbell will host a workshop for writers and introduce her new book, "An Unholy Mission." She will offer advice on getting one's work published and answer questions about traditional, independent and electronic publishing. These are professional tips from an experienced writer so bring paper and pencil to take notes. There will be handouts.

Reservations are requested so Buttonwood can be adequately prepared. For reservations and more information, call Buttonwood at 781-383-2665.

Jingle Bell Walk set for Nov. 23

The South Shore Community Center would like to invite everyone to join in the fun as they present the 18th Annual Jingle Bell Walk on Friday, Nov. 23. The festivities will begin at 2 p.m. when Santa, Mrs. Claus and his elves, along with some special friends, arrive at Cohasset Harbor via a fishing boat. Join the parade and follow Santa's horse-drawn wagon to the Community Center where hot chocolate, coffee, punch and cookies will await.

There will be holiday carols and the Rusty Skippers Band will be there to provide music. Big Ryan the Storyteller will entertain children of all ages and children will be able to create their own special holiday ornament to take home. There will be Open Bowling for all to enjoy.

Volume 38 - Report No. 44 October 24, 2012

Y = Yes; N = No, NV = No Vote (President rarely votes) * Not every item is voted on by both House and Senate

UPDATE: In a recent report, Beacon Hill Roll Call examined the percentage of times that Democratic representatives voted with Democratic House Speaker Robert DeLeo on key roll call votes in 2012. We found that 42 out of the House's 160 representatives voted 100 percent of the time with DeLeo. In hindsight, it would have painted a better and broader picture if we examined both 2011 and 2012. So we decided to do that. And here are the updated results:

While the percentage of times each Democrat voted with DeLeo did not dramatically change when using the two years rather than just one, the one thing that did decline sharply was the number of Democrats who voted with DeLeo 100 percent of the time. By adding 2011, the number of reps who voted 100 percent with DeLeo dropped by 28. It was 42 for 2012 and dropped to 14 when we combined 2011 and 2012.

Here is the list of Democrats who voted 100 percent of the time with DeLeo in 2012, but less than 100 percent with him in the two-year period of 2011 and 2012. The number in parentheses is the number of times the representative voted against DeLeo in 2011 and 2012.

Reps. John Binienda, D-Worcester (5); Garrett Bradley, D-Hingham (1); Michael Brady, D-Brockton (3); Paul Brodeur, D-Melrose (2); Gailanne Cariddi, D-North Adams (1); Tackey Chan, D-Quincy (1); Nicholas Collins, D-South Boston (7); Edward Coppinger, D-West Roxbury (2); Sean Curran, D-Springfield (6); Mark Cusack, D-Braintree (2); Paul Donato, D-Medford (1); John Fernandes, D-Milton (4); Ann-Margaret Ferrante, D-Gloucester, (1); Denise Garlick, D-Needham (5); Anne Gobi, D-Spencer (3); John Keenan, D-Salem (1); David Linsky, D-Natick (1); John Mahoney, D-Worcester (2); Paul Mark, D-Pittsfield (2); James Murphy, D-Weymouth (1); Kevin Murphy, D-Lowell (8); Harold Naughton, D-Clinton (2); Sarah Peake, D-Provincetown (4); Angelo Puppolo, D-Springfield (8); Kathi-Anne Reinstein, D-Revere (1); Theodore Speliotis, D-Danvers (2); Joseph Wagner, D-Chicopee (3); and Steven Walsh, D-Lynn (1).

THE HOUSE AND SENATE. There were no roll calls in the House or Senate last week.

Beacon Hill Roll Call this week examines the voting records of local representatives on Democratic Gov. Deval Patrick's 28 vetoes during the 2011-2012 session. A two-thirds vote is required to override a gubernatorial veto in a full 160-member House that includes 127 Democrats and only 33 Republicans. The governor needed the support of 53 representatives to sustain a veto when all 160 members voted - and fewer votes if some members were absent or had resigned. Patrick fell far short of that goal. Six votes were the most support he received on any veto. The House easily overrode all 28 vetoes including 22 that were overridden unanimously.

The vetoes had virtually no support from the GOP members and very little support from the chamber's Democrats. Only one Republican, Rep. Geoff Diehl (R-Whitman) voted with Patrick in favor of sustaining one of the 28 vetoes. Only 25 Democrats voted with Patrick to sustain any vetoes including Rep. Denise Andrews (D -Orange) who gave him the most support, siding with him on six vetoes. Sixteen Democrats supported the governor on only one veto while 102 did not give him any support.

Here's how local representatives fared in their support of Patrick's vetoes.

The percentage next to the representative's name represents the percentage of times the member supported Patrick's vetoes.

The number in parentheses represents the number of times the legislator supported Patrick's vetoes.

Some representatives voted on all 28 roll call votes. Others missed one or more of the votes. Their records are based on the number of roll calls on which they voted and does not count the roll calls for which they were absent.

ALSO UP ON BEACON HILL

NO PENSION FOR FORMER SPEAKER FINNERAN - The State Retirement Board voted to permanently strip former House Speaker Tom Finneran of his roughly $33,000 state pension and repay him the amount he contributed to his own retirement. Finneran served as speaker of the House from 1996 to 2004. In January 2007, he pleaded guilty to one count of obstruction of justice in a case associated with the Legislature's 2001 redistricting plans. Finneran has not received pension payments since he pleaded guilty in 2007 but last week's ruling makes the revocation permanent. The former speaker has the right to appeal the ruling.

RECORKING WINE (S 115) - The House gave initial approval to a Senate-approved bill that would expand the current law allowing restaurant and hotel customers to bring home an unfinished bottle of wine. The proposal would expand the law to taverns, clubs and veterans' organizations like American Legion posts. The wine would have to be resealed and then placed in a one-time-use tamper-proof, transparent bag.

LAWS TAKING EFFECT - Several laws approved by the Legislature and signed into law by Gov. Patrick in August have recently taken effect or are about to do so. Most approved new laws don't take effect until 90 days after the governor signs them. New laws include:

EMERGENCY BATHROOM USE (H 2366) - Effective October 30: Requires retail establishments to allow use of their bathrooms by people who have written documentation from a doctor of any medical condition, including ulcerative colitis or Crohn's disease, that requires immediate access to a restroom. Retail establishments are defined as "any business or place where members of the public have access as invitees or licensees."

The law applies only if a public restroom is not immediately accessible; the establishment's restroom is not located in an area where providing access would create a health or safety risk to the customer or a security risk to the business; and three or more employees of the establishment are working at the time of the request. Businesses that violate the proposed law would be subject to a $100 fine for a first offense and up to $200 for subsequent offenses.

BAN CYBER CAFÉS (H 3765) - Effective October 30: Prohibits cyber cafés that allow gamblers to play online slots. The new law makes it a crime to conduct a sweepstakes with an electronic machine and punishes offenders with up to 15 years in state prison or a $250,000 per machine fine.

Supporters of the ban say the cafés, pretending to sell Internet access or phone cards, actually allow gamblers to play online slots and sweepstakes in which they win "points" that can be redeemed for cash at the café. They argued these are simply cyber scams, with no posted odds or guarantee of payouts for players.

Opponents argue the cafés are a good source of entertainment and customers are aware of the long odds.

REGULATE AUTO GLASS REPAIR COMPANIES (S 2216) - Effective November 1: Regulates auto glass repair companies and requires them to register with the state's Division of Standards. Other provisions require the companies to have a physical address in Massachusetts and to keep a record of each vehicle on which they work.

PROTECT TEMPORARY DAY WORKERS (H 4304) - Effective November 4: Protects temporary day workers. A key provision prohibits staffing agencies from charging the worker various fees, including the cost of registering with the agency or for performing a criminal record check, and from charging any fee that would reduce a worker's pay below the minimum wage. The new law also requires the agencies to provide their workers with a form clearly informing them of their wages, location of the job, name of the company, whether meals are provided and expected hours and benefits, such as worker's compensation.

Supporters say the law will finally regulate staffing agencies, which often take advantage of many of the state's day workers. They argue this will protect these workers, who currently wait every morning for a van to pick them up and take them to a job at which they have no idea of the pay, the work involved and what will happen if they get hurt on the jobsite.

Opponents say they support the rights of these workers but argued the abuses by the agencies are already illegal under existing state law and should be enforced. They argue the new law will duplicate regulations that already exist and will only lead to more bureaucracy.

Fight sugar cravings this holiday season

'Authentically You' presents Power Seminars

Do you have a "relationship with food"? If it's not a healthy one, you can change that.

Local health coach Lara Amaral, founder of Authentically You! Powersnacks, which are sold in markets around the South Shore, if offering another one of her popular Power Seminars on Sunday, Nov. 4 at the Balance Yoga Studio in Cohasset.

This seminar challenges sugar and breaks down why it's bad for your body, while encouraging you to make informed, healthy choices to reverse common health conditions and diseases.

"Essentially, this Power Seminar provides an in depth sharing of all of my secrets regarding sugar cravings, carbohydrate cravings (the bad carbs), why the cravings are sometimes seemingly relentless, when you experience them, why you crave the things you do, how to stop them in their tracks, why some people really do eat less and seem to be the ones gaining weight, and how to reverse this," said Amaral.

The health coach truly believes that the right foods can act as medicine for the body. "Your herbs and spices, right there in your garden and kitchen, possess amazingly potent healing properties," she said. "You needn't run off, spend money and get a prescription for every single ailment."

Amaral said that this time of year, her upcoming seminar is a timely one: "It's a way for you to get focused and remain on point just after Halloween and right before the holiday season—think strategically!"

turning point in the government on both the state and national levels. The chairman believes that having more Republicans in the Senate would be a positive change and provide more checks and balances.

"It's a very important election at all levels, at the state level because of [how] the influx of a few Republicans could impact our state legislature," said Kasperowicz. "In 2010, we got 16 additional state representatives, which had a really important impact on the posture the legislature was taking and made a big difference. If we get another influx of Republicans, it will have a positive influence and restore two-party checks and balances."

On the presidential side, the chairman opined that this election will be one for the ages.

"At the national level, this is certainly the most important presidential election of my lifetime — there's nothing comparable," said Kasperowicz. "We're at a fork in the road; do we want to restore what the founders were seeking or go to a state that emulates Western Europe, which is going down the tubes right now? We will be following them if we go in this path."

The Republican committee chair said that while he agrees with the social welfare message of the Democratic Party, he believes that taking personal responsibility while helping others or receiving aid will make or break the nation. "We can restore individual and responsibility and maintain our freedom... but at the same time be completely cognizant of those people who need that safety net, who have problems that they can't deal with themselves," said Kasperowicz. "We're a charitable society, willing to help those who have a true need, but individual responsibility has primacy."

Cohasset, by the numbers:

- 5834 registered voters
Including:
- 3231 unenrolled
- 1305 Republican
- 1250 Democrat
- 12 Libertarian
- 6 Green Rainbow

DTC chairman Kevin McCarthy agreed from his standpoint that control of the Senate is crucial because the senate "is in the middle of making key decisions regarding the Supreme Court and passing and approving economic legislation. Who controls the Senate could very well decide the direction the country is able to go in the future."

McCarthy, who also chairs the South Shore Democratic Caucus, said the Senate race is especially vital in Mass., "much more so than usual.

"This is an extremely important election particularly in Massachusetts," McCarthy continued. "The senate race between Warren and Brown is very significant because, regardless of your political view, it could very well determine what party controls the U.S. senate in the future."

On the local level, McCarthy predicts that the race between Genevieve Davis (D.) and Robert Hedlund (R.) will also be an exciting one.

"We have an excellent candidate in Genevieve Davis going against Hedlund; she represents a good choice for the voters and adds something to the race."

From the Democratic viewpoint, McCarthy said he thinks his party is "extremely excited about the race" and supporting their candidates on Tuesday.

"I expect the turnout is going to be very high," McCarthy said, adding that he thinks it will be a very close presidential and state election. "All the polls have consistently shown it's going to be a race that goes right down to the wire. It's going to extremely close; nobody can tell which way it's going to go."

The months and months of campaigning all boil down to who actually turns out to vote next week. McCarthy said that from talking with voters, he feels his fellow Democrats are "excited about getting out and supporting Obama. The economic times and problems facing this nation are difficult, and I think voters understand that... They're looking forward to seeing what president and party they want in the White House that best represent their principals and values. Those who support Democratic principles support Obama and will definitely come out and support him as much as they did four years ago."

The Mariner will cover the election on Tuesday as Cohasseters turn out to vote; check the Mariner online at www.wickedlocalcohasset.com for our election coverage.

RESCHEDULED

Governance public hearing

The Governance Committee public hearing, which was canceled this week due to Superstorm Sandy, has been rescheduled for Monday, Nov. 5 at 7 p.m. in the Middle-High School Library.

The meeting will include a presentation from the governance committee followed by public comment. Discussion topics include the town's budget planning process, a town-wide electronic survey on boards and committees, and the committee's review of the Town Manager Act and its relation to the town bylaws.

Boys draw Monomoy in first round

By William Wassersug

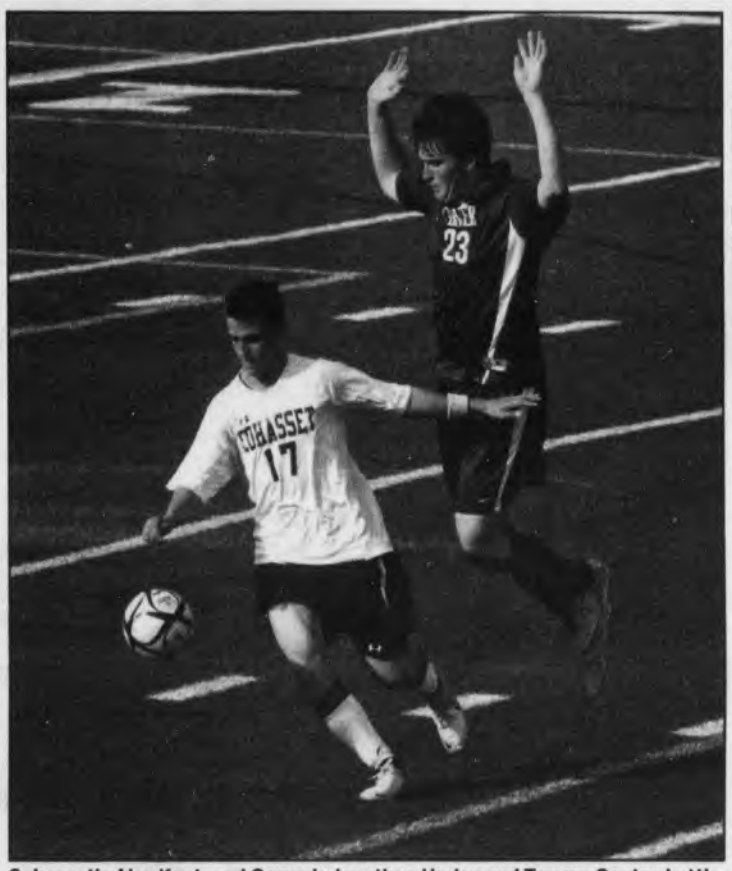
For Cohasset boys soccer coach Jim Willis, the postseason is the place to be, a special time of year where anything can happen, and usually does.

It's a time where superstars prove their mettle and up-and-comers make names for themselves.

"The tournament and the first week of the season are the most fun," Willis said. "I love tournaments, both soccer and basketball (Willis is an assistant coach with Cohasset basketball).



The Skippers finished up the regular season in roller-coaster fashion, getting beat by Mashpee 4-2 before beating East Bridgewater 3-1.

The win was a confidence boost.

"All East Bridgewater had to do was beat us and they win the league," Willis said. "Instead they tied with Mashpee.

"The Mashpee loss was the worst of

Runner does the right thing at XC event

In the past I've made mention of all kinds of negativity in sports.

You know what I mean.

Overbearing parents living through their kids. Lance Armstrong. Kiddie football coaches sending their players onto the field to hurt opponents. Professional football coaches paying players to hurt opponents. Floppers.

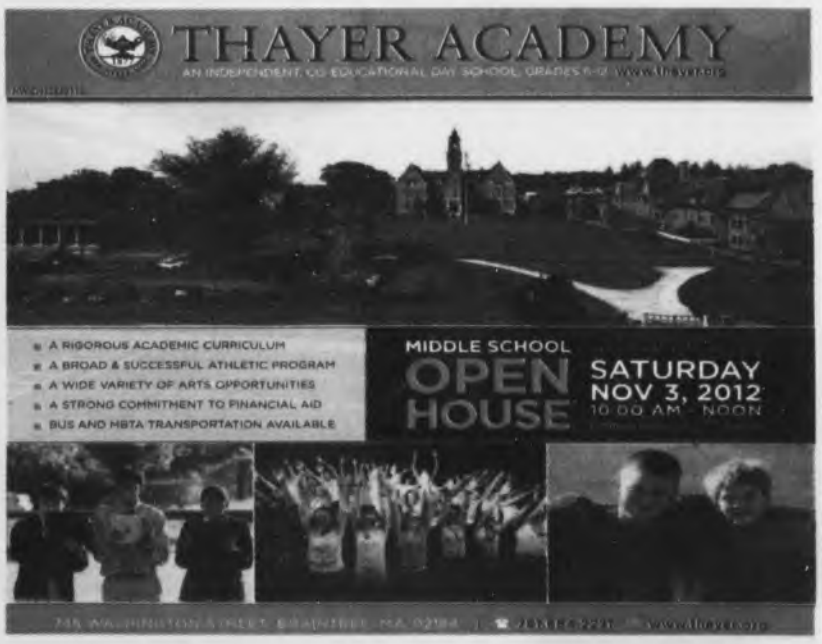
The list goes on.

This story is not one of those.

In fact, what you read here is just the opposite. This is a story about sportsmanship, about a young athlete who proved with a gesture that there is plenty that is positive and good in the world of sports.

It all started on a trail near Hanover High School Oct. 2 when the Hanover cross-country team hosted Hingham in a Patriot League race.

Nearing the end of the run, on a rainy, slippery day, Hingham junior Molly Saran snapped her ankle on a tree root.



Help came quickly – from Hanover sophomore Andrea Murphy.

"I tripped on a tree root," Saran said. "I started screaming and Andrea picked me up. I was on the ground crying. She picked me up and carried me as far as she could."

Neither runner was going to win the race, but both had been on pace to at least challenge personal best times, a big accomplishment for runners.

INSIDE THE 6 SOCCER POWER RANKINGS

Week 8: Weymouth boys, Plymouth North girls finish at the top

By Ryan Wood
rwood@wickedlocal.com

The final week of the regular season saw some interesting matchups and decided league champs in some cases. We have a major change on the girls' side with Plymouth North bumping out Marshfield for the top spot. The Weymouth boys did what no team in Inside the 6 history has managed to do – stay at No. 1 all season long. Here are the rankings based on games played from Monday, Oct. 22 through Sunday, Oct. 28. Note that the next and final rankings of the season will be released following the postseason.

Boys

1. Weymouth – The Wildcats finish out the season strong, picking up three points in their last two games - a win over Braintree followed by a tie against Natick. The 'Cats had one heck of a run this fall, remaining in the No. 1 spot all year.

2. Silver Lake – This team has to have a ridiculous amount of confidence heading into the tournament. The Lakers enter the postseason on a 13-game unbeaten streak (10-0-3). In action last week, they beat Hinghan and tied Dartmouth.

3. Marshfield – The Rams rebounded from a sluggish middle portion of the season to close out the year with five consecutive wins. They won three games last week, beating Plymouth North, Sandwich, and Whitman-Hanson.

4. Scituate – A 6-0-1 run to wrap up the regular season suits the Sailors just fine heading into the postseason as they jump up two spots in the rankings. In action last week, they beat Hanover and Cohasset and tied Hinghan, 1-1.

5. Hingham – Dropping three spots down to No. 5, the Harbormen had a rough go last week. It didn't help that they played five games in six games. They went 2-2-1 to finish the season, beating Sandwich and Sharon, losing once each to Silver Lake and Quincy, and drawing with Scituate.

6. Norwell – The Clippers are back into the top six for the first time since the beginning of the season. Their tremendous second half run culminated with a playoff-clinching, 6-1 win at home over Hull last week. Despite losing, 2-0, to East Bridgewater, the Clippers finished the season strong with a 3-0 win over Mashpee. They also beat Abington last week.

On the bubble: Hanover, Duxbury, Braintree

Last week: 1. Weymouth, 2. Hingham, 3. Silver Lake, 4. Marshfield, 5. Hanover, 6. Scituate

Girls

1. Plymouth North – The Eagles made one of the greatest runs of the second half of the season, capping it off with two key Atlantic Coast League victories to snatch the ACL title away from Marshfield. The Eagles beat Marshfield, 2-1, to begin last week and then sealed the championship with a 4-0 win over Dennis-Yarmouth.

2. Marshfield – The Rams had a rough go last week, at least at the beginning, which sends the team to No. 2 for the first time this season. The Rams lost, 2-1, to Plymouth North and tied Sandwich, 2-2, but bounced back with a massive 3-0 win over previously unbeaten Whitman-Hanson.

3. Scituate – The only reason the Sailors drop a place in the rankings is due to Plymouth North's rapid rise to the top. The Sailors finished the regular season with a huge, 1-1 tie against rivals Duxbury. They also beat Hanover and Abington earlier in the week.

4. Duxbury – The Dragons come in at No. 4 after an up-and-down week. They tied Scituate, 1-1, and lost to Whitman-Hanson, but bounced back to beat Middleboro, 4-0. Note that Duxbury's only losses this season came to Whitman-Hanson. Another fine year indeed for the Dragon girls.

5. Norwell – The South Shore League champion Clippers cruised through last week with wins over Abington and Hull to finish the regular season on a six-game unbeaten streak, which includes five victories.

6. Hingham – The Harborwomen arrive in the top six for the first time this fall after some tremendous play through the last half of the season. They finished on a four-game winning streak, which included a trio of victories last week over Silver Lake, Plymouth South, and Notre Dame, and five wins in their last six.

On the bubble: Weymouth, Carver, Hanover

Last week: 1. Marshfield, 2. Scituate, 3. Duxbury, 4. Norwell, 5. Plymouth North, 6. Weymouth

The Inside the 6 - Soccer Power Rankings are decided based on a number of criteria: record, strength of schedule, performance against teams in and out of their divisions, goals scored, and goals conceded. The public schools in our coverage area include: Abington, Braintree, Carver, Cohasset, Duxbury, Hanover, Hingham, Holbrook, Marshfield, Norwell, Pembroke, Plymouth North, Plymouth South, Rockland, Scituate, Silver Lake, and Weymouth. Check out your town's Wicked Local website to see the rankings and to comment on them, and feel free to email Ryan Wood at rwood@wickedlocal.com.

"It was a really good race," Murphy said. "Everyone pulled personal bests. On the last lap I was behind Molly. She rolled an ankle on the bottom of the hill. A few people ran by. I moved her and sat with her. It was the nice thing to do. I would do it again."

Saran said she might have been moving too quickly.

"I had started in a group and gone ahead," she said. "I might have been going a little fast for myself. I don't know if I would score points, but I might have had a personal record."

Hanover coach Tim Brown was impressed.

"It was great that Andrea was so selfless," Brown said. "She decided that there are things that are more important than running a race."

Saran had nice things to say about the entire program.

"I wasn't familiar with Hanover," she said. "They were extremely welcoming. We've never raced there before. Everyone was really nice. I learned a lot of things. I learned the true meaning behind sportsmanship."

The two have spoken since through Facebook, and as a thank you, Hingham sent Hanover a card signed by members of the team.

They have also chatted on Facebook.

The best part of the story is that Saran is feeling better.

"I can walk again," she said. "I learned a lot of things, like the true meaning behind sportsmanship."

One thing I can say, is that had the situation been reversed, I can totally see Hingham stopping to help.

It's one of the things that the coaching staff at Hingham is always proud of – being good sports.

And that - is what I love about sports.

MONOMOY

the season," he said. "We haven't given up four goals in at least three years. It might have been a wakeup call for some of the guys. I was frustrating. We did a great job defending their top player, but their second guy got three big goals."

The Skippers open their Div. 3 South Sectional Tournament tonight at 7 p.m. at home against Monomoy. Cohasset (10-6-2, 10-4-2 SSL)

"We played them twice," Willis said of tonight's opponent. "We beat them 1-0 at their place and had a disappointing 1-1 tie with them."

Cohasset hopes they can play in similar fashion to the way they played East Bridgewater.

"If we can carry that play, do the same things we did there, play with discipline. We have to stay home and do our jobs."

The Skippers will look to Patriot League All-Star Nick Tangherlini to do some of the team's scoring.

Tangherlini scored 14 goals this season to go with four assists.

After Tangherlini, the scoring has been spread out.

"We have six or seven other guys with anywhere between four and 10 points," Willis said.

Defense is where Cohasset's strength is however.

"We have two young defenders, Teddy Craven and Adam Benson who have taken on an unenviable task of marking an opponents' top-two strikers. They're young, but they've done a great job. They've learned no to over commit. They're doing well."

Cohasset had three players named South Shore League All-Stars.

Sophomore goalie Pat Federle was one, junior Joe Buckley was another and Tangherlini was the third.

Buckley was also named to the Eastern Mass. All-Star team.

Willis is ready to get started.

"This is the most fun," he said. "The football team is on the road, so we will be able to play under the lights on a Friday night in a playoff atmosphere. It's our show. The team should be proud of what it did in the season. This is a reward.

"The tournament is about mental toughness. Who stays disciplined and does the job. That's the question. It should be fun."

For the seniors, this run could be a last shot at glory.

"I want to help them make it count," he said. "This could be their last shot."

Fellmoon the farm

The last day of the Cohasset Farmers' Market was Thursday, Oct. 18; the season started in late June. The market was held every Thursday afternoon from 2 to 6 p.m.

The final market of the season (the market's 21st) was celebrated with a decorated pumpkin contest to bid summer goodbye and usher in autumn.

Families turned out on the common one last time to enjoy fresh, local, seasonal produce from vendors like Cohasset's own Holly Hill Farm.

The farmers' market will return for its 22nd season in June 2013.

Fall festival

Families turned out for last Saturday's first Fall Festival in the Village. The street fair turned downtown Cohasset into a Halloween-themed carnival from 2 to 6 p.m. on Oct. 27. Village merchants came together to offer the family-friendly festivities, which included hayrides, pumpkin carving, sidewalk drawing, face painting, treasure hunts, a pet costume contest and more.

The Tinker's Son displayed its scarecrow during the festival.

GIMME SHELTER

Lacey will steal your heart

PAULA J. FATERSIK

Lacey has been spayed and is up to date with her vaccinations so this is a perfect time for her to find her forever family. COURTESY PHOTO

The combination of soft gray and white fur and the cutest white mitten paws show her feline beauty.

She's adorable, sweet natured, soft and cuddly and ready for her forever home. This is our Lacey and what a gorgeous little girl we have here. The combination of soft gray and white fur and the cutest white mitten paws show her feline beauty. This 9-week-old baby is just enchanting.

Since her birth, Lacey has been a lucky little girl as she has been living with a wonderful foster family along with her mom and siblings. Just recently, mommy Mica and Lacey's brother and sister went to their new families and it was such a happy event! With Lacey's beautiful looks and temperament, we know that she will be next once she is seen by one lucky, loving family who will shower her with the affection and attention that she deserves.

Between curling up and napping on her favorite chair, watching the world outside her windows and batting her paper scrunchies around the floor and chasing feather toys, this pretty little girl is learning so much. When it's time to rest, settling in the laps of her foster parents for cuddling and love keeps her feeling safe and secure. Of course, Lacey has been spayed and is up to date with her vaccinations so this is a perfect time for her to find her forever family.

We are hoping that there is a loving single or family out there who has room in their home and heart for this sweet kitten. The holidays are coming and the hustle bustle can be very hectic for kittens, making this is a wonderful time to choose a kitten or cat if you are planning on bringing a new family member into your home.

Please call Judy at 781-534-4992 for more information on Lacey and our other available cats. Visit us during Open Hours on Monday from 6:30-7:30 p.m. or Saturday from 2-3 p.m. at 50 L St. in Hull. Our phone number is 781-925-3121 and you can visit our website. www.hsar.org and view other available pets in our shelter.

Over the past month, we have been so fortunate and have found homes for 27 of our kittens and cats! Wonderful people making such a big difference in the life of animals who have been displaced is what keeps us smiling here. Our adoptive families? Super! And the dedicated staff of volunteers who give of their time to ensure the well-being of each of our residents? Priceless. It has been a fabulous month!

There is more good news to come too. Hull Seaside was so lucky to have been chosen by the new Avalon Cohasset apartment complex as their "Spirit of Caring" partner for the month of October! This is a very special event as residents have been gathering needed items and making donations that we will receive soon. Our hearts are filled with appreciation and thanks for this generous effort. A big thank you to Barbara Fogel, Customer Service Supervisor at Avalon Cohasset, for coordinating this donation drive and finding us! It is this spirit of giving that keeps non-profit, no kill shelters like ours operating and provided loving care to the homeless pet population.

Winter is approaching, and we know that means more animals will be in need, and we will be here trying to give them all the loving care that they need so much. To all of our benefactors and adopters, you are the best. It is a pleasure seeing you come to visit and share time with our cats and when you connect with that "special one" who chooses you too, it is written all over your faces. That is one of the sweetest moments of all.

We are taking online orders for our 2013 HSAR Kittendales calendars at www.kittendales.com and what a great, fun gift for the new year! Your purchase goes directly into our funds to provide shelter, medical care, food and items necessary for keeping the shelter running. We had a fantastic response last year and hope to top those sales, so please give it a look! You may also pick up copies at the shelter during the Open Hours listed above.

To all of our loyal donors and the friends and family of the shelter who continue to save their bottles and cans for us to redeem, you know that we are grateful for your continued support. Helping us to help the cats in our care is greatly appreciated.

Sandy impacts Appalachia

From CNN's Holly Yan (updated 7:32 AM EDT, Wed Oct. 31, 2012): "Superstorm Sandy's dramatic encore (included) a blizzard that dumped 3 feet of snow in West Virginia and left hundreds of thousands in the shivering cold. At one point, about 300,000 people (were) without power. That number dropped to 236,000 Wednesday morning. But residents can't necessarily count on the power staying on long. As snow continues falling, so do power lines and tree limbs - meaning residents are still at risk of going cold."

As New Englanders continue to focus on a few remaining power outages and begin to assess property damage, there is much to be aware of far beyond the North East. Many of the families served by the Appalachia Service Project have been impacted. CASP organizers are also mindful of families they have served over the years. As Project Coordinator, Rev. Gary Ritts urges: "Please keep everyone impacted by Hurricane Sandy in your prayers. And picture those we have served in your mind's eye surrounded by healing, comforting glow of Love."

Finally, they wish to extend a warm and heartfelt "thank you" to the community for their support of their 10th annual Pumpkin Patch in Wheelwright Park. Manager Phil Lehr: "So many people to thank . . this looks like it may be our most profitable year, yet!" And knowing they will be working on homes damaged by the remnants of Hurricane Sandy is heartwarming and will bring hope to Appalachia.

2013 Volunteer update: This Sunday, the Center Leaders will gather to divide the volunteers into 3 "centers." Results will be posted on the website late next week.

COHASSET SEPAC

ABA presentation Tuesday at library

Cohasset SEPAC welcomes all South Shore Parents and Educators for an educational presentation on ABA.

What is ABA? How may it be useful for parents, teachers and paraprofessionals that work with students on the Autism Spectrum?

This interactive presentation provides families and educators the basics ABA, and how it may be used at school, home and within the community to help all children access everyday events and encounters. ABA observes behaviors, develops and measures a plan to manage behaviors for those afflicted with Autism Spectrum Disorders. ABA is the only scientifically proven method proven to treat children and adults with Autism.

Tenney Hajnal has over 10 years of experience utilizing ABA in numerous environments including life skills and equine therapy.

The speaker is Tenney Hajnal, Executive Director at Autism Intervention Specialists. Hajnal received her BA in Holistic Psychology from Lesley University. She has over 10 years of experience utilizing ABA in numerous environments including life skills and equine therapy.

AIS provides services directly to children and their family, training to teachers and staff at school, and home training for ABA home programs to parents and relatives.

The meeting is on Tuesday Nov. 6, from 7-8:30pm at Paul Pratt Memorial Library Meeting Room.

The presentation is free and open to all. Light refreshments will be served.

For more information on Cohasset SEPAC and other South Shore presentations, visit our website at www.CohassetSEPAC.org.

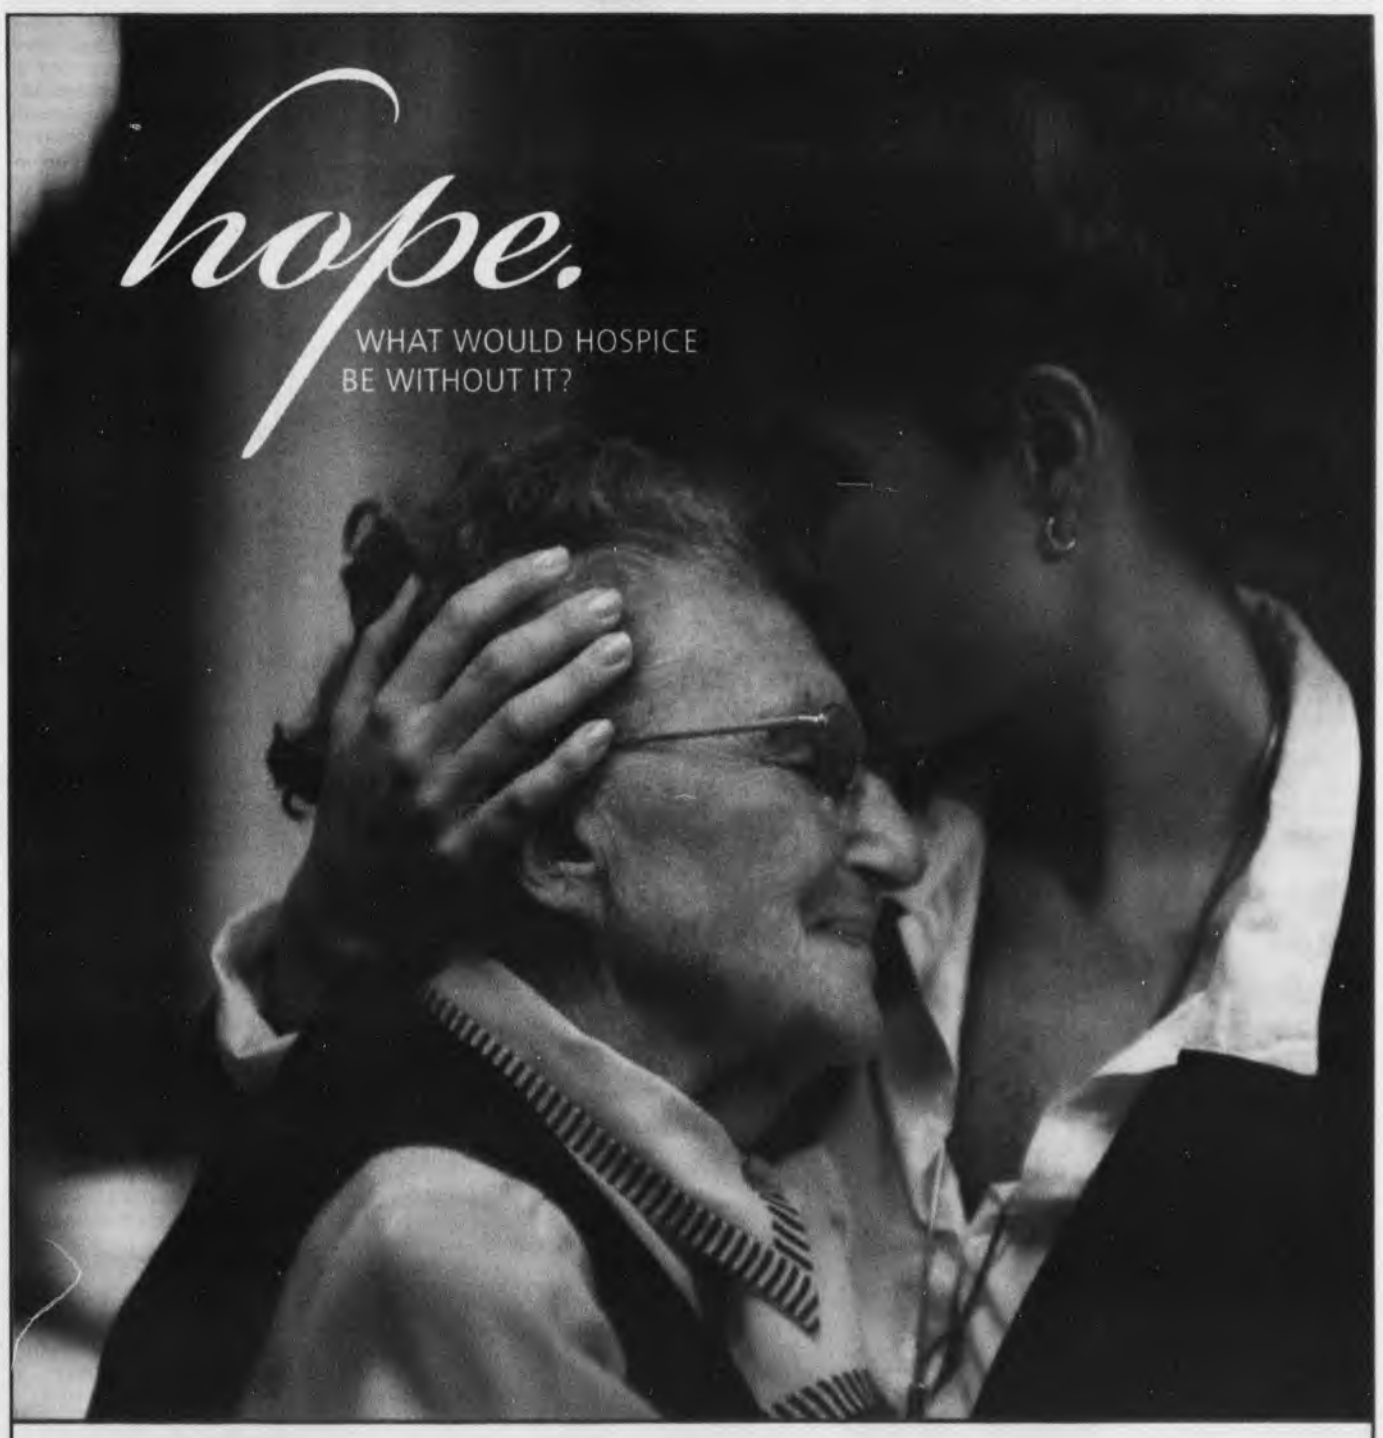
Book Fair at Osgood



- WHAT: The Joseph Osgood School Parent School Organization, PSO, will host a Scholastic Book Fair Fundraiser.
- WHERE: The Joseph Osgood School, 210 Sohier St.
- WHEN: The Book Fair will be held from 2-7 pm on Thursday Nov. 15th
- MORE: The Book Fair will offer specially priced books and educational products, including new releases, award-winning titles, children's classics, adult books, and current bestsellers.

Families, teachers, and all members of the community are invited to attend the Fair

Attendees can also help the school build classroom libraries and the school library by purchasing books for teachers through the 'Classroom Wish List'.

The PSO is a non-profit organization comprised of all parents of Cohasset public school students. Their goal is to maximize the student's educational experience. They do this by funding programs and projects that enrich the curriculum. In addition, the PSO coordinates volunteer efforts and facilitates special events that connect the entire school community and improves the experience and environment for the children.

The PSO voices parental responses to school issues, and provides forums for administrators, teachers, and students to present their programs and policies to the public. Through fundraising efforts, like the upcoming Book Fair, the PSO provides programs and activities that enrich the school experience for students, teachers, and parents. Families, teachers, and all members of the community are invited to attend the Fair, which will feature a special theme: All Star Book Fair, Every Reader is a Star!

CANDIDATE PROFILES

Decision 2012

Plymouth & Norfolk Senate District

Robert L. Hedlund

NAME: Robert L. Hedlund
AGE: 51
CITY/TOWN: Weymouth, MA
FAMILY: Son, John, 2

CURRENT OCCUPATION: Legislator; small business owner (Four Square Restaurant, Weymouth Landing)

HIGHEST LEVEL OF EDUCATION: attended, Wentworth Institute of Technology; attended, UMass-Boston; attended, Quincy College

PUBLIC SERVICE: 1991-1993, State Senator in the Massachusetts State Senate (Plymouth/Norfolk District); 1994-1995, Deputy Commissioner of the Metropolitan District Commission; 1996-Present, State Senator in the Massachusetts State Senate (Plymouth/Norfolk District)

Robert L. Hedlund, Republican.

CIVIC INVOLVEMENT: Advisory Board, Beacon Hill Institute's Government, present; member, Fully Informed Jury Association, present; member, Gun Owners' Action League, present; Executive Board, Massachusetts Representative State Committee, present; Advisory Council, South Shore Elder Services, present; member, Hingham Sons of Italy, 1995-present; member, Weymouth Lodge Elks #2232, 1990-present.

REASONS FOR RUNNING FOR OFFICE:
I entered public life to make a difference. Over the past few decades, it has been life's honor and an absolute privilege to represent the people of Weymouth, Hingham, Marshfield, Scituate, Duxbury, Norwell, Cohasset, and Hull.

I am running for re-election because there is still a lot of work to be done on Beacon Hill. Just this past year, I wrote and passed legislation that increased local aid to cities and towns, prohibited illegal immigrants from obtaining drivers licenses, and reformed a broken and abused welfare system.

Now, more than ever, we need a balanced approach on Beacon Hill. I look forward to continuing to be your voice standing up to the status quo and reaching across the aisle to get things done and make the Commonwealth a better place to live, work, and raise a family.

FUN FACT:
At the age of 19, I was a president of a truck repair company. I decided to get involved in government after being elected to the South Shore Chamber of Commerce Government Affairs Committee. On a lighter note, I also own a restaurant but can't cook!

Genevieve Davis

NAME: Genevieve Davis
AGE: 63
CITY/TOWN: Norwell, Mass.
FAMILY: Husband George (married 29 years); two sons, Ian, 26, and Evan, 23;

CURRENT OCCUPATION: Chief Financial Officer, New England Board of Higher Education; financial consultant to: Boston Alliance of Gay, Lesbian and Transgender Youth; Neighborhood House Charter School; Environmental League of Massachusetts; Association of Independent Colleges and Universities in Massachusetts

HIGHEST LEVEL OF EDUCATION: MBA from Boston University

PUBLIC SERVICE: Some of the public offices I have worked with are:
Department of Higher Education; Department of Elementary and Secondary Education; Department of Public Health;

Genevieve Davis, Democrat.

Department of Social Services; Massachusetts Cultural Council; Department of Mental Health; Department of Developmental Services; Department of Youth Services; Boston Public Health Commission; National Endowment for the Arts

CIVIC INVOLVEMENT: wrote a demographic study that led to school redistricting; member of the Norwell PTO; served on Norwell High School Parent Council; member of the Friends of the Norwell Public Library; worked on three campaign for selectman; worked on two campaigns for school committee members; worked for passage of an override; wrote an affordable housing plan for Norwell; current Member of the Norwell Democratic Town Committee; current Member of the South Shore Democratic Caucus

REASONS FOR RUNNING FOR OFFICE:
A state legislator must understand concerns of the district, benefits of programs and services affecting all Massachusetts citizens and have proven skills to solve problems and be proactive rather than reactive.

I have lived in this district for 27 years. I am acutely aware of the issues facing individuals, families and the towns I will represent.

I have worked in the financial management of non-profits for 40 years. The wide range of services handled by these organizations gave me firsthand knowledge of the issues facing individuals, families and communities throughout Massachusetts.

I have an MBA, skills that have been honed through my years of work problem solving, teaching small businesses how to succeed by understanding their current fiscal realities while planning for the future.

All of these experiences combined answer the definition of a state legislator. This is why I am running for State Senate in Plymouth and Norfolk Counties.

FUN FACT:
I'm a stone sculptor. After graduation, I couldn't find a paid sculpting position so I took a job in a non-profit studying the cost of college. Numbers continued to pay the bills and an MBA was the way to advance so now I am a stone sculptor with an MBA.

U.S. Congress – 8th District

Stephen Lynch

NAME: Stephen F. Lynch
AGE: 57
CITY/TOWN: South Boston, Mass.
FAMILY: Wife, Margaret; two girls, Victoria and Crystal

CURRENT OCCUPATION: United States Congressman

HIGHEST LEVEL OF EDUCATION: Law Degree from Boston College School of Law, Masters Degree from Harvard University's Kennedy School of Government

PUBLIC SERVICE: As a labor attorney, offered pro bono legal services to public housing tenants; served in the Massachusetts House of Representatives from 1995-1996 and in the Massachusetts State Senate from 1996-2001. Elected to Congress in a special election in 2001.

Stephen F. Lynch, Democrat.

CIVIC INVOLVEMENT: Ironworkers Local 7; serves on board of directors for South Boston Boys & Girls Club; Colonel Daniel Marr Boys & Girls Club; and Friends of Children.

REASONS FOR RUNNING FOR OFFICE:
I went to Congress to fight for you and your family - to protect Social Security for our parents and grandparents, to create good paying jobs that allow you to support a family, to stand up for veterans who defended this country and to provide a world class education for our children.

Representing your interests in Washington is a responsibility that I take very seriously and I have tried to live up to the high expectations of my constituents. As a moderate Democrat, I try and bring some common sense to the debate in Congress and find real solutions for the issues facing our nation. It would be a tremendous honor if the voters entrusted me to continue the fight in Washington and to represent the good families of the 8th Congressional District."

FUN FACT:
I donated 60 percent of my liver to my brother-in-law who had cancer. I didn't eat meat for 20 years but had to start eating it again after the liver donation to help regenerate the organ. I have now grown 100 percent of my liver back.

Joe Selvaggi

NAME: Joe Selvaggi
AGE: 47
CITY/TOWN: Boston, Mass.
FAMILY: Wife, Pauline

CURRENT OCCUPATION: Co-founder and president, Plaster Fun Time, Inc.

HIGHEST LEVEL OF EDUCATION: Master's Degree

PUBLIC SERVICE: Contributed to hundreds of child-oriented organizations though Plaster Fun Time.

Joe Selvaggi, Republican.

CIVIC INVOLVEMENT: Member of the Ward 5 Republican Committee

REASONS FOR RUNNING FOR OFFICE:
Our country is facing a jobs and fiscal crisis that calls for reform in our tax, healthcare, and entitlement programs. We need leaders who will be honest with the American people, who will fight for the future of our children, and who will restore our economy and get Americans back to work. My background as a small business owner who cares about the future of our children makes me the ideal congressman for the 8th district.

FUN FACT:
I am a distance runner who likes running marathons. I have run the last eight Boston Marathons in a row. I believe that running is a liberating experience that aids in both physical and mental wellbeing.

Popular music intersects at concert

Mark Shilansky, an award-winning jazz pianist based in Boston, will be presenting an eclectic, high-energy, improvisational program featuring his new ensemble "Pass It On," where jazz, bluegrass, celtic, and popular music intersect. This concert will be at First Parish Church at 3 pm on Sunday, Nov. 18. Admission will be $15 for adults and $12 for seniors and children. Children are welcome at this fun, upbeat concert!

Shilansky's new project is "Pass It On," and First Parish Cohasset is proud to be hosting this new ensemble where jazz, bluegrass, celtic, and popular music intersect. Its members are a mixture of well-known and up-and-coming artists that span diverse musical worlds, having played the world over with such groups as Esperanza Spalding, Luciana Souza, and Crooked Still. Featuring mandolinist Bryce Milano, guitarist Eric Byers, bassist Corey DiMario, and violinist Sara Caswell, this stellar ensemble embraces Americana and various folk musics, combined with a jazz improvisational approach, to hopefully forge a new and personal mode of musical expression.

Jazz pianist Mark Shilansky and his ensemble of Bluegrass, Celtic, and Pop musicians will perform November 18 at First Parish. COURTESY PHOTO

Shilansky has appeared at First Parish Church in Cohasset before, accompanying vocal groups Syncopation and ESP.

Horoscope

SALOME'S STARS FOR RELEASE WEEK OF NOV. 12, 2012

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Your work requires increased effort during the next few days. But it all will pay off down the line. Things ease up in time for weekend fun with family and/or friends.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Your genuine concern for others could prompt you to promise more than you can deliver. It's best to modify your plans now, before you wind up overcommitted later.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) A situation that seems simple at first glance needs a more thorough assessment before you give it your OK. Dig deeper for information that might be hidden from view.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Careful: Right now, things might not be quite what they appear. Even the intuitive Crab could misread the signs. Get some solid facts before you act on your suspicions.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Your energy levels are high, allowing you to complete those unfinished tasks before you take on a new project. A social invitation could come from an unlikely source.

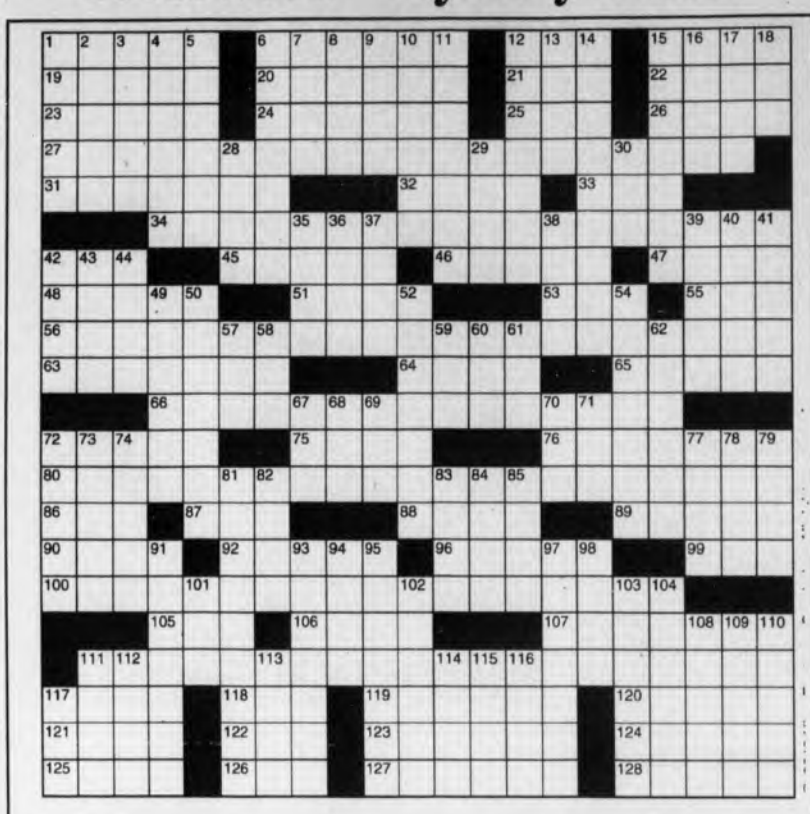
VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) You might think you're helping, but unless you're asked for a critique, don't give it. If you are asked, watch what you say. Your words should be helpful, not hurtful.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Your attempt at mediating disputes might meet some opposition at first. But once you're shown to be fair and impartial, resistance soon gives way to cooperation.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Go ahead. Reward yourself for helping settle a disturbing workplace situation. On another note: A personal relationship might be moving to a higher level.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A sudden change of heart by a colleague might create some momentary uncertainty. But stay with your original decision and, if necessary, defend it.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Rely on a combination of your sharp instincts along with some really intense information-gathering to help you make a possibly life-changing decision.



AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Instead of worrying if that new person in your life will stay or leave, spend all that energy on strengthening your relationship so it becomes walk-out resistant.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) A sudden financial dry spell could reduce your cash flow almost to a trickle. But by conserving more and spending less, you'll get through the crunch in good shape.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

WE INVITE YOU TO OUR

TOYOTA VEHICLE THE GROUND BREAKING CLEARANCE EVENT

— GOING ON NOW —

GROUND BREAKING DEALS WILL NEVER BE BETTER THAN NOW

EXTENDED THROUGH NOV. 12TH

We need to sell 400 cars by November 12th to make room for your new building.

The race is on to sell 400 New and Pre-Owned vehicles this month in preparation for your new state-of-the-art facility. The vehicles are available, the discounts are big and McGEE Family Dealerships are serious about saving you substantial dollars on a new Toyota or Pre-Owned vehicle with exceptional construction clearance event savings.

There has never been a better time to upgrade to a new Toyota OR pre-owned vehicle at one of our three McGEE Locations! And during this exclusive program, if you give us the opportunity to validate the estimated Black Book® trade value on your vehicle you'll receive an additional up to $3,000 over Black Book® when you trade your current Vehicle for a new 2012-2013 Toyota or Pre-owned vehicle.

We are offering many great deals such as rebates/discounts up to $7,750 or 0% APR financing up to 60 months on almost every model.

McGee Family Dealerships will pay off your trade-in as part of the retail transaction if a deal is achieved. You are under NO OBLIGATION to PURCHASE ANYTHING to receive a written offer.

Too good to be true?...it's not! An offer like this will not last, so act fast!

Band of brothers

The "Stoddard Brother's Military History during World War II" tells the story of four Cohasset brothers who all went off to war. COURTESY PHOTO

Cohasset family sent four to WWII

By Erin Dale

As more and more World War II veterans pass away, preserving their history is especially important. One Cohasset family who sent four brothers to the war has taken steps to keep their story alive through a book full of photographs, letters, newspaper articles, and other artifacts from their military service. More than just a family scrapbook, the story of the Stoddard Brothers – Charles, Sheldon, Elmer and David – traces each brother's steps as he joined the war effort and fought for America's freedom.

Locals likes Romney, but Obama reelected

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

Democratic President Barack Obama may have won the heart of the nation overall during Tuesday's election, but it was Republican candidate and former Massachusetts governor Mitt Romney that won over Cohasset when it came time to vote.

Incumbent Republican Senator Scott Brown also came out on top in town while his challenger Democrat Elizabeth Warren toppled him in the state election.

A whopping majority of Cohasseters took to the polls Tuesday: 4,886 of 5,834 registered voters cast their ballots (84 percent).

The line to vote was out the door of Town Hall when the polls opened at 7 a.m., and a steady stream of voters continued to trickle in throughout the day, with rushes around the lunch and dinner hours.

Cohasset picked Romney for president, Brown for the Senate and Democrat Stephen Lynch for Congress in Tuesday's general election.

The town chose incumbent Robert L. Hedlund (R) over challenger Genevieve Davis (D) for the Senator in General Court. John Gillis (D) was the top choice for Norfolk County Commissioner.

Cohasset showed strong Republican leanings, with the exception of Lynch, Gillis, Clerk of Courts Walter Timility, Jr. and William O'Donnell for Register of Deeds, the latter of whom ran unchallenged.

Most Cohasset residents were in a "yes" mood when it came to the ballot questions. A large ma-

MARK YOUR CALENDAR

Veterans Day observances Sunday

What:
The Cohasset American Legion Post, Sons of American Legion, Women's Auxiliary and VFW Post announce the annual Veterans Day observance at 1 p.m. on Sunday, Nov. 11.

When:
Observances begin at 1 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Park at Cohasset Harbor (across from the American Legion)

Speaker:
Principal speaker will be Cohasset resident Jack Bryant, a World War II veteran who flew with the famous Tuskegee Airmen. Bryant, along with other survivors of the first African-American military aviators in the US armed forces, was honored with a Congressional Gold Medal in 2008 by President George W. Bush. The Tuskegee 332nd Fighter group flew more than 15,000 combat missions in WWII. About 150 died in training or combat. The story of the Tuskegee Airmen, their patriotism, heroic actions and flying skills are chronicled in the recent movie "Red Tails."

More:
Deer Hill students, whose essays were selected for the school's Veterans Day observances this week, will read their work.

Police recognized for detective work

The Cohasset Police Department's Detective Division was recognized during last Thursday's Board of Selectmen meeting for their efforts during a recent investigation that led to three arrests.

The selectmen presented Deputy Chief William Quigley, on behalf of the department with the following commendation:

The Cohasset Board of Selectmen, on behalf of the residents of Cohasset, hereby commend the Cohasset Police Department for their recent drug investigation resulting in a substantial crackdown of drug trafficking in our community and the arrests of three individuals.

Over the past 18 months, Cohasset Police Detectives, led by Cohasset Police Lieutenant Greg Lennon, conducted a thorough investigation and prepared a case for search warrants on three individuals, vehicles and a home in Roslindale.

On October 18, 2012, in conjunction with the Federal Drug Enforcement Agency, Boston Police and the Weymouth Police Drug Unit, the search warrant was executed. All three individuals are now in police custody.

The Board of Selectmen commends our distinguished public servants and especially recognizes the work and dedication of Lieutenant Detective Gregory Lennon, Detective James McLean, Sergeant Garrett Hunt, and Officers Michael Lopes and Gregory Taylor. This investigation and subsequent arrests are the epitome of community policing-making Neighborhoods safe and protecting the quality of life that we enjoy.

Woman seeks help in police lobby at night

By Mary Ford
mford@wickedlocal.com

A 32-year-old woman from Vermont jumped out of the car and ran into the police station at around 8:50 p.m. on Friday (Nov. 2) for assistance. Her 36-year-old boyfriend, who lives in Cohasset, followed her into the lobby where the officer at the desk broke up the verbal dispute. The woman was provided a ride to a friend's house and the boyfriend was sent on his way. She was advised of her recourse but did not want to seek a restraining order, police said.

Shoplifting

Police are investigating a shoplifting incident at CVS in Tedeschi Plaza that was reported on Sunday morning (Nov. 4) and had occurred the night before. The manager reported that a woman, who looked to be in her 30s and had blonde hair, shopped for about 30 minutes but only purchased a bottle of soda. An inventory of the makeup section the next morning revealed she had taken 21 items valued at $404, police said. Police will be checking the surveillance tapes to see if they can identify her.

Fraud

A Cohasset woman reported to police last week that she had been the victim of an apparent fraud involving renting a timeshare unit, police said.

Through a series of emails, the woman had agreed to rent the timeshare, and obtained a check for $2900, which she deposited. Per instructions, she kept the $500 deposit and returned to remainder of the money to the person pretending to be the potential renter via Western Union. When the $2900 check did not clear, she notified police. Police said the Western Union transaction number came back to Cairo, Egypt.

Sea turtle

A large sea turtle washed up in a yard on Atlantic Avenue last week after Superstorm Sandy, police said. The animal control officer responded and transported the sea turtle to the New England Aquarium, police said.

Suspicious vehicle

Police investigated a complaint about two teenage boys in a tan vehicle last week after a Beach Street resident reported they were sitting in the driveway. The driveway is about one-quarter of a mile long and the vehicle was about one-half way up. One of the teens is 17 and from Weymouth the other is a 17-year-old Cohasset boy. A check revealed the pickup truck was unregistered and it was towed, police said.

Trash

Police responded to a complaint about illegal trash dumping in a commercial dumpster in the village last week. The manager of the business provided police with the plate number of the red pickup truck and they stopped the vehicle on Pleasant Street. As it turned out, the man who dumped the trash thought the dumpster belonged to the apartments next door where his brother lives. He removed his trash from the commercial dumpster, police said.

Tile saw

A 34-year-old Hingham man who works as a contractor went to the police station last week to report that a former worker of his stole his $800 tile saw. Police contacted the 24-year-old Plymouth man, who allegedly took the tile saw. He told police he was holding it as collateral because he had not been paid. Police told the worker to return the saw and told the contractor to resolve the pay issue with him.

Paintings

Police responded to a larceny report last week from a business on Route 3A where the owner said a vendor entered her store and removed five paintings valued at $4,000 because he was owed money. Police spoke to the vendor who returned the paintings. Those involved were told to settle the matter in court if necessary.

Trash

Police were called to Cohasset Plaza last Thursday (Nov. 1) about trash being illegally left in one of the commercial dumpsters. As it turned out an employee at Papa Gino's had used the dumpster to dispose of household trash. Plaza management is handling the matter, police said.

Argument

Police responded to a complaint about two men arguing over a newspaper last week at the library. Police asked the men, who were both from out of town, to leave the library.

Misunderstanding

Police responded to the Avalon complex last week when management called about a woman leaving with some items from a vacant unit. As it turned out the former tenants had told their former neighbor she could pick up the remaining odds and ends. She was apparently doing so when management arrived to check on the unit.

GOVERNANCE

Committee trying to change Town Manager Act

Wants article on STM warrant

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

The Governance Committee held a public hearing Monday night to discuss their committee charge, which involves reviewing other town committees and boards, streamlining the town's budget process, and dissecting the Town Manager Act (TMA) and town bylaws in an attempt to get the two documents to better match. They also sought public input on these subjects.

While attendance was relatively low, those in the audience included former and current Cohasset officials and employees who had a hand in crafting the TMA, which was enacted following a slim majority vote at the spring 1997 Annual Town Meeting (ATM). What to do with the TMA was by far the most-discussed topic of the evening.

Governance members explained how they would like to change some of the legal language in the document and get the recommended changes on the warrant for the Dec. 10 Special Town Meeting (STM). If the town approves the changes, they could be submitted to the state legislature to get on the docket for 2013; however, this would need to be done by the second week of December, when the legislative calendar closes.

While some attendees said they were in favor of cleaning up the TMA's language, they said that there simply is not enough time to get these changes on the warrant for STM, approved by STM, which historically has a lower turnout than the ATM and is used only for "house cleaning" items like unpaid bills, and on the docket for the legislature to be enacted next year.

"I thought spring town meeting is for heavy hitters while fall is for minor issues," said Jody Butman.

Former selectman Karen Quigley agreed. "I think this is a governing act of the town and a very important document. I don't think it should be brought to fall town meeting, which is poorly attended and in the middle of the holidays... It's not appropriate to bring this forward."

Quigley argued that zoning bylaws are usually saved for the annual meeting, and that the TMA "is at least as important as a zoning bylaw, and if zoning bylaws are relegated to annual, this should be too."

Those in favor of getting these recommendations on the warrant argued that if the town does not vote them through next month, it could take at least another year or two before the TMA is changed. This creates a problem for keeping current Acting Town Manager Michael Milanoski, whose contract has been extended through the next year by the Board of Selectmen (who are trying to keep him on even longer, through 2015), employed on a more permanent basis.

As it stands now, the legal language in the TMA does not allow town officials, elected or appointed, to become the permanent town manager unless they have vacated their official duties for one year. Because Milanoski has served as an appointed associate (non-voting) member of the Conservation Commission and as chair of the Governance Committee (Christine Cunning took over as chair when Milanoski resigned in March after the selectmen appointed him as interim town manager), Town Counsel has said that he is ineligible to become town manager for the long haul. Eventually, he would have to be replaced. However, argued some members of the Governance Committee, searches for town managers have not ended well. The town has had three town managers and two acting since the Act was signed in 1997: Mark Haddad, Bill Griffin, Steve Lombard (interim) and Michael Coughlin, followed of course by Milanoski. Haddad's term ended in disgrace; the town was hit by a financial crisis while Griffin was at the helm; and Coughlin was removed without cause after the selectmen determined that he could not communicate effectively with town officials.

Governance member Ralph Dormitzer concluded that searches conducted by consultants don't work, and it's better if those hiring the town manager pick someone they already know.

"It's not good practice to say that someone that functions well in a secondary position can't be town manager," said Dormitzer. "Our success in using search committees to get people is problematic at best. Search committees are great, but knowing the person in the first place, knowing their capabilities, is far better."

Patrick Kennedy, a lawyer and associate member of the Con Com, said that he believed that the TMA language could be interpreted differently so as not to prohibit all town employees or officials from becoming town manager unless they have distanced themselves for one calendar year.

"I wouldn't necessarily foreclose that there's only one right interpretation of that act," said Kennedy, as the term "person" is broad.

Quigley said that she didn't take issue with the amount of time an official is separated from their former position before becoming town manager so much as the qualifications for town manager.

"We are a multi-million dollar corporation, and the town manager is our CEO. He should be qualified in education and experience," said Quigley. "I feel very strongly about that. I'd like to see the governance committee require a search to find the most qualified person; if he comes from within, that's fine, but I don't think pulling someone from the ranks [without a search] is the best course of action."

Quigley also said that the "elephant in the room" was that the governance committee was trying to get the TMA changes onto the STM warrant in order to make Milanoski's extended contract legal, allowing him to become the permanent town manager.

Cunning responded, "I don't think that's the elephant in the room," and that this particular recommendation was an "expedient piece" for Town Meeting.

However, some argued that while the language change is important, there are other parts of the TMA that need tweaking and should be voted on by ATM; the committee should not push through just a few changes "piecemeal" for next month's meeting. Others disagreed, saying that the town would never vote for all the changes all at once, and they should be given the changes to consider in small doses.

Water commissioner Leonora Jenkins said that she thinks asking Town Meeting to approve changes to the Act "in one fell swoop is too much for the town to absorb; just do this section here and one in the spring."

Kennedy argued that while the fall town meeting is not as well attended, neither was the 1997 annual meeting during which the TMA was enacted.

"There was barely a quorum," Kennedy said of that meeting, however, "people turn out for the issues they care about. People will show up whether it's December or May."

Cunning compared the process to a household renovation project: "You need to put in a new toilet, but you're not going to do the whole bathroom till spring... [in the meantime] you put it in because you know you need that."

Former town employee and "Greenbush guy" Tom Gruber, who was laid off by Milanoski in the spring, stressed the importance of ensuring the TMA language will "preclude a small group of insiders from continuing providing people in the loop" to be hired and ensure that choosing a town manager is vetted publicly.

The governance committee will meet next week to discuss whether or not they can have their recommendations added to the STM warrant.

Look for more on this issue in an upcoming edition of the Mariner.

Town Manager Act: What it says

The following language in the TMA prohibits elected and appointed town officials from becoming Cohasset's permanent town manager, which is something the Governance Committee would like to change:

"No person holding elective or appointed office in town shall within one year of holding such office be eligible to be appointed to the position of town manager."

The committee would like to change "person" to "selectmen" and make the timetable 15 months instead of one year. The longer time period would allow for one full election cycle to pass before a former selectmen could become a town manager, which the committee explained would better distance the former official from any alleged conflicts of interest.

Clause 41C – if annual income is less that $18,000 (single person) or $23,000 (married couple), and the value of your assets, excluding your home, is less than $33,000 (single person) or $35,000 (married couple) and must own and occupy for previous 10 years.

• SURVIVING SPOUSE (no age requirement): $350 off

Clause 17D – also minors of deceased parents and persons over 70 years of age. There is no limit on income, but the value of your assets, excluding your home, must not exceed $40,000 and must own and occupy for previous five years.

• DISABLED VETERAN: $800 off

Clause 22 – At least 10 percent disabled as determined by the Veterans Administration. Purple Heart Award recipients qualify, as well as Congressional Medal of Honor, Distinguished Service Cross, Air Force Cross, Navy Cross. Other exemptions are available for more seriously disabled veterans and paraplegic veterans. Veteran must have been a Mass resident 6 months prior to enlisting OR live in Massachusetts for five consecutive years.

• BLIND PERSON: $875 off

Clause 37 – Must be registered with Massachusetts Commission for the Blind.

• TAX DEFERRAL: ALL OR PART OF THE TAX

Clause 41A - Applicant must be 65 years of age as of July 1, 2012 with income less than $51,000 and must have resided in Massachusetts for the preceding 10 years. All or part of the tax may be deferred. (Effective 2007 the interest rate has been reduced to 4 percent)

Exemption forms are available at the Assessors' Office in the Town Hall (Floor 2B). For additional information, please contact the Assessors' Office at (781) 383-4114.

DONNA MORGAN INTERIORS

Local designer featured in Boston show house

The design work of Donna Morgan, principal of Donna Morgan Interiors of Cohasset, is being featured at the Junior League of Boston's celebrated 2012 Show House. The event is in its 35th year and draws more than 10,000 visitors.

Designers from across New England vied for the chance to transform a room at the famed Potter Estate in Newton. Morgan's work, entitled "An Intimate Nook," was chosen among hundreds of entries and can be seen along with 36 other prominent interior design firms chosen to present their work in a room at the mansion.

The public is invited to tour the Show House, which runs through Nov. 18 at The Potter Estate, 71 Walnut Park in Newton. Hours are Tuesday and Wednesday 10 a.m. – 4 p.m., Thursday and Friday 10 a.m.- 8 p.m. and Saturday and Sunday 10 a.m.-5 p.m.. Tickets are $30 through a member or $35 at the door.

For more information contact Donna Morgan at dmorgandesign@hotmail.com or visit www.jlboston.org.

GIMME SHELTER

Klaus is shy at first

PAULA J. FATERSIK

We have a handsome young guy being featured this week, who comes with an interesting and rather humorous chapter in his life story. Not long ago, a lovely woman brought this cat to us at Hull Seaside as she was very concerned and worried. Being outside alone, with winter coming, would certainly not be good for a pregnant kitty as lovely as this one. That would be a dangerous situation for sure.

Well, in came Kalee, as we called her, and within a few days we learned that "she" was a "he" and was most certainly not pregnant! So Kalee became Klaus and he probably wondered what was wrong with all of us. This sweetie is neutered and his kitten making days are in the past! Such is shelter life. A little gender confusion happens sometimes, but that is usually with new kittens!

It is likely that Klaus had a home before arriving here as he has a very sweet personality. While he seems shy at first, there is nothing he likes better than a gentle cheek and neck rub, which sends him into a purring spell that is such a contented and beautiful response. He really is a happy cat, who needs a loving home where he can feel the peace and security he needs now.

Just 3 years old, Klaus, who has thick grey and white fur, also has uniquely patterned two-toned ears that just add to his good looks. He would really enjoy some playtime and being with someone who would give him plenty of attention. This would be his dream come true. It isn't easy coming into a strange place, spending time and sharing everything with other cats who are total strangers, but he is doing well and will make a wonderfully loving pet.

Klaus might prefer to be an only cat, as it seems he becomes very comfortable when someone is giving him one to one attention and love. One thing is for sure. He will be one happy fellow curled up by your side, or sunning in the window, living the good life he so deserves.

Look at those eyes. He's so hopeful, and maybe this week will be his chance to meet a new family before the hectic holiday season begins. A warm home, loving family and a little piece of turkey in his dish would be a happy ending to this tale.

Please call Judy at 781-534-4992 for more information on Klaus and our other available cats. Visit us during Open Hours on Monday from 6:30-7:30 p.m. or Saturday from 2-3 p.m. at 50 L St. in Hull. Our phone number is 781-925-3121 and you can visit our website. www.hsar.org and view other available pets in our shelter.

This month, we have a lot to be thankful for. Last Saturday, our Spirit of Caring partner, Avalon Cohasset, made a wonderful delivery to the shelter. From litter to food to cleaning and office supplies, our shelves are filling up with needed items that the generous residents of the Avalon community donated throughout the month of October. Thank you again to Barbara Fogal who chose HSAR and who has been so supportive! If your group or organization is interested in helping out, we would love to hear from you. It is very heartwarming to see how communities come together to make a difference for animals in need.

As the temperatures dip, we know all to well that there will be more animals who are in a tough situation. Very often, we are caring for animals who come to us with, or develop, feline illnesses that are so like our own. Presently, we have some cats who are living in permanent foster homes. They are like guardian angels for these cats. Loving families who provide a safe and happy environment, and we cover the medical expenses necessary.

Klaus really is a happy cat, who needs a loving home where he can feel the peace and security he needs now. COURTESY PHOTO

Medical care is a growing expense for the shelter and we appreciate the help of all of our donors. If you can, there are many ways to help us with this. Tax deductible donations can be designated for our new Medical Fund. Also, our 2013 Kittendales calendar is now available at the shelter and online at www.kittendales.com. This fundraiser has been a great way to help the shelter and give a fun gift and all of the proceeds go toward the care of our cats. We will be at the Hull Holiday Showcase on 11/24 where we are looking forward to seeing our supporters. Calendars will be available there!

There are so many volunteers who show up through rain, sleet and snow to help to keep our shelter up and running, and every one of you is so important to the welfare of the cats in our care. During this last storm, our people were there, taking the time to ensure that our cats and kittens are provided a warm, tidy and safe environment. That dedication is so appreciated. Thank you for continuing to support us.

LIFE AT CHS

Mock debate was great!

WHITNEY MALONE

All students met in the auditorium to watch seniors Matt Gregory and Conor Dooley, representing the Obama administration, fight it out in a political battle against Mitt Romney's team, Giselle Hart and Michael Livingstone.

Hello Cohasset! Since last week was only a three-day week, due to Hurricane Sandy aftermath, there was not the usual amount of news and activity. However, this week has certainly made-up for it as fall sports come to a close.

After winning the first round of tournament against Foxboro last Friday, the Field Hockey team moved on to play Apponequet in the quarterfinals on Monday. While the game did not end in our favor, we had an amazing season. As a senior captain on the team, I am disappointed for my last season to end, but I have made so many memories with my teammates and I wish them all good luck next year!

On Election Day, Tuesday, various members of the senior class held a mock debate in the high school. All students met in the auditorium to watch seniors Matt Gregory and Conor Dooley, representing the Obama administration, fight it out in a political battle against Mitt Romney's team, Giselle Hart and Michael Livingstone. All four representatives were impressive in their professionalism and political knowledge when proposed controversial debate questions from the moderators, seniors Jessica Costello and Sarah Karp. The debate was followed by a mock election, run by Mrs. Humphrey's AP Statistics class, in which the majority of the student body voted Obama's team the winners of the debate.

While we were participating in the mock election Tuesday, the Boys' Soccer Team was on the way to Seekonk for their quarterfinals tournament game. Missing their spirited student fan base that usually fills the "Skippah Dome," the boys lost by a penalty kick, ending the close game 1-0. Congratulations to the entire team for a great season!

Tonight, the Football Team will have their Senior Night on the turf, playing against Norwell at 7 pm. At halftime, the Cheerleading Team will perform their routine from their competition in Abington last Sunday. I hope everyone comes out to support both Cohasset teams in their last home Friday night game of the year before the Thanksgiving game!

After a long week of last-minute quizzes and first-quarter finals (can you believe next Tuesday is already the end of the first term?), students can finally relax during the three-day Veterans Day weekend!

Whitney Malone is a senior at Cohasset High; her column appears weekly during the school year.

AROUND TOWN

Fill a U-Haul for Sandy victims

JENNIFER PIEPENBRINK

Thoughts

Hello Cohasset. Whether you agreed or not with the results of Tuesday's election, were happy or disappointed, the decisions are made and final so now, time to pull together as a country and work towards progress in today going forward. I hope and wish, that it starts for us, right here in Cohasset, as a community. Adults and our actions, words and behaviors are what our children learn from...

This weekend is a 3-day weekend for many but the reason for it is to honor and remember our Veterans and their families, those who have fought for our country to keep us safe and have lost their lives while doing so as well as to remember all who continue to fight. Thank you Veterans and families.

Fill a U-Haul!

We are all shocked and saddened by the amount of devastation that areas in NY, NJ and parts of Connecticut have had during the last two storms that it leaves us feeling like we want to help somehow but not quite sure what to do. I know for me, my first thoughts were of physical injury or even worse, loss of life but then, I kept thinking and still do of the children affected by all of this and how scared they must be with no power, loss of homes, loss of belongings, blankies and special items.

Then came a conversation and an email from a friend here in town, Nicole Engles Nussbaum. Her family was affected by the storm Sandy as their home on the Jersey Shore took a major hit. She spoke about the tremendous loss suffered in neighborhoods where homes will be leveled and how upsetting this is for all, especially the kids.

Here is how we can help: Families in need are looking for coats/jackets, gloves, hats, mittens, toys, backpacks, boots, clothes, blankets, sleeping bags, batteries, gift cards, diapers, wipes and bottles, and more. Nicole's sister will be in Cohasset on Friday, Nov. 16 and will drive back to New York with a filled U-Haul from Cohasset. All items can be dropped off at 25 Powers Lane in the box in the front porch or, email me at aroundtowncohasset@Yahoo.com and I will pick the items up! Lets fill up the U-Haul Cohasset.

Bar exam

Here is some great news and definitely "proud parent" bragging rights material. Mark and Lynn DeGiacomo, recently received word that their son Jimmy, passed the Massachusetts Bar Exam. Jimmy is a 2005 CHS graduate and he graduated from Goucher College in 2009 and University of Baltimore School of Law this past May. When he is sworn in later this month he will join his father (CHS '74), mother, grandfather and aunt Diane (CHS '76) as members of the Massachusetts Bar.

Jimmy, his wife Vienna and dog Izzy are living with Mark and Lynn while they save money for their own place. While waiting for the bar results and during his job search, Jimmy has returned to his high school job at the deli downtown. Make sure to stop in and congratulate him on this great piece of news!

CEF appeal

The 2012-2013 Annual Appeal campaign for the Cohasset Education Foundation is underway. The CEF provides grants that fund state-of-the-art programs and enrich academic environments for all students in the Cohasset public schools. The fall grant submission deadline is soon approaching. For more information about the CEF or to donate please visit: www.cohasseteducation.org.

Top athlete

Here is another student to give a shout-out to...Christopher Brown, is currently a junior at ECSU and he has been named one of the team captains for Eastern Connecticut State University's 2012-2013 Lacrosse team. He was also awarded in the Little East Conference, Men's Lacrosse 2012 All Conference First Team for Defense. Nice work Christopher, your family, friends and town are so proud and we look forward to hearing more in the future!

Senior parents

Calling out to all Senior Parents of the Class of 2013! There will be a meeting for all senior parents interested in helping out with Class of 2013 pre- and post-prom activities. The meeting will be held at the CMHS library on Tues., Nov. 13, at 7 p.m.

Book fair

As part of the Cohasset Village Fair (Saturday, Dec. 1) St. Stephen's Church will be hosting their annual Book Fair in the Parish Hall. Between now and Nov. 28, they are looking for donations of books in good condition: hard cover fiction and non-fiction; paperback bestsellers (no older than about five years); classics; children's books (both hard and softcover); DVDs, CDs, audio books (please do not bring magazines, VHS or audio tapes, or textbooks.)

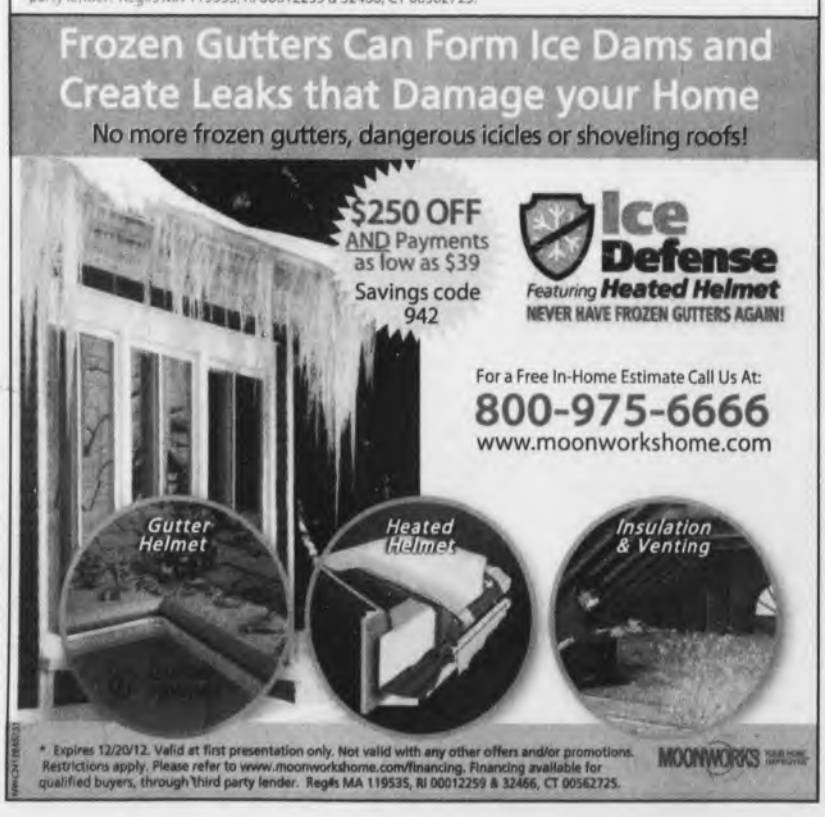
All donations can be left at St. Stephen's Church inside the Parish office door. There must be many, many voracious readers who might have some gems to be shared. Please support the fair with as many good-condition books as you can.

Lecture

The Cohasset Historical Society is pleased to announce its Wednesday Evening Lecture Series on Nov. 14th with guest speakers Genevra and Charles Higginson. The Higginsons will talk about their collection of books and what led them to become collectors. Charlie was a career Foreign Service Officer and spent time in such places as Algeria, Italy, Luxemburg and Vietnam. His collection interests include the works of George Henty, Kenneth Roberts and writers that are related to the family.

Genevra has a background in Art History and has taught the subject at home and abroad. She also worked as Chief of Protocol and Special Events at the National Gallery in Washington, DC. Her interests lie in art history, artists, gardening, cooking and in foreign language rare books. Both Genevra abd Charlie will speak about their collections and what they look for when adding to their collections. This program is scheduled for Nov. 14th in the Pratt Building, 106 South Main St. at 7:30 pm. There is no charge for the program, although donations are gratefully accepted, and light refreshments will be served.

That is the news for this week Cohasset. Send in all your news, photos and celebration info to me no later than Tuesdays by 5 pm.



Just an FYI. We receive dean's list and honors notices from many colleges and private schools, but not all. If your son or daughter has earned recognition, please share that news directly with us!

We also LOVE new baby announcements with photos if possible. Need birth date, weight, length, names of siblings, parents and grandparents. Emailed photos are fine but glossies can be dropped off at Tedeschi's in the village in our Mariner drop box.

BROTHERS

Author David Stoddard, 88, who wrote the book with his wife Kathleen and compiled materials from family members, friends and fellow veterans, was the youngest of the four, the last to join his brothers in the Army, and is now the only Stoddard brother still alive.

"We started out years ago," David said of putting the book together. "What got us motivated is that Kathleen and I are the last of our tribe, and we have a lot of nieces and nephews that wanted to know what their uncles did in World War II. We thought this would be a great thing to put together for a generation."

David, who enlisted in the Army in 1942 before he finished high school, resides in California but fondly remembers growing up on Beechwood Street. While all four brothers survived the war and reunited at their childhood home, David said that they never talked much about their time abroad. The four brothers were separated throughout most of the war, although they occasionally wound up stationed near one another. Two of the brothers, Charles and Sheldon, reunited in North Africa to fight together during the Battle of El Guettar in March 1943; Charles and Elmer also crossed paths in Italy later that year.

"While we were in the service we all corresponded," David said, but once reunited, "we didn't do too much talking, telling war stories... They saw a lot of combat; I didn't."

David's nephew Tom Stoddard lives in Cohasset and said that his father, Charles, never talked much of the war with him, either. When asking Charles about a battle he fought in, Tom recalled, "a strange look came over his face and he avoided the question. It brought back memories he wasn't ready to deal with."

Tom said that he has always been close with his Uncle David, and that they bonded while putting together the book detailing the Stoddard brothers' military history.

"I go out [to California] to see my uncle every year in April, and he's the last one," said Tom, adding that he has long admired his uncle's collection of "stuff" and noted that they tend to collect similar things, such as old bottles and keys. But when it came time to put their family history to paper, Tom said that his family's packrat tendencies came in handy.

"It's nice that people find things and hold onto them," said Tom. "Without collectors, we wouldn't have all these things."

Not that compiling all of the materials detailing the Stoddard brothers' service was easy; David said that tracking down the official military documents, from presidential letters to discharge papers, took him almost five years, with several family members contributing to the effort to collect artifacts and information. Everyone that contributed to the book was given a copy once it was printed, said David; he also sent copies to three historical societies, including Cohasset's. Altogether he has sent out around 50 copies of the book.

David also credits his son, David Neil, for helping to get the book printed. The family used a website called Blurb.com to submit all of their materials, once they had been scanned electronically.

"It's a really neat program for writing a book for anybody that wants to," said David. "It's a little on the pricey side, but cheaper than taking it to a publisher."

David reached out to his nieces and nephews to compile their parents' photographs and documents for inclusion in the book; some of his brothers had saved more items than others. Not much was known of Charles' time at war, but David said he found much of the information through Internet searches. The family had a lot of photographs Elmer had taken, as he had been a member of the photography club when he attended Cohasset High School.

"He took his camera from Camp Edwards to Germany, and took pictures all through North Africa and Sicily, the southern France invasion," David said of Elmer. "We had a lot of pictures of him."

But the brother with the most complete collection was Sheldon.

"Sheldon had a lot of great stuff, so much that we had to put a CD in the back of the book" containing all of the additional materials, David explained. "It tells a great story. When Sheldon was still alive, he started thinking about putting a book together and sent me his scrapbook."

David scanned the contents onto his computer and saved digital copies — which turned out to be a fortuitous move.

"Two years later, after [Sheldon] passed away, that book was destroyed in a basement flood," said David, happy that he "saved all that stuff. His letters, a lot he wrote to his parents... he saved all his letters. His wife saved all the communications they had while he was in the service."

The precious memories are intact in the Stoddard family's book that serves not only as a historical text, map, and timeline of the brothers' time at war, but as an heirloom for generations to come.

"Not too many families have something like this," said Tom. "Everyone in the [Stoddard] family appreciates having a copy."

Especially, Tom noted, since the family has only one of the four Stoddard brothers left.

"We're slowly losing them," Tom said of World War II veterans. "Time's running out for these people who served in World War II to compile all this information; a lot of them have gone."

David hopes the Stoddard family project will inspire other families to preserve their own histories.

"We feel this project is an inspiration to other people to do for their families and people in the service," said David. "All you have to do is get out there and dig. There's information there... Every family has a story to tell."

Copies of the "Stoddard Brothers Military History during World War II" are available to read at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library and Cohasset Historical Society.

OUR VIEW

Election Day

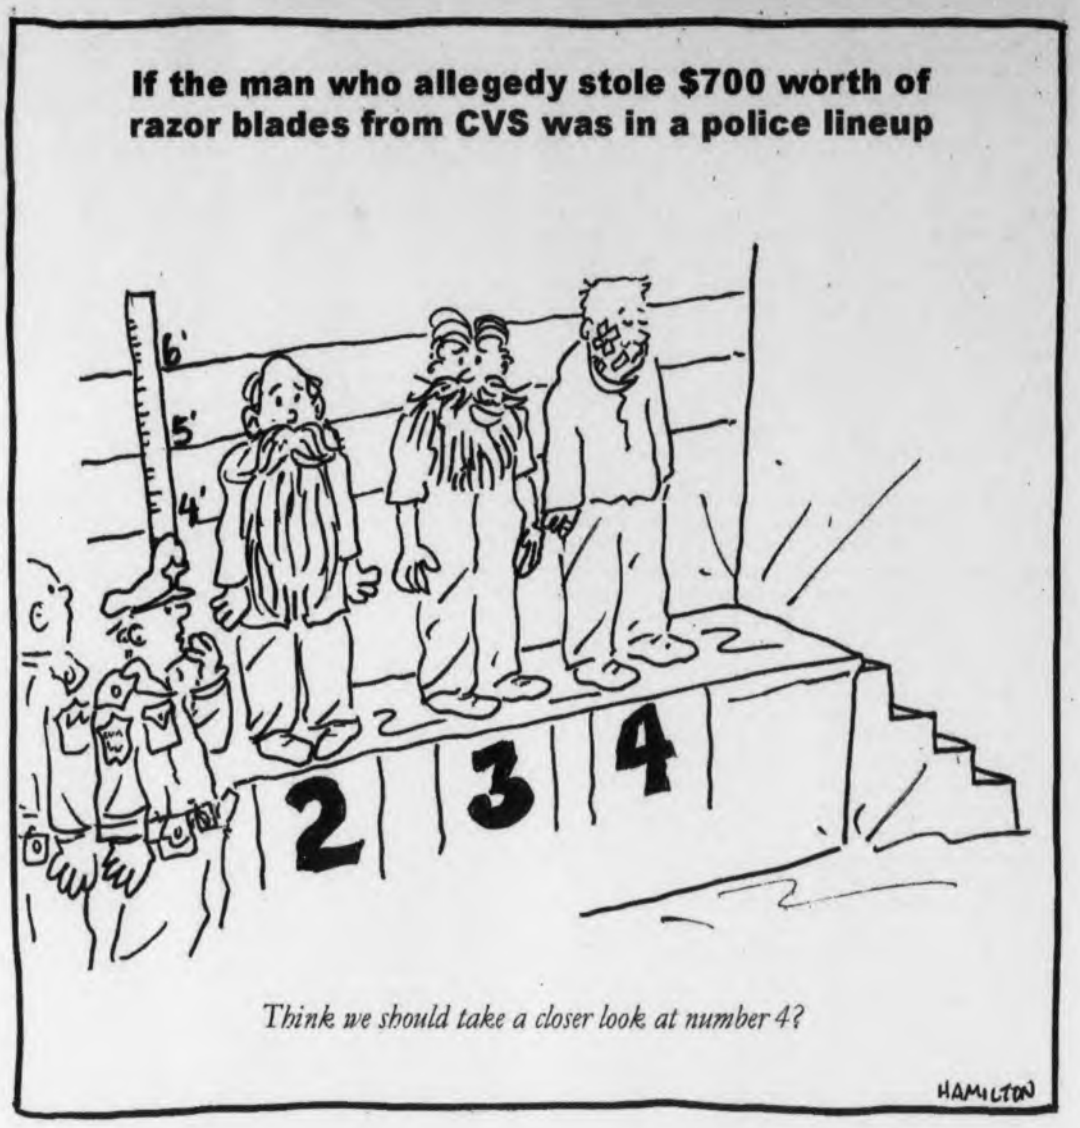
While last week, we expressed heartfelt gratitude to public safety personnel, DPW workers, town officials and volunteers for their readiness in the face of Super-storm Sandy – another storm was brewing: Election Day.

Election Day, itself, does not necessarily coincide with rainy or inclement weather – in fact Nov. 6 here in Cohasset was a nice fall day. However, without a lot of preparation elections can quickly turn into nightmares.

But here in Cohasset we are fortunate to have Town Clerk Carol St. Pierre, her staff, the Registrars of Voters and election workers to ensure that casting our votes is a pleasant experience.

Cohasset now has 5,834 registered voters and 84 percent of those headed to the polls on Tuesday. Just think of the logistics of that number of people with a common purpose – to vote — on the same day at the same place in Cohasset!

Although there were unavoidable lines and some wait time at the polls, we found that most voters used that time to chat with fellow Cohasseters.



Town Clerk St. Pierre and her team that includes Assistant Town Clerk Elizabeth Anderson made Election Day look easy. We know it was anything but. For one thing, the span of time involved on the day itself is physically grueling.

There is nothing as precious in our democracy as our right to vote. To be able to do so easily reinforces one's democratic experience as being positive.

Part of our job in covering the election is to add Cohasset results to a huge spreadsheet that can be used online and by our sister newspapers in the Gatehouse Media community.

We were so proud to be one of the first towns to add results to the list Tuesday night, thanks to our Town Clerk's efficient spreadsheets that could be emailed directly to us.

On a related note: Apart from the candidates - there were several Ballot Questions that included physician assisted suicide and legalizing medical marijuana. These are interesting, important issues. We wish they could be on the ballot during mid-term elections where debate on those issues would not be overshadowed by the race for US President.

TAKE PART

The Cohasset Mariner is building a Readers Advisory Network of e-mail addresses so we can more frequently involve our readers in the content of the newspaper.

Readers, who join the network, may be asked for reactions to stories, ideas for stories or follow-ups, for a digital "person on the street" interview, or for a community commentary.

If you are interested in becoming a member of the network, email Mary Ford at mford@wickedlocal.com. She will answer any questions that you may have. The Mariner promises to remove you immediately from the Readers Advisory Network if you request that we do.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Carr clarifies personal position on Question 2

Last week, I wrote a letter to the editor which was printed in the Cohasset Mariner (Friday, Nov. 2) outlining my position about Ballot Question # 2 pertaining to Doctor Assisted Suicide. Apparently there were concerns expressed to the paper about how my employment may have affected my decision on this topic. Regardless of how you voted on the topic, I hope you found the information meaningful and used it to make an informed decision.

The day before Election Day the editor of the Mariner, Mary Ford, contacted me and asked me to clarify my employment as it pertains to my letter. I was very troubled by the request, because I feel any private citizen is entitled to voice an opinion. Cohasset does after all have a strong tradition of debate. Mary asked me to respond and clarify my position.

I work for an internationally recognized Public Affairs company based in Boston with offices in Washington DC. The focus of my work at the firm is international economic development and providing services to globally oriented clients. This very well respected firm has multiple disciplines and numerous clients. Whereas my colleagues at the firm were engaged in the campaign to defeat Ballot Question 2, I was not involved in the campaign. My decision to submit my written opinion to the Cohasset Mariner has nothing to do with my employment. Rather, my decision to submit an opinion was because of my long-standing involvement with public service and deep commitment to good political process. I felt strongly that as written, Ballot Question 2 had too many flaws and was not the right answer to a very emotional topic.

Although Question # 2 was defeated in Cohasset, it lost by only 6 votes. This was an intensely personal subject with good people divided over the issue. I hope this exercise provides the needed opportunity to bring all parties together and begin a dialog about end of life care, advance directives and the great work of hospice and palliative care.

As a resident of Cohasset and as an engaged citizen, I will continue to speak up, offer my opinion and try to bring light to important issues. It is at the core of my being and what has always motivated me to get involved in our Town and participate in the public process.

Thanks again for voting in this very important election.

Ted Carr,

Holding cocaine users more accountable

The recent arrests by Cohasset Police of two individuals who, according to news reports, have been trafficking cocaine in Cohasset for an extended period of time are to be applauded. However serious questions still linger; did this trafficking occur in our neighborhoods or near our schools and who was exposed to these dealings?

Multiple news reports indicate that the suspects were on a weekly basis delivering packets of cocaine to Cohasset residents. One report quotes Cohasset Police Detective Lieutenant Gregory Lennon saying "they (the suspects) would deliver the cocaine to their houses – pull in the driveway, ring the bell, and walk back out." Lt. Lennon further stated according to reports that "dozens and dozens" of people in Cohasset bought the drugs.

The closet Libertarian in me believes that what is done in the privacy of one's own home is one's own business. As the recent news out of Kennebunk, Maine, demonstrates, victimless crimes are too many times over-hyped at the expense of innocent people. I applaud the Mariner for not rushing out and publishing the names of the Cohasset citizens who are possibly involved, but it is fair to ask were these people inviting drug dealers into our neighborhoods and possibly exposing others to potential harm? Unlike the Kennebunk story in which citizens were going to a "place of business," it appears that the people in question have deliberately and selfishly invited drug dealers (possibly armed) into our community on a regular basis. If that is the case, I believe their infractions are exponentially worse than the drama in Maine.

Should all the residents in question all happen to live down long driveways in unexposed areas, I say, "live and let live." However, should any of these transactions occurred in and around our neighborhoods, I believe the Cohasset Police should at the very least offer an explanation on why the residents are not being held more accountable for their roles.

Making a difference here in town

On behalf of the PSO, I would like to thank the participants of this past weekends' Make a Difference Day, our annual community wide event in partnership with Cohasset Elder Affairs. Families and students ranging from elementary to high school assisted senior residents with lawn cleanup and leaf raking. We have received positive feedback from both residents and participants on the cheerful attitudes and exceptional job performed by all. We appreciate their sense of community pride and service. Thank you to:

Cub Scout Pack #38: Sarah Inferrera (den leader), Anthony Inferrera, Bryce Morrissey, Will Duxbury, Brandon Belfontaine and Hilton Hudson. Along with Marcus Inferrera, Lauren Belfontaine and parents.

Pack 38 Den 2 Webelo I: Kathy Sebestyen and Karolina Kluza (den leaders), Nick Kluza, Ben Sebestyen, Jimmy Grech, Xander Bestick, Andrew Hoadley, Merrick Ronzoni, Christian Loft and Will Puzella.

Girl Scout Troop 74018: Cheryl Stelljes (den leader), Colby Litchfield, Libby Lydon, Lindsay Stelljes, Kate McGowan, Caitlyn Marat, Mary Tarpey.

High school students: Charlotte Barszewski, Nicole Farren, Valerie Farren, Christine Guinee, Erin Driscoll, Rachel Littauer, Emma Smith, Gabrielle Rioux, Jessica Costello, Bree Sheldon, Mysia Trojnor-Barren, Alexandra Lanier, Giselle Hart, Meredith Corry, Sara Corry, Lilly McCarthy, Brendan Morrissey, Alexandra Russell, the Murphy-Baker family, Helen Arnold and family, the Cunnie family, the Cunningham family, Franchesca Arnold and family, the Greer family, the Ognibene family and the Leighton family.

Great job everyone!

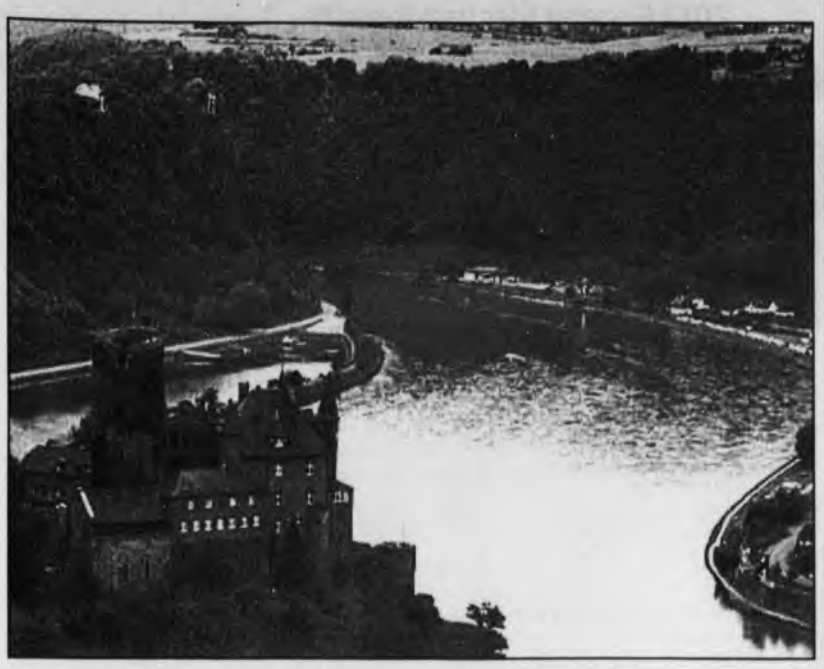
UPDATE

Board of Health appoints new member

The Board of Health met with the Board of Selectmen last Thursday to appoint a new member, filling the seat recently vacated by longtime member Steve Bobo.



After interviewing three candidates, board of health chair Margaret Chapman and clerk Robin Lawrence said that Elizabeth Kirkpatrick, Smith Place, was their top choice. The two boards voted unanimously to appoint her.

Kirkpatrick will serve until the annual Town Election in the spring when she can run for election to the Board of Health.

Kirkpatrick, who has lived in Cohasset for five years, has 11 years' experience in environmental protection and public health, and works as the Director of Environmental Health and Safety (EHS) Dept. for the U.S. Coast Guard on Cape Cod, said that she looked forward to serving on the health board. "I am concerned about people in our community and want to be a part of taking care of them."

Chapman and Lawrence said they chose Kirkpatrick for her water and soil experience because the board has a "weakness" in that area, as other members have more medical experience. They also disclosed that Kirkpatrick applied for the Health Administrator/Inspector position held by Tara Tradd for 14 years (Felix Zemel was hired in July).

HISTORICAL TRAVELS

Once upon a very long time ago, the Rhine formed the last frontier between the Roman Empire and the lands of the Germanic tribes. COURTESY PHOTO

Think about a Rhine River cruise

Rivers are rich. They tell more about a country than all the monuments, all the cities, all the rail and motorways. They are the story of all who live around them, as they flow on and on..." (Arthur Miller, American author and dramatist).

MARY KENNEDY

Germans call this major shipping route of central Europe "Father Rhine." Rising high in the Swiss Alps, it passes through six countries (Switzerland, Liechtenstein, Austria, France, Germany, Holland) as it flows north about 820 miles to the North Sea. The third-longest river in Europe (after the Danube and the Volga in Russia), this scenic water road has offered treasures of both history and legend to travelers for centuries. German poets Goethe and Heine were enthralled by it; English artist William Turner enjoyed painting its sunsets; Beethoven and Byron loved the Rhine and its landscape; Baedeker's very first guidebook (1834) described it in great detail. Americans were introduced to the pleasures of the river when Mark Twain's book A Tramp Abroad was published in 1878.

Once upon a very long time ago, the Rhine formed the last frontier between the Roman Empire and the lands of the Germanic tribes. After Julius Caesar built the first bridge across the river just north of Koblenz, the Romans began founding settlements on its banks, and the Germans were drawn into a new world history.

In medieval times more than 300 small "kingships" made up the area we now know as Germany. Many so-called "rulers" were actually castle owners who levied tolls as they pleased — legally or not — on the river as a means of revenue and to defray the cost of defense from invaders. Today, many of those mighty fortresses are romantic ruins atop the towering cliffs.

The Rhine's legendary past provided great inspiration for Richard Wagner. The Nibelungen kings who once ruled the riverbanks live on forever in his monumental opera Der Ring des Nibelungen. From Cologne to Mainz, an ancient castle or monastery sits atop almost every high outcropping of rock. Here is where Lohengrin, heroic knight of the swan, adventured and romanced and met his tragic (operatically at least) end.

Riverboat travelers look for one of the Rhine's most popular sites: the Lorelei Cliff, an almost sheer 400-foot high mountain of rock. There, according to legend, the beautiful maiden sits, combing her golden hair, her sweet siren call luring boatmen to their deaths on the treacherous rocks below. Her lethal song was evoked in a famous poem by Heine and later set to music by several composers, among them Franz Liszt.

German Nobel Prize-winning (1972) author Heinrich Boll wrote: Somewhere around here...lies the treasure of the Nibelungs...perhaps lying next to a Nazi emblem that some anxious citizen discarded in haste as the American tanks rolled in.

One fine way to enjoy the Rhine River today is on a riverboat cruise. Medieval castles and Romanesque churches; gourmet dining and white wines from local vineyards; charming villages and Roman ruins. Save the week: Oct. 4 – 13, 2013 for a seven-day cruise on Father Rhine...think about it.

GROWING ON THE FARM

Raking by hand has benefits

Raking by hand indeed takes longer. It also takes less gasoline and oil to work a rake. I wonder how the birds and tiny ground animals deal with the loud noise.

JON BELBER

When autumn leaves start to fall, a compost maker and garden keeper start to ready for winter. Huge opportunities present themselves with these brown, orange and crunchy ingredients.

After the leaf peeping and the wonderful array of colors present themselves, the leaves descend. As a kid, my brothers and I would make a sport of chasing leaves. I was lucky to grow upon a tree-lined street with little traffic, so we could go out and stare up, waiting for the leaves to fall and catch as many as possible. On distance runs and jogs, it is still common practice for me to try and catch leaves as I run and they fall. And even though there is no running on the farm, I have been known to jaunt quickly from field to field, and at this time of year, I will give chase.

The recent storm brought many leaves down (without the opportunity to catch them), blew sand in and swept away homes and normalcy. Fortunately at the farm there was not too much damage and just plenty of leaves. Needless to say, our leaf rakes have been busy. I say leaf rakes because our metal, long rakes are different and used for smoothing soil or just this past Saturday to clear some final rocks and root clumps before heeling in the garlic.

So, when I said to a helpful student at the farm the other day to grab a leaf rake, he paused for a minute. Perhaps he is used to leaves being collected by someone else. Perhaps we are all just a bit too used to the consistent, ever-present autumn sound of leaf blowers wending their way through yards, city streets and town commons. Leaf blowers – and those who work hard to manipulate them – play a pervasive, changing role in our neighborhoods and communities. The large trucks and wagons that hold this equipment are everywhere and dominate streets and sidewalks.

Recently, the town of Arlington successfully banned leaf blowers for certain days of the week, perhaps for a peace of mind. Raking by hand indeed takes longer. It also takes less gasoline and oil to work a rake. I wonder how the birds and tiny ground animals deal with the loud noise. I know many humans who lose concentration and an ability to even think clear thoughts, much less teach children about plants and the environment, when the leaf blowers rev their backpacks, or power them with valuable electricity.

So with rakes in hands, we headed to the meeting area, where many before us have gripped rakes to find the grass and weeds below. The leaves were raked over to the compost area to serve as a nice balance to the food scraps and coffee grounds from various eating and sipping establishments.

Raking with a rake does cause blisters, can be tiring to the muscles and may even disturb those insects of whom I spoke earlier. But I do like the healthy results for me and for the compost piles. I also save money in my own side yard from not having to pay for a service. Many of these leaves can also head onto garden beds, to help protect them for the coming season. Leaves are a great, sustainable resource for the organic grower and just one of those annual chores that need attention.

The Friends of Holly Hill Farm will offer a workshop this Saturday at 10 a.m. on how else one might prepare for late fall. I may even take note of the quiet around me, so as to better concentrate on catching some of those last leaves.

Jon Belber is a Scituate resident and the education director at Holly Hill Farm in Cohasset. He teaches students and adults about organic gardening and farming. His column appears twice monthly in the Mariner. He can be reached by email at jbelberhollyhill@hotmail.com. For information on upcoming programs at Holly Hill, visit www.hollyhillfarm.org.

FOR THE RECORD

The power is in your hands

Smartphones and tablets have made it possible to stay connected longer. Running off wireless mobile networks, these devices bring a new level of connectivity when the power goes out.

GREGORY MATHIS

The days of being left completely in the dark – figuratively anyway – may be all but over for those who have the technology to stay connected.

Of course weather, human error and other circumstance could still result in us losing power – maybe even for extended periods of time like Tropical Storm Irene last year – but the days of not knowing what's going on when the lights are out may not be such a mystery anymore.

Hurricane Sandy, or whatever its designation was when it finally struck here last week, provided some lessons that will help you and us during future storm coverage.

Smartphones and tablets have made it possible to stay connected longer. Running off wireless mobile networks, these devices bring a new level of connectivity when the power goes out. It's possible to keep them charged longer, even if it means using the car charger to keep them powered.

While our websites have been good resources for real time coverage of weather events, when you lose power, you lose your home telephone connection and you lose your Internet/wifi service. And you lose touch with what's going on around you.

If you can manage to stay connected, Hurricane Sandy showed us the power of social media.

Twitter provided real time updates from emergency personnel in the community and throughout the region. Police/fire/emergency management agencies, MEMA, Gov. Patrick's office, Mass DOT, and others were Tweeting before, during and after the storm, reporting everything from trees and wires being down, roads closed due to flooding or aforementioned trees and wires, the number of people without power at any given time, school closings and other closings around town. It was great getting the information directly from the sources as it was happening. The chances of ever getting someone on the phone during a weather event for that type of information is highly unlikely even under the best circumstances.

While Twitter proved to be a reliable source for real time information, Facebook provided more of a human touch to what was happening as friends shared their storm experiences and used Facebook to check in on loved ones in harm's way, or to keep tabs on folks from afar.

In addition to staying connected through social media, people were turning to their smartphones to shoot video and photos of the storm, in essence becoming citizen journalists. It's nearly impossible for our photographers, reporters or editors to be everywhere during a big storm, so it really helps having all those extra eyes in the field to provide the most comprehensive coverage possible. Your photos and videos are an important part of telling the story as it happens. We're not the only news organization seeking your help, but we ask that you don't forget your local media organization as you record what's happening, not only during big weather-related events, but always.

As I write this a good, ole fashioned nor'easter is predicted to bear down on us by midweek. As New Englanders we're accustomed to bad weather, but thanks to all the information at our fingertips, you should have a good idea of what's going on, even if you're left sitting in the dark.

STATE SENATE RACE

Hedlund cruises to re-election

By Ed Baker
ebaker@wickedlocal.com

On an election night in Massachusetts where Democrats won most of the races, the voters in the Plymouth-Norfolk District overwhelmingly re-elected Republican state Sen. Robert Hedlund of Weymouth to a four-year term on Nov. 6.

Based on figures compiled from the towns in the district by GateHouse Media, Hedlund received 60,612 votes from the eight towns he represents, and his Democratic opponent Genevieve Davis of Norwell received 28,065 votes.

Hedlund said Davis ran a classy campaign without any cheap shots.

"We had the advantage of incumbency," Hedlund said amid his supporters during a post-election party at Hingham Beer Works. "I congratulate her for running and for stepping up to run."

Hedlund said it was a pleasure to have got to know Davis during the campaign and that more people should run for office.

The Plymouth-Norfolk District includes Weymouth, Hingham, Hull, Duxbury, Marshfield, Norwell, Cohasset and Scituate. Voters in each community overwhelmingly cast ballots for Hedlund, except in Norwell, where he won by 1,800 votes.

Davis said she feels positive about how she ran her campaign.

"I said from the beginning, win or lose, I would do everything I could," she said. "I'm proud he (Hedlund) realized that. My intention was to raise awareness about the issues. My campaign started in January, and it was an uphill battle to get my word out."

Davis touted her professional experience of working for non-profit groups with various ethnicities, wealthy people and homeless individuals during the campaign. She also supported funding improvements to the state's roadways, bridges and community colleges to provide job opportunities.

Hedlund cited his experience with running small businesses during the campaign and stated that lawmakers should create opportunities for these industries to thrive by keeping the tax burden low on them.

Hedlund also noted his efforts to get Democratic lawmakers to end the X-registration law, which allowed applicants to receive an X registration number from Registry of Motor Vehicles officials if they did not submit a driver's license at the time of registering their cars. Lawmakers overrode Gov. Deval Patrick's veto of Hedlund's proposed law requiring any person who registers a car in Massachusetts to offer proof of residency at the Registry of Motor Vehicles with a driver's license, Social Security number or other type of proof.

Davis said during the campaign the new law imposes an extra duty on the Registry of Motor Vehicles and the Department of Homeland Security should be dealing with illegal immigration matters.

Hedlund said he is looking forward to supporting efforts to improve the economy in Massachusetts and curbing illegal immigration during his next term.

"I had success this past year on immigration reform," he said. "I want to work on reforming the 40B (affordable) housing law, and obviously the economy. We had disturbing news that the state revenues have not been making their projections and the (Gov. Deval Patrick) administration is already talking about making mid-year 9C cuts."

Hedlund said if Patrick does the midyear budget cuts, it would be the second time during the past three years this has happened.

Davis said she is pleased President Barack Obama was re-elected and that Democrat Elizabeth Warren defeated Republican U.S. Sen. Scott Brown.

"I said during the campaign that President Obama's vision is on the right path," Davis said.

Davis said she believes the economic recovery has been slow because people are trying to recoup losses to their savings and retirement plans when the economy went bad in 2008.

"That is what is keeping people from buying," she said. "People are improving their balance sheets and people were so heavily bruised in 2008 and they are healing from their wounds. President Obama is making all the right moves to get the economy going. He is investing in the infrastructure and that is they way to get things done. We own our roads and bridges. Now is the time to put money into that and it will create jobs."

Davis said she generally agrees with Warren's objectives about the financial industry being managed better.

"The financial industry needs to be regulated and not be overregulated," she said. "It did not regulate itself."

Davis also said her campaign during the past 10 months has been hectic and she is looking forward to more leisurely pace.

"My future plan this morning was to get up and to take a nap," Davis said with a laugh. "There is a possibility of a future run, but I work full-time. I've had an incredible 10 months."

Hedlund aide Patrick O'Connor, a Weymouth Town Council vice-president, said the large voter turnout in Weymouth and elsewhere was impressive.

"This is the perfect definition of democracy," O'Connor said. "I love to see people so energized. I think the turnout is a testimony to the people in the commonwealth who expressed their view."

jority voted in favor of the availability of motor vehicle records and a vast majority voted to legalize the medical use of marijuana. Cohasset residents also voted "yes" in a non-binding question to prevent cuts to Social Security, Medicare and Medicaid. The controversial question to OK prescribing medication to end life lost by only six votes.

With so many controversial issues on the table, it's no surprise that Cohasseters came out in droves to have their voices heard.

"It's definitely a high turnout," said Cohasset police officer Jay St. Ives, who was stationed at the polls on Election Day. "I don't know what the record in Cohasset has been before, but we might get there."

Recreation Department director Ted Carroll, who was helping voters check in, noted that many voters arrived with their kids in tow. He also commented on the early morning rush.

"For the first 38 minutes, the line was out the door," said Carroll.

Presidential and state elections usually garner a large voter turnout in Cohasset, according to the Town Clerk Carol St. Pierre, who predicted an 86 percent turnout last week.

Local Dems, Republicans weigh in

After a hard-fought battle, Romney supporters were left to nurse their wounds on Tuesday. Cohasset's Republican Town Committee chair Ray Kasperowicz was no exception.

"I have absolutely nothing to be happy about from my standpoint," Kasperowicz said in a phone call Wednesday. "I'm just very discouraged. The Republican Party works awfully hard to present an alternative, intelligent, fiscally conservative view, and it gets rejected... I never thought I'd see an electorate like this so easily swayed by lies and propaganda, and fiscal irresponsibility."

The RTC chair went on to say that he thought it was "outrageous" that moderate candidates such as Brown, who he called "hardworking across party lines," lost out on Tuesday.

"I'm personally shocked that the electorate is in this posture doesn't recognize the problems we have at every level of government," said Kasperowicz.

Democratic Town Committee chair Kevin McCarthy took to the Mariner's Facebook page on Tuesday to share a photo and express his feelings on the election, writing that despite disagreements, Cohasseters on both sides of the issues were still working together.

"For the record Ray Kasperowicz, Coho Republican Chair and I, Chair of Coho Democrats, were the first ones out at town hall this morning. It was still a little dark and we pleasantly greeted each other in the morning mist as we went about putting up our respective signs. A short while later I took this picture and thought, 'Today in Cohasset, Democracy Wins.'"

McCarthy also summed up his thoughts in an email to the Mariner, stating that while the town veered to the right in this election, local Dems press on.

McCarthy, who also chairs the South Shore Democratic Caucus, said that while local Democrats are "ecstatic with the results of the election," they are disappointed that their candidates didn't fare as well in Cohasset.

"I was disappointed that neither Warren or Obama won here in Cohasset and surrounding communities, but this area is known for being fairly conservative, and we local Democrats are not discouraged as we will continue to work hard advocating our policies and principles as well as carefully listening to those who disagree with us so we can best figure out how we can all work effectively together on behalf of a better America, which, at the end of the day, is what the voters want most of all," McCarthy wrote.

The DTC chair attributed Warren's victory in the Senate to her speech at the Democratic National Convention and support she received from local grassroots efforts and statewide support from the Democratic Party.

"The massive coordinated Get Out The Vote (GOTV) effort on behalf of Warren and the Democratic Party ticket was unprecedented and simply overwhelmed Scott Brown," said McCarthy. "I'm sure many Republicans don't quite know what hit them on Election Day, but in my opinion the massive grassroots GOTV strategy engineered by the Warren campaign and the Massachusetts Democratic Party was it."

The same can be said of Obama's victory, according to McCarthy, who said that a "massive national buildup of local grassroots offices and volunteer advocates, combined with a sophisticated and technologically oriented GOTV strategy, gave him a much broader win nationally than generally anticipated."

Elementary schools vote, too

The youngest Cohasset citizens, while too young to vote officially, also picked Romney for president.

Cohasset schools were open yesterday as voting took place in Town Hall, so children cast ballots of their own. While Deer Hill had online voting, Cohasset's youngest students at Joseph Osgood voted the old-fashioned way — in a cardboard voting booth, decorated in red, white and blue.

Osgood principal Robert LeCount reported that students cast 202 votes for Romney and 157 for Obama. And students didn't just vote on instinct but were educated on the candidates ahead of time.

"We prepped them, even our preschool students, with a film on the presidency and talked about voting," said LeCount.

After casting their ballots, kids received an "I Voted" sticker emblazoned with an American flag.

Deer Hill students, meanwhile, cast 263 votes for Romney and 175 for Obama, according to principal Dr. Jennifer DeChiara.

NEWS UPDATE

Former town manager suing town

Coughlin prepares suit

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

Former Town Manager Michael Coughlin, who was removed without cause in March, is suing the Board of Selectmen for their decision to fire him.

Coughlin's attorney Harold Lichten confirmed, "We are filing a lawsuit and are going through the final drafts."

While the suit has not yet been filed, the attorney stated that Coughlin "has retained me to file a suit."

Coughlin told the Mariner that attorney Douglas Louison, who represented Coughlin during public hearings on the former town manager in February, is also involved in the suit with Lichten serving as lead attorney.

The former town manager, who is also a lawyer, said that he is seeking damages for wrongful termination and reinstatement as town manager.

The selectmen suspended Coughlin in late February, claiming that he failed to communicate properly with town officials, and appointed resident Michael Milanoski as interim town manager. The board is currently seeking to extend Milanoski's employment contract with the town through 2015.

Coughlin said that he believes he will be vindicated in this case and is calling it a whistleblower suit, saying that he blew the whistle on the Water Commission when they were looking into a 20-year concessionaire contract to run the water department. Coughlin felt that he found a conflict of interest with commission chair Peter DeCaprio, who in the past had done business with a firm that owned Aquarion Water. Coughlin said that through emails between DeCaprio and Aquarion's president, he spotted a potential conflict of interest if Aquarion had wound up bidding on the water contract.

Aquarion did not end up as one of the bidders, and the water department did not enter into a 20-year concessionaire contract. However, Coughlin still feels he has a case based on an email in which DeCaprio allegedly wrote that unless Coughlin stayed out of the water commission's affairs, the water board chair would "personally lead the charge to have me removed," said Coughlin.

Coughlin also claims that the selectmen went into an illegal executive session on Feb. 7 to discuss Coughlin's contract without giving him prior knowledge. At the end of the meeting, when then-chairman Ted Carr announced the board would be going into executive session to discuss a non-union employee, Coughlin asked, "which employee?" Carr answered, "You."

The former town manager also stated that he was accused of poor financial management, but predicted back in February that the town would end the fiscal year in a surplus, "which of course we did." Coughlin feels that Milanoski is taking the credit for this due to a spending freeze he enacted in the spring, but Coughlin pointed out that the town "spent an enormous amount to get rid of me from office and launched a second trumped-up investigation on [suspended Police Chief] Mark DeLuca."

Coughlin claims Milanoski compensated for those costs by removing some employees, including former town engineers Mark Brennan and Tom Gruber, and not giving raises to town employees that Coughlin had promised raises to (Milanoski explained in the spring that the town did not have the money to cover those raises, and the selectmen rescinded the employee contracts Coughlin had signed).

Coughlin said that he is confident he will prevail in the suit because of victories he's had in other communities.

"As for me, like Westport, Northbridge and Southbridge before that, I believe I will be vindicated in Cohasset," Coughlin wrote in an email to the Mariner. "This time rather than rulings from state agencies as in Northbridge or an expected criminal indictment in Westport, vindication will come through a lawsuit where I seek damages for wrongful termination and reinstatement as Town Manager."

Brennan files age discrimination complaint

Former town employee Mark Brennan, who was laid off by Acting Town Manager Michael Milanoski in March along with fellow town engineer Tom Gruber, has filed a complaint with the state's Commission Against Discrimination.

Brennan, who is 64 years old, details in his complaint how Milanoski, 43, "undermined" his role by refusing to meet with Brennan and eventually terminated him and Gruber, 76. The two employees, who oversaw all of the town's construction projects and often worked full-time, were replaced with full-time employee Brian Joyce, 39, who is now the town's Director of Project Management and Planning.

"The position is responsible for all of the responsibilities and job duties that I carried out for the previous seven years," Brennan wrote in his complaint. "Mr. Milanoski has publicly stated that the town hall 'looks' great with all of the 'new' people he's been able to bring in. Furthermore, since his placement into the role of interim town manager, Mr. Milanoski has hired four new people, all of whom are significantly younger in me."

TOLL BROTHERS

Project takes toll on neighbors

Abutters air traffic concerns

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

Changes to a Toll Brothers construction project that was approved by the Planning Board have neighbors thinking that the construction company went back on their word.

In what was supposed to be a routine measure, the Board of Selectmen voted last Thursday night to approve a traffic and sidewalk plan for the Toll Brothers residential building project; the plans were previously approved by the Planning Board, and the selectmen were merely signing off on them to show that the Toll Brothers had made a good faith effort to meet the conditions the PB issued. Four of the 31 conditions issued by the PB (numbers 28 through 31) having to do with sidewalks and traffic required the selectmen's input, as sidewalks are the board's jurisdiction.

However, from public commentary that came hours after the selectmen made their vote, the board learned from an abutter to the project, Richard Fitzpatrick, that the Toll Brothers are trying to waive three of these conditions. The conditions involved building a 150-foot sidewalk on the north side of Beechwood that would link existing sidewalks on Beechwood on either side of Norman Todd Road; however, the plans the Toll Brothers presented to the selectmen did not include this portion of the sidewalk.

The project will add 41 detached single-family homes on Beechwood Street at the site of the vacant Hayes Estate and former "Cedarmere" development project. The construction will add a substantial amount of traffic to the intersection of Route 3A and Beechwood, which officials have labeled a dangerous intersection due to the number of serious accidents that have occurred there over the years, including a fatality in 1997.

Acting Town Manager Michael Milanoski, who has expressed concern over mitigating the traffic issues in that section of town, said Thursday that he approved of the improvements the Toll Brothers suggested.

"I'm fully in support of these plans," said Milanoski. "The Toll Brothers' engineers have done a great job with this improvement."

Paula Curran, Heritage Lane, said that she was worried about the traffic the project will add to an intersection where "we have accidents almost daily... it's a massive safety issue we have. I don't know if sidewalks solve the issue."

While accidents may not occur there every day, police reports indicate that Beechwood leads the pack as one of the most dangerous intersections in town.

Milanoski responded that the PB had already approved the Toll Brothers' plans that should "make 3A and Beechwood safer than it is now... We're doing everything in our power to move in a direction to make it better."

The selectmen voted unanimously to approve the plans.

However, after the board's regular business was completed a few hours later, another neighbor spoke up during the public comment portion of the meeting. Richard Fitzpatrick, Hammond Avenue, apologized for missing the Toll Brothers discussion earlier in the meeting (it had been moved to a different time slot on the agenda due to other topics running over time) but said that he was surprised to learn the Toll Brothers' sidewalk plans had changed since the PB approved them.

The new sidewalk was supposed to go all the way down Beechwood and connect with the sidewalk at Norman Todd Road, said Fitzpatrick; however, the plans the selectmen had just voted on did not include that portion of the sidewalk.

Another condition involved moving the proposed housing units' entrance/exit slightly to the west so that the driveway will not be directly in line with a driveway across the street. Fitzpatrick said that the Toll Brothers engineer said this would create engineering difficulties, however.

This is mitigation we fought months and months to get," Fitzpatrick said of the conditions. "We had neighbor after neighbor speak... The plan was changed, and I don't know of anyone who knows. Frankly, to find out now is infuriating. I don't know what can be done at this point."

Milanoski said that the plans had not been changed, but Fitzpatrick explained that while most of the plans were the same, there was "a piece missing, and it's the one thing we fought for."

Selectman Fred Koed said that if he knew the plans were missing a significant portion, he wouldn't have voted in favor.

Selectmen vice chair Diane Kennedy said she thought that the plans as presented were the same ones the neighbors were advocating for; apparently, the Toll Brothers "told us one thing and did something else."

Milanoski said, "My understanding was that this was a done deal," and suggested that he and two selectmen, two members of the Planning Board and two of the neighbors meet to review the plans and discuss the problems. Koed and selectman Martha Gjesteby agreed to be part of the review.

The conditions for the sidewalk will be discussed at next Wednesday's PB meeting. If the Toll Brothers want to make any changes to the plans that were already approved, the PB would have to decide whether or not the changes are substantial enough to reopen the hearing and vote on the conditions again.

Fitzpatrick said in a phone call that he hopes next week's PB discussion, scheduled for 7:30 p.m., will clear up the confusion.

"There are a number of neighbors who are upset about this and would like to get some clarity; things changed and we weren't notified," he said. "If nothing has changed, I don't know why they would have to talk about [the conditions]. That leads me to believe something has changed."

The Toll Brothers' attorney, Richard Henderson, could not be reached for comment by press time.

FIELD HOCKEY

Bright future in the cards

Young squad should contend for years

By William Wassersug
wwassersug@wickedlocal.com

Heading into the season, the Cohasset field hockey team was a young group looking to establish its own identity.

That group showed a ton of promise and looks to grow from within and under over the next few years.

"We came back this season with a group of players who had been together a fair amount of time, but in some cases who hadn't played a lot together," said Cohasset coach Laura Giuliano. "There were also a group of young players coming up. I can't say we were rebuilding as much as we were reorganizing. It took a little time to find the synergy they needed."

That said, Cohasset had itself a very good season both regular and playoff.

In the MIAA Div. 2 South Sectional.

"We had a winning season against stiff non-league competition," Giuliano said. "We got to the tournament early and kept getting better."

Cohasset finished the regular season 11-3-4 and earned the No. 9 seed in the tournament.

In the tournament, Cohasset started strong with a 1-0 win over No. 8 Foxborough (11-3-5).

"We played a tremendous game against Foxborough," Giuliano said. "After they (Cohasset) scored, they held Foxborough."

Allie Leahy scored Cohasset's lone goal on a breakaway.

"Allie had a tremendous breakaway goal," Giuliano

Skippers defense can't stop wishbone

Six touchdowns weren't quite enough for the Cohasset High football team Thursday night.

The Skippers scored on a pair of TD passes, three runs and a kickoff return, but host Mashpee used its dominant ground game to post a 49-41 win in a South Shore League shootout.

"The kids played hard," Cohasset coach Pete Afanasiw said, "but we were undersized up front. We don't have anyone over 225 pounds, and (Mashpee's) running backs average 225."

Jared Taylor's third TD run of the second half – a 30-yarder with four minutes left (he added the 2-point conversion run) – broke a 41-all tie and allowed Mashpee (6-3, 5-1) to temporarily move into second place in the SSL ahead of East Bridgewater (6-2, 4-1). Abington (8-0, 5-0) remains on top.

Cohasset (4-5, 2-3) had tied the score at 41-all on Tim Gillis' 5-yard run and Chris Haggerty's 2-point conversion run earlier in the fourth quarter.

Cohasset's last chance went by the boards when the Skip-

The Cohasset boys soccer team had a big start in the MIAA Div. 3 South Sectional Soccer Tournament, winning their first game 2-1 in penalty kicks over South Shore League rival Monomoy. with a 7-0 win over No. 4 New Testament at Bristol-Plymouth High School.

In the Monomoy win, Joe Buckley scored Cohasset's goal in regulation, and Sam Morris, Nick Brown, Teddy Craven and Alex Kent all scored in the penalty kick round to lead the Skippers. Goalie Pat Federle made a save on Monomoy's final penalty shot for the win.

While Monomoy was the No. 20 seed, they had tied Cohasset and played tough in a 1-0 Cohasset win during the regular season.

The win set them up to play No. 4 seed New Testament Christian School.

Cohasset jumped out early and never looked back as the No. 13 Skippers (12-6-2) knocked off New Testament Christian School 7-0.

While Monomoy was the No. 20 seed, they had tied Cohasset and played tough in a 1-0 Cohasset win during the regular season.

Seven different players scored for Cohasset as they moved into the quarterfinal round on Tuesday, at No. 12 seed Seekonk (13-6-3).

That one didn't go as well, as the Skippers were eliminated in a 1-0 loss.

Congratulations on a great season.

Mackenzie has been Cohasset's leader from the center-mid position, pushing the ball up the field, feeding the forwards and getting back on the defense. Coach Laura Giuliano said stats don't show up in the position, but her contribution was immense in helping goal-scorers and preventing goals, especially on defensive corners.

SciCoh Sharks win way to Superbowl

The Cohasset Mariner

Last Sunday the 7th Grade Scituate Cohasset football team, better known as the SciCoh Blue Sharks traveled to Duxbury to play Marshfield in this year's opening round of the playoffs.

The Sharks boasting a league best 8-0 record knew it would not be an easy game. Last year when these two teams met in the playoffs it took two overtimes for the Sharks to emerge victorious.

The game began the way the season began, with the offensive line of Jack Fechter, Sean McNeil, Will Schwartz, Keven Long, Chase Bomeisler and Jack Moskowitz serving as Captains. Offensive line coaches Chris Pyne and Mike Fechter knew they would need the line to play tough against the well sized Marshfield Defense, and play well they did. The backfield Quartet of Will Bowen, Will Greer, Jake Koncius and Liam Maguire ran well all day, finding the holes in the "D" that were opened up by the aforementioned "O" Line. Will Greer pounded up the middle for the first of three Shark touchdowns. Quarterback Deven Varney connected on 10 passes to our two "Gronks" Will Thomas and Charlie Pyne, as well as two huge passes to Bowen.

The game was tied, Marshfield had the ball on the SciCoh 42, with third and two yards to go Marshfield tried to run the ball up the middle and for two straight downs the stingy Sharks let up one-and-a-half yards stopping the drive and allowing the offense to go on the attack. As defensive Freddy Maguire often says "rock fight!"

Sharks ball. After three downs that did not yield any yardage the team was facing a fourth and ten from their own forty yard line. Offensive Coordinator Paul Bowen let his quarterback decide on whether or not to punt or pass depending on the defense that Marshfield was playing, Varney chose pass and Will Bowen turned the decision into a game winning completion. A few minutes later Bowen also followed great blocking and ran 20 yards for the insurance touchdown.

Although the offense scored three touchdowns the key to this team for the past four years has been the defense.

The Sharks Defense allowed only 42 point in eight games this season with several shutouts. The Defense is led by several standout players.

The cornerback tandem of Jason Dwight and Luke Murphy as well as the defensive end combo of Alex DeFreitas, Danny Durkin and Kevin Callahan make it impossible for teams to go outside or throw short passes. If the opponents try to go up the middle they are met rudely by the Defensive line that is manned by several players that rotate their time so they stay fresh and ready for action.

The line includes Victor Najjar, JJ Jordan, Will Thomas, Will Schwartz, Chris Pyne and Sean McNeil. If anyone is lucky enough to get through the line they are met by the teams leading tackler Andrew Blanchard, and the other two linebackers Cal Osten and Jackson Mansi. Tommy Carrabes is the safety and provides the final punishment before the whistle. Whenever we need to bolster either side of the ball several players step up and help including Matthew Davidson, David Burke, John Burke, and Matthew Thomas.

This week the 9-0 Sharks invite all Scituate and Cohasset sports fans to the Superbowl in Hanover at Hanover High School at 8 p.m.

Wear your Blue and White.

Go Sharks!!!!!

COASTAL STARS

Mite A2 falls 2-1 in hard-fought game against Cape Cod

At the beginning of the first period, Charlie Mosca, Charlie Simpson, and Jack Croft each made nice attempts on goal, while Stars goalie Zephyr Jones made a great save. For most of the period the Stars did a good job of keeping the puck in the Sharks zone, forcing their goalie to stay alert. With another beauty of a save by Jones, the game was scoreless going into the second period.

At the top of the second, Nate O'Brien and Lucas Brown each had shots on goal, while Heather Degust did a great job of clearing the defensive zone. Though the Sharks kept the pressure on Jones, he continued to save each shot taken until the last minute of the period when the Sharks led 1-0.

During the top of the third period, the Stars turned up the heat. Brown put the pressure on with three consecutive shots on goal, but with a minute left in the period the Sharks snuck one by Jones, making the score 2-0. In an incredible effort with just 43 seconds remaining, Croft scored for the Stars nearly tying up the game.

pers turned the ball over on downs at the Mashpee 40 in the closing seconds.

The teams alternated touchdowns all night, starting with Malik Lee's 50-yard punt return for a score in the first quarter for Mashpee. Cohasset QB Chris Haggerty answered with a 15-yard TD pass to his brother Shane, who then added the PAT for a 7-6 lead after one quarter.

Chris Haggerty later threw a 30-yard TD pass to Rocco Laugelle. In his last three games, Chris Haggerty has eight TD passes with no interceptions. "He's throwing touchdowns like they're going out of style," Afanasiw said. "He's doing a nice job back there."

Laugelle also scored on runs of 45 and 4 yards. Cohasset's other score came on a 70-yard kickoff return by sophomore Cole Kissick.

Taylor had scoring runs of 4, 31 and 30 yards for Mashpee. Lee had a 15-yard TD run to go along with his punt-return score, and the Falcons also got TD runs from fullback John Bernard and QB Cody Bingham-Hendricks.

"They used the wishbone the entire way," Afanasiw said. "They were able to pound off that all night. We really didn't have any answer for it, unfortunately, just like they couldn't stop our passing game."

said. "We had a few tremendous breakaways."

In Cohasset's quarterfinal game at Apponoquet, the Lady Skipppers couldn't take the momentum and turn it into a win.

Instead, they fell behind early and couldn't catch up.

The breaker though, was an inadvertent whistle that changed the game.

"We were down 1-0 with about four minutes left," Giuliano said. "The ball was in front of the net and the ref blew a whistle thinking Apponoquet had scored. When he came down he said play on, and they scored on an undefended net. It was an unfortunate mistake."

After that, Cohasset didn't have the same intensity.

"I hadn't lost hope until then," Giulino said. "It was like the Thrill of Victory .. the Agony of Defeat."

Giuliani felt her team had a good season.

"We had 18 freshmen, and there are more talented players coming up through Beth's (Beth Gilman's program (Cohasset Youth Field Hockey)," she said. "The girls get here passionate about field hockey."

Her feeling was positive.

"We had a great season," Giuliano said. "It was very positive. We had a wonderful group of young women. I'm really pleased."

LACROSSE

Laxachusetts to aid Brady's Bunch

Local lacrosse club playing at Thayer Saturday

The Cohasset Mariner

Anyone looking for some fun lacrosse action should head over to Thayer Academy on Saturday to watch, or if you're a member of Laxachusetts Lacrosse, play West Coast based Brady's Bunch, a program founded by Mike Wein as a way to honor his young son Brady, who is battling cancer and to spread the message that everyone should live every day to the fullest. There is no cost for Laxachusetts players to play.

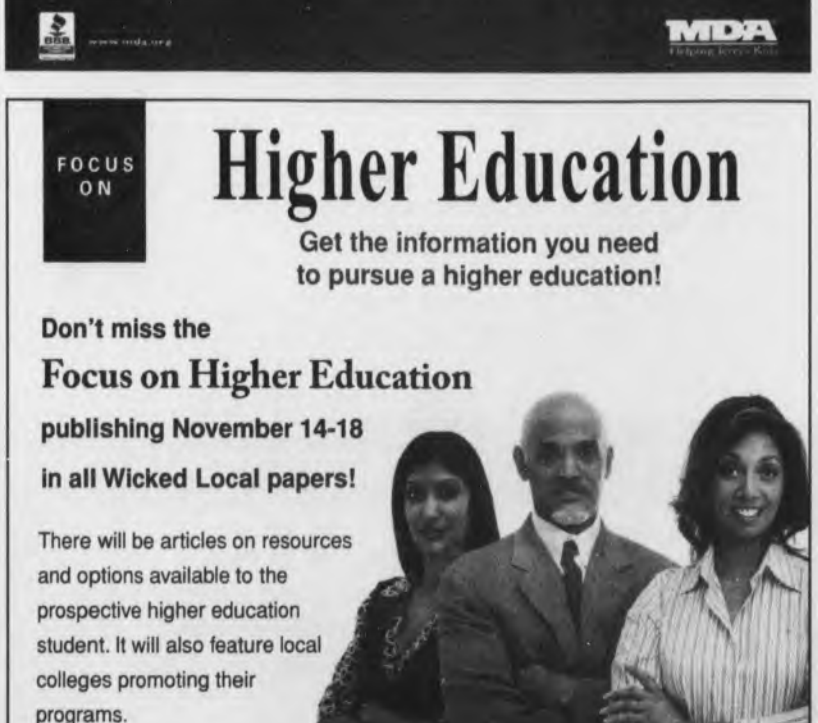
Game times will be:

1200pm Field 3 - Laxachusetts 2013 vs Brady's Bunch 2013

1200pm Field 4 - Laxachusetts 2014 vs Brady's Bunch 2014

100pm Field 3 - Laxachusetts 2015 vs Brady's Bunch 2015

100pm Field 4 - Laxachusetts 2016 vs Brady's Bunch 2016



200pm Field 3 - Laxachusetts 2013 vs Brady's Bunch 2013

Laxachusetts is asking as many 2013, 2014, 2015, and 2016 players who can come down to play 1-2 games against the Brady's Bunch Teams, meet little Brady, Coach DeMaio and Coach Mike Wein along with the highly competitive Brady's Bunch players.

If you are available on Saturday, we are asking that you please come down and compete for a great cause.

MIAA adopts new playoff plan

More teams in playoffs to crown true state champs

By John Botelho
The Brockton Enterprise

Next season, every high school Super Bowl played in Massachusetts will take place at Gillette Stadium in Foxboro.

There will be far fewer of them, though.

By a vote of 161-131 last Friday, the MIAA adopted a new statewide football playoff plan that will crown six true state champions instead of the current 19 regional ones (EMass, Central Mass. and Western Mass.).

The new proposal, authored in part by Stoughton coach Greg Burke, will be implemented for the 2013 and 2014 seasons on a trial basis.

"I just looked at it that we needed a change," Duxbury athletic director Thom Holdgate said after the vote at Assabet Valley Regional High. "Nineteen Super Bowls is obviously too many. Talking to my coach, talking to other people in the (Patriot) League, no one thinks this new plan is perfect. It is definitely better than what we have now, though."

The new plan dramatically increases playoff participation since it allows multiple teams from the same league to qualify. Under the current system only league champs are invited.

Teams will play their complete league (or division) schedules in the first seven weeks. Playoff qualifiers could play up to five playoff games, including Super Bowls. In Weeks 8-10 a committee will set schedules for non-playoff teams and for playoff losers that drop back into regular-season play.

Everyone will play their regular Thanksgiving games, although some rivalries between league foes (Hull vs. Cohasset; BC High vs. Catholic Memorial; Plymouth North vs. Plymouth South; Rockland vs. East Bridgewater; Archbishop Williams vs. Cardinal Spellman, etc.) will be rematches of early season games.

Under the new plan, Scituate would play in Div. 4 South, a 16-team division that includes Sharon, Westwood, Canton, Middleboro, Randolph, Foxboro, Apponequet, Holliston, Medway, Dedham, Wareham, Norton, Hanover, Bishop Stang and Coyle Cassidy.

Full details of the plan are available at www.miaa.net.

"It'll be a lot harder (for Duxbury)," said Holdgate, whose team has won back-to-back EMass Super Bowls. "The theory is that this will be for the greater good of the entire league and for the greater good of all the good teams in the area."

"I look at East Bridgewater (of the South Shore League), who goes 9-2 and then 10-1 the last two years and they've been at home after Thanksgiving," Holdgate said. "It's teams like that is who this vote is good for."

East Bridgewater is hardly alone.

Under the new proposal, area teams such as Weymouth, Hingham, Scituate, Whitman-Hanson, Marshfield, Bridgewater-Raynham and Holbrook/Avon all likely would have made the playoffs last season. Instead, their final snaps of 2011 were in their Thanksgiving games

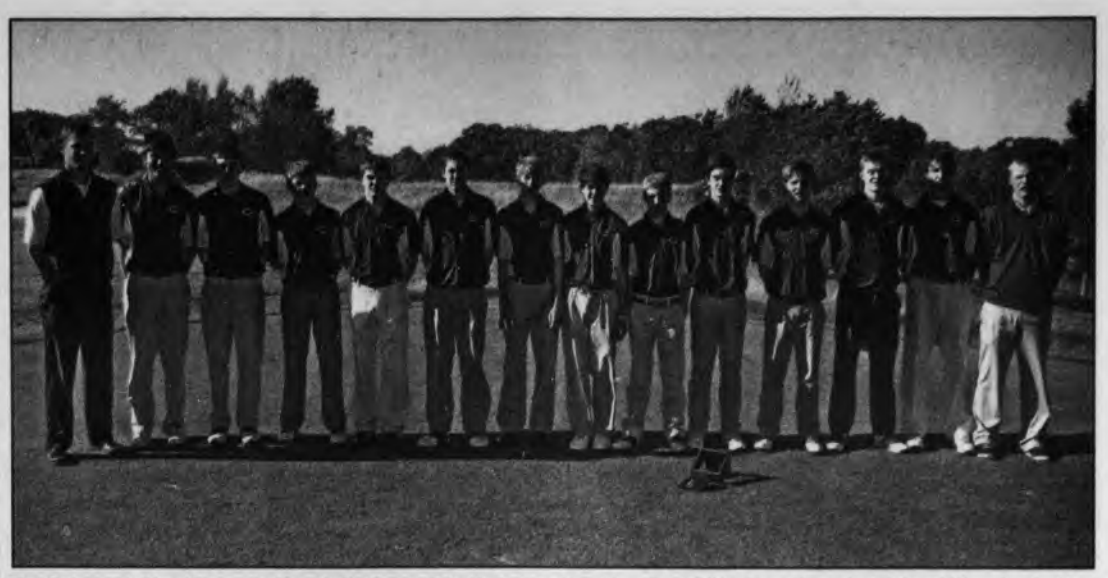
The plan is a safer one for area players, as Super Bowl participants will not have to cram three games into 10 days – Thanksgiving (Thursday), state semifinal (the following Tuesday), Super Bowl (Saturday).

Under the new system, the state semifinals will be staged the week before Thanksgiving, leaving only 12 teams playing after the holiday.

"That was very difficult," B-R athletic director and football coach Dan Buron said of the short turnaround under the old system. "I thought that was something that could have been addressed with the old plan. We had one year going into the playoffs where I lost my starting tailback in that game. This alleviates that problem for a coach."

Randolph is on board with the new system since it allows teams such as the Blue Devils that play an independent schedule to qualify for the postseason. Without a league affiliation they are excluded under the current set-up.

Not everyone on the South Shore was in favor of the plan, though.



South Shore Votech AD Joe Marani acknowledged that having 19 Super Bowl champions is "absurd," but he noted, "It's the same group of people running football for the last 20 years (who inflated the number of Super Bowls in the first place). And what are we saying about the past 15 years and all those kids who won (regional) Super Bowls – (that those titles) were crap?"

Marani said he would have preferred a Super Eight-style elite tournament for football. "Winning state championships is not the reason kids come to voke schools," he said. "We do have a different slant on it ... We work hard at keeping our programs going, never mind trying to win a state championship."

While the eight-team South Shore League will have no problem fitting its full schedule into the first seven weeks of the season under the new plan, that's not the case in the 11-team Bay State Conference. That's part of the reason why Braintree and Milton were opposed to it, although Weymouth was on board.

The plan may not be perfect, but the majority of voters Friday decided that it was a significant improvement over what many viewed as broken a system.

"We needed to try this, even if we have some reservations," Buron said. "We can give it a shot and then re-evaluate in two years. It's moving in the right direction, though."

Cohasset completes inaugural season

New JV plays six matches

The Cohasset Mariner

Cohasset High School boys golf program expanded this fall with the formation of a new junior varsity team. There were a dozen freshmen players who went through tryouts for the golf team this year. As a small town school and with outstanding athletic programs, CHS prides itself in attempting to best try to accommodate students' choices in their athletic interests.

Thanks to Ron Ford, CHS Athletic Director in conjunction with Cohasset resident, George McGoldrick, the school was able to access and field a JV team at Black Rock Country Club in Hingham to practice and play home matches. The team also benefitted from two of Black Rock's golf professionals, Eric Zadorian and Greg Hay, who coached the team this fall.

The team played a total of six matches against other junior varsity teams from other schools. For many of the team members, this was the first experience to play in a competitive environment. Also new was the match-play format which is customary in the South Shore League. Every member of the team was able to participate in a match. Although record for the season was 1-4-1, the experience the boys obtained was invaluable.

We recently read about the success of the varsity team, winning another South Shore League title. The varsity team will be losing six players next year due to graduation, including the top three players.

With the formation of the JV team, CHS hopes to continue to build and remain competitive in this sport in future years.

Anne Thornton of Hanover (back) as Clairee and Lisa Pratt of Cohaset as M'Lynn share a scene together.

The Cohasset Dramatic Club is bringing a bit of Broadway to town. The players present Robert Harling's comedy "Steel Magnolias" this month in the Town Hall auditorium, directed by Theresa Chiasson of Braintree, produced by Mark Bono of Milton with stage manager Bill Stiles from North Easton. Featuring a cast of CDC veterans and newcomers alike, "Steel Magnolias" is the quintessential story of friendship, trust, and love. At one moment, the play serves up a Southern slice of life that's as warm and comforting as sweet potato pie; the next moment, the six very different women come together to share their secrets and fears.

From weddings to divorces, babies to funerals, new beginnings to happy endings, the women share each moment with grace, determination and perfectly-coiffed hair.

Performances are Nov. 9, 10, 16 and 17 at 7:30 p.m. and on Nov. 11 and 18 at 2 p.m.

Board the Polar Express in Buzzards Bay.

More than 90,000 people attended Boston Ballet's "The Nutcracker" last year, making it the most popular holiday performance in the Boston area. But it has plenty of competition, thanks to the abundance of arts organizations in the city and suburbs.

Holiday Arts Preview

This year, you'll find your favorite events, as well as new ones. Each brings people together to experience the hope and joy of the season through the inspiration of art, dance, theater and music.

The Boston Ballet has rebooted "The Nutcracker" with new costumes and sets, while nearly every ballet company and many ballet schools also stage the Tchaikovsky classic. Dickens' "A Christmas Carol" has long been a tradition. The Boston Pops hosts a great party, while local orchestras also perform pops concerts.

With something for everyone, "The Christmas Revels" and "A Celtic Christmas Sojourn" combine music, dance and storytelling to bring traditional Celtic celebrations to contemporary audiences. The Christmas stories of authors Truman Capote and Dr. Seuss are translated for the stage, as is the film "It's a Wonderful Life."

Handel's "Messiah" and Bach's "Christmas Oratorio" are beloved performances of the Handel and Haydn Society.And, the voices of more than half a dozen choruses or community orchestras, all will celebrate the season. Enjoy!

New 'Nutcracker' breaks things up in Boston

By Jody Feinberg
GateHouse News Service

What to do with the kids during the holidays? Here are some suggestions the whole family will love.

Dance

"The Nutcracker," Boston Ballet, Boston Opera House, Nov. 23 - Dec. 30. www.bostonballet.org. After 16 years, the Boston Ballet has retired its costumes and sets and hired award-winning designer Robert Perdziola to create new ones, giving a new feel to its signature production.

"The Nutcracker," Jose Mateo Ballet Theatre, The Duxbury Performing Arts Center, November 24-25; The Sanctuary Theatre, Cambridge. December 1-16; The Strand Theatre, Dorchester, December 22-24. www.ballettheatre.org. This professional company offers a more intimate experience in smaller venues where no one is far from the dancers.

"Urban Nutcracker," Ballet Rox, John Hancock Hall, Dec. 8-9, 14-16, 21-23 www.urbannutcracker-boston.com. This is Tchaikovsky meets Duke Ellington, tap and hip-hop in an urban-inspired mash-up.

"The Nutcracker," Ballet Arts Worcester, Hanover Theatre, Worcester, Nov. 23-25. www.hanovertheatre.org.

Polar Express

"The Polar Express," Cape Cod Central Railroad, Buzzards Bay and Hyannis, Nov. 15 - Dec. 30. www.CapeCodPolarExpressRide.com

"The Polar Express," Edaville USA, Carver, Nov. 26-28, Dec. 3-5, 10-11 and Jan. 2-3. www.edaville.com.

Theater & Music

"A Christmas Carol," Trinity Repertory Theatre, Providence, Nov. 10- Dec. 29. www.trinityrep.com. Like the ghosts of Christmas's past, the Dickens' classic is a timeless tale that never loses its meaning.

"A Christmas Carol," North Shore Music Theatre, Beverly, Dec. 7-23, www.nsmt.org.

"A Christmas Carol," Hanover Theatre, Worcester, Dec. 15-16, 21-24. www.hanovertheatre.org.

"How the Grinch Stole Christmas! The Musical," adapted from the Dr. Seuss story, Citi Performing Arts Center Wang Theatre, Boston, Nov. 23 - Dec. 9. www.citcenter.org. This family show is like stepping inside the picture book with a 16-song soundtrack.

"Black Nativity," Blackman Auditorium, Northeastern University, Dec. 14-16 and Dec. 21-22,. www.blacknativity.org. A cast of 160 tells the nativity story through singing, dancing, the Gospel of St. Luke and the poetry of Langston Hughes.

"Christmas Time," Reagle Music Theatre, Waltham, Dec. 7-16. www.reaglemusictheatre.org. A musical spectacular for more than 30 years, with a full orchestra, Victorian carolers, 75 elves, Parade of the Wooden soldiers and a nativity pageant.

5 QUESTIONS FOR SANTA

1. How are the elves doing with their toy making this year? Did Superstorm Sandy set them back?
HO HO HO! Thank you for asking! The elves are their usual happy industrious selves this year! They're doing their best work and making enough toys for all the good little girls and boys. HO HO HO! Fortunately, Superstorm Sandy didn't hit Santa's Village. We were all concerned about the people affected by her.

2. How will you find all the children who have been displaced by the storm?
HO HO HO! Children who have been displaced have friends and neighbors who let Santa know where they are!

3. If a house's chimney has been knocked down, how will you get in?
HO HO HO! A lot of people don't realize that not everybody's home has a chimney! If a house doesn't have a chimney, the reindeer and the elves help Santa deliver the toys through a window. HO HO HO!

4. Has Global Warming affected the weather up at the North Pole?
Yes. It used to be funny when people made pictures of me with sunglasses and a surfboard, but that may be what really happens. The reindeer are already taking swimming lessons.

5. Is it best to write you a letter with my Christmas list, or do you mind getting emails or tweets? And, are you on Facebook?
HO HO HO! My favorite means of communication is still the old tried and true letter to Santa... but I respond to almost anything. However, emails are so last year. You can text your wish list to Santa at 617-901-6232. My typical response is "Thank you. I'll see what I can do!"

Thank you to Kevin Driscoll of Framingham who put us in touch with Santa. For more information, visit www.Driscoll-Productions.com or at Driscoll-Productions on Facebook.

HOLIDAY ARTS PREVIEW | MUSEUMS

Art as our holiday aesthetic

By Chris Bergeron
DAILY NEWS STAFF

A grueling presidential election has passed. The Pats and Celtics are struggling for former glory. And the approaching New England winter makes us shiver with anticipation.

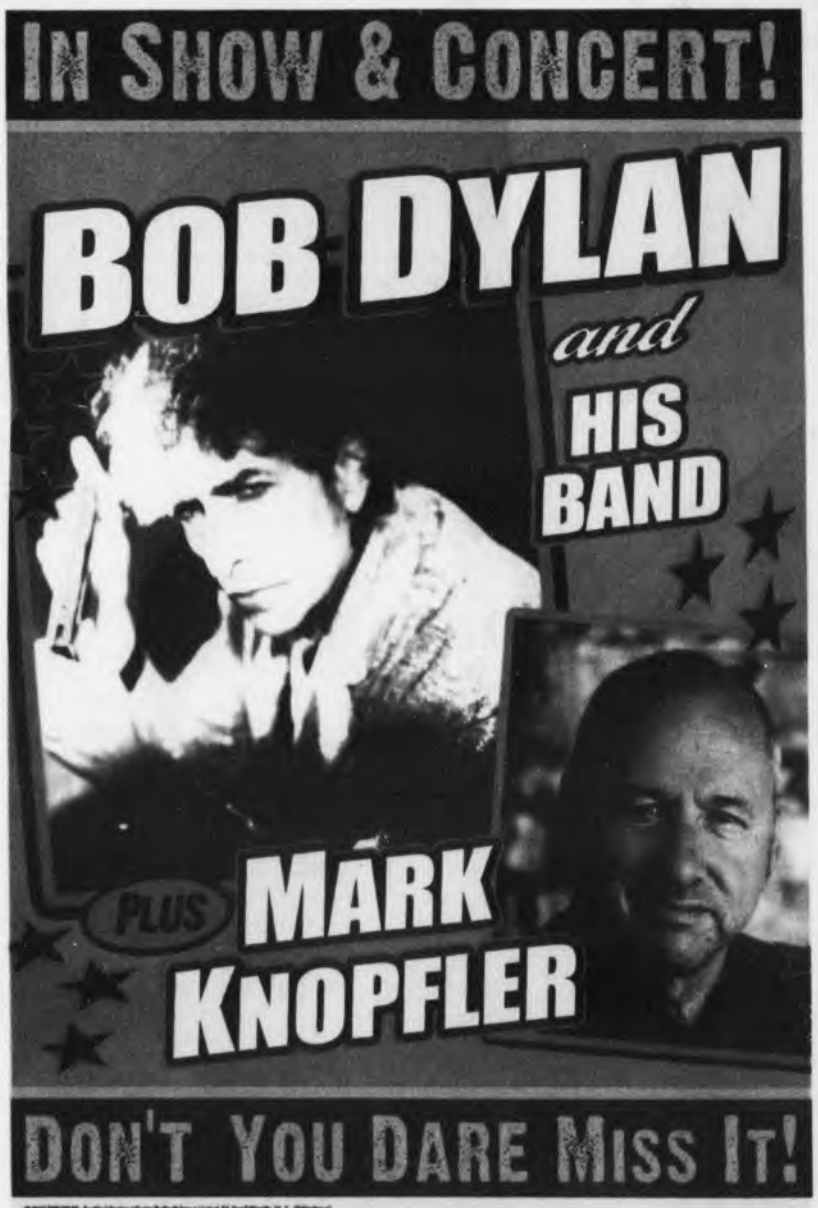
That's exactly why we need exciting art to transport us into realms of beauty and imagination.

Why not start on Nov. 15 when milliner-to-the stars Stephen Jones presents 42 funky, outrageous and fabulous hats in a 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. runway extravaganza at the Peabody Essex Museum in Salem. From silk turbans and plumed bonnets, they're featured in the ongoing "Hats: An Anthology by Stephen Jones" through Feb. 3. Or, if you're looking for art that's monumental in scale and exquisitely crafted, check out the four, 36-foot-long Pastrana Tapestries commissioned around 1460 by King Alfonso V of Portugal, and now considered among the finest Gothic tapestries in the world. On view through Dec. 31. For info, visit www.pem.org.

Closer to home for MetroWest residents, the Danforth Museum and School of Art will open on Nov. 18, "Eternal Presence," an important retrospective of sculptor, painter and printmaker John Wilson, a Roxbury native whose powerful art explores racial injustice. The Framingham museum will be concurrently showing paintings by Richard Yarde, who created memorable watercolors of African-American life, and sculptures by Framingham resident Meta Vaux Warrick Fuller. All three shows run through March 24. For info, visit www.danforthmuseum.org.As days get shorter, the Concord Museum has scheduled several family-friendly exhibits, events and activities that celebrate local traditions. On Nov. 21, the museum is opening its 17th annual "Family Trees: A Celebration of Children's Literature" when its galleries will be filled with 36 wondrous trees decorated with original ornaments inspired by beloved children's storybooks. The museum's ongoing "The Greatest Source of Wealth: Agriculture in Concord" is a fascinating treat that examines Concord's history, economy and changing population through the prism of farming. Featuring 1,000-year-old Native American stone tools and a robotic milking machine, it runs through March 17. On Saturday, Dec. 8, the Concord Museum will hold its second annual Holiday House Tour from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., with visits to seven of Concord's most beautiful private homes decorated in the holiday spirit. For info, visit www.concordmuseum.org.

Jeff Koons, "Rabbit," 1986, at the ICA

Under new director Matthias Waschek, Worcester Art Museum has organized several holiday season concerts, events and fast-paced "Zip" tours of a single work in addition to its moving ongoing photo exhibit, "Kennedy to Kent State: Images of a Generation," which runs through Feb. 3. On Friday, Nov. 23, the museum is offering Holiday Family Photo Ops from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. in pre-selected time slots. For a $50 sitting fee, a WAM photographer will shoot a memorable family photo in the beautiful Chapter House. Call 508-793-4334 for required reservations. On Sunday, Nov. 25, John Delorey will direct a 2 p.m. concert by the WPI Vocal Performance Lab in the Renaissance Court and on Sunday, Dec. 9, Michelle Graveline will direct the Salisbury Singers at 2 p.m. On Saturday, Dec. 23 at 2 p.m., Karen Leonard will direct the Merrimack Valley Ringers. Jill Slosburg-Ackerman's ongoing mixed media installation "In Rome," consists of hundreds of elements, drawings, photos, paintings, video and sculpture grouped in visual episodes in the Contemporary Gallery. It runs through March 31. For info, visit www.wam.org.



Mickalene Thomas, "Baby I'm Ready Now," 2007, at the ICA

In Lincoln, the deCordova Sculpture Park and Museum will be showcasing provocative installations by Julianne Swartz in "How Deep is Your" and "Jean Shin and Brian Ripel: Retreat" which explores different aesthetic strategies for escaping the tribulations of everyday life. Both shows are on view through Dec. 30. For info, visit www.decordova.org.

Three cutting-edge exhibits will be opening at the Institute of Contemporary Art in Boston starting on Nov. 15 with a monumental retrospective, "This Will Have Been: Art, Love and Politics in the 1980s," devoted to 90 major artists including Jean-Michel Basquiat, the Guerilla Girls, Jeff Koons, Robert Mapplethorpe and more. On Dec. 12, Icelandic artist Ragnar Kjartansson will explore myth, identity and cultural history through music and performance in his first American exhibit, and Mickalene Thomas, of New York, will open her exhibit of vibrant acrylic and enamel paintings. For info, visit www.icaboston.org.

At the Isabella Stewart Gardner Museum on Thursday, Nov. 15 at 7 p.m., the innovative Berklee College of Music ensemble "Program," led by drummer Terri Lyne Carrington, explore new directions in jazz. On Sunday, Nov. 18 at 1:30 p.m., Jennifer Johnson Cano and Christopher Cano will perform classical selections. For tickets call 617-278-5156 or visit www.gardnermuseum.org.

This month, an eclectic selection of exhibits will open at the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston, starting with "Chinese Lanquer: 1200-1800" and "Divine Depictions: Korean Buddhist Paintings," both on Nov. 16. And on Dec. 15, the international poster craze will be explored in "Art in the Streets: European Posters." For info, visit www.mfa.org.

HOLIDAY ARTS PREVIEW | CLASSICAL & FOLK

Sounds of the winter solstice

By Keith Powers
Correspondent

Oliver Cromwell's Rump Parliament prohibited the sinful practice of singing Christmas music. That's why the Protestants first came to America.

Of course that bit of musical insight bears no resemblance to actual history - except for the singing ban, which actually did happen. (We're thinking that like all of us, Cromwell got annoyed by hearing holiday music on the radio the day after Halloween.)

But if the Protestants did come here to establish a foothold for holiday music, they succeeded. Every town in this commonwealth seems to have a chorus or an orchestra singing some version of Messiah or playing the Christmas Oratorio. And that's just classical music. Rock 'n' rollers have "So This Is Christmas," kids have "Elmo Loves Christmas," and even down-and-dirty blues players have "Santa Claus Wants Some Lovin'."

Musica Sacra

So why would anyone actually go to a holiday concert (besides honoring our brave Protestant forebears)? Because some of them are good, and some are even great. "Messiah" has had million bad performances, and is the source of countless YouTube jokes. But a grand performance of "Messiah" by a group like Handel & Haydn Society - which gave its first performance of Handel's stunning oratorio in 1818 - is a memory that lasts for a long time. And H&H isn't the only professional ensemble approaching the work with skill and a fresh eye: Boston Baroque's readings in the intimate setting of Jordan Hall are wondrous, and expert choral groups like Musica Sacra also bring the text to life with panache.

There is a serious exploration of music from different cultures during the holidays as well. The Revels always welcome the solstice season with something interesting (this year, Irish music and folklore). Various other European cultures come to life as well, through the work of groups like Blue Heron (France), Musicians of the Old Post Road (Germany), Exsultemus (Portugal, Spain), and Chorus pro Musica (Victorian England). The popular side of the holidays get brought to you by the Boston Pops, the terrific male vocalists of Chanticleer, and Brian O'Donovan's touring troupe A Christmas Celtic Sojourn.

One thing is undeniable: attending a holiday program with family and friends is what we should be doing -not racing around trying to max out credit cards at the big box stores. The new iWhatever can wait. Enjoy some good music this year.

Creating a new 'Holiday' memory

By Alexander Stevens
Correspondent

If watching one more production of "A Christmas Carol" is enough to turn you into a Scrooge, then the New Repertory Theatre in Watertown might be the right stop for your holiday family show this year.

They're staging "Holiday Memories," playwright Russell Vandenbroucke's reworking of two Truman Capote short stories – "The Thanksgiving Visitor" and "A Christmas Memory." It plays Dec. 9 to 23 at the Arsenal Center for the Arts in Watertown.

"She's very interesting," says Newton actress Adrianne Krstansky, describing her role as the elderly and elusive aunt at the center of the story. "It's always fascinating to play someone who actually existed, even though she's not famous. She comes from the mind and imagination of Truman Capote, looking back on his childhood. She's a recluse, but she has this incredibly special relationship with this boy."

The boy is Buddy, or perhaps more accurately, Capote, in this largely autobiographical tale, set in Depression-era Alabama, a time and place when an orange constituted a kickass Christmas gift. "Holiday Memories" is a poignant, bittersweet short story. It's Capote's carefully observed tale of small town life, of families of meager means, of how friendships are ultimately the only things of lasting value.

Buddy has very little in life, but he's got Sook, a distant aunt with whom he forges a unique friendship, despite the big differences in their ages. Buddy is 7 in the story (but he's played by Boston University student Michael Ciszewski in this production); Sook is in her 60s.

"I'm playing someone much older than I am. Be sure to underline that 16 times," jokes Krstansky.

These kinds of intergenerational relationships may be a thing of the past. Is it just our perception, or are kids these days less likely to create friendships with people who are much older?

"When I grew up in Chicago, I was always surrounded by aunts and uncles and grandparents," says Krstansky. "But we've all moved away from home. My child is not growing up with his grandparents."

That may be a loss.

"The thing that's so beautiful about the friendship in the play is that it's beneficial to both of them," says Krstansky. But it's also what gives the story its poignancy. "They are each other's family and each other's whole world. But they're both very conscious of the fact that she's not going to be around for his whole life. The great message of the play is to be present for the ordinary but very remarkable things that happen in our lives."

Krstansky says there are parts of Sook's character that will come very naturally to her.

"I have an 8-year-old son," says the actress, "so I know what it's like to hang out a lot with a kid. Sook is very keyed into the psychology of kids; I think she's better at it than I am. And I understand the way she spends time alone. I enjoy things like nature and baking. Left to my own devices, I could be quite reclusive."

But there are other parts of Sook's character that pose more of a challenge for the actress.

"She's not a modern or contemporary woman," says Krstansky. "There's nothing in her that's at all feminist. And her wants and needs are very simple. I'm quite excited to step into her shoes."

In order to do that, Krstansky will also have to master the southern accent. She says that capturing the deep southern tone of the story is "vitally important" to making it sing, and she knows the southern dialect has a certain poetry that brings Capote's words to life. She also hopes the show will reflect those southern qualities of gentility and grace even in the face of the characters' humble circumstances.

Krstansky likes the word "humble." It seems it will be one of her keys for unlocking this character and telling this tale.

"There's a great humility in [Sook]," she says.

And although "Holiday Memories" doesn't end with a rousing, show-stopping musical number with high-kicking Rockettes and a Santa on a sleigh, it satisfies some key criteria for a good holiday show for the whole family.

"I think it will prompt some important reflection," says Krstansky. "I know that's the reason why I go to holiday shows. It's a chance to reflect. 'Holiday Memories' is vastly entertaining, but it also slows you down."

Treasured theater traditions

Live performances have become a treasured holiday tradition for many families. And our area always offers a host of holiday shows for patrons of all tastes. Here's a look at some of the theater-related offerings.

It often takes a cold-hearted old curmudgeon to help us understand the meaning of Christmas. Guys like Scrooge. But the best example may be the Grinch. The Dr. Seuss classic comes to life in a live stage performance, running Nov. 23 to Dec. 9 at the Wang Theatre in Boston. "Dr. Seuss' How the Grinch Stole Christmas! The Musical" features the songs "Welcome Christmas" and the unforgettable "You're a Mean One Mr. Grinch." And, yes, of course, you'll also get Max the dog.

At the Reagle Music Theatre in Waltham, they turn Christmas into a crowd-pleasing spectacle. They're likely to pack a cast of 200 performers onto the stage for their annual production of "ChristmasTime," playing Dec. 7-16. You'll be dazzled by the sight of it all – 40 singers, a full orchestra, Victorian carolers, a Nativity pageant, and, of course, 75 elves.

An Irish Christmas celebration in Boston? Sounds like a hit. Each year, the Christmas Revels takes patrons on a journey into the past to see how different cultures celebrated this season throughout the centuries. This year, it's all aboard a boat bound from Ireland to the New World. Along the way, everyone will enjoy an Irish music celebration of Christmas with a powerful chorus, blazing jigs and reels, Irish dancers, and some fantastic Irish storytelling. Join the festivities at the Christmas Revels, running Dec. 14-27 at Sanders Theatre in Cambridge.

Did we just say that Irish culture and Christmas make a good match? "A Christmas Celtic Sojourn" certainly agrees. They're celebrating their 10th anniversary of concerts. Join host Brian O'Donovan as he leads a procession of Irish musicians, singers and dancers onto the stage at Emerson's Cutler Majestic Theatre in Boston, Dec. 16, 20-22. The show is also performed Dec. 18 at the Hanover Theatre in Worcester.

Three good reasons to drive up to Beverly: the restaurants, the beaches and the classic production of "A Christmas Carol" that plays at the North Shore Music Theatre, Dec. 7-23. They've found the perfect balance of music, special effects, and good old-fashioned storytelling. David Coffee returns yet again to reprise his role of Scrooge in a production that's become a true, enduring holiday tradition.

OK, it's not technically a "holiday" show. But the prospect of Christmas looms over "Fully Committed" in a wonderful way. Mostly, you're dazzled as you watch a single actor conjure up a colorful collection of characters, as he plays the reservations host at a trendy New York restaurant. But hovering over it all is the character's own deadline: His attempt to get home for the holidays. Actor Gabriel Kuttner performs the role in a production of "Fully Committed" that runs Dec. 19-30 at the New Repertory Theatre's home at the Arsenal Center for the Arts in Watertown.

SALOME'S STARS FOR RELEASE WEEK OF NOV. 19, 2012

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Restless Rams and Ewes might want to let others finish a current project while they start something new. But if you do, you could risk losing out on a future opportunity.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) The Bovine's creative forces start revving up as you plan for the upcoming holidays. Some practical aspects also emerge, especially where money is involved.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Moments of doubt disrupt your otherwise clear sense of purpose. Don't ignore them. They could be telling you not to rush into anything until you know more about it.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A planned trip might have to be delayed. Plan to use this new free time to update your skills and your resume so you'll be ready when a new job opportunity opens.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) A flood of holiday party bids from business contacts allows you to mix work and pleasure. Your knowledge plus your Leonine charm wins you a new slew of admirers.

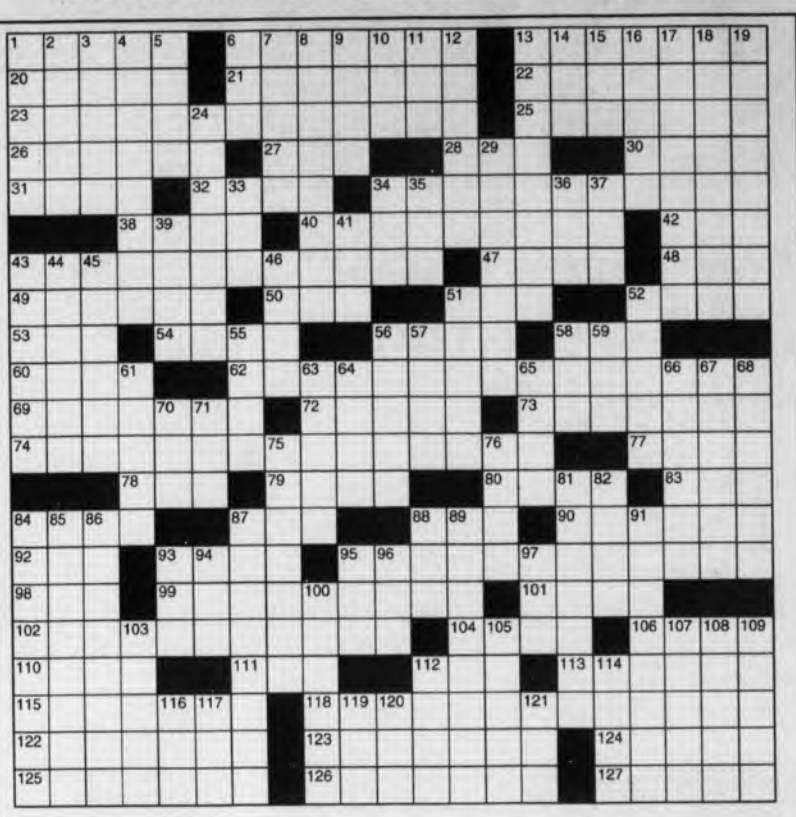
VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) An unexpected act by a colleague complicates an agreement, causing delays in implementing it. Check out the motive for this move: It's not what you might suspect.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You might want to cut ties with an ingrate who seems to have forgotten your past generosity. But there might be a reason for this behavior that you should know about. Ask.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Be careful not to set things in stone. Much could happen over the next several days that will make you rethink some decisions and maybe change them.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Your plans to help provide holiday cheer for the less fortunate inspire others to follow your generous example. Expect welcome news by week's end.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) You're in your glory as you start planning for the holiday season ahead. But leave time to deal with a problem that needs a quick and fair resolution.



AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) The upcoming holiday season provides a perfect setting for strengthening relationships with kin and others. A new contact has important information.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Instead of fretting over a cutting remark by a co-worker, chalk it up to an outburst of envy of your well-respected status among both your colleagues and superiors.

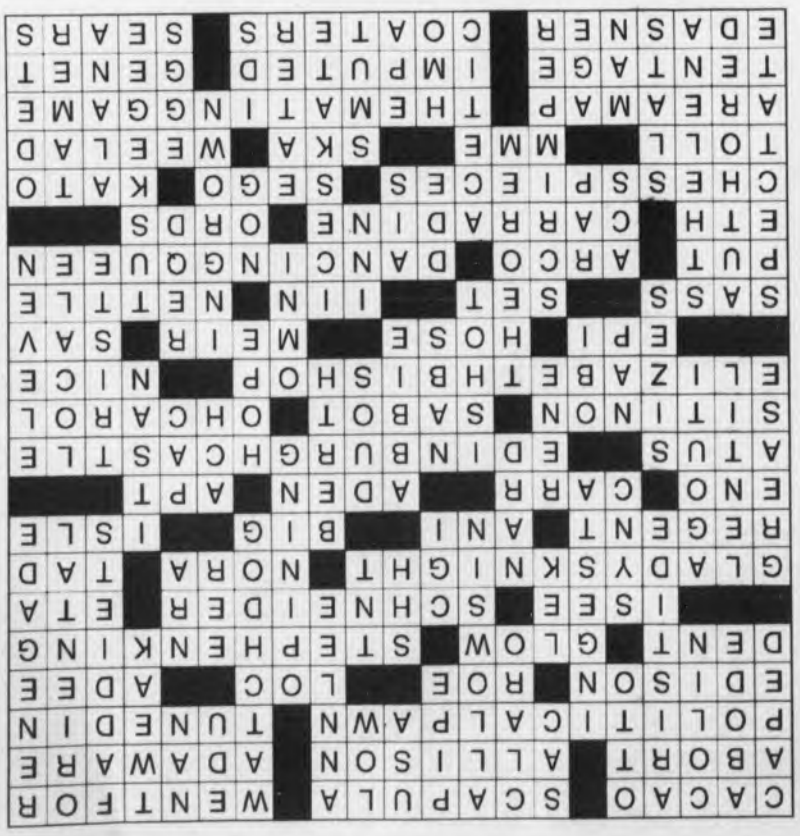
Level: Challenging



Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Rachel Sandham, 18, of Scituate talks with Jordy Keange Bene, 17, and Morgan Onoe, 17, both of Sucy-En-Brie about the different malls in the area which they wanted to visit on their last afternoon in Boston.

Au revoir, for now: French exchange students bid adieu

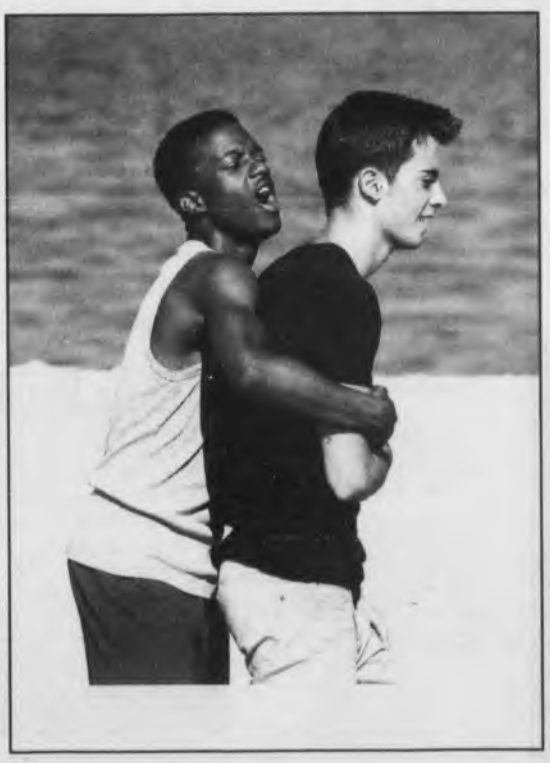
Local teens are getting the chance to experience life abroad through the Cohasset-Scituate-Sucy exchange program. Many ties have been formed between South Shore high school students and teens from the town of Sucy-en-Brie, France, located a few kilometers from Paris.

Forty families from Scituate and Cohasset hosted high school students from Sucy-En-Brie for 12 days starting on Oct. 17. Thirteen of the French students were hosted by Cohasset families.

On their final Saturday together, the French and American students had one last 'hurrah' with a farewell picnic and football game at Sandy Beach. The sunny day was enjoyed just a few days before Superstorm Sandy hit the coast.

In February, the South Shore students will head to France for two weeks.

Paolo Fornera, 17, of Sucy-En-Brie tries throwing a spiral while playing football with his American hosts.



Keaton Trevena, 17, of Scituate heads the ball during their pickup game of soccer against the French exchange students.

Far left, Frantz Olivier, 16, embraces Adrien Francisco, 17, both of Sucy-En-Brie after they had scored another goal in their game against their American hosts.

Left, Reed Westcott, 17, of Cohasset gets underneath the football while tossing the ball already with his new friends in the exchange program.

St. Stephen's Episcopal Church: A Service for the Entire Family of God!

St. Stephen's Episcopal Church is an inclusive, Christ-centered community committed to exploring the intersection of our faith and our lives. We invite you to join us on Sunday mornings and through a variety of special programs during the week. All are welcome to worship God with us at St. Stephen's!

This Sunday, November 11th, St. Stephen's invites you to celebrate with us at our "Family Service," which is worship that bends towards our younger element, but is for everyone, including YOU! Original music written by musicians at St. Stephen's and a video sermon by our Middle School Youth Group (the CIA) highlight the service.

Because the children will be in the service, our normal Godly Play program will be on hiatus this week. But on most Sundays our Godly Play children's program begins at 10am for children from Pre-K through 5th grade. Our middle school youth group, the CIA, also meets at 10am. The ROX senior high group meets at 11:30.

SPECIAL TOWN MEETING

Town Manager Act up for vote

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

After a long debate during Tuesday's board of selectmen's meeting, the draft warrant for the Dec. 10 special Town Meeting was approved. The warrant will be mailed to all residents by Nov. 16.

While much of the warrant consists of "housecleaning" articles, including unpaid bills from last year and other financial information, a few of the articles are "heavy hitters" that opponents have said are better suited for spring's annual Town Meeting; this includes an article asking voters to approve leasing the water plant land for a ground-mount solar array and another containing recommended changes to the Town Manager Act, suggested by the Governance Committee.

Selectmen debated whether the fall Town Meeting is for strictly minor issues, and whether the fall meeting is less attended than the spring meeting. After a public comment stating that the Dec. 10 meeting falls in the middle of Hannukah, selectmen and Acting Town Manager Michael Milanoski even discussed a possible date change.

Town Manager Act

One of the most hotly debated subjects that townspeople will get a chance to vote on at special Town Meeting is changes to the language of the Town Manager Act, as suggested by the Governance Committee. One of the committee's charges, when it was

ALTERNATIVE ENERGY

Officials sold on solar panel project

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

After a slight misunderstanding, it seems the Alternative Energy and Capital Budget committees are on the same page when it comes to the town's solar panel project.

Members of the Alternative Energy Committee (AEC) gave an update at the Nov. 1 Board of Selectmen meeting on the latest developments in the solar panel plan. The AEC has been meeting bi-monthly along with a subcommittee from the school board in order to meet its own timetable to publish a request for proposals (RFP) this month. The RFP will seek bids from solar panel vendors to lease town-owned land at the capped landfill (81-91 Cedar St.) and on the Middle-High School roof.

AEC co-chairwoman Tanya Bodell also shared that the committee is in talks with the water commission about the possibility of leasing a ground mount solar array on water department land.

"The property has nice southern exposure, and [the water commission] is very interested in trying to realize value from their assets," said Bodell, adding that water commission chairman Peter DeCaprio was on board with the idea and "finding ways to save money."

Bodell recommended, "for efficiency and expediency," placing an article on the warrant for the Dec. 10 special Town Meeting asking voters to approve leasing the water plant land for up to 20 years. This would also require an

The Conservation Commission recently denied an order of conditions and stormwater permit to applicant Ted Ford, who was represented by his brother Chris, to build a home at 559 Jerusalem Road. The ongoing saga that involved several public meetings full of heated debate from the Fords and some abutters, who expressed concerns over the project's potential environmental impact, has seemingly come to an end with this decision.

The commission ruled during their Thursday, Nov. 1 meeting that the project, which is within the 100-foot buffer zone of Straits Pond, would have a negative impact on the environment. One of the Conservation Commission's duties is to uphold the town's wetlands bylaw and protect critical environmental areas. While the commission is usually more concerned with the 50-foot buffer zone, commission chairman Jack Creighton said there was no guarantee from the applicants that their project would not disrupt the 50-foot buffer.

The construction project would have been "right up to 50 feet from Strait's Pond, a great environmental success story," said Creighton. "No way does the commission want to be in a position of allowing new development that could" harm Strait's Pond.

"There was some strong sentiment that in order to get this thing done, it did not seem at all possible without doing work in the 50-foot buffer area," Creighton continued. The applicants "said they would use track vehicles, but not real vehicles – like they wouldn't do any damage? There's only a 50-foot wide strip to build a new house on ledge that has to be chipped away... using staging areas, cranes, tracked vehicles... the construction

New book on town history

The seventh book on Cohasset history is being published in time for the gift-giving season. The book, along with the previous six volumes on the town, will be available for purchase at Buttonwood Books, the Historical Society, and in the town clerk's office.

The book, titled "Origins of Cohasset," was written by resident Jackie Dormitzer explores the town's earliest settlers and geology. Dormitzer expects the book to be available by Christmas. Check back in the Mariner for further updates.

Sports yard sale Saturday

Recycle. Renew. Reuse. The Cohasset Recreation Department is sponsoring a Sports Yard Sale, Saturday, Nov. 17 from 9-11 a.m. at Cohasset Recreation Center (behind the Red Lion). The sale will include gently used sports equipment including bicycles, skis/snowboards, boots, gloves, rackets, bats, balls, padding, helmets and much more.

Today (Friday, Nov. 16) is the last day for donations, which are being accepted between the hours of 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. also at the Recreation Center. All proceeds will benefit the Cohasset Recreation Center. Visit cohassetrec.com for more information.

Jingle Bell Walk set for Nov. 23

The South Shore Community Center would like to invite everyone to join in the fun as they present the 18th Annual Jingle Bell Walk on Friday, Nov. 23. The festivities will begin at 2 p.m. when Santa, Mrs. Claus and his elves, along with some special friends, arrive at Cohasset Harbor via a fishing boat. Join the parade and follow Santa's horse-drawn wagon to the Community Center where hot chocolate, coffee, punch and cookies will await.

There will be holiday carols and the Rusty Skippers Band will be there to provide music to get everyone into the holiday spirit. Big Ryan the Storyteller will entertain children of all ages and children will be able to create their own special holiday ornament to take home. There will be Open Bowling for all to enjoy.

Bring your cameras because Santa will be available for you to take that special holiday photo. And also enjoy your own Holiday Hayride around the Town Common.

POLICE BEAT

Smashed car window may be related to Hingham incidents

By Mary Ford
mford@wickedlocal.com

A 67-year-old Hull Street man reported to police last Monday (Nov. 5) that someone had thrown a rock through the window of his 2004 Subaru Forrester. The rock was found inside the car in the back behind the driver's seat. The incident occurred sometime between 7 a.m. and 7 p.m., police said.

This incident could be related to a rash of rock-throwing incidents in Hingham where the windows of upwards of a dozen vehicles have been broken by vandals who are likely throwing the rocks from a passing car.

RTF closed

Two residents who left their trash at the gate to the RTF on Sunday when it was closed due to Veterans Day were contacted and told to collect their trash, police said. A DPW worker found addresses in the trash and the residents were notified. Veterans Day is always observed on Nov. 11, which fell on a Sunday this year.

Missing money

A 44-year-old Cohasset woman reported last Tuesday (Nov. 6) that $100 from her pocketbook (5, $20 bills) was missing. The woman was not sure if where she lost the money, however. She thought it was either taken while she was at the supermarket or while she was attending church and had left her purse unattended under her jacket for a few minutes.

Paint spilled

Police responded to a call from a concerned resident about paint that had spilled from a truck onto the travel lane Bancroft Road last Wednesday (Nov. 7). Police said the DPW went out and sanded the area to absorb the paint.

Vandalism

A 78-year-old Wheelwright Park woman reported to police last week that $50 in pumpkins had been smashed and two floodlights valued at $100 each had been broken at the entrance to the condominium complex.

Wheelwright Park is off Beechwood Street.

Credit cards

A 42-year-old Cohasset woman went to the police station last week to report a possible case of identity theft. The woman had received a Wal-Mart credit card and a Barclay's credit card in the mail. She had not applied for the cards. The credit card companies said the applications had been completed online. She was provided with an identity theft packet and information on how to contact the credit bureaus.

Deer accident

A passerby reported a female driver hit a deer near Hingham Lumber last Friday (Nov. 9) around 9:20 p.m. but did not stop. Police warn that deer are more active than usual this time of year and could dart out in front of traffic.

Vandalism

A caller reported vandalism on Doane Street last weekend that included damaged mailboxes, a soccer net over a mailbox, a wheelbarrow turned over and real estate signs taken down.

Parking ban is in effect

Winter parking regulations are in effect through April 1.

No overnight on-street parking between the hours of 2 a.m. and 6 a.m. is allowed during winter parking regulations.

Violators are subject to a fine of $25.

Two arrests made in car break-ins

In a rare twist to the case involving car break-ins in Cohasset – the grandmother of one of the two teens arrested was also placed under arrest.

Police said Priscilla Galewski, 59, of 70 Plain St., Rockland, went to the station to bail out her grandson, Tyrell M. Mosley. As is procedure, police checked her information and discovered there was a warrant for her arrest out of Quincy District Court for allowing unlicensed operation of a motor vehicle. Galewski was placed under arrest in the lobby but had enough funds to make bail for herself, Mosley and the other suspect, Justin J. Rogers.

Last Friday (Nov. 9), 10 Avalon Cohasset residents reported that their vehicles were broken into during the overnight hours and electronics, change, credit cards, prescription drugs and other items were stolen. Police said all the cars were unlocked.

Scituate Police also experienced a number of overnight vehicle breaks as well. Cohasset Police detectives, working with Scituate Police, were able to obtain video surveillance footage that depicted a male suspect making purchases with a credit card stolen from one of the vehicles accompanied by a second male suspect and a partial registration plate number from the vehicle the suspect's arrived in.

Through further investigation, the full registration plate number was identified and Cohasset and Scituate detectives established surveillance at the registered owner's residence in Quincy. After observing the suspects arrive back at the residence and then attempt to depart, detectives conducted a motor vehicle stop and recovered several of the stolen items.

The suspects, identified as Justin J. Rogers, 18, 91 Hamilton St., Quincy, and Tyrell M. Mosley, 18, 371 North Main St., #3N, Brockton.

Both suspects were transported to the Scituate Police station for booking. Upon their release on bail, they were re-arrested by Cohasset detectives and transported to the Cohasset Police station for booking.

Both subjects were charged with 10 counts of breaking and entering in a motor vehicle and eight counts of larceny under $250. Mosley was additionally charged with three counts of improper use of a credit card and one count of attempting to commit a crime.

Cohasset Deputy Chief of Police William Quigley praised the work of the officers and stated, "This is the type of outstanding detective work that we have become accustomed to here in Cohasset, a great job as usual with these arrests."

SCHOOL BRIEFS

Scholarship winners announced

Superintendent Barbara Cataldo and Middle-High School principal Carolyn Connolly announced winners for two prestigious scholarships during Wednesday's School Committee Meeting. One senior class student also received a distinctive honor.

Four seniors were named "Commended Students" in the 2013 National Merit Scholarship Program. Commended students are in the top five percent of more than 1.5 million who entered the 2013 competition by taking the preliminary SAT, which is the program's qualifying test.

The four seniors who received this award are: Mollie Chipman, Matthew Gregory, Brittany S. Leger, and Caroline C. Neaves.

More than 20 seniors received the John and Abigail Adams Scholarship Award, which entitles them to paid tuition to a state college or university.

Cataldo said, "I think this is a compliment, and all honors to them. I have great respect for what they've done."

The following students received this scholarship: Kristin Alexander, Gregory Berube, Conor Dooley, Annie Robinson, Sara Campedelli, Mollie Chipman, Kylie Coffman, Sara Corry, Jessica Costello, Melinda Dignam, Sara Fredey, Matthew Gregory, Giselle Hart, Meghan Kearney, Brittany Leger, Rachel Littauer, Michael Livingston, Whitney Malone, Ryan McGovern, Andrew Nahill, Anthony Nahill, Robert Nahill, Caroline Neaves, Gabrielle Rioux.

Matthew Gregory also received the Massachusetts Superintendent's Excellence Award.

Silly Hat Day at Deer Hill School

Deer Hill School sponsored a Silly Hat Day on Friday, Nov. 9, to support victims of Hurricane Sandy. Third, fourth and fifth grade students were invited to "grab $2 from your piggy bank and the silliest hat you can find." Donations ranged from $2 to as much as $20, with students raising a total of $1,137 for the American Red Cross.

Meghan O'Hara, a fourth grade teacher at Deer Hill, said, "Donating money to the Red Cross for people in need was a great way for students to demonstrate compassion and empathy for others. In my class we talked about the storm and its effects; many students shared stories of what friends or relatives in New York and New Jersey were experiencing. When I asked who wanted to do something to help, every hand went up."

Principal Jennifer deChiara applauded the effort: "I'm so proud of our students and staff for their quick and generous efforts to help the victims of Hurricane Sandy. The fourth grade teachers came up with the idea and everyone was happy to contribute and wear their hats."

Proceeds from Silly Hat Day were sent to the Red Cross of Eastern Massachusetts on Saturday, to be forwarded to the many people in need in New York and New Jersey.

ST. ANTHONY'S

Refurbished organ strikes a chord

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

Repairing historical structures requires extra precision and care. But what about when the artifact isn't a building or antique piece of furniture, but a musical instrument? When it came time to fix up the nearly 50-year-old organ at St. Anthony's, the congregation turned to the experts.

The organ had to be taken out of the church, dismantled, with many parts shipped back to its manufacturer, Wicks, in Illinois. It may sound like a straightforward procedure, but lifting the 20-foot long, 10-foot deep instrument was no easy feat and took assistance from both a Hingham Lumber Co. forklift and Cohasset Collision ramp truck. After several months of patience and a little improvisation from the church's music ministry, the organ was repaired and returned to St. Anthony's to the tune of $130,000.

While the price may seem steep, it is far below the cost of buying a new pipe organ (around $400,000) or an electronic organ ($80,000 to $100,000), the latter of which has a shorter lifespan than a pipe organ.

According to parishioner Fran Collins, a retired marine engineer who has worked on the organ over the years, the organ "has had 50 years of a pretty good life; it should be good for another 50 years, if not more."

Collins, who called "fixing and maintaining things" his forte, took it upon himself to investigate once the old organ started playing less than stellar. He found a problem with the organ's electric fan, which was fixed and "kept [the organ] limping along a few more years."

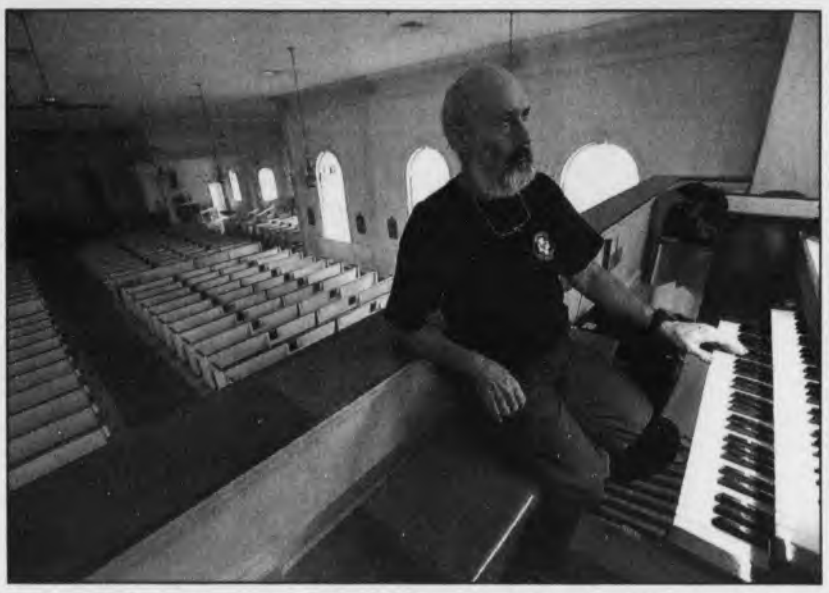
While the instrument's "operating mechanism was slowly failing," said Collins, organist Kathleen Keyes managed to keep playing the instrument, even when certain keys no longer worked.

"She was clever enough to work around it and make it sound OK," said Collins.

The organ was taken out of the church at the end of April, and Keyes brought in her own electric organ to play in the interim. It was a long wait before the organ was returned in late September, but Keyes said it was worth it.

"The old one was chopped to pieces, and taken out piecemeal," Keyes said of the church's organ. "It's amazing; the way it was taken apart, I didn't think it would ever come [back] together, but it did."

Keyes said the organ got a final tuning a few weeks ago, and she's been playing it for the past month.



"It sounds very good, bright and beautiful, and we're hoping we can do something special for Christmas."

Parishioner Lilly Sestito, who sings at St. Anthony's, said she was "so happy" to have the organ returned all in one piece.

"You take it for granted that it will always be there, and when it wasn't there... St. Anthony's is so popular for weddings nowadays, and we're so used to having music," Sestito continued. "It's definitely nice to have it back; I missed it while it was gone."

Chris Soer takes a pipe outside the organ to work on it while tuning it up.

While the singer said that the church's music team, including Keyes, "covered pretty well" while they waited for the old organ's return, she said that there is no comparison to the majestic pipe organ.

"I always thought it was grand to look at all the pipes," said Sestito, adding, "There aren't a lot of pipe organs around anymore."

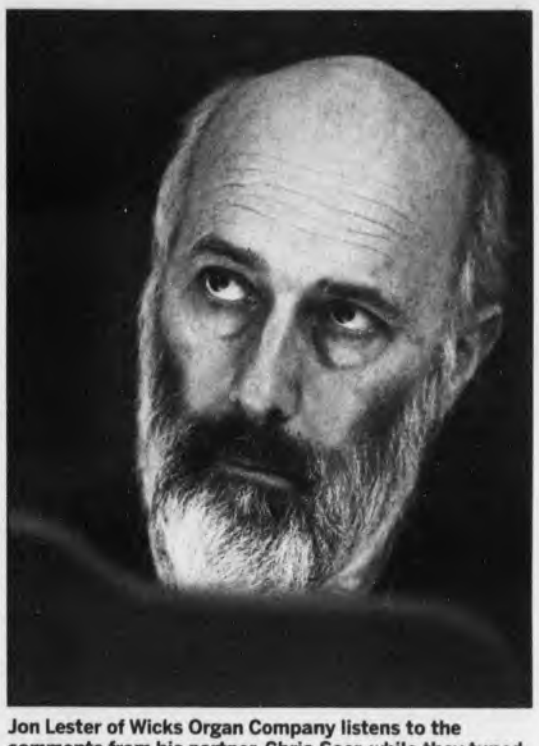
In an age when many musicians prefer to go electronic or digital, St. Anthony's has stuck by tradition by choosing to preserve a piece of its musical past.

It turns out that the old organ, placed in the church when it was built in 1964, was never actually completed and was missing pipes. During the recent reconstruction, Wicks added 100 new pipes.

"You can actually see the difference – it's incredible," said Sestito.

The organ was also given another important upgrade: a transposing switch so that the organist can easily change keys.

"We've been blessed with Kathleen, who could play that other organ no matter what and can transpose in her head," Sestito explained. Thanks to the new transposing function, Keyes can now change keys "with the flip of a switch; now, she doesn't have to think about it."



Collins said he found out the church was missing pipes by talking to a Wicks representative in Illinois, who referred him to a local rep in Duxbury. Wicks also gave a ballpark figure for how much the organ restoration would cost. Collins ran that number past the church's Reverend, Father John Mulvehill, whom Collins credited for allowing the restoration project to take place.

"If it wasn't for Father Mulvehill, it wouldn't have happened. He likes music," said Collins. "I had to convince him of the necessity of [the repair] electronically and mechanically, but once he knew, he was onboard with it.

"I went to our pastor and said, we could keep on spending a few thousand here and there, bailing out a sinking ship, but eventually it's going to fail," Collins explained. Taking the plunge and paying $130,000 for a full upgrade was necessary to keep the antique organ.

Sestito said that fellow parishioners had "mixed reviews" on whether to spend the money to repair the organ rather than just buying a new one. In the end, the singer said she thinks it was worth every penny.

Chris Soer of Wicks Organ Company looks closesly at the pipes while helping tune the organ at St. Anthony's.

Jon Lester of Wicks Organ Company listens to the comments from his partner, Chris Soer, while they tuned the organ at St. Anthony's.

"It had to be done," she said. "Generations will be able to benefit from this... It's a work of art."

The repair process itself was quite involved, said Collins, who estimated that the organ weighs around 350 pounds. John McNulty of Hingham Lumber made a special pallet to lift the organ console onto the forklift, which was then loaded onto a Cohasset Collision ramp truck.

Two people from the Wicks factory worked on the organ, with some of its parts being shipped to Illinois. After the organ was put back together and placed back in the church, it required a final tuning before it was back to making glorious sounds.

"Now that it's done, it sounds fantastic and fills the church with a beautiful sound," said Collins. "I can't read a note of music and don't play the organ, [but] I really appreciate music. And to see this thing go [back together] and see how it works was a lesson for me."

Still time to see 'Steel Magnolias'

JENNIFER PIEPENBRINK

Cohasset Dramatic Club's cast of "Steel Magnolias" features (l-r) Truvy (Cara Lee Chamberlain),Clairee (Anne Thornton), M'Lynn (Lisa Pratt), Ouiser (Barbara Baumgarten), Shelby (Sara Daly), Annelle (Jessica Corey). "Steel Magnolias" plays through this weekend at Town Hall on Friday and Saturday the 16th and 17th at 7:30 p.m. and Sunday the 18th at 2 p.m. General admission tickets: $20 each. COURTESY PHOTO

Happy Thanksgiving

Hello Cohasset...how is the town this week? I am a little in "seasonal and holiday denial" myself as next Thursday is Thanksgiving! While I am certainly thankful for a lot in life, it seems too soon to be celebrating this day. I want to talk a bit about being thankful...for me, every year when Thanksgiving comes, I always feel a little sad and never know 100 percent why. There is a bit of guilt surrounding the fact that we need a "day" to remind us to be thankful for all that we have every day, our family, friends, where we live and to remember those who do not have those things or are no longer here. We need to take time each day to remind ourselves of this and celebrate on Thanksgiving, which I guess is the real reason of the day. So...Happy Thanksgiving friends! Enjoy and celebrate all that are blessed to have.

New addition

Here is a piece of news to announce and celebrate. Dr. Martha McLoughlin and David Nothnagle welcomed a new baby boy Charles David Nothnagle on Oct. 22, 2012. He weighed 7 pounds, 14 ounces, and was 20.5 inches long. His parents both grew up in Cohasset and now live in Boston's North End.

Charlie joins two older sisters, Elizabeth who is 3 and Grace, age 2. His proud grandparents are Elizabeth and Maury McLoughlin and Taffy and Jeff Nothnagle.

Congratulations to you all on the wonderful addition to your family.

Holiday meal

The Hingham-Hull Rotary Club will once again host a Holiday Dinner that promises to be fun and delicious while helping to provide complete holiday meals for neighbors in need. Everyone is invited to gather a group of friends, co-workers or neighbors and be part of this feel-good evening! The Holiday Dinner, at Raffael's at the South Shore Country Club, on Friday, Nov. 30th starts at 6 pm with cocktails and dinner, followed by dancing till 10:30. Celebrity guest Bob Ryan of The Boston Globe will entertain partiers with insider stories of the sports world including his famous stories of years spent covering the Boston Celtics. Tickets for dinner and dancing are $50 per person. Your ticket will provide a holiday meal for four, and will be matched with an additional meal from the Hingham-Hull Rotary! This means, that for $50 you will be donating complete holiday meals for TWO families!

The ingredients for the traditional holiday meals will be distributed through the Wellspring Food Pantry in Hull and the Hingham Interfaith Food Pantry. This fundraiser is the perfect way to kick off the season of giving. Join with South Shore business associates, friends and neighbors for a great night. Enjoy festive dining and dancing while ensuring that families in need can count on receiving complete holiday meals this season. What a great combination!

To purchase tickets call 877-202-7755 or send checks to: Rotary Club of Hingham and Hull P.O. Box 39 Hingham, MA 02043.

Lunch and movie

Join a great day with friends on Monday, Nov. 19 at 12 p.m. at Cohasset Elder Affairs – 3 North Main St., for Brown Bag Lunch and Movie Day. This month will feature the movie "The Help" (146 minutes), based on the bestseller written by Kathryn Stockett. Bring your own lunch to enjoy while you watch the film. Cohasset Elder Affairs will provide drinks and popcorn. Transportation will be provided if necessary! Call 781-383-9112 if you need a ride.

Project Linus

In the Spirit of Thanksgiving, Project Linus Cohasset will be gathering on Sunday, Nov. 18, to make blankets for children affected by Hurricane Sandy. Project Linus is a national non-profit organization, which distributes handmade blankets to children who are dealing with personal crisis or trauma. These blankets provide warmth, security and love. Project Linus Cohasset has donated 576 blankets over the past 8 years in addition to the three and a half million blankets that have been donated nationally.

Atlantica, 44 Border St., will be hosting this event which will be held from 2 to 5 p.m. Sewers and non-sewers are welcome to join the. If you are unable to attend but would like to contribute to this cause, please drop off sewn, knitted or crocheted blankets with your name and address to Atlantica during business hours. Donations of cotton flannel or fleece fabric will also be gratefully appreciated. For further information please con tact Janet Campbell at dancesteps1994@gmail.com or 781.383.0665. Please check the website at www.projectlinus.org.

Library events

The author Molly Birnbaum will visit the Paul Pratt Memorial Library on Sunday, Dec. 2 at 4 pm to talk about her book "Season To Taste". Tickets are free but seating is limited and a wine & cheese reception, conversation with the author, and book signing to follow. Call the library to reserve your seat or for more information 781-383-1348.

Learn how to use Microsoft Word at a free workshop at the library on Tuesday, Dec. 4 at 10:30 am. Seating is limited so call the reference librarian to register or for more information 781-383-1348.

On stage

"Steel Magnolias" plays through this weekend on Friday and Saturday the 16th and 17th at 7:30 p.m. and Sunday the 18th at 2 p.m. at Town Hall. General admission tickets: $20 each at www.brownpapertickets.com/event/279850 at Paperscapes, Cohasset Village, Buttonwood Books & Toys, via reservation at 617-922-0280 or at the door one hour prior to each performance. For more information go to: www.cohassetdramaticclub.org

Thank you!

A huge thank you goes out to all the many, many people who donated clothing and items to head down to the New York/New Jersey areas last weekend with Kelly Lynch and her daughter Grace, and the huge shipment that Nicole Nussbaum, myself, Jen Palmer and Nicole's sister have been working on that leaves tomorrow. The response from Cohasset, Scituate, Hingham and other towns was huge and from all accounts, the destruction and circumstances that those affected by the storms was huge. All the donations will be used and are so greatly appreciated.

Early deadline! That's all Cohasset. Make sure all news is in by Monday by 5.

LIFE AT CHS

Second quarter has officially begun

WHITNEY MALONE

...the junior and senior girls will take-up the boys' sport in the Annual Powder Puff game next Wednesday at 12:30 p.m.

Hi Cohasset! I hope you all enjoyed the three-day Veteran's Day Weekend. We are officially in the second term of the school year! Students had their last classes on Tuesday and switched to their new quarter classes on Wednesday. Still, CHS teachers managed to schedule various tests and finals this week (apparently grades from teachers aren't due until Monday). Accordingly, report cards will be distributed next Tuesday.

This Tuesday, the Varsity Football Team challenged the Field Hockey Team in a pick-up field hockey game. While it is difficult for anyone first starting the sport to grasp the idea of using only one side of the stick, while also keeping the ball from touching one's feet, the boys proved their determination (despite multiple illegal obstructions) and tied the game 1-1. Football also played the Girls' Soccer Team on Wednesday, and this time, were able to revitalize their rusty skills from their elementary school days in club soccer.

Conversely, the junior and senior girls will take-up the boys' sport in the Annual Powder Puff game next Wednesday at 12:30 pm. As usual, the Spinnaker staff will handout a Powder Puff edition of the Spinnsheet (a miniature Spinnaker), featuring the senior team and including players' pre-game rituals and intimidating nicknames.

Next Thursday, the Thanksgiving Football game against Hull will be held at home on Alumni Field at 10:30 am. Being that this is the last game of the season, and CHS alumnus are home from college for the holiday, there is expected to be a large turnout!

Today, the seniors were dismissed temporarily from school to take a class picture at Sandy Beach for the yearbook. As a senior, I am finding it difficult to believe that I will be graduating this coming May, and will also be returning home from college for Thanksgiving at this time next year. In the meantime, I hope to make the most of the rest of my time here at CHS, which includes documenting my memories through this column. As I continue to write for the Mariner, please feel free to send me any feedback or suggestions!

Whitney Malone is a senior at Cohasset High; her column runs monthly during the school year.

Elf Raffle at SSCC Nursery School

Once again the SSCC will host a raffle to benefit the SSCC Nursery School. Tickets are still available for the Elf Raffle. Eight lucky children will have the opportunity to participate in the annual Jingle Bell Walk on Friday, Nov. 23, as one of Santa's Elves. The Elves, along with Santa, Mrs. Claus and Friends, will ride into Cohasset Harbor on Santa's boat. They will then board a horse-drawn hay wagon and lead the Holiday Parade from the harbor to the South Shore Community Center where everyone will join in the fun. There will be singing, crafts, cookies and beverages, as well as a chance to have a special picture taken with Santa. The Elves will be pictured with Santa in the upcoming Cohasset Mariner.

Tickets are on sale at the office for $10 each or three for $25. The drawing will take place at 10 a.m., on Friday, Nov. 16, at SSCC Nursery School and winners will be notified promptly. All proceeds will benefit the SSCC Nursery School Nardo Fund.

Popular music intersect at concert

WICKED LOCAL

Mark Shilansky, an award-winning jazz pianist based in Boston, will be presenting an eclectic, high-energy, improvisational program featuring his new ensemble "Pass It On," where jazz, bluegrass, celtic, and popular music intersect. This concert will be at First Parish Church at 3 pm on Sunday, Nov. 18. Admission will be $15 for adults and $12 for seniors and children. Children are welcome at this fun, upbeat concert!

Shilansky's new project is "Pass It On," and First Parish Cohasset is proud to be hosting this new ensemble where jazz, bluegrass, celtic, and popular music intersect. Its members are a mixture of well-known and up-and-coming artists that span diverse musical worlds, having played the world over with such groups as Esperanza Spalding, Luciana Souza, and Crooked Still. Featuring mandolinist Bryce Milano, guitarist Eric Byers, bassist Corey DiMario, and violinist Sara Caswell, this stellar ensemble embraces Americana and various folk musics, combined with a jazz improvisational approach, to hopefully forge a new and personal mode of musical expression.

Shilansky has appeared at First Parish Church in Cohasset before, accompanying vocal groups Syncopation and ESP.

For more information about the performers, please check out: http://www.markshilansky.com

For more information about the concert, please contact Allegra Martin at (617) 872-0461.

COHASSET TRIATHLON

Date set for 2013 race

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

Summer may be a distant memory, but will be here once again before you know it – and summer in Cohasset means the annual Cohasset Triathlon.

The race, which raises money to research a cure for juvenile diabetes, takes over Cohasset's shoreline each June starting with a swim at Sandy Beach, followed by a bike ride through downtown, and ends with a waterfront run along Jerusalem Road. The event has attracted such famous participants as former Senator Scott Brown and Olympian Gary Hall Jr.

Selectmen voted Tuesday to set the date for next year's triathlon for Sunday, June 30 starting at 7:45 a.m.

While organizer Bill Burnett of Streamline Events explored a Saturday date to cooperate with local clergy, he explained that with an earlier start time, much of the bike traffic should be off the main road by around 9:30 a.m.

Burnett also discussed creating special placards for churchgoers to place on their car windows so police details can wave them through, if necessary.

Next year's date was recently approved by the Sandy Beach Association and the Cohasset Chamber of Commerce, Burnett said. Fire Chief Robert Silvia, Deputy Police Chief William Quigley, and Harbormaster Lori Gibbons are also on board with the date.

Burnett has worked with the town's new Special Events Committee to develop an application for organizers who would like to hold events in Cohasset "that will help streamline the event approval process."

Burnett said that a registration date has yet to be decided, but it is coming soon. Last December, when registration opened on the triathlon's website, sign-up was full in a record-setting 40 minutes.

"aggressive" timetable for the RFP "to get it out the door" and published in the Central Register so that the AEC can start reviewing bids and determine whether the town will save much money on energy by turning to solar.

Bodell said the AEC would also like to form an "evaluation committee" to review the bids, consisting of the town manager, who serves as the town's Chief Procurement Officer; a selectman; a member each from the planning board, advisory committee, school committee, board of assessors, department of public works, and building department.

However, during the AEC's presentation, Capital Budget Committee chairman Steve Gaumer and vice-chairman Jack Keniley, who were in the audience, said it was the first they had heard the AEC was going to proceed with publishing an RFP.

Acting Town Manager Michael Milanoski pointed out during the meeting, however, that annual Town Meeting in May voted to approve leasing the two town properties for the installation of solar panels.

Gaumer and Keniley argued, meanwhile, that while the CBC is "not against solar," they had yet to see any financial analysis from the project. They urged selectmen to "stick to process" and consult advisory boards before approving projects that could affect the town's budget.

"We would follow the process before anything impacts the budget," said Gaumer. "While we're deeply interested in the project... we don't know the objectives of the RFP, and have had no opportunity to ask questions. Stick to the process, otherwise you don't need advisory boards."

Keniley said that while members of the CBC had "seen this presentation before," the AEC "was going to get back to us this fall with numbers; we requested that last spring and haven't seen it. We need the cash flow analysis; it isn't rocket science."

Gaumer added that their commentary wasn't aimed directly at the AEC or the solar project, but at "the larger process as a whole." However, Gaumer did stress the importance of reviewing such a major project.

"We're talking about putting an array on the largest piece of real estate the town owns," the CBC chairman said.

Bodell said the AEC tried to get on the CBC's agenda over the past few months and has also reached out to the committee to have a member join the RFP evaluation committee. The AEC co-chairwoman also explained that solar projects "are unique in part because the developer pays... The upfront cost to the town is nothing."

The only way to price the project, Bodell continued, is to go through the RFP process. Selectmen chair Diane Kennedy likened this to "a chicken and egg" scenario: "The economics won't be known till we go through the RFP process... We need to get real numbers, and Tanya's telling us the only way to do it is issue the RFP."

Keniley said he had heard that once the RFP goes out, the town is obligated to lease the land and go through the solar panel installation; his question was answered with a unanimous "no" from AEC members and selectmen.

"We're not obligated to go through" with the bids, said Bodell, adding that the AEC will only go with solar if it proves to be economically viable for the town.

As selectmen chair Paul Carlson put it, the CBC "still have a chance to get your oar in the water" and weigh in on the project.

Advisory Committee chairman Peter Pescatore, who was also in the audience, said that unlike the CBC chair and co-chair, he did not "feel as put off by the process."

Pescatore noted that Town Meeting pushed the matter through "pretty aggressively" last year, and that he had attended a number of preliminary meetings on the subject.

"This is just, in my opinion, more fact-checking of those assumptions," Pescatore said of the RFP process to determine how much the solar installation would cost.

"This hasn't been a secret – it's been pretty well-scrubbed," said Pescatore.

School committee chairwoman Jeanne Astino, who is also on her board's Alternative Energy subcommittee, said the entire RFP process will be vetted publicly. "We're not operating in a vacuum."

Astino described the RFP process as a "fact-finding mission.

"We're all fully in support of this project and want to make it happen, but we can't do that without more information," Astino explained.

Capital Budget meeting

The AEC met with the CBC on Wednesday, Nov. 7 after sending the board a draft of the RFP, draft contracts (a Power Purchase Agreement and lease), and other materials explaining the net metering credit opportunity to help the town save on energy costs.

While noting that this type of project without upfront capital outlay, is not the typical project the CBC reviews, Bodell said her board "tried to abide by the process as much as we could."

During the meeting, the AEC co-chair said that the CBC members came around the AEC's way of thinking agreeing that publishing the RFP is "the most efficient way to obtain prices to determine whether or not this made economic sense for the town to pursue."

The CBC also voted unanimously to include the water plant site in the RFP subject to the water commission's approval.

Special Town Meeting

Selectmen voted Tuesday, Nov. 13 to approve the Alternative Energy Committee's warrant article, which asks Town Meeting to OK leasing the water plant land to install a solar array. Special Town Meeting is Monday, Dec. 10.

OUR VIEW

Old Town Hall

Renovating the old part of Cohasset Town Hall is an issue that is before the Community Preservation Committee with a proposal to finance a full-blown feasibility study to determine how best to save the old structure.

There was a mini-tour of the old part of Town Hall on Tuesday led by David Farrag, who chaired the committee that brought the subject before selectmen about five years ago. At that time, a full renovation was put on the back burner largely for financial reasons. At that time, the windows were repaired and gutters replaced.

Those repairs while justified and very badly needed, however, did not solve the problem of how to make the old part of our Town Hall "habitable."

The tour was eye-opening as the Mariner along with Farrag, two members of the Community Preservation Committee (Susan Sardina and Todd Goff), Director of Project Management & Planning Brian Joyce and Building Commissioner Robert Egan.

Acting Town Manager Michael Milanoski told the group after the tour that the keys issues are public safety and upgrading the operating systems.

The Town Hall sits on Cohasset Common, which is both on the National Register and in the local Common Historic District.

The old part was built back in 1857 and remodeled in 1928. From what we can determine, little has been done to the old part for the past 84 years.

There is no way to clearly explain all the nooks and crannies, basement issues, attic, vaults, lack of document storage, electrical and other systems – with pen and paper. Simply put, you have to experience it!

Cohasset Town Hall is a historic structure that is sorely in need of restoration. The building has a rich history and is loaded with character. It deserves to be saved. We hope our selectmen will take the lead on this project and make sure that a major renovation gets put on the front burner.

Cohasset moves back from financial cliff

Monetary outlook is positive

For the first time in two years the board can report that our crucial financial systems are strong and we have a stable basis for moving forward.

The following is a press release from the Cohasset Board of Selectmen:

Two weeks ago the Massachusetts Department of Revenue certified Cohasset's free cash as of June 30. The free cash is $958,000, a sharp turnaround from the $600,000 appropriations deficit the finance department was forecasting during the winter. While having free cash certified is important for many reasons including building our reserves up to municipal standards, there is a broader story here that bears telling.

Two years ago we first started receiving information that our financial systems had deteriorated badly. By the spring of 2011 the Board of Selectmen learned that our auditor had been writing very explicit letters warning about shortcomings in the finance department including chronic understaffing and antiquated, inefficient accounting software. As a result our books had become chaotic and unreliable. These letters had not been forwarded to the board until Acting Town Manager Stephen Lombard unearthed them for us.

Over the past two years we have devoted substantial resources to cleaning up the books. Due to the hard work of Eric Kinsherf, John Stanbrooke, Daniel Sullivan, and, since February, Mary Gallagher as well as the full staff of the Finance Department, the records are current and our accounts are fully reconciled. We have also implemented a new accounting software system on an integrated, town wide basis. We now have the tools in place for management and boards to monitor the town's financial affairs

In 2011 during the height of the crisis, we were unable to submit our free cash to the Department of Revenue until the deadline in late December. The submission actually took place at 3:30 a.m. and required many long nights by Kinsherf, Sullivan and the staff.

This year we submitted the free cash worksheets on Oct. 16, 2012, all our accounts have been reconciled, and the Finance Department has been releasing timely and accurate financials to the Board of Selectmen and the financial committees on a regular monthly basis. The Board is now performing a monthly financial review with members of the Finance Department, the Advisory Committee and the Capital Budget Committee.

During this crisis, Mary Quill and her colleagues in the Assessors Office continued their very effective work and Jane Lepardo, our new Treasurer/Collector, has improved the functioning of her department.

Other important steps have been the adoption of a statement on financial practices aimed at bringing our credit rating up to AAA and a disciplined budget process prepared by the Governance Committee and approved by the Board of Selectmen. This process will be used during the current budget cycle, which is now underway. On Wednesday, the Department of Revenue began a study of Cohasset's financial and management practices at our request and our new audit firm, Powers and Sullivan, began the annual audit.

For the first time in two years the board can report that our crucial financial systems are strong and we have a stable basis for moving forward. We still have problems, including large unfunded retiree health care benefits (OPEB), but we can begin to work on them from a position of strength.

The Cohasset Board of Selectmen approved this press release in open session on Tuesday, Nov. 13, 2012 by a vote of 5 - 0.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

CHS cheerleaders could use a boost

Anyone who attends the Cohasset High football home games over the past few years must have noticed our cheerleading team and how they have improved and grown to a team of 20. These young ladies have added to the spirit of going to a good ole hometown Friday night football game. The additional practices and their commitment to their sport really shows. In addition, kudos to the Pep Band they sound awesome and their added sounds bring great fun as well to the spirit of "CHS Friday Night Lights!"

You may not have noticed, but the cheerleader parents have formed a booster club to help boost their sport. You can find a table with spirit items at the home games just beyond the Griddiron tent. I have been throwing in my change over the past two seasons but never really inquiring (my typical m/o!) what the funds are used for; pasta dinners? awards? apparel? Here's what I found out:

The cheerleaders not only pay their $250 sport fee but in addition, they need to purchase their uniforms (approximately $200) plus their shoes and warm ups. Unlike some of our other teams, with a long history of booster support, the Cheerleading Booster Club is new and could really use support to help offset uniform costs. Think about the student that may want to join the team (actually, any of our teams) the sport fee is large enough, but to then have to come up with another $200+ seems crazy and a possible deterrent to a family. I bring this to your attention, because "not all sports teams are created equal." Uniforms are supplied within the sports budget for teams such as football, basketball, soccer, lacrosse, yet others teams are not so lucky; where is the equity? The larger teams also have boosters, which supply additional apparel and dinners through the funds they have raised over the years. Our cheerleaders have been face-painting at the Farmers Market to help defray the cost of their uniforms and training.

So, if you have the chance to enjoy the Thanksgiving game, watch the cheerleaders, find the booster table, checkout the spirit items and help off set there cost by showing your support of our CHS Cheerleaders. If not, feel free to send your support to Jean Livingstone, Treasurer, c/o Cohasset Cheerleading Booster Club, 21 Whitney Woods Lane. I think you will agree football games wouldn't be the same without our awesome pep band or the cheerleaders.

Adrienne MacCarthy, 85 Doane St.

More than just a nice neighbor

Last year, I was new to town, and my family rented a house on Hobart Lane. My neighbor Jack Bryant was one of the first people I met in Cohasset. He would wave at me as I rode by his house on my bicycle, and smile from his car when he went to work. One day, I was told that he was once a Tuskegee Airman in World War II, and received the Congressional Gold Medal. To me, he was Mr. Bryant, the nice man across the street, not the person who played such an important role in America's history. It is amazing to have someone so important in our town.

Veterans Summit was well attended

Seventeen organizations also participated in Saturday's event bringing up to date access resource information regarding benefits to Veterans and their families.

On Saturday, Nov. 10th, more than 70 people attended a Veterans' Summit held in the Cohasset Town Hall Auditorium.

The Veterans' Summit was held to help connect Veterans and their families to different organizations able to assist with job opportunities, benefit eligibility, survivor benefits, legal services, counseling, insurance and prescriptions, as well as other specific situations.

The event was opened with a welcome from Paul Carlson, Chair, Cohasset Board of Selectmen, and (Ret.) Col. Edward S. Graham, Chair, Cohasset Military Support Group. The audience heard remarks offered by US Cong. Stephen Lynch, State Rep. Garrett Bradley, Cynthia L. Lewis, Legislative Aide to State Sen. Bruce E. Tarr, Coleman Nee, MA Director of Veteran Services, and Keith Jermyn, VSO to Hingham and Cohasset, all speaking with deep appreciation of our military men and women and the tremendous sacrifices they make for our country and for us.

Coral Grande, Elder Affairs Director, presented a cake to nine members of the US. Marine Corps, honoring its 237th anniversary, which is celebrated annually on Nov. 10th. As the audience applauded, Paul Kierce, the newest member of the Cohasset Elder Affairs Board of Directors, and a 12-year Marine Corps Veteran, graciously cut and served the cake.

Seventeen organizations also participated in Saturday's event bringing up to date access resource information regarding benefits to Veterans and their families. Resource bags, courtesy of Pilgrim Bank, were also filled and distributed to each participant.

The Valor Act, a Massachusetts initiative, written by Sen. Michael F. Rush (an Iraq Veteran) was passed unanimously by both the State House and Senate, May 31st of this year, This bill increases access to a range of services for Veterans, active duty military and their families, and was discussed at length by Cynthia Lewis, a member of the New England Community Advisory Board.

GENERAL ELECTION UPDATE

Cohasset votes support referendum on national budget

The following is a press release from the Budget for All Coalition

By a margin of 61 percent to 39 percent Cohasset voters Nov. 6 sent a clear message to both Democrats and Republicans in Washington about the federal budget crisis and the impending "fiscal cliff". The "Budget for All" ballot question passed by a vote of 2,381 to 1,492 in the town. It calls for no cuts to Social Security, Medicare, or other vital programs; investment in useful jobs; an end to corporate tax loopholes and to the Bush cuts for the highest incomes; withdrawal of U.S. troops from Afghanistan now; and redirection of military spending to domestic needs and job creation. The question passed by a wide margin in all of the other 90 Massachusetts cities and towns where it appeared on the ballot, including Fall River, Norwood, Great Barrington, Holyoke and Boston.

The Budget for All passes at a critical moment as the "fiscal cliff" and "sequestration" loom on Washington's horizon. Unless Congress acts now, automatic cuts in needed programs will go into effect beginning January 1. And even bigger cuts will follow.

"The election just happened, but already Washington elites are talking about a 'Grand Bargain' that would cut Social Security, Medicare and programs for the poor with only token tax increases on the rich and cuts to the bloated military budget," commented Michael Kane, executive director of the Mass Alliance of HUD Tenants. "The reported 'Grand Bargain' would cut two and half times the amount raised in new revenues to reduce the federal deficit. The people of our state have overwhelmingly voted for an alternative to prevent cuts to programs that benefit us all and to invest in jobs instead."

Laurie Taymor-Berry of Survivors, Inc added., "The vote sends a clear message to Senator Kerry, Senator Brown, Senator-Elect Warren, President Obama and other elected officials to deal with the deficit by changing the policies that caused it, not by cutting teachers' jobs, mass transit, Medicaid and food aid."

Initiated by over 80 community, peace, labor, and faith groups, the Budget for All is supported by State Treasurer Steve Grossman, State Auditor Suzanne Bump, and Representatives Barney Frank, Mike Capuano, Jim McGovern and Ed Markey, along with 10 State Senators, 18 State Representatives, and 15 city councilors.

The Budget for All Coalition is gearing up to expand its work to ensure that Congress heeds the message sent to them by the voters of Cohasset and all the other parts of Massachusetts where it appeared on the ballot.

FOR THE RECORD

Readers tell us what they want

GREGORY MATHIS

This could have easily fallen under the category of be careful what you wish for, but readers were honest with their feedback in response to my question a couple of weeks ago. What do readers want?

One responder was brutally honest with his critique of the newspaper.

"You put a number of questions in your column that make it appear you're steering people to those questions only. The problem you have is yourselves. I truly pondered whether to renew my subscription or not...I did."

The questions I included had more to do with getting readers thinking about the various aspects of the newspaper and websites and less to do with controlling the responses. Clearly this reader knows what he wants.

"The biggest problem you have is that you ALWAYS give news," that particular reader continued. "That is not informative. Why not try to be a bit more aggressive? Investigate our town and find ways to make it better, not that they are have tuna sandwiches at...school. This town is in decay due to the negligence of those at the top. Let's hold their feet to the fire more. BE GUTSY!"

There's little denying we need to be doing more investigative journalism and stories that give readers perspective about issues instead of just responding and reacting to events.

Another reader had a different take on how and where they get their news.

"Why do I read newspapers? – I don't any more," was part of the emailed response. "Free and online is preferred. I used to love the comics. Sometimes I still miss those, but not too much."

The former newspaper reader went on to say she didn't like the print product because she had to wash her hands after reading the paper because of the print smudges. Plus the paper was too big. "I just don't enjoy holding it, and folding it, and trying to read it."

It's quite clear from readers' responses that local is their reason for turning to us, either in print or online.

"I like local news and local stories in the local paper," one reader wrote. "Don't want to hear much about national issues there... The [local papers] should be local, personal, charming, real."

Nothing is more local for many folks than the police log.

"I frequently read the police log," a reader responded. "A new trend has appeared. Several incidents are noted as 'medical emergency'. This past week it was 24x. Three weeks ago (I believe that was the time - the paper was pink) it was 19x...Clearly, I can go down to the police station and do the homework myself (and I'm strongly considering it). It would be nice for the newspaper to provide these details."

We certainly do pay close attention to trends in the police log and the suggestion is one we'll follow up on.

Then there are those who still truly appreciate the newspaper.

"The written word is the product of careful and considerate planning, rather than at times inappropriate and often biased voices and images. Undeniably newspapers play an important role in the community, but the rest of the media has captured the attention and the intellect of the public that tragically vote blindly with inadequate or misinformation."

Thanks to those who took the time to respond. For more responses to the column from a couple of weeks ago, or to add your own comments, visit the For The Record blog, which you'll find on the Blog Community page on your Wicked Local website.

MEETING

appointed by selectmen last winter, was to review the Town Manager Act and try to better match it up with town bylaws. The Governance Committee held a public forum last Monday and elicited feedback on its proposed changes to the Town Manager Act.

While Governance Committee Chairwoman Christine Cunning said the committee was not necessarily suggesting the changes needed to be voted on by special Town Meeting, any changes to the Town Manager Act requires a Home Rule Petition from the State Legislature; Governance Committee member Ralph Dormitzer explained to selectmen that any changes must be submitted to the legislature by mid-December or early January to make it onto the 2013 docket.

Selectmen Chairman Paul Carlson noted that it was "incumbent on us as a board" whether some or all of the language changes should be voted on by special Town Meeting as the Governance Committee was "agnostic" on the matter. Cunning agreed that her committee took a neutral stance.

"From the committee's standpoint, agnostic is a good word," said Cunning. "We're maintaining the facts of what we've done and believe [the Act] needs changing."

Governance Committee members suggested several wording changes to the Town Manager Act (see sidebar), the most crucial change being the idea that no appointed or elected town official can become a permanent town manager unless they have vacated their positions for one calendar year. The Governance Committee wants to change the term from "person" to "selectmen."

This would allow Milanoski, who was appointed acting town manager by selectmen in late February while former Town Manager Michael Coughlin was suspended and then removed without cause in March. Milanoski was given an employment contract with the town that will keep him on board until the end of June 2013.

However, since Milanoski has served on town boards within the past year (he was appointed as an associate conversation commissioner last summer and served as the Governance Committee chairman until he rescinded the position in March), he is ineligible to become a permanent town manager.

Governance Committee members stated it is "unfair" to preclude town volunteers from being hired as town manager if they are a good fit for the town; Dormitzer also noted that any worldwide search for a new town manager would exclude Milanoski, "the most likely candidate," due to the current language in the Town Manager Act.

Selectmen acknowledged that the matter was expedient since they would like to keep Milanoski onboard. However, selectmen vice-chairwoman Diane Kennedy said she was hesitant to rush an article through special Town Meeting.

"My concern currently is doing this piecemeal," said Kennedy. "I'm reluctant to do this at special Town Meeting and whether that's the right place for this. If there's more work to be done [on the Town Manager Act], I don't feel good about asking the legislature to do a home rule petition and come back two months later."

Selectman Martha Gjesteby agreed. "I think we need the education of the community, whatever the changes. I think there should be plenty of time... I'd like to get all the T's crossed and everything, and would vote to have everything [voted on] at annual Town Meeting... People make bad decisions at Town Meeting if you rush things."

Selectman Fred Koed explained that getting the Town Manager Act changes approved by the legislature is an "extensive process," involving submitting the changes to the State House, a public hearing on the specific proposal, three readings before each branch of the legislature votes, and finally waiting for the governor's signature.

"If we do delay this whole process is long," said Koed. "We'd probably have trouble fitting on the calendar year 2013 if we [vote on and submit the Town Manager Act changes] in the spring."

An audience member noted that the original Town Manager Act, which was approved by annual Town Meeting in spring 1997, was voted through by a slim majority and made it onto the legislature's docket to be enacted that year. Cohasset's first Town Manager, Mark Haddad, was hired that summer.

Selectman Leland Jenkins said he was in favor of voting on the suggested changes piece by piece, as the Governance Committee's work will never really be done; he said that the committee should review the Town Manager Act every five years and "make corrections as we go along."

Jenkins urged having the fall Town Meeting vote on the particular language that affects Milanoski's contract.

"It's critical we make these decisions at this Town Meeting to make peace within the selectmen. We have somebody; we have the opportunity to hire someone [full time]. Is he a town manager? No, but the selectmen made the decision that he has those skills... It's critical this is one item we have resolved. There are too many things in this town to be addressed to have a short-term person."

Kennedy agreed. "We do have to find a way to resolve this acting town manager/town manager situation. We're clearly very happy with Michael [Milanoski]. I'm looking for stability for the people who work in this town... It's incumbent for us to figure out a way to make that work."

However, Kennedy continued, while selectmen are "figuring out how to keep Michael onboard," she saw that matter and the Town Manager Act changes as "two different things." At last week's Governance Committee meeting, Kennedy's husband, Patrick, an attorney and associate conservation commission member, suggested there is more than one way to interpret the language in the Town Manager Act that excludes any elected or appointed "person" from taking the helm as town manager; Kennedy likewise told selectmen she believed there could be a loophole in the language.

Milanoski's contract, said Kennedy, "is something we have to figure out as we try to navigate this. Believe me, I would like to cross the words [excluding people from becoming Town Manager] myself, but we have to do right by the town."

Adrienne MacCarthy, of Doane Street, commented that the current language in the Town Manager Act keeps a group of insiders from handpicking friends who have formed "alliances" to be town managers; if selectmen were to place this matter on the special Town Meeting Warrant, "it doesn't scream it's being done for the right reason."

When Agnes McCann, of Doane Street, said that fall Town Meeting is not as well attended as the spring meeting, Dormitzer responded that several town reports he studied indicated that the fall meeting is just as well attended, as it is held on a weekday evening and not on a Saturday, like the annual Town Meeting.

Carlson also noted that major articles, including zoning bylaw changes, are often included on the fall meeting warrant. He also asked McCann "where it's written" that only certain articles can be voted on at either the fall or spring meeting.

"It's written in the minds of everyone I know that lives in Cohasset," said McCann, adding that folks have "grown accustomed" to only voting on minor issues in the fall and major ones in the spring. "There's no reason to do this in a December Town Meeting apart from the fact that you want to affect something that you want to happen."

Vote

Selectmen were split on whether to place any of the Governance Committee's recommended amendments to the Town Manager Act on the special Town Meeting warrant. The board ended up voting 3-2 to have one section of the Town Manager Act, Section 3 (i), which contains the paragraph that most directly affects Milanoski's future employment with the town, on the warrant.

Kennedy and Gjesteby were the two dissenting votes.

STM date change?

During the Town Manager Act discussion, Ronnie McMorris, of Doane Street, told selectmen that since the Dec. 10 special Town Meeting falls in the middle of Hanukkah, they should consider a date change to be mindful of Jewish residents.

Milanoski said the Dec. 10 date was chosen due to financial deadlines, including closing out the fiscal year 2012 books and setting the tax recap, but that he would see if any other date would be possible. Since the warrant must be printed and sent to residents by Nov. 26, Milanoski said they could open the meeting and then suspend it to the following week. Other possible dates are Dec. 17 or 18 (Monday or Tuesday), but Milanoski indicated that changing the date at this stage is unlikely.

Selectmen voted unanimously to authorize Milanoski to find an alternative date, just in case.

Look for more on this issue in an upcoming edition of the Mariner.

Town Manager Act: What it says

The following language in Section 3 (i) of the Town Manager Act prohibits elected and appointed town officials from becoming Cohasset's permanent town manager, which is something the Governance Committee would like to change:

"No person holding elective or appointed office in town shall within one year of holding such office be eligible to be appointed to the position of town manager."

The committee would like to change "person" to "selectmen" and make the timetable 15 months instead of one year. The longer time period would allow for one full election cycle to pass before a former selectmen could become a town manager, which the committee explained would better distance the former official from any alleged conflicts of interest.

HOUSE

process and potential problems, we felt they could not be mitigated."

Creighton noted that one commissioner likened the construction project to "trying to fit 50 pounds into a 10-pound sack."

However, Creighton explained that the commission voted against the stormwater permit "without prejudice," meaning that if the Fords make changes, the commission could reopen the closed hearing and reconsider the application.

Creighton said that while the commission wishes the Fords "no ill will," they "could not in good conscience [approve the application] and fulfill our duty as commissioners."

Chris Ford said in a phone call to the Mariner that he was surprised the Con Com ended up rejecting the application; after all the public hearings and presentations, he thought the board's questions had been significantly answered by the engineer and environmental scientist hired by the Fords.

"We don't feel like there are scientific reasons" for rejecting the project, said Ford, "or that we left anything unanswered."

Creighton said in a phone call that just because an applicant answers certain questions does not guarantee the commission's approval.

"The questions were answered, but that doesn't mean it was a complete, satisfactory answer, and it doesn't mean that the Con Com felt the public policy was served and the Cohasset wetlands bylaw was served by approving the project," said Creighton. "If someone asked me a question, just because I answered it... it doesn't mean I get what I want."

Creighton reiterated that the commission did its part to uphold the wetlands bylaw.

"If you don't draw the line on this case, you really don't have a bylaw," the commissioner said. "If you're going to have a Cohasset wetlands bylaw and it's going to have meaning, there are going to be certain projects that don't pass muster, and this was one of them."

The matter will now go to Norfolk County Superior Court; the Fords are also seeking a ruling by the state Dept. of Environmental Protection (DEP). The Fords had held off going the legal route until after receiving the Con Com's final decision.

Ford explained that the DEP wanted the parties to revisit the matter to gather additional information and issue a positive decision. "The reason we went back [to the Con Com] is because it seemed the commission was acting in good faith toward that end," said Ford. "I don't think that was their intent."

Ford added that he is "dumbfounded" by the commission's negative vote. "It's going to cost us, and the town, a lot of money going forward. It's unnecessary," he said, adding that he feels his case will prevail in superior court.

"We want to go ahead and build on this land," said Ford. "We're entitled to."

Creighton said he thinks the court will rule in the commission's favor.

"If we thought we didn't have an absolute, strong winning case, we wouldn't have" voted against the application, Creighton said. "Obviously if we didn't have a strong case under the bylaw, we wouldn't have made the vote we did. We applied the bylaw; it's that simple."

Creighton said he also consulted with town counsel "to make sure we were firmly grounded in our responsibilities and weren't being arbitrary or capricious and that the decision was grounded in the Cohasset wetlands bylaw. We tried to take a very conservative, comprehensive, well thought out position. We are representing the town, and need to do so with great respect for the town bylaw."

Creighton added that any decision the commission makes that is grounded in the bylaw "will sustain themselves against any legal challenge.

"The commissioners take the job very seriously and ask good questions," Creighton concluded. "We're well aware throughout that we're going to get sued one way or the other, but we are not going to be swayed. We've been threatened with lawsuits from all parties, but our decision will be made irrespective of threats and intimidation."

The Fords' lawyer, Charles Humphreys, could not be reached for comment by press time.

Skippers blank Norwell

By William Wassersug
wwassersug@wickedlocal.com

Sometimes things seem to go well in a game, but the result isn't what you'd hope.

That happened two weeks ago when the Cohasset football team's offense clicked, but Mashpee was even better in a 49-41 loss for the Skippers.

Friday night at home against an overmatched Norwell squad, the result was much more in tune with what Cohasset hoped for.

From the beginning, Cohasset found a rhythm in all facets of their game and rolled to a dominating 33-0 victory that put the Skippers in a good frame of mind heading into the annual Thanksgiving Day showdown against Hull.

Cohasset hosts the game this year and will be trying to win their third in a row against Hull.

Last year, Cohasset won the annual showdown 34-6. The year before that, the Skippers notched a 36-12 victory.

The 2009 game wasn't as much fun as Hull handed Cohasset it's first loss of the season in a 20-7 upset. Cohasset won the South Shore League that year and went to the playoffs anyway.

The Skippers had won the two matches before that and are 7-3 in the last 10 years in the game.

Hull will enter the game with a 4-6 record (2-4 South Shore League).

They have posted victories over South Shore Vo-Tech, Carver, Norwell and Cape Cod Tech.

Teacher Appreciation Night

Faculty honored at halftime

Friday night at halftime of Cohasset's 33-0 win over Norwell, members of the Cohasset football team and cheerleaders honored distinguished faculty members with a ceremony at the 50-yard line in celebration of Cohasset High School's first-ever Teacher Appreciation Day. The faculty members were recognized for their efforts and impact both in the classroom and in life. The players had the faculty members wear their game jerseys to school today and stood alongside those that were able to attend the festivities in appreciation for all their hard work and effort in the classroom. Not all faculty members chosen by the students were able to attend tonight, but were recognized regardless.

The students recognized faculty as follows:

Captain Mollie Chipman - Cohasset High school Science teacher Dr. Ann Thomae; Captain Frannie Genello - Cohasset High school Art teacher Mr. Jack Buckley; Captain Shane Haggerty -Cohasset High School Math Teacher Al Gallotta; Captain Craig Davis - Joseph Osgood School teacher Ms. Laura Keating; Captain Jake Herth - Cohasset High School Math teacher Mrs. Laura Humphrey; Mike Livingstone - Cohasset High School History teacher Mr. Jim Willis; Zach Washak - Deer Hill School teacher Ms. Suzi Corkhum; Tommy Ryan - Cohasset High School Art teacher Ms. Nina Berkowitz; Conor Dooley - Cohasset High School Health & Phys Ed teacher Mr. Torin Sweeney; Drew Nahill - Cohasset Middle School Music teacher Mrs. Stephanie Moriarty; Dallas Purcell - Cohasset High School Math teacher Mrs. Kate MacAlarney; Christian Davis - Cohasset High School Guidance secretary Mrs. Nancy Creighton; Matt Gregory - Cohasset High School English teacher Mr. Bill Fish.

four times and in his sophomore year he was 5th in the Division 3 State Tournament. He was a state qualifier four times.

After graduation, Kevin attended the United States Coast Guard Academy. His wrestling success continued as he was named captain in his junior and senior years. He placed in the college New England's twice.

Kevin is now a Lieutenant Commander in the United States Coast Guard Station in Boston. This fall Kevin enrolled at Harvard to pursue a second Master's degree in International Relations. Kevin's mother and father still reside in Cohasset.

Karen Ekberg '83 Gymnastics, Track and Field

Karen Ekberg was a 2 sport All Star in her tenure at Cohasset High School. She burst onto the scene as early as the 7th grade, earning her first of what would be 6 Varsity letters in gymnastics. Karen was co-captain as a sophomore & junior and the sole team captain her senior year. As a freshman and sophomore Karen won the South Shore League (SSL) all-around competition and came in second in both her 8th grade and junior seasons. Karen was a 5-time SSL All Star, continuously from grade 8 thru her senior year.

On the track Karen was a 4-year letter winner, captain of the track team in her senior season, and a 3-times SSL All Star. She competed in the 100 and 220 yard dash, the 440 relay, as well as the high jump and discus. She won the Baystate Decathlon as a sophomore and was SSL champion in the 100 and 220 yard dash in her senior season.

Upon graduating from CHS Karen graduated from Brown University and had successful career at both IBM and Parametric Technology Corporation where she rapidly ascended into global leadership positions. For the past 8 years she and her family lived in Athens, Greece and Munich, Germany. Karen, her husband Makis and 2 children Katerina and Nikos now live in New Jersey.

Brian Keating '71 Football, Baseball

Brian Keating, a 1971 graduate of CHS, is being inducted for his tremendous skills on both the baseball diamond as well as the gridiron. A three-year Varsity Baseball starter, he was named to the All-League team as both a junior and senior as well as the All-State team his senior season. Known for his tremendous power, he also pitched three one-hitters his senior year.

As a football player, Brian started all three years at tight end and defensive end for the Skippers, annually leading the team in both tackles and sacks. Brian recorded eight touchdown catches his senior year on his way to becoming a league All-Star and a Patriot Ledger All-Scholastic. He continued his football at the University of Ottawa, starting at linebacker on the 1975 undefeated Canadian National Championship team.

Always a man amongst boys, Brian has always been considered one of the most natural athletes to grace this town. The name Keating in the town of Cohasset will always be associated with not only their athletic achievements but also their generosity, humbleness and their strong family values.

Allison Ludlow '93 Soccer, Softball

Allison Ludlow, a member of the class of 1993, is being inducted as a soccer and softball player at CHS. In soccer she was a five-year letter winner and four-time South Shore League All-Star. As a junior she was a Patriot Ledger and Boston Globe All-Scholastic as well as All-State and All New England midfielder. Due to a knee injury she became a goalkeeper her senior year and still made all-league. As a softball player she made varsity as a seventh grader and was a five-time letter winner and two-time SSL All-Star before she she injured her knee in her junior year.

Allison also was a four-time letter winner in basketball, earned a letter as a member of the boys' golf team and was the manager of the football team from 1984-87. She was recruited to play soccer but went on to play softball at Keene State for two years before she transferred to Northeastern to pursue her degree in cardiovascular technology. Allison currently resides in Scituate with her husband Kennan and their boys, Kennan Jr., Nolan and Hayden, and works at Boston's Brigham and Women's Hospital in the Cardiac Catheterization Lab.

Joel Reidy '89 Soccer

From the class of 1990, Joel Reidy was considered one of the best soccer goalies in Massachusetts while playing for Cohasset High. A four year Varsity player for Cohasset, Joel was also a three-time South Shore League All-Star, a two-time Patriot Ledger All-Scholastic, and as a senior was not only a Boston Globe All-Scholastic, he was named the Globe's Division 3 Player of the Year.

With Reidy as goalkeeper, Cohasset had four South Shore League titles, three Sectional Championship titles and made it to the State Final game three out of four years. An All-American nominee, Reidy had 12 shut-outs in 20 games for the 89 season, and was best in Division 3 with fewest goals allowed.

Joel and his family now reside in South Boston.

Bobby Walls '72 Football

Robert Thomas "Bobby" Walls will be inducted for his accomplishments on the gridiron. Bobby starred as a running back for the Skippers earning a varsity letter in both his junior and senior years. His senior season, Bobby led the South Shore League in scoring, was voted the MVP of the South Shore League, an SSL All-Star, a Patriot Ledger All-Scholastic and Boston Globe All Scholastic. He went on to attend the University of Notre Dame and played football there for three seasons, one as a member of the 1973 National Championship Team.

Bobby was also captain of the Basketball and Baseball teams his senior year and was named a South Shore League All-Star in both sports as well. He now resides in Texas but returns home quite often to visit family and friends.

ATHLETE, HERO, GREAT CITIZEN

Allen Keating '66 Football

A graduate of the Cohasset High School Class of 1966, Allen Keating was a 3-sport star for the Skippers. He quarterbacked the football team to one of the greatest upset victories in the history of Cohasset football, a 16-0 win on Thanksgiving over a Hull team that had been previously unbeaten for the past two seasons. Allen's performance during the 1965 football season earned him May Shore League All Star Honors, Patriot Ledger All Scholastic recognition, and the Cohasset Rotary Club's "Outstanding Senior" Award. In the winter, he was a starting forward for the Skipper basketball team. In the spring, Allen was the Captain and pitching ace of a baseball team that made it into the state tournament.

Outside of Cohasset High School, Allen was very active in his church and the community. He was the President of the Catholic Youth Organization from 1964-65 and volunteered as a coach in the Cohasset Little League.

Following graduation, Allen continued his football career as a quarterback at Arizona Western College. He was then drafted into the United States Army in 1968.

In January of 1969, Allen Keating reported for duty in Vietnam with C Co, 2nd Bn, 8th Infantry, 4th Inf Div. He was recognized for heroism in combat during a firefight on March 4, 1969 when his squad leader was wounded and pinned down by enemy fire in an exposed position. Allen rushed from cover to assist his squad leader and exposed himself to the enemy while delivering effective suppressive fire. Because of his efforts, soldiers were able to pull his squad leader to safety. Allen was awarded the Bronze Star Medal with Combat "V" and a Purple Heart for his actions.

At the end of nine months of combat, Allen was granted leave and travelled to Hawaii. There he met, and married, his high school girlfriend, Anne Noonan on Labor Day of 1969.

Allen then returned to Vietnam and resumed his tour of duty with C Co, 2nd Bn, 8th Infantry, 4th Inf Div. On October 19, 1969, his platoon was involved in a combat sweep north of Plei Mrong in the Pleiku Province. Allen's unit was ambushed in a heavily wooded area by a well-entrenched enemy force. In the combat that ensued, he maneuvered his armored personnel carrier into an advantageous firing position and delivered intense fire on the enemy. While continuing to repel the enemy ambush, Allen Keating was mortally wounded by shrapnel from an exploding grenade. He was posthumously awarded his second Bronze Star Medal with Combat "V" and second Purple Heart.

Dennis Reardon '63 Football

Dennis Reardon was a graduate of the Cohasset High School Class of 1963. He was a standout on the gridiron for the Skippers. He was the Captain of the 1962 team and was elected to both the May Shore League All Star Team and the Patriot Ledger All Scholastic Team. Opposing players and coaches voted him Captain of the May Shore League All Star Team. Dennis also received the "Outstanding Senior" award from the Cohasset Rotary Club for his achievements on the football field.

Off of the playing field, Dennis was involved in the school and the community. He was a Class Marshal, member of the Yearbook Staff, and volunteered at Saint Anthony's Church.

Following graduation, Dennis attended Boston College and graduated in 1967 with a Bachelor of Science Degree. He volunteered for service in the United States Marine Corps and was commissioned a Second Lieutenant on November 1, 1967. He was then selected to attend Flight School at Naval Air Station Pensacola, Florida and earned his wings as a naval aviator on April 25, 1969.

In September of 1969, Dennis Reardon received orders to Vietnam and was assigned to HMM-364, the "Purple Foxes," a helicopter squadron located at Marble Mountain. His flight crew was scrambled on November 29, 1969 on an emergency medevac mission for critically wounded Marines at a location in the Que San Mountains, south of Da Nang. While enroute to the landing zone, Dennis' helicopter was shot down by enemy fire, killing all 7 crew members onboard. For his heroism in combat, Dennis Reardon was awarded the Bronze Star Medal with Combat "V," the Air Medal with Numeral 7, and the Purple Heart.

hasset Football. He made Cohasset a contender in the South Shore League, winning league titles in 2001, 2003 and 2004. He was named a three-time South Shore League Coach of the Year, the Boston Globe Division 4 Coach of the Year in 2001 and the Eastern Massachusetts Association of Interscholastic Football Officials Coach of the Year in 2005. Tony was also named the Head Football Coach of the South Team in the prestigious Massachusetts Shriner's Football Classic in 2005.

More than just a football coach Tony was involved in all phases of Cohasset Middle-High School. He immediately became one of the most popular teachers in the school, teaching social studies at the Middle and also High School levels. He frequented almost every sporting event and school activity, playing show stopping cameo roles in school musicals and becoming the first master of ceremonies in the Mister Skipper Pageant. With his sense of humor and booming voice, Tony in his eight short years simply became the leader of school spirit at CMHS and helped change the culture of Cohasset sports in what became the most successful athletic decade in school history.

In 2006, Tony and his wife Pam retired and built a farm on the Coast of Maine where they now reside.

Dennis Walsh 1969-2002 Ice Hockey, Football

Dennis Walsh grew up in Canada and attended St. Francis Xavier College in Nova Scotia. He began his teaching career in his native Canada but soon headed south, and in 1969, Dennis was hired to teach math at Cohasset Jr./Sr. High School, as it was known at the time. He and his wife Casey settled in Scituate where they raised their four children.

During his first year of teaching, Dennis was also hired to help coach both the football team as well as the hockey team. He continued teaching in Cohasset for more than three decades and coached at least one team for the great majority of those years.

Though Dennis developed a reputation as an extraordinary math teacher, it was on the gridiron as well as on the ice where Dennis demonstrated that there was a tough side to the classy, Canadian gentleman.

SPECIAL CATEGORY – BOOSTER

Larry Shultz

Larry Shultz is being honored and inducted into the Cohasset High School Hall of Fame under the Special Category of Booster. He is the first person to receive this honor. Larry dedicated his entire professional career of service to the community of Cohasset. For 35 years Larry was known to all in the Cohasset community as an exemplary teacher, coach, and community volunteer who challenged everyone with high expectations and inspired all he worked for and worked with to be the best they could be.

Larry enthusiastically demonstrated his devotion to the youth of Cohasset by, at varying times, coaching the coaching the CHS Boys Varsity High School Basketball team, the CHS Boys Jr. High School Basketball and Soccer teams, and serving as President's of the Cohasset Town Youth Basketball and Soccer Associations. The Cohasset Soccer Boosters dedicated their concession stand and storage shed on Milliken Field to Larry Shultz.

Larry and his wife Linda (who worked as a secretary for many years in the Cohasset Public Schools) raised three boys, Bobby, David and Brian, who are all members of CHS Hall of Fame Soccer and Basketball teams. They currently split time living between Hull and Florida, travel, and spend time as much time as possible with their grandchildren.

YOUTH FOOTBALL

SciCoh wins Super Bowl

Sharks finish undefeated season

By Coach Dan Varney
For the Scituate Mariner

Yes it's true. The seventh-grade Scituate/Cohasset Sharks are the undefeated Superbowl Champions of the Old Colony Football League

The defense for the Sharks was superb all season and after a few plays in this game you knew they would control the Badger offense.

The Badgers went four and out on their first possession thanks to the Defensive line of Will Schwartz, Sean MacNeil, Victor Najjar, Will Thomas Alex DeFreitas and Danny Durkin. On The Badger second possession the game changed. After picking up a first down, the Badgers tried to throw the ball to Luke Murphy's area. Luke is the best shut down corner in the league and he proved it with a beautiful interception, giving the Sharks the ball. After two incompletions and a nice reverse to Will Thomas, the Sharks executed the play of the game, The Hook and ladder. Deven Varney threw a pass to Charlie Pyne, Pyne tossed the ball to Will Bowen and Bowen ran for 35 yards. The next few plays the Sharks pounded the ball with Jake Koncius, Will Greer, Liam Maguire and Bowen, Bowen ran in a twelve yard touchdown that was followed by a Varney run for the two point conversion to give the Sharks an 8-0 lead.

After the Sharks kickoff, the defense stepped up again. The Badgers tried to avoid Murphy's side and pick on our other great cornerback, Jason Dwight. It was a bad move.

Dwight and safety Tommy Carrabes joined forces and stopped the next pass, forcing a punt. Giving the Sharks the ball at the 50-yard line. It only took a few plays, Thomas with a circus like one handed catch of a Varney pass, a Greer run and a Bowen 37 yard touchdown run. After a penalty the extra point was no good and the Sharks led 14-0.

The Badgers got the ball and it looked like their offense was coming alive. The badgers were on a 7-play drive when the most feared linebacker in the league Andrew Blanchard stepped in and intercepted the Badger pass.

Varney took a knee and ended the half with a 14-0 advantage..

At halftime we knew the offensive line of Kevin Long, Chase Bomeisler, Sean Macneil, Will Schwartz, Jack Fechter and Jack Moskowitz were controlling the line of scrimmage, time to control the clock and pound the ball. Charlie Pyne came in at Quarterback with Will Thomas, Greer and Bowen in Backfield. Seven plays later Will Thomas bullied his way past the Bridgewater defense for a 10-yard touchdown run. For the extra point Pyne connected with a free throw looking pass to Chase Bomeisler, 22-0 Sharks.

The game had several standout plays as well as the workman like effort of our two outstanding linebackers Cal Osten and Jackson Mansi. The defense posted their fourth goose egg and allowed a league low 48 points in 10 games.

COURTESY PHOTOS/DAN VARNEY

Jack Hill and John Burke and Kevin Callahan finished off Bridgewater with some nice hitting and solid tackling, Matthew Davidson and Matthew Thomas and JJ Jordan played wherever we needed them and both did the job well. The offense scored a League high 238 points in ten games.

The Sharks offense was unpredictable yet very steady all year.

A Special thanks to the team moms Suzie Carrabes and Vickie Defreitas. Announcer Joe Carrabes and music man Brad Thomas. Thank you to all of the coaches that have helped build this team over the past five years. This year's staff Andrew Blanchard, Paul Bowen, Mike Fechter, Tom Koncius, Jason Lelio, Freddy Maguire ,John Osten, Chris Pyne, Scott Thomas and Dan Varney Jr.

See you next year

16.7 points per game, and allowing 22.9 ppg.

Cohasset enters the game with a 5-5 mark, including a 3-3 SSL record. The Skippers average 26.4 points per game, and allow 21.1, but Cohasset has pitched two shutouts and has scored 19 points or more in eight games.

Against Norwell, the Skippers got going early when Tim Gillis ran for an 11-yard touchdown with 7:53 left in the first quarter.

Norwell threatened to make it a game, driving into the Cohasset red zone on the next possession, but Terence Doonan ended the threat with an interception at the Cohasset one-yard line.

The Skippers struck again when Shane Haggerty celebrated Senior Night with an 89-yard touchdown on a punt return for a 12-0 lead that Cohasset took into halftime, and upped the lead to 18-0 when Tim Gillis romped 67-yards for a score on the first play from scrimmage in the second half.

Cohasset used some trickery in the third quarter when Rocco Laugelle tossed a halfback pass to Doonan for a 34-yard touchdown with 5:43 in the third.

The Skipers closed the scoring with a 12-yard dash by Ryan Gillis. The play was set up by a 28-yard pass from Chris Haggerty to Ryan Gillis.

Shane Haggerty kicked the extra point for the 33-0 final.

Laugelle ended the game with an interception at the buzzer.

"It was a nice senior night," Cohasset coach Pete Afanasiw said. "Everything clicked. From the National Anthem on, everything went well. It was a great way to celebrate the seniors. Shan (Haggerty) had a nice game. He was trying to do it all, maybe too much. Every time he touched the ball he wanted to score."

Defensively, Afanasiw enjoyed Tommy Ryan's play.

"He blitzed well," he said. "And had two or three sacks. It was a good one. Now we get ready for Hull.

THANKSGIVING WEEK

CHS Sports 2012 Thanksgiving Week schedule

We have had a great deal to be thankful for in the CHS Athletic Department so far this year and hopefully we will have one more thing to be thankful for after next Thursday's big game. Here is the schedule for the 2012 Thanksgiving week activities.

Monday, November 19
Sub-varsity Football Game
Cohasset at Hull High School
3:30 pm
Admission: $5 adults, $3 students and seniors

Wednesday, Nov 21
CHS Powder Puff Game
12:00 noon
Alumni Field
This annual tradition brings the junior and senior class girls of CHS together in front of a crowd of CHS alums, parents and friends on the likely to be rain swept turf tundra of Alumni Field (it always rains on this game) for a friendly game of flag football. It's always one of the highlights of the school year. Hope to see you there.

Thursday, November 22
Annual Thanks-For-Giving 5K Road Race
Cohasset Town Hall
7:30 am
A great way to start the holiday off and to pre-burn some of the calories you are plan on to taking in. This race is quickly becoming a holiday tradition in Cohasset with over 400 runners competing last year's race. The Thanks-For-Giving Race benefits the Cohasset Recreation Department and the Clark Chatterton Memorial Fund. You can also register online at http://www.cohassetrec.com or by stopping by the Recreation Department office at Town Hall. Race Day registration in Town hall begins at 6:00am and ends at 7:00am on Thursday.

26th Annual Thanksgiving Day Football Game
Cohasset vs. Hull
CHS Alumni Field
10:00am
admission $10 adults, $7 students and senior citizens
With the all-time Thanksgiving series tied at 12 wins, 12 losses, and 1 tie the Skippers host Hull High School at Alumni Field. The 11 seniors Skippers have led the way to a 5-5 record this season and are looking to close out their gridiron careers on a winning note. Also, come see the second CHS Athletic Hall of Fame Class honored at halftime.

Honoring Our Veterans

MY FAVORITE VETERAN

World War II Navy Nurse believes in service and America

By Mary Jane Hanron

As a young graduate of Newton Wellesley Hospital School of Nursing, Jane Bragdon (Hanron) joined the United States Navy.

Delight and honor mingle in my heart as I recognize her for her accomplishments as a great lady, proud American, lifelong contributor to the medical profession and World War II veteran. She is also an amazing woman I am humbled and proud to call my mother.

A nursing student when the United States formally entered the global conflict she believed like most of her generation in the responsibility of American strength and power. Her decision to join the service, like that of many young Americans at that time, she will say was due to a patriotic calling and sense of duty and pride.

Ever a lover of fashion and style, she claims to this day the reason she chose to serve in the Navy was because the uniforms were prettier than any others.

She also kept in her possession and wore for decades a stunning formal full-length winter cape with silk frog closures and a magnificent dark red lining that swept through the room as she walked with the utmost elegance. It was a frequent evening wrap that adorned her when she attended black tie events with my father.

Her contribution to the war effort – though she brushes away conversation about it to this day – only months past her 90th birthday; was vast and vital. Assigned to Chelsea Naval Hospital she worked with medics as an educator, training them in lifesaving techniques and medical procedures applicable on the battlefield as needed. As a young graduate, she automatically served as an officer holding the rank of Lieutenant.

After using her skills teaching others to care for the sick and wounded, she desired more direct access with patients and was assigned to wards filled with servicemen suffering from war wounds and injuries, many of which were devastating with life changing effects and emotional burdens. She will occasionally refer to one of the encounters there as memorable as though it occurred yesterday or poignant enough to have impact that survived decades.

Jane Bragdon (Hanron)

Assigned to the nurses living quarters with multiple roommates, she forged lifelong friendships with other great American women from vastly different backgrounds. Many she likely would never have known without the common purpose of serving the nation they all loved.

The Navy was where she acquired everyday habits that lasted a lifetime. She learned to drink strong black coffee because that was all there was available. She can fall asleep and awaken at a moment's notice, aware of the slightest sound of anyone nearby in need.

A career educator, following the War she was director of the school of nursing at Massachusetts Memorial Hospital (now part of Boston University Medical Center) and furthered her learning, receiving advanced academic degrees in nursing and education. She was recalled to serve in the Korean conflict but did not go due to her role in education in the homeland.

Her career also included public health nursing and service on the faculty at Boston College School of Nursing for nearly thirty years. She was the author of nursing and medical textbooks and an advocate for nursing education, serving on government commissions in Massachusetts. She also worked as a consultant to Visiting Nurse Associations and educational organizations. Several state and federal legislators regularly sought her counsel. Though the recipient of countless awards and commendations, she will not document or list or list them.

When asked why she chooses not to share more details about the days she says when in the service they were taught that, "Loose lips sink ships." She adds that what they all did was simply their duty.

Her honors continue nevertheless. Though what she has shared with her children about the war years is limited to pride and love of nation, she succumbs to recognition each year by her grandchildren who name her as a hero in school Veterans Day observances.

When asked how the country differs today as a nation at war she will speak of the 1940s when few people were seen in cities walking around on the street in anything but a military uniform. "Everyone was part of the war effort then," she says. "People cared, understood, sacrificed and did their part to be patriotic. That is the American way. We do what is necessary to preserve all that is great about this blessed nation."

Jane Bragdon (Hanron) lives in Hingham, Mass. and also lived many years in Scituate.

MY FAVORITE VETERAN

Thinking of 'Grammie' on Veterans Day

I have had [the photo above] of my husband and I in a frame for over 15 years. I took it out today to scan it to my Facebook page. It was taken on Aug. 17, 1993 at about 3 a.m. at the Bangor International Airport. It was taken by an older woman who came to the airport in the middle of the night with an "American flag and a HUG" for each member of our unit the 42nd Field Hospital from Fort Knox, KY as we were returning home that night from Mogadushi Somalia in support of Operation Restore Hope.

We stopped at the Bangor Airport to clear customs so it would not have to done when we arrived in Louisville, KY. The woman who I believe was from the local VFW took photos that early morning and mailed them to our unit shortly after. I was able to get this picture. I placed it in a frame many years ago.

Over the years, I have thought of that woman, many times when I would see news coverage of the troops coming home especially when they showed them coming through Bangor. It would always bring back memories of this woman and how I wished I knew who she was to somehow thank her for greeting us that night.

So today when I took the photo out of the frame, I was amazed that there was an inscription on the back of the photo! In very delicate handwriting it says "Takin at Bangor International Airport on your first step back to the good old U.S.A on August 17-93" from Mrs. Hilda Gott "Grammie"...there is a street address listed... also. I don't know if "Grammie" was a veteran herself but she obviously deeply cared for our returning troops. I don't even know how she knew we would be coming in that night on that flight from Mogadishu.

My husband and I became engaged shortly after this picture was taken. We reside in South Weymouth and both work for South Shore Hospital, Bob as a pharmacy technician and myself as a nurse. At the time of the photo, I was a medic and my husband was a pharmacy technician. Upon our return to Ft. Knox, I was accepted to the Army Enlisted Commissioning Program, attended Catholic University in DC and became a nurse. I decided I wanted to become a nurse while serving in Somalia because of the work I saw the nurses do every day. I learned and saw so much while serving there. I was then commissioned a 2nd Lt and served as a nurse at Walter Reed Army Medical Center along with my husband who worked in the pharmacy their. I served for six years and Bob served for five years.

However, if it were not for "Grammie" who came to the airport that very early morning, my husband and I would not have this awesome photo, which we keep in a frame in our living room. I don't know if she is still alive or not, but I will be thinking of her this Veterans Day as I always have, but now I know her name.

Private Jonathan Melanson and his father Staff SGT John Melanson

MY FAVORITE VETERANS

Father, son serve in National Guard

Father, Staff SGT John Melanson, and his son, Private Jonathan Melanson, are both active in the Army National Guard. John has served 20-plus years and two tours (Operation Enduring Freedom in Afghanistan and Operation Iraqi Freedom) and another deployment to Afghanistan on the way. Jonathan joined the Patriot Academy from high school two years ago. John opted to re-up and continue his service when his son (Jonathan) was accepted into the Patriot Academy in the off chance that they would someday be deployed, John wanted to be with his son. They are both very committed and dedicated to serving and protecting the U.S. Currently they both reside in Halifax, Mass.

Very proud of both of them.

Christine Kelley

OUR FAVORITE VETERAN

Sgt. Michael J. Oldham of Abington

Sgt. Michael Oldham of Abington is currently in training for his third tour overseas. He will be deploying to Afghanistan in the spring of 2013.

Sgt. Oldham signed up for the Army Reserves in May 2000, which at the time committed him to one weekend a month and two weeks in the summer of military service. In February 2003, approximately one week after the War in Iraq started, he left for his first deployment to Fort Bliss in Texas. From there, he was sent to Kuwait that June with his unit, the 211th TC of California.

The unit then traveled to Iraq where Sgt. Oldham loaded cargo, including ammunition, onto U.S. ships. He also participated in a convoy mission in Iraq, where it was his job to protect and move equipment. He was also a base guard in Kuwait until the end of his first tour and returned home Sept. 11, 2004.

Sgt. Michael Oldham of Abington

This was a particularly difficult tour for Sgt. Oldham, where he witnessed war first hand, and doesn't talk about it much. Regardless of what happened, his optimism had never wavered when he was there. He was always eager to help someone; such as seeing a lost, small child in the road.

In August 2007, he returned to service at Fort Bragg in North Carolina where he and his unit, the 1173rd TTBN of Brockton, trained again and traveled to Kuwait in October 2007. Sgt. Oldham loaded and unloaded the military vehicles as they arrived. He recalls the best part of the deployment was being able to drive the MIAI Abrams tanks.

When Sgt. Oldham is home is works as a mechanic for the Department of Defense. He also enjoys visiting local schools and Boy Scout troops; talking to children about what the Army is like and giving them an opportunity to ask questions.

Sgt. Oldham and we as a family, take Veterans Day and Memorial Day very seriously. It's part of the norm to spend those days doing the things that represent what those holidays really mean. Whether it's a town parade with other fellow veterans, a candlelight vigil perhaps or the moveable wall when it comes; we are there honoring those who served and are currently serving. It's important for our children to know what true meaning of those days are and that they are not just a day off from school or work holiday.

We are very proud of Sgt. Michael Oldham and pray for a smooth deployment and safe return home!

MY FAVORITE VETERAN

John Gauthier, U.S. Marine Corps, World War II

My dad, John Gauthier, who is now 88 years old, was in the Marines in WWII.

He served from Dec. 1942 – Dec. 1945 in the 4th Marine division located in the South Pacific. He was in the invasions of Iwo Jima, Tinian, Saipan and the Marshall Islands. He was one of only two from his original platoon that returned at the end of their deployment.

Growing up he never really told us too much about what he went through. As he got older we would hear of some of the horrible things he faced. Going to museums and reading we realized what they faced on those islands.

My dad is very proud to be a former Marine, which is part of the reason why the Marine Corp hymn was a lullaby. He always stressed the importance in appreciating what all of our military goes through to keep us safe. We are the land of the free because of the brave.

John Gauthier, World War II veteran

Along with all of this he has been the best dad anyone could ever hope for. My dad is my favorite veteran, however, we have to give thanks to all of our veterans.

Leverage a Suffolk MBA to advance your career

Being stuck in a career rut can either cost you your future or motivate you to make a change.

Take Samuel Inzerillo, for example. He spent 10 years at a workforce management software and services company when his career hit a plateau. "I felt like the perception of who I was when I started was tainting people's views of what I could do," he said.

Without a graduate degree, Inzerillo was missing out on career opportunities. When he came across Suffolk's MBA program at the North Campus Riverwalk location in Lawrence, he knew it was the perfect fit. With evening courses offered just 20 minutes from his office, Inzerillo was able to work full time while pursuing his degree.

"Enrolling in Suffolk's program let my leadership know that I was working toward something more, and it didn't take long for opportunities to arise," said Inzerillo. Shortly after, he was selected for a mentorship program with a senior executive in the company.

"It was amazing how applicable the curriculum was," Inzerillo said. The classes helped him understand how executives think and make decisions. "I was employing concepts from the classroom at work, and it was noticed by my management."

"I'm no longer that entry-level employee that they hired 10 years ago," said Inzerillo. Today, he holds an entrepreneurial role at Kronos, where he strategizes on niche offerings and identifies new sales opportunities.

Jami Harmon enrolled in the program with similar aspirations. She had already seen the benefits of a Suffolk MBA firsthand. Her cousin was promoted just months after graduating from the program.

Harmon is currently taking classes part time while working at GSSI, a multinational high-tech manufacturing company. "When I started working here about five years ago, I quickly realized that I needed the accreditation on paper to match my colleagues at work," she said.

With courses available at the Riverwalk location, the Boston campus or online, the program seamlessly integrates into her busy work schedule.

Classes are small, and she has made what she expects to be lasting connections with her faculty and classmates. She also considers her peers an essential part of the learning process.

"Classmates with real-world experience are able to shed light on current industry issues. Recent college graduates push us all to be more engaged in the classroom and think outside of the box," she explained.

Suffolk's global focus was also an important factor for Harmon. Out of the 11 concentration options, she is considering International Business in order to better serve her clients abroad.

Harmon, who expects to graduate next winter, is already reaping benefits. "I received a promotion just by entering the program," she said.

Learn more about Suffolk's MBA program options — at the North Campus, in Boston and online — by attending an information session. The next North Campus information session is Wednesday, Dec. 5 at 6 p.m. at Riverwalk Properties, 360 Merrimack St., Building 9, Entry K, Floor 3, Lawrence. For more information or to RSVP, email mbanorth@suffolk.edu or visit www.suffolk.edu/mbanorth.

HER STORY

Beating the odds to a higher education

Rosamaria Carlozzi talks about the long path to earning her doctorate degree. GHNS FILE PHOTO BY JACK FOLEY/HERALD NEWS

By Marcia Pobzeznik
GHNS Correspondent

FALL RIVER — Rosamaria Carlozzi said she didn't speak "a lick of English" when she entered kindergarten at the Dubuque School in the 1970s and her grades weren't good enough her first two years of high school to get her into the kinds of colleges and universities her friends were attending, but she pushed herself, and with encouragement from family and a community college professor, she now has a doctorate.

A vice principal at New Bedford High School, Carlozzi tries to instill in her students how important education is and how they have to look beyond the high school "bubble" to the future.

Born and raised in Fall River where she still lives, Carlozzi said her family couldn't afford to send her to the private college she got accepted to in New Hampshire. "I thought it was the end of my life having to go to a community college," she said, but it was at Bristol Community College that a professor, Abidemi O. Oyinlade "planted the seed" telling her she could get a doctorate one day if she wanted to.

"He said, "you can do anything you want.' He said "you can get a Ph.D.' and I said, "me?'"

Her mother always pushed her to get a good education. "My parents told me to strive for that," said Carlozzi, whose parents, Lucia and Giuseppe, immigrated to this country from Italy and opened a tailor shop off Bedford Street.

After she graduated with a doctorate in humanities from Salve Regina University in Newport, R.I., she called Oyinlade, who is now in Nebraska.

"It's important to thank your teachers," said Carlozzi. "He asked 'How did you remember me after all these years?'" She said she never forgot what he said. When she reached the end of the road she had to let him know how he played a part in it.

It wasn't easy getting there.

After two years at BCC she went to Bridgewater State, majoring in speech communications and minoring in Spanish. "That's when the whole world opened up," said Carlozzi who did an internship at Epcot in Disneyworld, working and living with students from all over the world. After she graduated from Bridgewater, she and a girlfriend went to Europe for three months and traveled to 10 countries, living on $250 a week. She figured if they ran out of money they could always go stay in a little town in Italy where some of her relatives live.

It was hard coming back.

She worked temp jobs, subbed in the school systems and decided she wanted to get a master's degree.

"I just wanted to do something I loved," said Carlozzi. "I wanted to study abroad."

She did that while working on her master's degree in Italian Studies at Middlebury College in Vermont. She remembers being in Florence and thinking how her father lived there while he was learning to be a tailor.

"I always tell my kids," she said of her students, "do what you love." And she found that she loved teaching. Her first job was as a Spanish teacher.

"I loved the kids. I loved their honesty. I love to inspire kids. The real challenge is to have kids that don't believe in themselves, believe in themselves. You share your personal stories. I say "I did it, you can do it too."

When her students would say they had so much to do, Carlozzi would tell them what she had to do for her classes. "I literally led by example," said Carlozzi.

Her kids also helped her get through the tough times. "My kids kept me going," said Carlozzi. "They'd say "you can do it,' and "I can't wait to call you 'doc.' "

She tries every day to instill in them the importance of a good education.

"The tree you plant today will provide the shade for tomorrow," says Carlozzi. "They don't realize how much potential they have."

Leadership in action

MSPP Massachusetts School of Professional Psychology

In today's quickly changing business environment, organizations must be able to maximize the effectiveness of their leaders and the workforce. Effective team dynamics, change strategies and management methods are essential to nurturing and maximizing human capital in the workplace.

Management consultant and educator Peter Drucker famously stated that "management is doing things right; leadership is doing the right things." Great leaders possess dazzling social intelligence, a zest for change, and above all, vision that allows them to set their sights on the "things" that truly merit attention.

In order to meet these marketplace needs, the Massachusetts School of Professional Psychology (MSPP) offers a series of cohort-based, online and blended graduate programs in Organizational and Leadership Psychology to prepare students to develop or advance their careers in organizational development, management consulting, human resources and higher education.

Programs include graduate degrees in Media Psychology (M.A.), Organizational Psychology (M.A.), Leadership Psychology (Psy.D.), Higher Education Student Personnel Administration (M.A.) and Executive Coaching (Graduate Certificate).

According to Erik M. Gregory, Ph.D., chairman of the MSPP's Organizational and Leadership Psychology Department, "These programs are designed for the 21st century. They address today's leadership challenges and teach and apply the most recent theories and practices in leadership." Dr. Gregory also states, "These programs are for anyone interested in making organizations more humane, more productive and more fulfilling. We provide this leadership model to those interested in media psychology as well as those taking leadership roles in higher education and business organizations."

Graduate programs at the Massachusetts School of Professional Psychology are "for anyone interested in making organizations more humane, more productive and more fulfilling," says Erik M. Gregory, Ph.D., chairman of the MSPP's Organizational and Leadership Psychology Department. CONTRIBUTED PHOTO

All academic programs are taught by practitioner faculty and experts working in the field. Teaching models are based on 21st century psychology and are focused around leadership and applied psychology.

"While a psychology degree or a degree in an allied field is helpful," says Dr. Gregory, "our students come from all walks of life, from those looking to advance their current career or those looking for a new career." MSPP faculty are extremely supportive and provide mentorship through each step of the program.

The Massachusetts School of Professional Psychology, located in Newton, educates students for careers that meet the growing demand for access to quality, culturally competent psychological services for individuals, groups, communities and organizations locally and around the world.

MSPP offers 12 degree programs across four domains in Clinical Psychology, Counseling Psychology, Organizational and Leadership Psychology, and School Psychology, with a focus on serving vulnerable populations including children of adversity, Latinos and veterans, as well as socially responsible organizations and leaders on the forefront of creating long-lasting social change.

The core of our approach is providing students with hands-on experience at more than 350 field placement sites, preparing them to solve complex problems in an increasingly diverse world.

The Massachusetts School of Professional Psychology is located at 1 Wells Ave. Boston. MSPP is accepting applications for fall 2013. For more information and to apply, visit www.mspp.edu.

GOOD ADVICE

Beat work stress

(ARA) - Whether it's fear of being laid off or simply that annoying coworker in the cube next to you, there's a variety of reasons why you might feel stressed at work.

While reasons for workplace stress vary, the most important thing you can do is take control of your career, says John Swartz, regional director of career services at Everest College. "It's easy to get stressed if you're working a job you weren't particularly excited about in the first place," says Swartz.

The following tips can help reduce the amount of stress you face:

n Stay on top of current trends in your field. Employees who demonstrate the ability to adapt are a valuable commodity, which will help ensure your advancement.

n If necessary, increase your level of education. If you're having trouble getting the job you want because you don't have the required amount of education, it's time to think about going back to school.

n Choose a career in a field where growth is projected, if possible. If you are exploring going back to school, it makes sense to first take a look at the job prospects in the fields you are considering.

GIMME SHELTER

Kaylee is quite the princess

PAULA J. FATERSIK

We are hopeful that Kaylee will find a wonderful forever home where she can settle in, become a family member and enjoy the warmth and love that she deserves.
COURTESY PHOTO

Just as soon as this little girl came through the door, we could see how special she was. And yes, she is all girl! Little Kaylee is a precious, Angora mix kitten. At 6 months old, she is as sweet as can be and is just so ready to go to a loving home. Her luxurious, silky fur is a beautiful black and sable mix and her gorgeous, deep green eyes just glow from a slender angular face. Kaylee is quite the princess. Petite and dainty, she has such a sweet personality. Her beautiful long coat is soft to the touch and she would enjoy being gently brushed which would keep her fur glistening.

Her beautiful long coat is soft to the touch and she would enjoy being gently brushed which would keep her fur glistening.

Since she arrived only two weeks ago, Kaylee has had some adjusting to do with the other cats in her room, and while she seems more comfortable now, we know that she really wants to be in a warm home with a loving family. Chasing small toys, following a laser light and exploring the room's perches and cozy spots has kept her very busy, but she is a very social kitten and would love having the company of a family around her. With her own special companions she is sure to be playful, attentive and affectionate. Whenever we come to her room, she is right there staring out at us as if to say, "I am so happy to see you!" Her expressive look is an endearing and beautiful sight.

The holidays are approaching soon and it is a time when things tend to become hectic so we are hopeful that Kaylee will find a wonderful forever home where she can settle in, become a family member and enjoy the warmth and love that she deserves.

Please call Judy at 781-534-4902 for more information about Kaylee and our other adoptable kittens and cats. Visit us during Open Hours on Monday from 6:30-7:30 p.m. or Saturday from 2-3 p.m. at 50 L St.in Hull. Our phone number is 781-925-3121 or you can visit our website at www.HSAR.org to view other available pets in our shelter.

During Open Hours this past week, again we were so lucky to have another supporter drop in with so many items including natural, dye free food which is wonderful for our cats. And there was more, litter, supplies and toys were carried in and we couldn't be happier. Her generosity is appreciated by all of us here.

Kittendales calendars are selling well, and we are hoping to top last year's sales. If you need a fun gift for holiday giving, visit www.kittendales.com to order or contact the shelter. The Hull Holiday Showcase is scheduled for Nov. 24th at the Nantasket Beach Resort, 45 Hull Shore Dr. from 10a.m. to 4 p.m. and we will be there with information on available pets and of course, our fabulous calendars!

If you have a few hours a week and are looking for an organization to help out, please call Nancy at 781-925-3638, or pick up an application and see how much of a difference you can make for our deserving animals.

SUNDAY AUTHORTALKS

Meet Molly Birnbaum and nibble Madeleines

By Marylou Lawrence
Special to the Mariner

Molly Birnbaum will speak at the next "Sunday AuthorTalks" on Dec. 2, at 4 p.m., at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library. She will discuss her recent book, "A Season to Taste," a book that is at once memoir, narrative, research study, a paean to food and an enchanting celebration of human experience. Madeleines and wine will follow her talk.

Molly Birnbaum will speak at the next "Sunday AuthorTalks" on her recent book, "A Season to Taste."
COURTESY PHOTO

In 2005, shortly after graduating from Brown University, Birnbaum was preparing to matriculate at the prestigious Culinary Institute of America when she was hit by a car while jogging. Her severely fractured body eventually healed, but her sense of smell was destroyed, and consequently, her dream of becoming a chef shattered. She dropped her school plans, quit her job, and moved to New York, where she struggled to recreate a map of her life. "A Season to Taste" is her account of this struggle.

Smell is central to both identity and experience. The tie between scent and memory, scent and emotions is inexplicably powerful and continues to challenge scientists and psychologists. Although Birnbaum could intellectualize these findings, she is unable to connect to her past, her lover, or enjoy any meaningful participation in life. But determined and curious, she dives into the study of pheromones, anosmia, and the human central olfactory system. She meets leading scientists in the field, travels to a flavor lab, and in France, to a perfume school where she learns about training her nose. She turns a medical case history into a narrative peopled with unforgettable characters, such as writer Oliver Sacks, perfumer Laurence Fauvel, clinicians, researchers, and other anosmics, some who would recover, others who would not.

Though successful treatment of anosmia is rare, Birnbaum perseveres both in the clinic and in her own home labs — her kitchen and Union Square's Farmers' Market. The pungent scents of rosemary, chocolate, ginger, lavender, fall apples, star anise, and old library books are but a few of the myriad memories that linger for the reader long after finishing this book. Birnbaum finds her mother's dog-eared copy of "Remembrance of Things Past" and turns to a page covered in college scrawl where Proust notes that most of us can remember the events, names, and dates of the past, but the important part, the emotional part, slips away. He recalls how a crumb of cookie "dipped in a cup of lime-flower" can bring it all back.

"But when from a long-distant past nothing subsists, after the people are dead, after the things are broken and scattered,...the smell and taste of things remain poised a long time, like souls, ready to remind us, waiting and hoping for their moment, amid the ruins of all the rest..."

Birnbaum's work appears in the "New York Times," "ART News" magazine, "USA Today," among other publications. She was awarded the Pulitzer Traveling Fellowship for Arts and Culture from Columbia University Graduate School of Journalism, her book was named a "Must Read" for the 2012 Massachusetts Book Awards, and she was a finalist in the International Association of Culinary Professionals Cookbook Awards for literary writing. Currently, she is an associate editor at America's Test Kitchen and project editor of the "Cooks Illustrated" cookbook, "The Science of Good Cooking" October 2012. Her blog, "My Madeleine," is certain to drive the most reluctant cook into the kitchen.

In honor of Marcel Proust, the Christmas season, and Birnbaum's blog, a madeleine and wine reception will follow Birnbaum's talk, and her book will be available for purchase and signing. Admission is free, but seating is limited. To ensure a spot, reserve a seat either online at cohassetlibrary.org or phone the library at 383-1348 ext 1 or pick up a ticket at the library's circulation desk.

"Sunday AuthorTalks" is sponsored by Dean and Hamilton Realtors and The Cook Estate. Bruce Sinclaire, owner of A Taste for Wine and Spirits, donates the wines for post-talk receptions.

For more information on authors scheduled for "Sunday AuthorTalks" throughout the year, visit cohassetlibary.org.

HAPPENINGS

Sports yard sale Saturday

Recycle. Renew. Reuse. The Cohasset Recreation Department is sponsoring a Sports Yard Sale, Saturday, Nov. 17th from 9-11 a.m. at Cohasset Recreation Center (behind the Red Lion). The sale will include gently used sports equipment including bicycles, skis/snowboards, boots, gloves, rackets, bats, balls, padding, helmets and much more.

Today, Friday, is the last day for donations, which are being accepted between the hours of 9 and 3 p.m. also at the Recreation Center. All proceeds will benefit the Cohasset Recreation Center. cohassetrec.com

Jingle Bell Walk

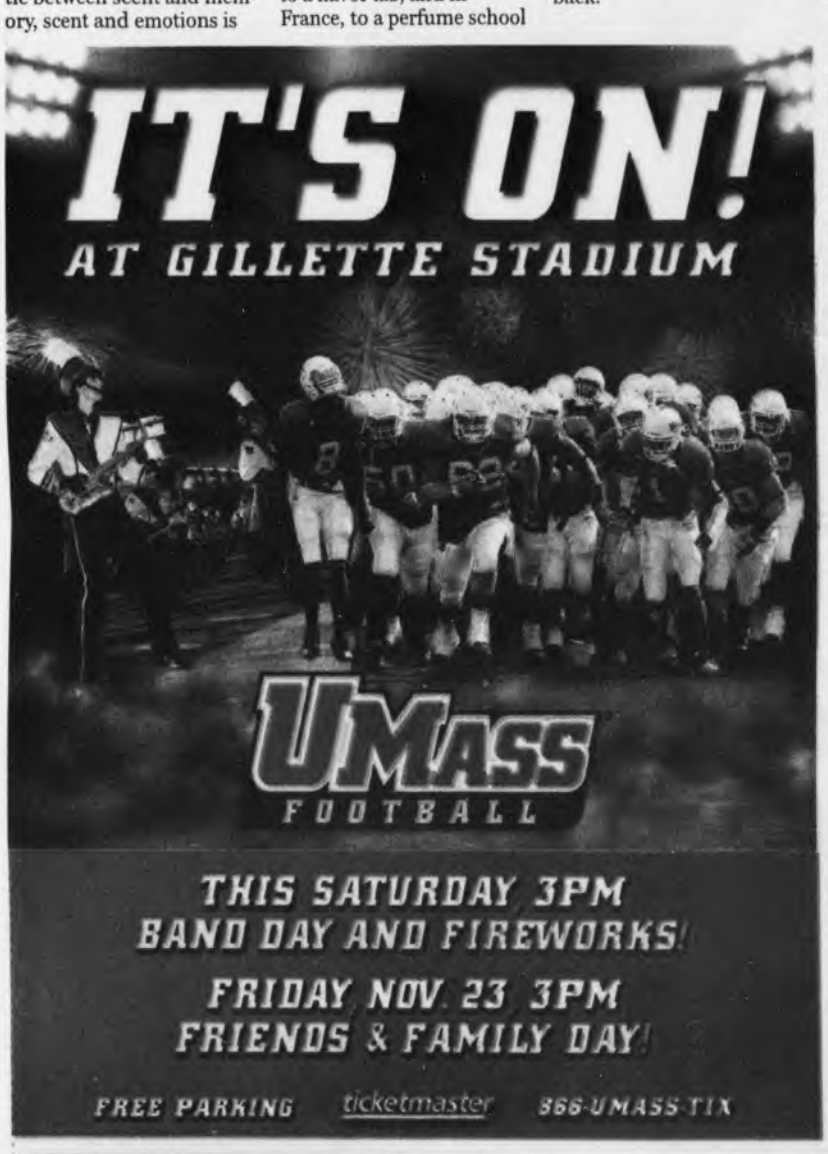
The South Shore Community Center would like to invite everyone to join in the fun as they present the 18th Annual Jingle Bell Walk on Friday, Nov. 23. The festivities will begin at 2 p.m. when Santa, Mrs. Claus and his elves, along with some special friends, arrive at Cohasset Harbor via a fishing boat. Join the parade and follow Santa's horse-drawn wagon to the Community Center where hot chocolate, coffee, punch and cookies will await.

There will be holiday carols and the Rusty Skippers Band will be there to provide music to get everyone into the holiday spirit. Big Ryan the Storyteller will entertain children of all ages and children will be able to create their own special holiday ornament to take home. There will be Open Bowling for all to enjoy.

Bring your cameras because Santa will be available for you to take that special holiday photo. And also enjoy your own Holiday Hayride around the Town Common.

Elf Raffle!

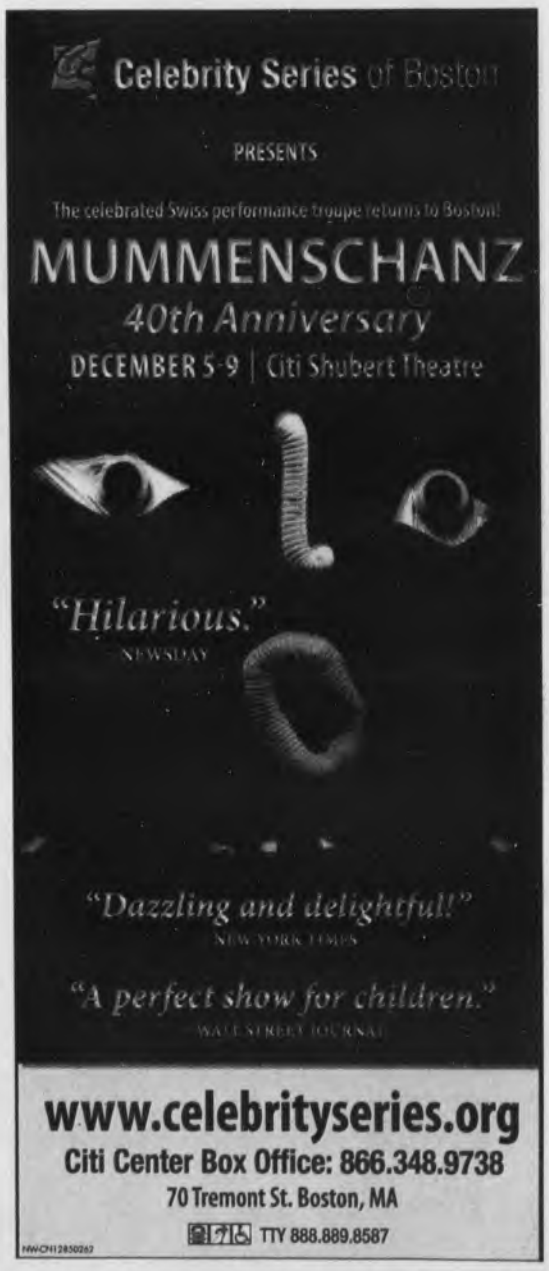
Once again the SSCC will host a raffle to benefit the SSCC Nursery School. Tickets are still available for the Elf Raffle. Eight lucky children will have the opportunity to participate in the annual Jingle Bell Walk on Friday, Nov. 23, as one of Santa's Elves. The Elves, along with Santa, Mrs. Claus and Friends, will ride into Cohasset Harbor on Santa's boat. They will then board a horse-drawn hay wagon and lead the Holiday Parade from the harbor to the South Shore Community Center where everyone will join in the fun. There will be singing, crafts, cookies and beverages, as well as a chance to have a special picture taken with Santa. The Elves will be pictured with Santa in the upcoming Cohasset Mariner.



Tickets are on sale at the office for $10 each or three for $25. The drawing will take place at 10 a.m., on Friday, Nov. 16, at SSCC Nursery School and winners will be notified promptly. All proceeds will benefit the SSCC Nursery School Nardo Fund.

METCO wreaths

Continuing an annual holiday tradition, the Cohasset METCO program is offering fresh, double-sided balsam wreaths. Cost is $10 per holiday wreath and the proceeds will benefit the Cohasset METCO Scholarship Fund.



Wreaths will be available for pick-up during the Cohasset Village Fair at Second Congregational Church, next to the Town Hall, on Saturday, Dec. 1. Pre-ordering is appreciated but not required.

Program offered before and after school

The RISE Program (Recreation, Imagination, Socialization & Education) is a Recreation Department self-supporting revolving fund program that provides quality care for Cohasset students in a safe and nurturing environment before and after school. The program is open to any Cohasset resident with children in grades k-5. Registration is accepted throughout the year.

The After School RISE Program (featured in these photos during a recent early release day) is divided into two basic parts: during the first part, the participants are provided a nutritious snack and have a set time to work on homework assignments. The remaining time is spent on enrichment activities, like helping to transform Room 145 at the Deer Hill School into a Medieval Castle, complete with a kitchen, a horse, swords and armor and a cozy "fireplace" to sit by after playing outside.

Students participate in a wide variety of activities – cooking, arts, special guests, outdoor games, sports, team building challenges, history, music, computers, dance, and natural sciences.

For more information on both the morning and afternoon RISE programs, visit cohassetrec.com or call 781-383-4109.

SALOME'S STARS FOR RELEASE WEEK OF NOV. 26, 2012

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Your work on a recent job assignment is impressive and is sure to be noticed. Meanwhile, expect to receive news about an upcoming holiday event you won't want to miss.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Saving the world one person at a time is what you were born to do. So accept it when people ask you for help, especially during the holiday season.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Now that you've resolved all doubts about an important decision, you can surprise a lot of people by defending your stand with your strong and well-reasoned arguments.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) The holiday mood stirs your need to nurture everyone from the family cat to great-grandma. But don't overdo it, especially with teens, who like to feel grown up.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Enjoy basking in the warm love of family and close friends. But don't fall into a prolonged catnap yet. There's still much to do before you can put up your paws and relax.

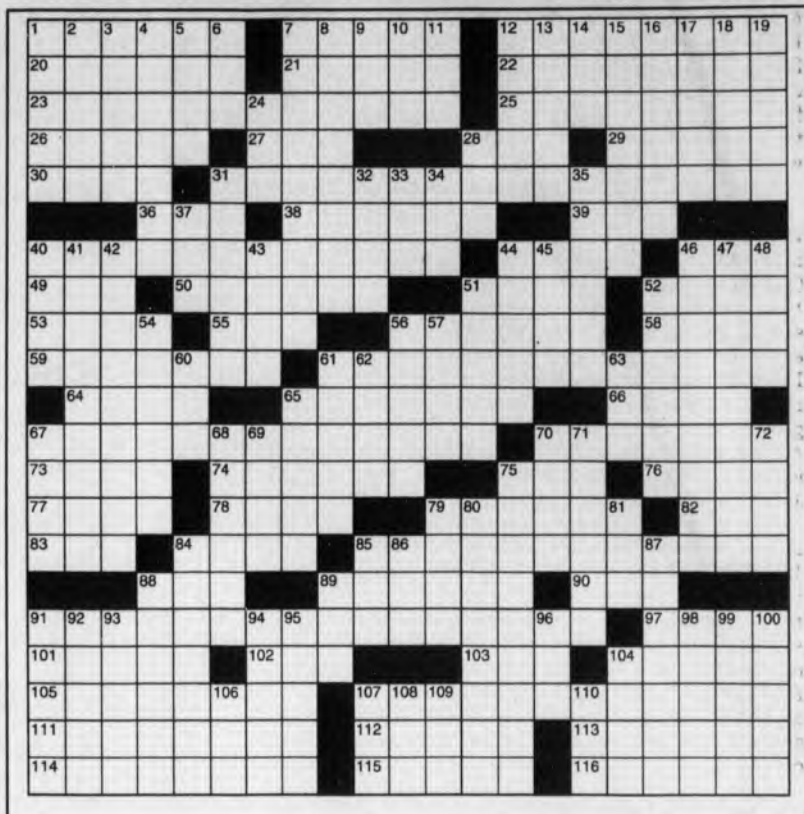
VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Avoid pushing others to work as hard as you do on a common project. Instead, encourage them to do their best, and they might well reward you with a pleasant surprise.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Like the sensible Libra you are, you no doubt started your holiday shopping already. But be careful to keep within your budget. Shop around for the best buys.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Love and friendship remain strong in your aspect over the next several days. This is a good time to develop new relationships and strengthen old ones.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A beloved family member has news that will brighten your holidays. Also expect to hear from friends who had long since moved out of your life.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Family and friends are in for a surprise when you accept the need to make a change without being talked into it. (Bet it surprised you, too — didn't it?)



AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Restoring an old friendship might not be as easy as you hoped. You might want to explore the reasons for your former buddy's reluctance to cooperate.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Your party-going activities pick up as the holiday season takes off. Enjoy your plunge into the social swim as you make new friends and renew old friendships.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Kevin W. Soule

COHASSET – Kevin W. Soule, of Cohasset, age 67, passed away suddenly on Nov. 10, 2012.

Loving son of the predeceased George E. and Eleanor V. (O'Brien) Soule. Survived by his brother George E. Soule, Jr. and wife, Barbara of Whitman, and a sister, Elizabeth A. Soule of Cohasset. Beloved uncle of Steven G. Soule and wife, Dianne of Hanson and Karen E. McHugh and husband, Kevin of Weymouth. Also survived by two great-nieces, Madison L. Soule and Jordyn M. Soule of Hanson, as well an aunt and many cousins.

Kevin was a graduate of Cohasset High School, class of 1965. He retired from the Cohasset School System after 36 years as a custodian and bus driver. He was recently working part-time at Frank Williams Landscape Supplies in Cohasset. At one time he was a Call Fireman in Cohasset. He was an Elk at the Weymouth Lodge.

Some of Kevin's greatest pleasures was going to car and truck shows, and driving heavy equipment. Kevin's love of travel led him to visit countries of his ancestry as well as North America, Europe and the Caribbean. He was a lifelong resident of Cohasset and was very active in the community. He was very proud of being an 11th generation descendent of the Mayflower. Kevin had a passion for birds, animals, nature and loved working in his yard.

Kevin will be remembered as a happy, kind and gentle soul. He was loved and will be missed by all.

Mary E. Londergan

NORWELL – Mary Ellen (Kelley) Londergan, age 87, of Norwell, MA, formerly a long-time resident of Cohasset, MA, passed away on Nov. 10, 2012.

Daughter of Alice G. and Edward L. Kelley, South Boston, MA. Beloved wife of the late Robert D. Londergan. Loving Mother of Moira of Evanston, Il, R. David Jr. and wife Kay of Granger, IN, Deirdre Doolan and husband Jack of Norwell, MA, and Michael and wife Mary of Marshfield, MA. Devoted grandmother of Kristin and Matthew Londergan, Peter and William Doolan, and Patrick, Thomas, and Ellen Londergan. Loving sister of the late Edward P. Kelley, Doris A. Ducey and her late husband Richard V., and Thomas P. Kelley and wife Sheila.

Born in South Boston, MA on December 7, 1924, Mary was a graduate of Girls' Latin School and Boston University. She enjoyed a long and varied career including positions with Jobs for Youth, the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, MFS Investment Mgmt, and the Paul Pratt Memorial Library of Cohasset.

Mary had a passionate love of life. She was world traveler, bridge player, gardener, music lover and reader. She was a consummate conversationalist with a fine intellect.

During her life Mary was a member of Hatherly Country Club, Cohasset Golf Club and Scituate Country Club. As an avid golfer she never was never able to break 100, but it wasn't for a lack of trying.

Most important in Mary's life were family, friends and faith. She was an active member of St. Anthony's Parish of Cohasset, MA and also attended Glastonbury Abbey in Hingham, MA.

Mary will be remembered as a devoted mother, grandmother, sister, and friend with an incredible passion for life and a strong faith. She will be greatly missed and fondly remembered by all who had the pleasure to know her.

ST. PETERSBURG, FL. – Elizabeth ("Liza") Weltman passed away on November 3, 2012 at her home in St. Petersburg, Florida with family and friends at her side after a courageous battle with cancer.

Born in Newton, MA, she summered with her family in Cohasset. A graduate of Beaver Country Day School, Yale College and Case Western Reserve Medical School, she returned to her roots, completing her residency at Children's Hospital in Boston. She remained nearby conducting a private practice in Weston and Medfield. She eventually moved to Florida, where she was a hospitalist in pediatrics at All Children's Hospital in St. Petersburg.

As a summer resident since she was a young girl, Liza spent many years in Cohasset with her parents, David and the late Lois Weltman and her brothers, John and Herman, and sister, Sally. Cohasset had been her playground: waterskiing on Little Harbor, exploring its islands, playing capture the flag in the Joy Place cemetery, and honing her soccer skills on the town common.

Liza had been an amazing athlete having been awarded seven varsity letters at Yale, including Lacrosse, Soccer and Field Hockey.

Although she loved sports, her greatest love was working and being with children. She not only demonstrated this in her chosen profession, but also decided to become a mother at age 44. It would be the adoption of her son, Eli, that became her greatest achievement. The love of her life was no longer medicine or athletics, but her son. They would change each other's life.

Eight years later, Liza would be diagnosed with her second bout of cancer. Her life expectancy had been shortened dramatically, and all she could think of was her son Eli and what he needed to be happy in life. Two months prior to Liza's death, she transitioned Eli into a loving family in St. Petersburg and instantly he had a father he always hoped for and an older brother and sister.

As her brother said at a funeral service held in St. Petersburg on November 8:

"But perhaps her greatest gift of all was the one she bestowed on her son."

When she realized that she could not care for him any longer, she found him the right home. She found him the right family, one who could love him and care for him and bring him siblings and light hearted fun. She did the most selfless thing that any mother could ever do. She gave him a place where he could find peace before she passed on, where her passing would not be as devastating because he had already found the next place in life.

A memorial service will be held in Massachusetts at a later date.

Contributions in her memory may be sent to the Avon Foundation for Women, P.O. Box 1073, Rye N.Y. 10580.

THE ORIGINS OF COHASSET

This holiday: Bring history home

New Cohasset book published

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

If you're looking for a holiday gift with local flair, you're in luck this season. Just in time for the holidays, the Committee on Town History is publishing its latest book on Cohasset: "The Origins of Cohasset: The Land and its People."

The book was researched and written by resident author – and town history buff – Jacqueline "Jackie" Dormitzer, who was handpicked by the committee 15 years ago to pen "Narrative History of Cohasset, Volume III." Dormitzer also found and compiled historical articles to complete "Treasury of Cohasset History" and its companion volume, "Savor of Salt." Recently, Dormitzer also wrote a guidebook titled "Exploring Historic Cohasset."

Working on her fifth – and final – Cohasset history book has been a labor of love for Dormitzer over the past decade and a half. The writer worked as a volunteer, pro bono, to capture Cohasset's history in print.

Dormitzer's first book on Cohasset history, "Volume III," dealt with the years 1950 through 2000. For her latest work, the author wanted to glimpse back further in time. "Origins" discusses the geologic formation and evolution of Cohasset from its beginnings, hundreds of millions of years ago.

"I wrote this book because I was interested in how our landscape was formed and in the earliest human habitation of this area," Dormitzer explained.

These early inhabitants, as many Cohasseters already know, were the Quonahassit Indians. While an earlier town history book discusses that tribe and the town's geology (the first "Narrative History of Cohasset" by E. Victor Bigelow) that text was published in 1898, long before anyone knew about plate tectonics or the first peoples who lived in southeastern

SELECTMEN PREVIEW

'Old' Town Hall tour on agenda

In the middle of the meeting – some time between 7:30 and 8:45 p.m. – there will be a 20-minute recess for a tour of the old section of Town Hall.

Next week's Board of Selectmen meeting on Tuesday will take a slight departure from the norm. In the middle of the meeting – some time between 7:30 and 8:45 p.m. – there will be a 20-minute recess for a tour of the old section of Town Hall.

Acting Town Manager Michael Milanoski has discussed the town hall renovation project with the selectmen and other boards, and the project will also be discussed during Monday's Community Preservation Committee meeting. Before the CPC is a request for $335,000 for design, engineering, and construction drawings for the renovation/restoration of the old section of the building.

The selectmen will also discuss warrant articles for Special Town Meeting, which is scheduled for Monday, Dec. 10 for 6:30 p.m. in the High School Auditorium. The warrant is being mailed to residents this week, but the selectmen will review articles from the Water and Sewer Commissions, CPC and Capital Budget Committee, as well as finance articles during Tuesday's meeting.

Milanoski will also give an update on the state Department of Revenue's management review of the town, which took place last week.

Check back for updates on the Mariner online and in an upcoming print edition.

Dogged debate

Planners, abutters talk bylaw change for veterinary clinic

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

A zoning bylaw change is on the docket for the Dec. 10 Special Town Meeting that could impact the ability to open up veterinary hospitals in town.

Dr. Fawn Stevenson, who runs the Crazy Paws veterinary hospital in the James Brook Crossing shopping center off Pleasant Street, is trying to open a walk-in clinic for dogs at 240 King St. across from Stop & Shop next to Smith Appliance. The proposed driveway to the clinic would be off upper King Street not Chief Justice Cushing Highway (Route 3A).

As the bylaw stands now — veterinary clinics are currently classified as facilities that treat livestock and wild animals and require a larger buffer.

In order to amend the language in the bylaw to allow structures like the one Stevenson is proposing to be built, Town Meeting will have to give two-thirds majority vote. The bylaw amendment is Article 15 on the Special Town Meeting warrant, which is being mailed to residents this week.

In the old town bylaw, veterinary hospitals are listed in the "agricultural" category, according to town Building Inspector Bob Egan, along with stables and kennels. The bylaw says that such structures have to be 200 feet away from the lot line. Stevenson hopes the town will agree to change the wording in the bylaw so that the buffer zone only applies to agricultural vets, not to vets treating domestic pets.

Stevenson has had some trouble getting her proposed project off the ground after attending a number of hearings with the Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA) with her attorney, Richard Henderson.

According to the Stevenson, a few people opposing the clinic are "getting hung up on language in the bylaw. The original zoning bylaw

HOW TO DONATE

Toys for Tots drive in Cohasset

Mission:
The mission of the U. S. Marine Corps Reserve Toys for Tots Program is to collect new, unwrapped toys and distribute those toys as Christmas gifts to needy children.

About
The Marine Toys for Tots Foundation enjoys one of the best programs to support ratios within the nonprofit world. More than 98 percent of monetary donations go to their mission of providing toys, books and other gifts to less fortunate children. The 2 percent, which is spent on support, principally covers fundraising expenses — not one donated dollar goes to pay for salaries or any other manpower costs. (Source: toysfortots.org)

Local drop-off
• The Cohasset Police Department has joined with the Marine Corps for the annual Toys for Tots campaign. New toys and games can be dropped off at the Cohasset Police Headquarters, on Elm Street, 24 hours a day, and seven days a week though Dec. 24. Toys and games should not be wrapped. For more information, call the station at 781-383-1212.

The Mariner caught up with Cohasset Middle-High School Assistant Principal Brian Scott in the hallway this week. If you see Brian around town, be sure to tell him that you spotted him in Picture This! PHOTO/ERIN DALE

Brian Scott

Name: Brian Scott.

Occupation: Assistant Principal, Cohasset Middle-High School.

Best day of your life: The day my daughter was born.

Best vacation: Ireland.

Favorite season: Fall.

Favorite holiday: Thanksgiving.

Favorite junk food, meal or dessert: I love fall-ish type comfort foods like short ribs or macaroni and cheese.

Best book: "Moby Dick."

ONLY IN PRINT

Best movie: "Braveheart" or "Hoosiers."

Best TV show: The Nightly News with Brian Williams.

Best music, group or artist: James Taylor.

Pet peeve: Misplaced "quotation" marks.

Fun fact: I was fortunate to participate in a student exchange with the Soviet Union when I was 12. It helped change the way I saw the world, but not until much later.

Person you would most like to meet: Malala Yousafzai.

Goal: That every student has a first-rate experience in high school.

Biggest worry: That people stop listening to each other.

Best part of Cohasset: The opportunities available to students.

FISH volunteers

Cohasset F.I.S.H. is currently in need of a few more volunteer drivers. This organization provides rides to medical appointments for those in Cohasset without other options. Each volunteer is scheduled to drive (if needed) one weekday per month using their own vehicle. Our corps of drivers has declined over the summer months as a result of relocations, disabilities, or simple aging issues — thus the need for more volunteers.

If you are available and might be interested in serving Cohasset residents in this easy manner, please contact Dick Avery at 383-6043 or leave a message with the F.I.S.H. answering service (781) 545-7073.

POLICE BEAT

Car break-ins, identity theft, litter dispute

By Mary Ford
mford@wickedlocal.com

Car break-in

At 4:42 p.m. on Monday (Nov. 12), a 34-year-old woman called from Bay View Drive (Avalon complex) to report that her 2006 Honda Pilot had been entered between Nov. 8-12th, and a video recorder/camera was taken. This was in addition to the nine other breaks at Avalon Drive. Suspects were subsequently arrested for all the breaks.

Business

At 11 a.m. on Tuesday (Nov. 13), the owner of local business called to report that the business had been broken into. A first floor window was smashed and a second floor steel door had been kicked, but neither had resulted in entry and no property was taken.

Pumpkins

A Church Street resident called on Tuesday (Nov. 13) to report that two pumpkins were smashed and her cast iron planters were knocked over. There was no damage to vehicles. The caller just wanted the incident logged, police said.

Car break-in

At 3:54 p.m. on Tuesday (Nov. 13), a 49-year-old Stockbridge Street resident called to report that sometime between Nov. 11 and Nov. 12, her 2008 Honda Odyssey van was entered and a Tom-Tom G.P.S. and Sony headset were taken from it. The vehicle was unsecured while parked outside her residence, police said.

Well being

South Shore Elder Services called for a welfare check on an elderly male last Tuesday (Nov. 13) residing on Ripley Road. Officers were unable to locate him but he was seen in the town square area earlier in the day. This is a weekly occurrence as the gentleman is out most of the day at the library or in the village for lunch, police said.

Deer accident

At 9:49 p.m. on Tuesday (Nov. 13) a 31 year-old Pembroke woman, driving a 2003 Ford Explorer, reported hitting a deer northbound on Route 3A near the train station. The SUV was drivable. The deer was killed as a result of the impact, police said.

Towed

At 9:50 p.m. on Tuesday (Nov. 13), a 73-year-old Weymouth woman reported hitting something in the road and her 2005 Chevy Malibu was disabled. It could not be determined what was hit, but the fender and tire were damaged. The vehicle was towed from the scene, police said.

Dispute

At 11 p.m. on Tuesday (Nov. 13), a 52-year-old Church Street resident had an argument with his 49-year-old neighbor over some past damage to a mailbox post. An offer was made to replace the post, but the neighbor declined. Both parties agreed to remain civil with each other, police said.

Donations

On Wednesday (Nov. 14), a 9-1-1 all was received from a unit in the 100 Pond Street complex asking about donations for the Red Cross.

Police responded to the residence and information on a mailing address for the charity was provided to the resident. She was OK and not in distress, police said.

Phone calls

On Wednesday (Nov. 14) a 65-year-old South Main Street resident entered the police lobby to report receiving two calls from an unknown man, identifying his wife, a practicing attorney. Neither the resident nor his wife had ever heard of the man. The number the man was calling from was blocked. The resident was given a case number for his phone carrier to start a trace, police said.

Smoking drugs

On Thursday (Nov. 15), a private investigator called police to report that two young women were sitting in a 2006 Nissan Altima at Cohasset Harbor smoking drugs. Officers on scene identified the women as two 19-year-olds from Hingham and Scituate, respectively. A quantity of prescription medication was seized for analysis. Charges may be pending depending on the lab results. Both were allowed to leave after being identified.

Followed

At 5:15 p.m. on Thursday (Nov. 15), dispatch received a call from a Papa Gino's driver who believed he was being followed by a red pick-up truck. Police met the driver on Linden Drive, where an area search resulted in no matching vehicle, and the driver was not able to give officers a license plate, police said.

Identity theft

At 10:28 a.m. on Friday (Nov. 16), a 43-year-old Cohasset woman went to the station to report that her credit cards had been misused. She believed that her purse had been opened while shopping at Stop &Shop. On Nov. 6th, she had left her purse in a shopping cart, left the plaza, and drove back to retrieve it a few minutes later. The victim has reported the illegal charges to her credit card company, and was given an identity theft packet to complete.

In trunk

At 3:12 p.m. on Friday (Nov. 16), a Cohasset resident reported that while parked at 130 King St. having her nails done, her vehicle was entered and items were removed from it. Dry cleaning, vitamins and protein powder were missing, she said. She later reported finding items in trunk of vehicle. There was no crime, police said.

Erratic operation

At 7:50 p.m. on Friday (Nov. 16), a motorist reported a grey vehicle heading north toward Hingham on North Main Street was being driving erratically, swerving in its travel lane. Vehicle was in Hingham by the time the call was given out.

Hingham police stopped this same vehicle at the Rotary, and the female operator, a 58-year-old Weymouth woman, was placed in custody for drunken driving, police said. She is facing Hingham charges of OUI, driving to endanger, having an open container of alcohol in the car and with marked lanes violation.

Litter dispute

On Saturday (Nov. 17) at 10:45 a.m., police responded to a business on Chief Justice Cushing Highway for a reported verbal dispute. A 26-year-old Norwell man had confronted a 65-year-old Hull woman about her throwing a large coffee cup onto the parking lot. The woman agreed to pick up her trash and dispose of it properly, police said.

Vandalism

At 11:35 a.m. on Saturday (Nov. 17), officers were dispatched to an address on Forest Avenue for a report of vandalism to a vehicle. A 17-year-old Hingham resident reported that her vehicle was covered in chocolate syrup and adult diapers.

The victim suspected an ex-boyfriend and another boy, who when contacted denied any involvement but agreed to clean up the mess and wash the car as a courtesy, police said.

Domestic

At 9 p.m. on Saturday (Nov. 17), police received an anonymous call from a woman asking for advice on a restraining order against her husband. The caller was disconnected from police, but information was discovered that she had been seen at a local hospital earlier in the day for injuries consistent with a domestic incident.

A short time later, the caller arrived at the police station. Further investigation led to the victim's residence where her husband was placed under arrest for domestic assault and battery. He was held overnight at the police station and arraigned at Quincy Court the following morning. D.C.S. (Department of Child Services) was also notified due to the involvement of young children. Neither party desired a restraining order, police said.

Hunters

Police received a complaint of hunters trespassing on golf club property on Lamberts lane while bow hunting on Sunday (Nov. 18) around 9:30 a.m. Officers encountered two men from Cohasset who said they were tracking a deer they had shot the previous day. Environmental police arrived to check both men's licenses and equipment. Both were released and advised not to cross onto the golf club property, police said.

CHIEF UPDATE

DeLuca: hearing scheduled for next Wednesday

A hearing on suspended Police Chief Mark DeLuca has been scheduled for next Tuesday, Nov. 27 at Town Hall, the chief's attorney, Edward McNelley, confirmed in a phone call this week.

DeLuca was placed on paid leave on May 25 by Acting Town Manager Michael Milanoski after the Cohasset police union filed 11 allegations of misconduct against the chief.

Milanoski mentioned four of these grievances in his suspension letter to DeLuca: "Using your position as police chief to secure benefits for which you and others were not entitled to; Forging important documents; Physical abuse; Abusing your authority during an internal affairs investigation."

Last month, DeLuca broke his silence on the matter when he told the media that the complaints against him are false.

Selectmen Chairman Paul Carlson said of next week's hearing, "I cannot comment on this matter."

While McNelley was also unable to elaborate, when asked whether the hearing will be open to the public or closed, he responded, "That is to be determined."

McNelley also said that he does not know the time of the hearing.

HISTORY

coastal Massachusetts, Dormitzer explained. "There's so much more we've learned in the field of plate tectonics" since then.

Her new book "follows the evolution of the Cohasset landscape from its beginnings in a magma chamber deep under a volcanic island arc near the South Pole around 600 million years ago to the effects of the most recent ice age. Then the book traces the evolution of human culture in the Cohasset area from the Paleoindians to the Quonahassits," Dormitzer continued.

What sets "Origins" apart from other local history books is that it focuses on the life and experience of the native peoples, rather than the Puritan settlers.

"I tried to gather all the available information about the Quonahassits, including what happened to them after Captain John Smith's visit in 1614," Dormitzer said. "I think this book might be unique among local histories in that it focuses on the Indian rather than the colonial experience. At any rate, it will present new information for those who are interested in Cohasset history."

The most recent addition to the Cohasset history text collection took Dormitzer three years to research and write. It took a great deal of time and effort, and the writer said that she is pleased with the result.

"I loved every minute of it," Dormitzer said during last Tuesday's Board of Selectmen meeting, during which she and Town History committee chair (and Mariner cartoonist) Jim Hamilton shared the news of their new book.

All seven town history books are sold at wholesale prices to the Cohasset Historical Society and Buttonwood books; they are available for purchase there and at the Town Clerk's office.

Dormitzer started her latest project by perusing history books in her own collection as well as libraries and the internet. She also visited two museums: the Robbins Museum in Middleboro, Mass. and the Mashshantucket Pequot Museum in Connecticut. She also interviewed the researcher/librarian at Plimoth Plantation, who was an Abenaki Indian.

The writer also did some "field work" in town, she explained.

"Bob Healy, a Cohasset resident, showed me the Lion's Den, an Indian rock shelter, and I was able to examine the artifacts at the Cohasset Historical Society, many of which were dated and labeled by Ron Nunn, a professor of Anthropology and Archaeology at Montgomery College (and the son-in-law of Cohasset residents Jim and Shirley Martin)," Dormitzer said.

The writer ran into some challenges when it came time to gather images to support her text.

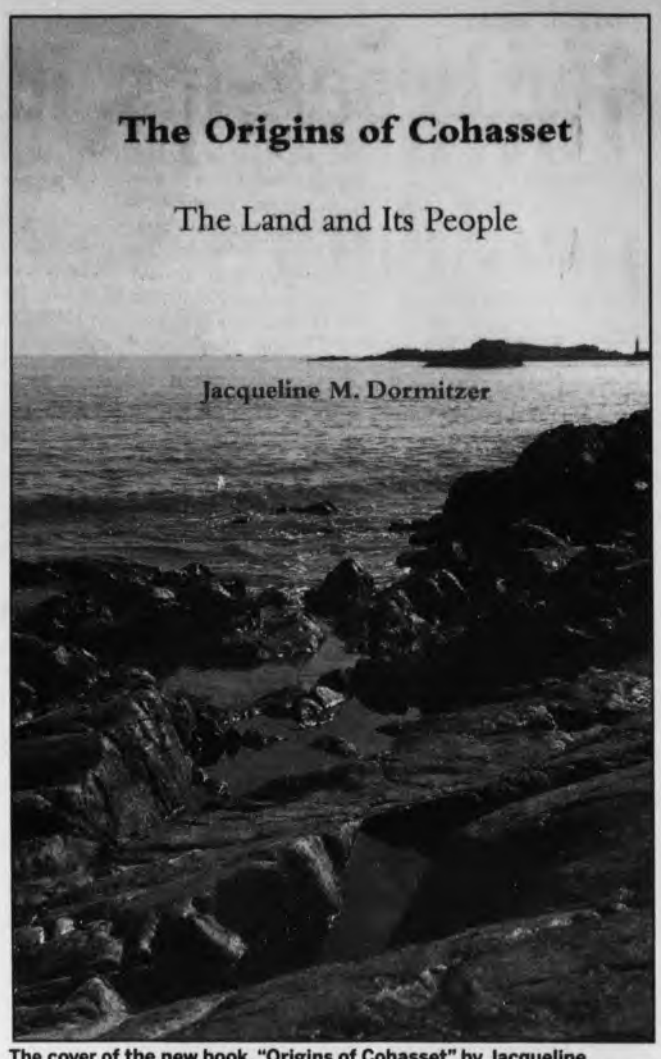
"Finding a picture of a female Indian was surprisingly difficult," she said. "Plimoth Plantation had several, but they were of female re-enactors, and I wanted something more authentic (less covered up!). I finally got permission from the Pequot Museum to use a photo they had in their catalogue of a woman planting corn."

As a result of her thorough research, Dormitzer said that she "ended up with masses of information," including a shoebox-full of index cards and 100 typed pages of notes. The writer said that organizing, selecting and synthesizing all of this information to whittle it down to the final, edited version of "Origins" was quite a challenge. The author added that the writing process itself was "slow-going." However, once the work was done, Dormitzer "really enjoyed the research, and once the book was written, I enjoyed editing the text."

While Dormitzer volunteered her time as a researcher/writer, Town History committee chair Jim Hamilton also volunteered his time as the book's production manager. The Town of Cohasset is the publisher of this book and the earlier histories, meaning that the town covers the cost of production, and all revenues from book sales go back to the town.

All expenditures for the books are covered by the committee's book account, as promised to the past boards of selectmen. The town history committee does not have to go before Town Meeting for additional subsidies since the revenues from sales are used to reprint whichever title needs reprinting. The five titles published after "Volume III" were paid for by the sales that book generated, as well as the remainder of the original subsidy.

Hamilton said during last week's Board of Selectmen meeting, during which he and Dormitzer discussed plans to publish "Origins" in December, that the Town History committee is very proud of this latest work.



"It's a tremendous history," Hamilton said of the Cohasset collection of historical volumes. "No colonial town in the U.S. can say they have history books designed to be packaged as a complete set."

All together, the Committee on Town History has published seven histories under the imprint of the Town of Cohasset, which includes the reprinting of two previous out-of-print histories, "Narrative of Cohasset, Volume I," by E. Victor Bigelow, and "Narrative History of Cohasset, Volume II," by Burt Pratt.

In addition to publication of histories, the committee was responsible for Nancy Garrison's illustrated timeline of Cohasset history, produced for the Cohasset school curriculum, an enlarged map of Cohasset, and the distribution of a rare keepsake wood engraving of Minot Light by Rudolph Ruzicka.

All seven town history books are sold at wholesale prices to the Cohasset Historical Society and Buttonwood books; they are available for purchase there and at the Town Clerk's office.

Price information for "The Origins of Cohasset" will be available soon, and the book will be published in time for Christmas.

About the author

Jacqueline Dormitzer, a longtime Cohasset resident, grew up in Chicago and graduated from Wellesley College with a French degree. Her first writing job was for "Childcraft," a children's encyclopedia published by Field Educational Enterprises in Chicago; Dormitzer wrote several articles for the publication from 1961 to 1962. She and her husband, Ralph, moved to Cohasset in 1967 along with their two sons, Paul and Philip.

Dormitzer worked as a freelance copyeditor for Duxbury Press in North Scituate and eventually took on freelance editing for Addison-Wesley and Harvard University Press. In 1979, she co-authored an economic geography textbook, "The Spatial Order."

The author served on several town boards and committees, including as president of the Friends of Cohasset Library from 1975 to 1977; as secretary, vice chairman, and later chairman of the Advisory Committee from 1981 to 1985; on the Board of Directors for the South Shore Art Center from 1986 to 1989; as co-founder and chair of the Cohasset Village Renaissance from 1990 to 1993; and on the Town Bylaw Committee starting in 1996.

In 1997, Dormitzer was selected by the Committee on Town History to write the third volume of Cohasset's "Narrative History," covering 1950 to 2000. She also compiled and edited two anthologies of articles: "Treasury of Cohasset" and "Savor of Salt." Prior to researching, writing and editing "The Origins of Cohasset: Its Land and its People" over the past three years, Dormitzer recently wrote a guidebook called "Exploring Historic Cohasset."

About the Committee on Town History

By a Town Meeting vote in the mid-1990s, a committee was established to publish the town's third narrative history spanning the time frame from 1950 to 2000. This history, titled "Narrative History of Cohasset, Volume III" by Jacqueline Dormitzer, was published in 2001.

Because of the town's support of the project and town subsidies, the committee went on to republish the previous out-of-print narrative histories, two Dormitzer anthologies, and a Dormitzer guidebook of the town — a total six titles.

A sub-committee was also formed to provide the Cohasset schools with historical time lines, a curriculum, and enlarged maps of the town.

The books are sold at wholesale prices to the Cohasset Historical Society, Buttonwood Books, and are available at the clerk's office. The committee's book inventory is stored in the Town Hall basement. Sales deposits are made through the treasurer's office.

All expenditures are covered by the committee's book account, as promised to past Boards of Selectmen. The committee does not have to go before Town Meeting for additional subsidies, as the revenues from sales are used to reprint whichever title needs reprinting. The five titles published after "Volume III" was printed were paid for from the sales generated, as well as the remainder of the original subsidy.

This December, the committee will publish its seventh and final book, "Origins of Cohasset: Its Land and its People," by Jackie Dormitzer.

Town Hall renovation project to be discussed

The Community Preservation Committee will meet on Monday, Nov. 26 at 7 p.m. to discuss three requests for Community Preservation Act (CPA) funds to pay for projects around town. The requests come from Town Hall, the Historical Society and Recreation Commission and are as follows:

• Town of Cohasset: Request for $335,000 for design, engineering, and construction drawings for the renovation/restoration of the old section of Town Hall. This article will be heard jointly with the Capital Budget Committee in the Board of Selectmen's' room.

• Cohasset Historical Society: Request for $37,113 to remove carpeting in the entrance and display room, and to restore the original birch flooring. Other work includes reproducing various moldings that were removed during a previous renovation of the building.

• Town of Cohasset Recreation: Request for $24,000 to replace fencing at Milliken Field.

Look for more on this in an upcoming edition of the Mariner.

Funding for the bridge comes under the state's Accelerated Bridge Program that was launched in 2008 with state funds and $1 billion in federal money. The program was created in part due to the reaction to a massive bridge collapse in Minnesota.

Memories of the creaky temporary bridge over the Fore River should fade for drivers when a new $244 million vertical-lift span is completed in four years, according to state and federal officials.

Gov. Deval Patrick broke ground for the new bridge in the shadow of the noisy overpass with federal, state and local officials Nov. 9.

"I am proud to work with your team, and to turn what has been a temporary solution for 15 years into a permanent solution," Patrick said. "Investing in infrastructure is the unglamorous work of government. Because of the partnership we have built with the Legislature, the prospect of the bridge is exciting."

Funding for the bridge comes under the state's Accelerated Bridge Program that was launched in 2008 with state funds and $1 billion in federal money. The program was created in part due to the reaction to a massive bridge collapse in Minnesota.

A design plan by White-Skanska Koch is 25 percent complete and calls for having a 250-foot-wide vertical-lift span that provides a 175-foot clearance for vessels to pass underneath it when it is raised. Smaller boats would have a 58.5-foot passageway to go under the span when it is in a closed position.

Coast Guard officials signed off on the bridge design and approved a permit for MassDOT to build the span in April, according to MassDOT Highway Administrator Frank DePaola.

Opposition to the bridge design has been fierce from North Weymouth residents who stated the span was too big for the location during public meetings with MassDOT over the past few years. Most residents stated they preferred a drawbridge and cited fears of increased commercial ship traffic in the channel. They also stated a vertical-lift span would require it to be opened often to accommodate larger vessels.

Weymouth Republican state Sen. Robert Hedlund said efforts to construct a new bridge were ongoing well before he and many state officials were elected.

"It's long overdue," Hedlund said. "There have been many delays with this project. We want to wish all the men and women who work on this project well, and be safe, and to complete this project on time and on budget. We would like the time frame for this project to be a reality."

CLINIC

talks about the buffer required for agricultural businesses such as farms, Christmas tree farms and veterinary hospitals," she explained to the Mariner recently. "Old-time veterinarians used to have barns and livestock... That old bylaw is not applicable. This is more of a doctor's office."

What Stevenson envisions for her new clinic is smaller and more spa-like than a vet hospital or stable. It's clear from looking at Crazy Paws, which has a cozy, not clinical atmosphere, that livestock or wild animals simply would not be admitted.

While the Planning Board has not yet voted whether to recommend the zoning bylaw amendment article to Special Town Meeting — according to the board's office, some members of the board are concerned about the potential impact of changing the current 200-foot buffer zone to 30 feet, while abutters have expressed concern over where the building's entrance/exit would be. Although the business is along Route 3A, the access is located on King Street.

The Planning Board's hearing on the matter is still open, and the board met last Wednesday, Nov. 14 to discuss whether to recommend the article; no decision was made or vote taken at that meeting. The topic was postponed to next Wed., Nov. 28 at 7:45 p.m.

The Planning Board, ZBA, Advisory Committee and Board of Selectmen will all review the article and vote on whether to recommend it during Special Town Meeting.

Look for more on this issue in an upcoming edition of the Mariner.

Greetings

Hello Cohasset. I am hoping by the time you are reading this, you are resting your yummy from your Thanksgiving Day feast and have reflected a bit on time spent with family and friends. We are all lucky in our own ways for what we have and thankful for family, friends and homes, everything that is ours really...

On stage

Last week, the Inly Middle School in Scituate performed a lively rendition of "Into the Woods" before an audience of fellow students, friends, faculty and family at the Meehan Family Artsbarn on Inly's campus. "Into the Woods" cleverly weaves the familiar Brothers Grimm fairy tales into the original story of a childless Baker and his Wife, who attempt to reverse a curse on their family in order to have a child.

It features all the classic characters including Cinderella and Prince Charming, Jack and the Beanstalk, Little Red Riding Hood and the Wolf, and Rapunzel, the Handsome Prince and the Witch.

Several Cohasset students had roles in the performance!

Trevor Schramn, a senior at Boston College High School, recently attended a Teach-In for Social Justice in Washington, DC.

Special trip

Trevor Schramn of Cohasset, a senior at Boston College High School, together with seven other BC High students and three faculty members, recently joined nearly 1,000 other attendees at the 15th annual Ignatian Family Teach-In for Justice in Washington, D.C.

The Teach-In was an opportunity for Trevor and members of the Ignatian family – 28 Jesuit universities, 25 Jesuit High Schools, Jesuit parishes, Jesuit volunteer communities and many other Catholic institutions – to come together in the context of social justice and solidarity to learn, reflect, pray, network and act for justice.

The Ignatian Solidarity Network sponsored the program. It is a national conference for those passionate about social justice grounded in the Catholic Social Teaching and the spirituality of St. Ignatius of Loyola. Started in 1997, the Teach-In takes place in mid-November to commemorate the Jesuit martyrs of El Salvador. The six Jesuit priests and two companions were murdered on Nov. 16, 1989, in El Salvador for their work advocating on behalf of the economically poor in that country.

The Teach-In is a place where people are empowered, re-energized, inspired, challenged and supported by a community that sees faith and justice integrally linked.

On the Saturday night, attendees also gathered at Lower Senate Park, adjacent to Capitol Hill, for a public vigil to call attention to the importance of legislative advocacy in working for social justice and build momentum for ISN's Ignatian Family Advocacy Month in February 2013.

Wreaths

Continuing an annual holiday tradition, the Cohasset METCO program is offering fresh, double-sided Balsam wreaths for your festive decorating. The cost is $10 per holiday wreath and the proceeds benefit the Cohasset METCO Scholarship Fund. Wreaths will be available for pick-up during the Cohasset Village Fair at the Second Congregational Church (next to the Town Hall) on Saturday, December 1st. Pre-ordering is appreciated but not required. For more information or to place an order please call Connie Afshar at 781 383 6006.

Concerts

Join the Unicorn Singers and Broad Cove Chorale in their 9th annual Christmas concert supporting the programs and services at Wellspring. My True Love Gave to Me will explore the custom of gift-giving through song and story featuring readings from Mark Twain and P.G. Wodehouse. Michael Theobald returns for the fifth time, to enchant the audiences with his dramatic readings. Guests have two chances to enjoy this wonderful holiday happening. These beautiful holiday events will take place on Saturday, December 8 at 8 pm at House of Prayer in Hingham and Sunday, December 9 at 4 pm at First Parish on Cohasset Common. Tickets are $15. per person., $25. sponsorship. Proceeds will help Wellspring help others. Tickets available at Nobles in Hingham or call Kathy Reardon 781-749-0162

That is the news for this week Cohasset. Send in all your news, photos and celebration info to me no later than Tuesdays by 5 pm.

Just an FYI. We receive dean's list and honors notices from many colleges and private schools, but not all. If your son or daughter has earned recognition, please share that news directly with us!

We also LOVE new baby announcements with photos if possible. Need birth date, weight, length, names of siblings, parents and grandparents. Emailed photos are fine but glossies can be dropped off at Tedeschi's in the village in our Mariner drop box.

Seniors reign in Powder Puff game

WHITNEY MALONE

While the junior girls put up a good fight, they were unable to prevent we seniors from achieving a 2-0 record.

I hope you all enjoyed a wonderful Thanksgiving, spending time with family and friends. The Thanksgiving football game against Hull Thursday morning was a great way to end the fall season. On that note, practices for winter sports will begin this Monday!

For the seniors, the highlight of this week was defending our title as Powder Puff champions from last year. While the junior girls put up a good fight, they were unable to prevent we seniors from achieving a 2-0 record. Nevertheless, everyone enjoyed the friendly competition and I wish the juniors good luck next year!
